A motorist from Petrolia who seems to have been a rather decent citizen bumped his car into a guard rail on one of Toronto's streets and bent it a little. He reported to authorities and said he would be glad to pay for the damages. When he got the bill it is likely he changed his mind for it amounted to $24.61. The bill for the material used was $1.62, and the remainder was made up with labor costs, truck and overhead charges.

According to reports all that needed fixing was a piece of bent piping, and yet it cost $22.99 to put in $1.62 worth of piping.

That little transaction has a wider bearing than might appear on the surface, and it may be the motorist from Petrolia has actually performed a service to the people of Toronto in showing what charges are piled up in completing what was evidently a simple operation. If other jobs around the city are being performed on a comparable basis then it is time the people who pay the bills were told about it.

Should Not Complain

We learn that the number of persons who attended the fowl supper served by the ladies of the Crediton Evangelical Church was slightly under the record of last year or the year before. When they had finished their statistical labors it was found that only 1,350 had been in attendance. And they had been expecting at least another 100, so there must have been considerable gloom in their midst. The people in the community were letting the ladies down a little and that was bad.

Crediton is in the Dominion electoral riding of Huron-Perth, and the Canadian Almanac does not even give its population. It is one of those little communities which is quite long but rather lacking in width. Most of the folk seemed to have taken to the idea of building on the side of the road which runs through the place. Possibly 200 or so would be a fair estimate for population.

But they had 1,350 at the annual fowl supper and that must have meant a very general and generous influx from the surrounding district. If other lines of business could pull customers in a similar way they would not be complaining.

Delaying Court Cases

When the Supreme Court was in session in this city one case was being tried which grew out of a traffic accident on the 23rd of May, 1937. During the giving of evidence and the questioning which grew out of it counsel had occasion to remark that the evidence being presented now was not exactly the same as the statements which were made by witnesses shortly after the accident had taken place.

One boy who was at the scene of the accident when asked why it was that his present evidence differed from what he said at the time of the accident admitted that his memory of what had taken place should have been more accurate at the time of the mishap than it would be now.

There was another youth who had been with the other witness and he also admitted that what he said during examination might be more accurate than the evidence he was now giving. What these lads said is undoubtedly accurate and any other witness would face the same handicap. An event which occurred over 16 months ago would not be as clear in the memory today as at the time of occurrence. There was every possibility of this case being laid over until the next session of Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Urquhart found his time was not required at the sessions in Lindsay and he offered to come back to Peterborough and preside while this case was being tried.

There are several causes which contribute to such delay. In this case it was one where injury had been done and it is necessary to wait and determine if possible the extent and permanency of the injury because damages—if any—cannot be awarded on an unknown outcome, and in most cases medical and hospital costs keep on running for some time after the accident. That in itself causes much of the delay.

It is informative to notice just how some cases are subject to delay. We recall one which arose from an accident in August of 1936. It was late in the month and it was not possible to proceed at the session of Supreme Court in September. In December the condition of the plaintiff was such that he could not appear. The April session docket was so filled with previous cases that there was no time for a hearing and it was adjourned until September. On the day that court opened the chief witness for the plaintiff was taken to the hospital, and counsel was forced to ask for adjournment. The case (where the accident had occurred in August of 1936) did not come to trial until December of 1937 and it occupied five days and two night sittings, and on each occasion there appeared to be sufficient reason for the continued delay.

But there is another cause and it is the fact that a presiding judge is assigned for just a week at the Supreme Court at sittings which come four times a year. It often enough happens that cases which he must handle have been adjourned from the previous sitting and the hearing of these adjourned cases may consume much of the time so that new litigation has to suffer adjournment and wait its turn at the following session. The legal fraternity are of the belief that there are not a sufficient number of Supreme Court judges. It has been suggested there should be at least two spare judges available to step in and see that the docket is cleared when it becomes apparent that the trial judge cannot possibly finish in the time allotted to him. There is also the custom of appointing Supreme Court judges to the heads of various commissions of inquiry by the government and that reduces the number immediately available to see that cases are tried as speedily and as soon as possible in our courts. If the appointment of a few more judges would clean up the difficulty then we believe it should be done because courts all over the province experience the same difficulty of having to clean up adjourned cases before being able to start with those of more recent origin.

A decision for peace works in a strange way. France voted $674,000,000 for the army for 1938, and after the conclusion of the Munich conference decided to spend $52,000,000 more this year.

In Des Moines it is reported Clifford Cox walked into traffic court to plead guilty to 13 traffic violations. It might have been much better for him had he acquired that habit before—walking.

In Ohio government relief workers are now fighting a mine fire which has been burning for 54 years, so that is one fire which cannot be blamed on the carelessness of modern youth in flinging away cigarette stubs.

An official ruling has been made that one need not stand during the U.S. national anthem when in bed, eating, using the telephone, playing cards or taking a bath. The question has been asked many times and that was the answer given.

The latest question to bother some curious people in Europe is who is going to succeed Grand Duke Cyril as pretender to the throne of Russia. For a good many years the going was flat and poor for the Grand Duke and he lived in a room in Paris and reports were he secured a small allowance from Queen Marie of Rumania. There is no revenue in being pretender to a throne which no longer exists, and now that the original pretender has died why worry about having some person continue in that role?

STRANGE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Long Joe works hard most every day, and he draws down a goodly pay, for he is skilled I know; he gets the price that he demands, and tells folk straight just where he stands, he's rather keen is Joe.

¶ They tried to whittle down his pay, and Joe had plenty then to say, he talked a lot of heat; it was a robbers' game he knew, he understood the game clear through, the workings of a cheat.

¶ When Long Joe goes to buy a suit, you really ought to hear his toot, such bargains he will drive; they try to cheat him on their wares, and Joe with boldness then declares, they'd skin a man alive.

¶ And when Joe goes to pay his rent, he owes it to a humble gent, as meek as man can be; he's charging far too much says Joe, and he could go to court and show, it's twice what it should be.

¶ When Joe goes to the butcher shop, he has more talk that's hard and hot, he pulls a hard-up face; the price they're charging is absurd, Joe says so in an angry word, it's just a plain disgrace.

¶ But if they tried to beat Joe down, you'd hear his holler over town, he'd rant a while and roar; but he'll beat every one he can, and argue like a stubborn man—that he wont' pay no more.

THE OFFICER on the outskirts of the seething crowd was waiting for the first act of riot. Suddenly he saw a man pick up a stone and hurl it through the window of the London mansion. At once a score of other stones followed it. The excited crowd surged forward.

But the officer had marked his man. Calling some soldiers to follow him, he seized the rioter. The culprit's name was William Addis. He was charged in court with taking part in the notorious Gordon Riots and was sentenced to imprisonment in Newgate Gaol. That was June, 1780.

Addis had a quick, intelligent mind. He realized what a fool he'd been to start stone-throwing. What worried him was how he was going to get employment when his gaol-sentence was up.

It occurred to him he could begin afresh on his own. Perhaps he could invent and start manufacturing some useful article, on a small scale at first. But what? Addis sat in his drab cell and racked his brain for ideas.

He was still searching for an idea when bedtime came. Mechanically he went through the invariable routine of cleaning his teeth with a piece of rag.

At that time only wealthy people used cleaning-sticks — a stick with fibre frayed out at the end—for their teeth. Couldn't he improve on that? Next day he got hold of a piece of bone the width and length of his finger. Brushes were used for all sorts of purposes.

Why not a tiny brush for the inside of the mouth? Laboriously Addis bored holes through the bone.

Next he managed to get a handful of stiff bristles. Tying them into tiny bundles he inserted them through the holes, fixed them in position with a pinch of glue coaxed from the gaoler....and the world's first toothbrush had been created.

Addis tested it by cleaning his teeth regularly with it. He began to make other toothbrushes, improving on his first model.

By the time his gaol-sentence was up he had all his plans cut and dried. The first toothbrushes on the market created a furore. Society rushed to buy them.

FOOTBALL

HENRY VIII banned football and placed a penalty on its being played, but to no avail. Many years later—in 1860—the faculty of Harvard banned football because they considered it "foolish to run around after a bag of wind:" Twelve years later the game was resumed at Harvard and has been played there ever since.

American football was played only in the United States in 1926. Today it is played in some 67 different countries.

Football in early days was far different from the game we know today. Prominent landmarks were the goals, and they were sometimes miles apart. There were no rules as to the number of players on each side, and the game was frequently a mad struggle sometimes lasting all day in an attempt to secure a goal.

BRITAIN'S NEW HOMES.

(Municipal Journal (London)

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND persons are being moved every day in Great Britain from slum houses to new and decent dwellings.

To-day one-third of the population are living in post-war houses. Since the end of the war over three and a half million new houses have been provided in England and Wales, and of these more than a million have been built by local authorities.

What other country can show such a record in this sphere of social improvement?

THE STARLINGS.

(Buffalo Evening News)

NOT MUCH can be said in praise of the starlings, but, like poverty and some other ills, they are always with us. They have caused trouble in many communities. In Toronto, an effort was made to gas them! In Boston, residents tried smoking them from the trees; in Washington, toy balloons were anchored so as to move about in the branches of the trees and frighten them. But the starlings stay on. There is no denying that they are faithful, if not precisely fine, feathered friends.

• A Picnic In the Year 1856

EDWIN C. GUILLETT, M.A., whose untiring research into pioneer days in Ontario has been responsible for unearthing a treasure trove of interesting information in regard to the early settlers in this province has been delving into old copies of the Cobourg Sentinel-Star and has come up with a very entertaining advertisement of an Orange picnic at Rice Lake with the Gore's Landing Lodge as hosts which appeared in the Cobourg Star of August 20, 1856. Here it is:

"For the purpose of fostering the brotherly feeling which exists, and giving an opportunity for a more friendly intercourse between the Orangemen of the District of Cobourg and the surrounding country, Loyal Orange Lodge No. 455 of Gore's Landing intends giving an Orange Picnic on Rice Lake on Thursday the 4th September.

Steamship Chartered

"The Steamship Otonabee is chartered for the day to give pleasure on the lake, and several sailing and other boats will be in attendance to accommodate small parties on aquatic excursions. A substantial luncheon will be provided on one of the numerous picturesque islands on the lake at noon and in the evening the party will land at Gore's Landing, where Mr. Gabetis will have provided, with his accustomed skill in such matters, a comfortable COLD DINNER and the amusement of the day will conclude with a BALL in Gabetis' spacious ball-room.

"An excellent Quadrill Band is engaged, and the Cobourg Ethiopian Minstrels have volunteered their services to contribute to the day's amusement of the ladies who may honor the party with their presence.

"A large flat boat will be comfortably fitted up and tastefully decorated, capable of carrying 30 persons, on which a quadrille party can be formed, and, if required, will be towed all over or to any part of the lake.

Program Outlined

"The steamboat will leave Keene, taking passengers who may come there at 7 o'clock a.m., proceeding to Alnwick, where she will arrive at half-past 7, thence to Harwood, arriving at half-past 8, and remain to receive parties from Cobourg and Peterborough arriving by the trains, thence to Gore's Landing, where she will arrive at half-past 10, from thence to the head of the lake or Bewdley, thence to Perrin's Landing, South Monaghan, at 12, and then will proceed to the landing for lunch, where every arrangement will be made to add to the comfort and amusement of the guests. In the evening the boat will proceed to Gore's Landing to dinner.

"Tickets for admission can be procured from Masters of Lodges and at most public places. Tickets 7s 6d each. Ladies free. God Save the Queen! Gore's Landing, Aug. 1856."

Event Greatly Enjoyed

In the Cobourg Star of September 10 appears a short account of the picnic. The weather was propitious: "Never did a more brilliant morn gladden the universe, the sky was cloudless, while a gentle balmy breeze sufficiently tempered the rays of the sun." Many approached Harwood in vehicles of their own while others used "the cars." A merry party, "accompanied by their sweethearts and wives," boarded the "Otonabee" at Gore's Landing, and lunch was served on Spooke Island. After speeches, songs, and glees, there was dancing on the grass, and the catering of Gabetis at Gore's Landing upon their return did him "infinite credit." Numerous toasts were given; the ball was kept up until the small hours of the morning, and the notable event came to a conclusion without "any untoward event to mar the hilarity of the festive occasion." It is not mentioned how those who came over the railway to Harwood returned home at such an early hour!

• Compares Hitler to Moses

CHANCELLOR HITLER today was credited by Edna Ferber, famous American author, with having done more to strengthen and unite the Jews since Moses. Miss Ferber discusses the subject of racial intolerance and bigotry in the light of her own experience. She writes:

"Paradoxical though it may seem, in spite of the degradation of the body, the humiliation of the spirit, the agony of mind, the torture of the soul which has been visited upon the Jews of the so-called civilized world in the past five years, the gorgeous irony of it is this: Adolf Hitler has done more to strengthen, to unite, to solidify and to spiritualize the Jews of the world than any man since Moses."

Discussing the subject in general, Miss Ferber expresses the belief that the persecution to which the Jews have been subjected throughout history is responsible for the strength and unity of the Jewish race, and that it would disappear as a type if the persecution was removed.

"It is usually the persecuted Jew who naturally tries to compensate for oppression," she writes. "It has always been my contention that the Jew, left in peace for 200 years throughout the world, would lose his aggressiveness, his tenacity and neurotic ambition, would be completely absorbed and would vanish, as a type, from the face of the earth."

• Says It's Time For Show-Down

(From Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

FOR SOME TIME Le Journal, organ of Hon. Maurice Dupre, accredited leader of the Dominion Conservative Party in this district, has been campaigning to stir up public opinion against any participation by Canada in the wars of Britain. Quite recently, Mr. Georges Heon, M.P., considered to be Conservative leader in the District of Montreal, has visited Winnipeg and has there delivered a provocative address complaining of the position of his compatriots within Confederation. And Le Journal, needless to say, hails this pronouncement with enthusiastic approval.

We would be the last to deny that it is the privilege of each and every Canadian citizen to take his own stand on public questions and to proclaim it publicly if he chooses. But when men occupying positions of trust and leadership in a political party express themselves thus, the public have a right to know whether they speak for their party or merely for themselves? And, if the latter, whether their views are compatible with membership, let alone leadership in the party to which they profess adherence?

We believe that the Conservative Party has not always been wise or tactful in its dealings with the Province of Quebec, just as we believe that Quebec has not always been fair to the Conservative Party. And the election of Dr. Manion as leader was a gesture of desire for a rapprochement on the part of the Party. But from that to accepting the nationalistic views of certain Quebecers there is a tremendous step. And if the Conservative Party were willing to take it by any inconceivable chance, there would still be the impossibility of foisting it upon the electorate of Canada.

Let there be no mistake, Le Journal and Mr. Heon may perhaps be able to make an easy popularity for themselves among their own compatriots by their present tactics. But they can only do so at the cost of the undoing of the Conservative Party and of Dr. Manion as its leader. We have said and we are convinced that the Conservative Party must have Quebec support to attain office but if that support can only be bought on nationalistic terms, then it is equally sure that the Conservative Party cannot attain office with Quebec support, because it will have alienated its following everywhere else thereby.

Let the Conservative-Nationalists realize that they can accomplish nothing by professing allegiance to Conservatism, as long as the Conservative Party remains in opposition. And it is in opposition that the Conservative Party will still remain as long as they flaunt their nationalistic views in the faces of their fellow-Canadians. They will do better for themselves, then, by joining forces with those who hold similar views and the Conservative Party will be infinitely better off without them. If they cannot either learn moderation or else abandon a membership for which they are not qualified, in fact, the Conservative Party will be faced with the unpleasant but salutary task of cleaning house. And if it has to be done, it cannot be done too quickly!

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

It is strange that in Britain it has existed continuously for 22 years with no thought of repeal, while in this country the question has produced endless controversy. A Bible Message For Today . . . .

NOW there was at Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: this woman was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did. And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick, and died: whom when they had washed, they laid her in an upper chamber.

And forsamuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not delay to come to them.

And Peter arose and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the uper chamber: and all the widows stood by him weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down and prayed; and turning him to the body said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: and when she saw Peter she sat up. And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up, and when he had called the saints and widows, presented her alive.

And it was known throughout all Joppa; and many believed in the Lord.—Acts ix, 36-42.

IT COST MILLIONS.

(Brantford Expositor)

NEWS DISPATCHES recently related that the British Government had spent approximately $200,000,000 on the adoption of preventive measures arising out of the Czechoslovakian crisis, and that France had expended about $500,000,000. Czechoslovakia must also have expended a large sum, which she was not able to afford, as well as Russia. The pity of it is that this money which was so greatly needed for other purposes had to be spent in this way.

Nevertheless it was far better to undertake these precautions than to run the risk of war. Germany had marshaled its armed forces on the one hand, which would have struck with terrible effect if the nations on the other side of the controversy had not been prepared to match them with even greater forces. The result was that the aggressors were afraid to strike and war was averted.

During the Great War the British Government expended an average of approximately $5,000,000 a day, which aggregated a tremendous sum in the end. In this case the preventive measures perhaps avoided another costly conflict, and if that is so the expenditures cannot be said to have been altogether wasted.

LOOKING FOR ERRORS.

(Bowmanville Statesman)

TYPOGRAPHICAL errors are very amusing at times. Last week we came across two. Percy Corbett announced in his advt. he was again making those famous homemade humbugs. The compositor in setting up this advt. set it 'bedbugs' instead of 'humbugs', but our proofreader detected the error before it got into the paper. Just don't know what Percy would have said if the error had not been corrected.

Then in Mrs. C. E. Varnum's auction sale bill an "S" was mysteriously missing from the line 'Sale at 1 p.m.' which actually read "ale at 1 p.m." No doubt this error drew a big crowd of early thirsty customers which enabled that jovial auctioneer Elmer Wilbur to start the sale on time. This incident recalls a custom which was occasionally used in years gone by at auction sales where liquor was served to the customers to liven up the bidding.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved married another girl she finds herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Judy's father has gone west with her stepmother while her own mother, remarried is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count. Judy observes that Ronald, one of many guests at the Boland estate, takes an unusual interest in Abbey's affairs. Judy is present when the Count, in the Boland library, is about to extract a book from the rows of imitations there. Then Abbey appears, much embarrassed.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 22

HOW DESPERATELY much Abbey wished to hold on to her count came to Judy's immediate attention Tuesday morning. All day Monday Judy had been busy with her work, while Abbey and Count Phillippe went into the city. Tuesday morning Abbey came into her room.

"Miss Rogers, something has happened to our books. The binder is delaying. So we want the empty shelves—the ones with phoney volumes—refilled. Can you catch a train into the city and place an order? Oh, yes, you'll have to see how many things we need. The butler will attend to that."

If Abbey would go to such lengths to retain the count's respect, why would she play with his affections by devoting herself to Ronald? Judy asked herself the question decided it was none of her business, and prepared for the trip into the city. She ordered the books, gasped at the size of the bill—a bill which would have seemed relatively small to Judy four months before—did a little shopping, and went to the Long Island section of the Pennsylvania railroad to catch her train.

She was walking down the long approach, having descended steps from the main station, when she saw a familiar figure ahead of her. She had not known that Count Phillippe was in the city, too. At first she did not think the tall woman smiled up into the lean, dark face, and he looked down at her, gravely but with dancing lights in the provocative eyes.

Judy turned and went out of her way so they need not meet. After all, Count Phillippe knew any number of charming women all over the world, of course. She went into a car, found a seat, and tried to hide behind a newpaper. One eye, though, watched the commuters when she saw the Count coming, she pulled the paper higher and became immersed in black words that meant nothing.

"May I?" he asked. "I'm sure it will be much more instructive, as well as entertaining, to talk to me. I trust you have arranged for a readable library?"

Judy spoke slowly. "I think you are perfectly horrible! Mr. Boland shouldn't settle one good American dollar on you. We have rules over here about not smiling at our hosts' idiosyncrasies. And when we are accepting—I mean,when we are recipients...."

"Go ahead, finish the sentence. When we are recipients of their charity, we should guard our tongues.

"All right, that's what we are, both of us."

"In other words you don't approve of marrying for money? But you don't think love's a worthy basis, either. What do you think, Miss Rogers?"

"I don't think."

After all he and Abbey were following an accepted pattern. He would have his money. She would have her title. If the marriage grew irksome, it could be ended. That was what people thought. Her mother and father, Marjorie's mother and father, her aunt, the parents of other scoolmates—

"You saw me in the station," the irresponsible count went on. "I had a glimpse of you. You hurried down another way so you wouldn't have to wittness my ambulations with Mrs. Martin Bedford. You are a model secretary, well brought up."

Mrs. Martin Bedford was a widow whose husband had left her a great deal of money. Judy knew her slightly. She wondered, with amusement, if she, too, had succumbed to the foreign charmer's wiles.

Outside the train ran through small villages where station wagons, or wives in family cars, greeted their husbands or guests. Not many guests tonight, mostly husbands. The weekend was ended. A working week was in progress. Judy turned to the window and wondered if among some of them they had found that priceless gift called security—if there were women who believed that marriage would endure through the years, just as the Rock of Gibraltar guarded the water road to Spain and the Plymouth Rock was as solid as it had been when the Pilgrims first knelt to pray. She had had ancestors among that group—strong men and gentle women. Marriage had not been a toy in their hands. It was a warp from which the fabric of a nation had been woven. Where had their children lost the way?

She thought of Ronald Birrell. His eyes were brave and tender. His mouth was strong. His will was clean and sharp as a sword.

She wondered from whence his ancestors had come to those remote mountain districts. Sometime she must ask him. Strange that she identified herself with him, though their paths had traveled so many miles apart until recently. He was not the type of man for Abbey to use as a member of her train. He was sincere. If he loved her, it would be with a whole heart not just half. But how could he love Abbey?

Men were dumb, so bitterly, ridiculously dumb! Why hadn't Craig taken her "no" for "yes" last summer—down in her heart it had been an affirmative word—tossed her into his car, and headed for Greenwich? He had done it with another girl. That line of reasoning was no good. Craig had loved that other girl, and she, Judy Rogers, had been a comfortable habit.

The conductor called their station Judy was glad that only the chauffeur met them. She did not want to see Abbey. She was glad that her dinner was served on a tray in her room again. She found herself wishing that it would always be that way.

During the next two weeks she was unusually busy. Christmas was coming. There were wreathes to be bought, a tall evergreen to be ordered and its trimming to be supervised, presents to be selected. Two weeks after Christmas the contest winner in the fashion designs would be announced. This matter was of far greater interest to Judy than the gleam and glitter of the holiday season.

Downstairs everything was too gay, too bright, great silver wreathes with scarlet bows, and blue bows; holly and mistletoe supplied too lavishly; small, electrically lighted trees on every available table. Therefore she decorated her own room simply and used it as a haven during the evenings. She had a small tree, and she placed blue lights on its slim branches. She hung holly wreathes, crisp and fresh, at her latticed windows, and tied bright red bows on them.

Two weeks more, her heart kept singing. It made a refrain of the three words, and the train wheels chanted them; the wind blowing cold through the tall, barren trees outside her window sang them; the cheerful crackling of the log fire repeated them.

Two weeks more—and she could resign! The contest would be over But suppose—suppose I don't win a prize, she murmured to herself now and then.

"But I will! If I think I will, I can't fail! You make life give you what you need, when it is good for you to have it!" she advised her faltering spirit at such times

Abbey's wedding would take place towards the end of January. Already the guest lists were prepared. Invitations, which would be mailed three weeks before the day scheduled for the ceremony, were addressed, stamped, and waiting. The small book, in which gifts would be recorded to simplify the thank you notes for the donors, had been prepared.

The wedding cake and wedding supper had been ordered. The decorations had been chosen. The favors were prepared. There was nothing at all to do which would baffle a new secretary, Judy knew. Her consience would not hurt her when she left.

Yet she would have consented to see the wedding through, she admitted, if it had not been for Ronald. He was growing disturbingly important. And Abbey found him too interesting, considering the fact that her wedding day, when she would marry another man, was so close at hand.

Judy was thinking of this when her telephone rang one afternoon.

"Yes?" she asked, hoping that it might be Ronald, and provoked that she did.

"Judy?" It was Ronald! "Can you locate Abbey for me? It's frightfully important that I get to her—immediately! And she isn,t around."

His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general, will today be the recipient of an honorary degree from Western University, London, when he attends the diamond jubilee convocation of that important centre of education in Canada.

It was on March 7, 1878, that Royal assent was given to an act incorporating Western University, London. Like a majority of the universities of Canada, Western owes its birth to the Church of England. Its basis was Huron College, the creation of Dr. Cronyn the first Bishop of Huron, in 1863, for the training of young men for the ministry of the Church of England. His successor, Bishop Hellmuth, realized the need of a liberal education and secured the charter for Western University. For many years, however, the arts college was almost dormant, though the medical school, opened in 1883, has had continuous existence.

The first medical graduate was the late Hon. W. J. Roche, afterward Minister of Interior, Secretary of State and Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. The first arts graduate was Hon. R. F. Sutherland, M.P., for Essex, Speaker of the 100,000 volumes, in care of Prof. Fred Judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The arts department had a renewal of life in 1895, but continued small in numbers until about 1908, when the university was taken over by the City of London, the Church of England relinquishing all control at that time. It was beginning to show some growth when the war came in 1914, and denuded the student body.

When the Drury Government came into office after the war, an investigation was made of the finances of the three universities in Ontario, the Investigating Commission being headed by Rev. Dr. Cody. The Commission recommended a grant of about $1,000,000 for buildings. A site of about 300 acres had already been purchased on the outskirts of the city. The buildings erected and put into use in 1924 were: (1) A main university building for administration and teaching; (2) a natural science building; (3) a heating plant. In 1934 the Lawson Memorial Library (with now over 100,000 volumes, in careof Prof. Fred Landon) was erected, while new medical buildings have also been provided.

Dr. W. Sherwood Fox became President in 1926, so that his decennial coincides with the sixtieth anniversary of the birth of Western, which has affiliated with it: (1) Huron Diocesan College, London; Assomption College, and Holy Name College, Windsor; the Ursuline College and St. Peter's Seminary, London; (4) Waterloo (Lutheran) College, Waterloo; (5) Alma College, St. Thomas, all of which, with graduates of former years, will participate in the diamond jubilee celebration.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

When Knarf and Hanid, the shadows with the turned-about names, went into the kitchen the other morning before anyone else in the house was up, they found a bag of potatoes and a bag of onions standing next to each other on the shelf in the vegetable bin.

This didn't seem at all unusual. But what was unusual was the fact that, just as the two shadows were about to walk out through the pantry into the garden, they heard some little voices coming from the bag of potatoes. The voices seemed to be sobbing.

"My goodness! Something's the matter with those potatoes!"

Knarf hurriedly looked into the bag.

"Look!" he shouted the next instant. "The potatoes are crying their eyes out!"

They Have Eyes

Now potatoes have eyes, you know, and when Hanid came over to look inside the bag, sure enough, she saw tears streaming out of the eyes of each of the potatoes.

"They're crying their eyes out!"

"Oh, the poor things! What are you crying about? Here—let me dry your tears." And she wiped their eyes with her handkerchief. That cheered them up a bit except a very young potato at the top of the bag. He kept sobbing as hard as ever.

"But what's the matter?" Knarf wanted to know. "You must be crying about something."

"Yes," blubbered the young potato. "You're right, I am crying about something. I'm crying about those poor little onions in the next bag."

"That's what we were al crying about," the other potatoes said. "Those poor onions! No one likes them."

"How do you know?"

"Well," said the biggest and oldest potato, "we come from the same farm that the onions do. We grew up together in neighboring patches. We used to see each other underground and talk to each other. We were very fond of each other."

"And what happened?"

Talked About It

"We used to talk of what we were going to do when we grew up and the farmer picked us—I mean, pulled us up. All the potatoes said we were going to go to dinner on a platter in someone's house. And when we come in, steaming hot, with our little jackets on, the people in the house are going to exclaim: 'What lovely potatoes! Mm-mm-m . . . serve us a lot of them. We love potatoes!'

"When the onions heard that, they sighed and said: 'We hope we'll be able to make people happy like that, too. But we're afraid not.' 'Why not?' we asked in surprise. 'Because,' they answered, 'we've heard that somehow or other we make people cry. It must be because they don't like us.' We feel so sorry for our poor friends, the onions, whom no one likes."

But Knarf and Hanid said: "Oh no—people like them, even though they do make them cry." And sure enough, they all went to dinner that night, and everyone liked them very much.

DOROTHY DIX

Relatives Cannot Live Peacefully Together, So It Broods Trouble When You Bring Them Into Your Home for Their Declining Years.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have an aunt 69 years old who lives in a home alone, on a pension that keeps her in modest comfort. Now she has decided that she wants to sell her home and come and live with us. She is hale and hearty and very active. In fact, I have never known her to be sick, but I feel that on account of her advanced age she is not long for this world and that I should comfort her declining years as I am her only relative. But the trouble is that I am a poor man with six children, living in a small house that is already crowded, and as my aunt has never been around children very much I am sure they would get on her nerves. Besides this, my wife is so opposed to having my aunt come to live with us that she threatens to leave me if she does, and the children simply howl when the matter is mentioned. We have been a remarkably happy and united family up till this, and as I don't want my home broken up I don't know what to do.

BEWILDERED NEPHEW.

ANSWER:

There is only one intelligent thing to do and that is to tell your aunt that you cannot agree to the arrangement she suggests as you believe that every family should live by itself, without any outsider coming into that charmed circle.

You can also remind her of two facts with which she is familiar, but which she has apparently forgotten. One is that no house is big enough to hold two women. Especially is this true when one of them is a woman who has been busy all her life until she resigned from her job and who, being bored and restless with nothing to do, couldn't keep from sticking her fingers in the other woman's pie to save her life.

The other fact your aunt should also bear in mind is that no elderly woman who is unused to children could spend a month with six modern youngsters without driving them mad, and acquiring an incurable case of nervous prostration herself. Their noise, their restlessness, their incessant coming and going, their dirt and disorder, everything they did and didn't do would get on her nerves and keep her in constant protest against the way they were being reared. Their manners, the way they dressed, the laxness of their mother in not bringing them up in the way he was brought up would pall on the aunt.

Also an incalculable harm would be done to the children by being nagged and found fault with continually and by having their happy home life ruined and their innocent gaiety suppressed.

Surely your aunt must see these things and if she has any sense at all she will stay in her own home for her own protection against the children, where she will have freedom to do as she pleases and some work to keep her hands and mind occupied.

At any rate, don't let her come to your house to live, for it will end in trouble for all concerned. And don't elude yourself by thinking it will be for a short time. Sixty-nine isn't old in these days and a healthy strong woman of that age is likely to be here for a good long stay.

There is no other one thing that has brought about more trouble and caused more heartaches than the idea that relatives must live together. Nothing is farther from the truth. Most relatives are uncongenial and fight like cats and dogs. They only love each other and appreciate each other's good qualities when they live a thousand miles apart.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a boy of 17 and wish to know if you think it wrong for a boy of my age to want to go out once a week. I have several friends with whom I go at school and whose parents permit them to go out on Saturday nights. They want me to go with them, but my parents refuse to let me go, although they are good boys and we just want to have a little innocent fun. I am a good student and make fine grades in school and my father says I should be content with improving my mind and reading library books. I have got so tired of being kept at home and not allowed to go anywhere that I am thinking of running away. What do you advise?

A DISCOURAGED BOY.

ANSWER:

I earnestly entreat you to give up all thoughts of running away from home, because if you do the chances are that it will wreck your whole life. It is only in novels that the lads who climb out of the window and take to the high road find that it leads to fortune.

In real life the runaway boy finds it isn't the romantic adventure he had supposed it to be and that freedom loses its glamour when it is accompanied by an empty stomach and sore feet and nowhere to sleep and that employers are not offering juicy salaries to boys who have no trade. So in the end he decides that there are worse places than even an overstrict home with plenty of good food in it and he wires back to father for transportation. So stay at home and finish your education. Choose some occupation and fit yourself to follow it. It won't be long until you are a man now and free and you will be better able to grapple with life than you are now.

But I could weep for the blindness of a father who cannot see that a boy of 17 is almost grown and entitled to some of the liberty of a man. And I could gnash my teeth at the lack of wisdom of a father who does not realize that at that age a boy is restless and avid for pleasure; that he is insanely jealous of his new manhood and supersensitive about being treated as a child, and who does not handle him accordingly. To treat a boy of that age as you would a child of 7, to deny him all freedom and all pleasure, is simply to invite disaster.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My wife and I are in our fifties and have grown daughters. We have been getting along fine until lately when my daughters have begun painting and dressing up my wife to look like themselves. They have dyed her gray hair coal black and dressed her up in loud colors and when we go places she tries to act like a girl of 16. My wife looked all right to me as she was, but I can't stand this and I feel like leaving until she returns to her senses. What about it?

BEWILDERED HUSBAND.

ANSWER:

I don't understand any more than you do why middle-aged women sometimes go haywire and dress and act like flappers. The best advice that any one can give a woman is to be her age.

DOROTHY DIX.

Sale At Ballyduff Brings Big Crowd

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BALLYDUFF, Oct. 15.—A very successful sale of farm stock was held on Tuesday afternoon on the farm of Mr. Wilbur Gaynor of Ballyduff.

The ideal weather for such an event was one of the conducive factors in drawing a large crowd of buyers from far and near, an unusually large number of the fair sex being present to enjoy a social time. One attendant on commenting on the large crowd assembled remarked that it reminded him of a good fall fair.

A fine herd of cattle including a number of milking cows sold briskly at prices ranging from $28 to $43, according to age and quality.

The horses offered for sale, while of a good age for the most part sold well bringing around $70 each.

Mr. Ormand Hyland was the efficient bookkeeper.

While Mr. and Mrs. Gaynor have laid aside the cares of their farm stock it is their intention to continue living at their comfortable farm home where they have successfully farmed many years.

Fralick Acquitted On Drunk Driving

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 15. — Gerrard Fralick was acquitted in Cobourg on Thursday, where he appeared before Magistrate Campbell to answer to a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated on the night of October 1. Charges arose out of an accident when Fralick was said to have been driving Dr. J. A. MacDonald's car and crashed into a tree on the Norwood road one mile from Hastings, resulting in the car being badly wrecked and causing minor injuries to himself.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Peterborough, acted for Fralick, and Crown Attorney F. D. Boggs prosecuted. Dr. W. N. Campbell, M.D., Hastings, testified he attended Fralick at the scene of the wreck and at home. He said he did not notice an odor of any intoxicating beverage that night and that Fralick was dazed, probably from shock when he was removed from the car.

Evidence was submitted by Robert Stickles, Arthur McWilliams and Chief Constable W. Wellman, that Fralick was under the influence of liquor previous to 9.30 p.m. on the night of the accident which, according to evidence occurred about 11.45 p.m.

Evidence was also given to indicate the accused had acted in a loud and boisterous manner and that he had struck Robert Stickles in the lobby of Jones' Hotel here that evening. The prosecution, however, was unable to prove that Fralick had more than two and one-half glasses of beer that Saturday evening.

"You are very fortunate," Magistrate Campbell declared, on dismissing charges. He pointed out that sufficient evidence was not given to convict him.

Fralick will appear again in Cobourg, November 15, to answer charges of stealing a car.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 16
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Sunday's horoscope holds augurles of fine opportunities for promotion, progress and prosperity, with those in high places contributing to advancement, preferment and dignities. At the same time there are definite omens of doubtful or actually fraudulent contacts to guard against. Success may be wrung from such menace by tact, precaution and good judgment, particularly in relations with superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of excellent opportunity for progress, achievement and attained hopes and aspirations. There should be influential support and recognition. However, there also are portents of snares, entanglements, fraud or deceit, with plots or lures to expediency rather than to integrity and high principle.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and ambitious, with many high and desirable traits leading it to success and respect. But it may have certain lures to easy ways, short cuts and sharp practices, unless properly directed in early youth.

For Monday, October 17

Monday's Astrological Forecast is for much activity, bringing interest to affairs that may have long been rather static. There should be rather sagacious and determined effort brought to bear for arousing productive issues and putting the fortunes on a stabilized basis. However, such endeavors may encounter some jealousies or attempts to defeat. An inheritance or a contested will might cause this anxiety, although papers, writings, etc., contribute definitely to success and prosperity.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of much activity, especially in connection with the revitalizing of stagnant or static affairs. Determined effort and sagacity should offset this crystallization and put the fortunes on a firmer basis. But beware of jealousy and protect the possessions, which may be bound up in wills, insurance or old investments. Papers, documents and writings are factors of success.

A child born on this day may be serious, determined, hardworking and sound in aspiration, but also passionate, indulgent and wayward. However, it should be loving, sympathetic and socially inclined.

It has her favorite Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. Of course she'll want a clan plaid dress of gingham or of challis and rayon mixture that tubs so perfectly. Either red or blue plaid is attractive with white pique collar. Repeat the white in bias binding, at the edge of the bodice to accent the high-waistline. Velveteen or a printed rayon taffeta is smart for Sunday School. It takes just the minimum time and material to sew it. ONTARIO PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

On Tuesday evening, a meeting was held in All Saints' Parish Hall by the Peterborough Conference Committee and their respective committees. The meeting was in the form of a general discussion of the work accomplished, so that the subcommittees would know exactly what work had been attended to and how much more was necessary to do.

The Billeting convenor reported that there was a total of 306 billets to date. This total is made up as follows: 135 from St. John's; 71 from All Saints'; 60 from St. Lukes; and 30 from St. George's. The total number of applications for billets was 147. More, however, have since come in, making a total of about 250 applications. A girl in each of the parishes will be given a list of the hostesses and will inform them who they are to billet.

Roland Krant reported for the Transportation and Reception committees that the majority of their work was "under control." The services of a reported and photographer from The Examiner were offered and gratefully accepted. This is to be The Examiner's part to make this conference the most successful ever held. These committees will look after the arrangements for having the Legion Hall stage and Collegiate Gymnasium decorated for the Conference.

Do You Know?

Arrowroot may be used instead of cornstarch for making blancmanges extra nourishing? Use a fairly strong flavoring, even allowing some lemon rind to remain in the mixture for half an hour while it is simmering. Or vanilla might be preferred to lemon.

Here is a tip to follow when making sandwiches for a picnic. Cut two thin slices of dry bread—one placed at the top of the pile, the other underneath the pile, before wrapping them. This positively prevents the outer sandwiches from drying—and also gives you some bread to crumble for the birds.

Keene W.M.S. Has Thankoffering

KEENE, Oct. 15. — The autumn thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held in the basement on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance, as members of the six groups were present, and a report given from each group: Mrs. James McFarlane from the "Willing Workers"; Mrs. Charles Mathers from "Mathers Corners"; Mrs. John Henderson from "The Northern Lights"; Mrs. R. Adamson from "The Cheerful Givers"; Mrs. G. Gall from "The Busy Bees"; Mrs. Knox from "The Drummond Line" Group. All had interesting accounts of their work.

Mrs. Knox and Mrs. McFarlane sang a pleasing duet.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson addressed the meeting, using as his subject, "The Fellowship of Worship," "The Fellowship of Prayer," and "The Fellowship of Service." He stressed the importance of regularity in church attendance, regularity in prayer and regularity in giving. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Ferguson.

About forty visitors and friends enjoyed lunch together at the conclusion of this interesting evening.

The annual fowl supper of the United Church, Keene, will be held on Wednesday evening, October 26. A play, "All in the Family," will be staged twice in the Town Hall after the supper.

Madoc Bride Is Given Shower

MADOC, Oct. 15.—In honor of Miss Margaret E. Nickle, whose marriage took place Saturday, Mrs. R. C. Cummings and Miss Nora Nayler entertained the teachers of High and Public Schools at a supper and shower at the former's home. The house was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers.

Following the supper Miss Nickle was presented with many lovely cups and saucers. These were brought in to the drawing room on a gaily decorated dinner wagon. Miss Nickle thanked the guests very charmingly for the gifts she had received and expressed the sincere pleasure she hoped to have in using these souvenirs of the many happy days spent among Madoc friends.

The Public School staff gathered at an afternoon tea in the household science room on Thursday to say farewell to Miss Nickle, who was severing her connection with the staff after four years of work in Madoc Public School.

At the close of the tea and social hour, Miss Nickle was presented with a gift by the staff as a remembrance from her teaching associates.

Havelock W.M.S. Plans For Fair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 15.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Havelock United Church met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Peters for their regular October meeting, with a very good attendance. The roll call was well responded to with a "verse of Scripture beginning with the letter D."

The meeting was conducted by acting president, Mrs. Thomas Easterbrook, the whole program being based on the "Honan Mission Jubilee." Mrs. A. Anderson gave the devotional reading and a review of the work accomplished by the Honan Mission was described by Mrs. A. McLaughlin.

The Women's Missionary Societies of the East Peterborough Presbytery will hold a rally here next Tuesday and arrangements were made for the program that day. Dinner will be served by the local society in the church basement.

Plans were made to hold a "Christmas Fair" on Tuesday, December 2nd.

Envelopes for the annual Thanksgiving offering were distributed among the members.

Art Association Hears Story Of Dutch People

The story of a country built out of a lake into a land of beautiful gardens by the perseverance and endurance of its people through the centuries, and of the old customs that have survived and become mixed with the modern ways of one of the most advanced nations in the world to-day, was told in a delightful manner that quite captivated her audience by Miss Cornelia Van Geuns, "The Lady From Holland."

Wearing the quaint costume of her people, Miss Van Geuns spoke to the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room on Friday afternoon. Colorful legends and folk songs characteristic of her people were vividly illustrated by musical interpretations in song to her own piano accompaniments. The folk songs, she explained, had originated from the days when the gospel had been taught in churches by means of music and performances to people who were unable to read or write. These melodies had been remembered; words had been made for them, and the songs, handed down from generation to generation, had become known as "Folk Songs."

Origin of Dutch Cap.

A beautiful legend told of the origin of the Dutch cap, and the audience learned that these caps are no; pointed and turned up at the sides, but that every little village and town has its own particular style. Wooden shoes, so characteristic of the Dutch people, were first worn to protect the feet from dampness, and are always removed before entering the house. "The school children," she said, "leave their little wooden shoes in neat rows before the door and sit in the class rooms in stocking feet."

To emphasize the merging of the old customs with the new, Miss Van Geuns told of the streamlined electric trains that sped over the big dykes, and of old-fashioned flat-bottomed canal boats; of flowers that are cut at four o'clock and transported by airplane to London, England, where they are sold at eight o'clock the same morning. Windmills, she said, now have an electrical apparatus attached to their wings which renders them more efficient than the steam engines that once threatened to replace them.

The herring, which from early ages have been a source of Holland's greatest wealth, is still sold by fishermen's wives, not from little old-fashioned carts with a swinging lantern now, but from modern bicycles propelled by fishermen's wives in wooden shoes and billowing skirts.

Miss Van Geuns was introduced by the vice-president, Mrs. Frank Neal, who presided at the meeting, the first in the season's series of well-planned events.

We Noticed

....This Fall's correctly ensembled costume will give definite emphasis to gloves. Black costumes will be "set off" by contrasting gloves. Rich, colorful gloves will add a trimming note to many basic shades in coats and suits.

....Gloves will match shoes, hat, or perhaps the trimming note of the frock in other ensembles.

....Always considered as "accessory" gloves now take on the importance of a "trimming" to the beautiful and correctly ensembled costume.

Central School Graduates Given Certificates

An interesting meeting took place in the hall of the Canadian Legion Friday evening, when certificates were presented to the graduation class of Central School. Rev. M. C. Parr, who was the happy choice of a chairman, was introduced by Principal R. J. Bolton.

Mr. Parr congratulated the class and spoke appreciatively of the teachers who had taught these pupils and brought their public school life to a successful climax.

Musical numbers were rendered by the school choir under the direction of C. D. Munro. A vocal solo was beautifully sung by Eric Hartshorn.

Inspector K. S. Wightman was special speaker and was well received by pupils and parents in the splendid advice which he gave in urging the pupils to think for themselves, as each had his own individual niche to fill. The speaker told many interesting facts about Central School, which was established 112 years ago.

The chairman then called upon Principal R. J. Bolton to present the certificates, which he, as teacher of the class, did, in happy vein. As each pupil went forward to receive the coveted honor the audience heartily applauded.

Miss Eva Blanche Parr gave the valedictory address, which in its simplicity was beautifully worded to include all the different phases of school activities.

The meeing closed with the National Anthem, after which the Home and School Association entertained the graduation class and those taking part in the program to a service of refreshments.

Pains In The Back
Tell of deranged kidneys

Other symptoms are pallor, loss of weight, dryness of the skin and swelling of the limbs.

Backache is the most certain warning that the kidneys are failing to filter the poisonous uric acid from the blood.

You may also have frequent headaches and aching limbs, for acid poisons always cause bodily pains and aches.

If you want to remove the cause of such ailments, it is advisable to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For half a century they have proven their success as an effective means of restoring the health and activity of the kidneys, the liver and the bowels. It is because of their direct and combined action on these organs that they prove effective when ordinary medicines fail.

Injuries Fatal To Aged Man Hit By Jigger

Wheeler Patterson, 72-year-old North Monaghan Township farmer was knocked down and run over by a gasoline powered railway jigger six weeks ago, died last night in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Deceased had been living with his brother, Archie Patterson, and was on his way to bring home the cows in the evening when the accident occurred at the C.P.R. crossing near Patterson's gravel pit. It was reported at the time that Patterson had looked down the track at the approaching jigger, stopped for a second and then crossed the track directly in front of the machine. Ed Warren of Toronto, the operator had slowed the jigger down when Patterson appeared, then speeded up when the elderly man stopped at the edge of the tracks to wait for it to pass.

He received a fractured right leg, serious head injuries and internal injuries and has been confined to the hospital since being run over.

He was born in Cardiff Township, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Comrie of Bancroft and Mrs. William Windsor of Peterborough. Three brothers, Archie of North Monaghan, Bert of Lakefield and James of Peterborough also survive.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street with the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church officiating. Interment will be in Hillside Cemetery, Lakefield.

It has not been decided as yet whether or not an inquest will be held.

BOY SCOUTS OUT

Residents of Peterborough enjoyed the most painless tag day of the year today as boy scouts gave juicy, red apples to each contributor. Generally conceded to be about the best apples they had eaten this year, citizens cheerfully dug down for contributions, many returned for more apples.

RECEIVES LICENSE

First Peterborough man to pass his flying examinations and receive his private flying license at the Peterborough Air Service at Lake Chemong is Ralph Clark, son of Dr. D. W. Clark. "He is an outstanding pupil," declared Frank Armitage, his instructor and now proprietor of the company.

FREAK POTATO.

A freak potato, growing out of the ferrule of a hoe handle, and shaped like a crouching mouse, was dug up recently by Ed. Edwards of Chandos township, is one of the strangest tubers yet to be seen in this office. Mr. Edwards could not understand why the growing potato had not pushed the ferrule out of its way instead of growing in and around it.

COMMON ASSAULT

Wilbert Butcher of this city pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in city court this morning on a charge of common assault. He consented to summary trial, and was remanded until October 19. The Crown alleges that the informant, Mary Bower has a broken hand as a result of the assault.

FIRST FIRE IN WEEK.

Friday afternoon's fire at J. K. Hughes' garage on Water street was the first in the city during all Fire Prevention Week, Fire Chief George Gimblett said today. All week offshift firemen have been making the rounds inspecting buildings in an effort to keep fire losses to nothing and have been keeping their fingers crossed. But in spite of every precaution, their hopes for a clean sheet this week were dashed Friday.

YOUTH INJURED

Kenneth Strain, 86 St. James street, received a cut over the left eye shortly after five o'clock last evening when his car was involved in a collision with another vehicle driven by F. D. Clarke, 608 Centre street. Strain was backing his car south on Centre street and Clarke was backing out of his lane when the two cars met. Traffic Officer Archie Menzies investigated.

PEA SOUP FOG

The entire district was blanketed with a dense fog between nine o'clock last night and early this morning and traffic on highways leading into the city travelled at a snail's pace. Motorists were grateful that Highway 28 has a white line down the centre as it was comparatively easy to straddle the white line when the highway was clear and make fairly good time. No accidents were reported in the district overnight.

A CORRECTION

The omission of part of a line in the police court report in The Examiner Friday night made it appear that Arthur Woodcock and Victor Caban had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the store house of James Juby. On that charge the two had pleaded not guilty and yesterday the case was dismissed when the crown offered no evidence. Arthur Woodcock pleaded guilty to a new charge of stealing a guitar but Caban was not charged on that count.

POOR STREET SIGNS.

One again Peterborough's invisible street signs, subject of many a city council discussion in the past, came to the fore Friday night when H. J. Moore lectured at Knox United church. The founder of the International Peace Gardens apologized to his audience for his late arrival, said he had spent more than half an hour searching for Rubidge street, had been unable to decipher the names of streets on signs posted far back in the shadows.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB.

At the second weekly meeting of the Friday Night club Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. was the guest speaker. Mr. Gordon gave a short talk to the boys regarding "Pitfalls that Should Be Avoided." The speaker gave several examples such as selfishness, non-co-operation in marriage, unwise speculation in stockmarkets, etc. Mel. Johnson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker on behalf of the club. Preceding the speaker of the evening Alec Runnitt lead the club in three songs. The chairman, Mr. Garner suggested weekly three minute talks on famous men which met with approval of the club members. An illustration was given by Don Weese talking on Thomas Edison. The meeting closed with the reading of the Club Creed.

Can't Bluff Your Way Into Job On Farm, For It Is a Trade

The popular belief that if farmers are not able to secure farm hands, then men on relief are just lazy and unwilling to work, is a false one, according to Dan Douglas, head of the Employment Service of Canada here.

Right now there are several openings for experienced hands, but farmers don't want anyone who is not familiar with farm routine, he said. "Farming is a trade. You can't bluff your way into a farm any more than you can into a machine shop," he said.

He told of three different men who had claimed they were experienced farm hands and who he had sent to farmers wanting help. In a day or so the irate employers were in to see him, told him that the men knew nothing about the work. "Milking and ploughing are two things you just can't bluff," he said.

Sears Pleads Insanity At Lindsay As Shooting Trial Opens

LINDSAY, Oct. 15. — Mark J. Sears, of Bexley, who shot his brother Thomas, with a sawed off rifle at the latter's home last August, was charged Friday morning at County Court before Judge McGibbon with shooting with intent to cause bodily harm. The accused pleaded not guilty. County Crown Attorney Anderson stated that the Crown would attempt to prove that the shooting occurred as a result a quarrel over property left the two brothers by their father. R. I. Moore, K.C., counsel for the defence, stated that he was pleading the case on the grounds that his client was insane at the time of the crime and that there was no motive to the shooting. The Crown Attorney pointed out that it was in the interests of justice to establish that the event did not come out of the blue, but was the culmination of quarrels. Thomas Sears was the first witness and told the story of the shooting. His wife told the court that she was in the cellar at the time of the shooting, and on hearing the shot rushed up the stairs and saw the accused with a gun in his hand. Her husband called for his rifle and she went back and got it. Evidence was submitted by alienists for both the Crown and defence relative to the accused's mental condition. The hearing of this evidence was not concluded last evening, and it is expected the court will resume its sittings on Saturday.

The Worst of Quarrels.

Family quarrels are "the worts possible type," Judge J. A. McGibbon declared as the trial began.

Thomas Sears told Judge McGibbon a farm had been left to him by his father and other acres to his brother.

"Since taxes were in arrears," explained Thomas Sears he decided to let the property go and get it back at a tax sale. "I was forced to buy in my brother's 25 acres, because taxes were in arrears on the whole property, and he refused to separate the two pieces of property," he said. After that his brother redeemed the 25 acres by paying the delinquent taxes.

"He wanted his money back, the taxes he paid, and I refused because he kept me from getting a clear title."

"In other words, he beat you to it," said His Honor. "That's right," witness agreed.

Describing the alleged shooting, Sears said: "I was sitting on the roof, shingling, and I heard a voice. I jumped up and found myself looking down the barrel of my brother's gun. He was on the ground, 30 feet away.

"I hollered at him and kept jumping around. He shot and missed. He started to reload and stepped back a few paces.

"He swung it back into line. I threw my hatchet at him, and he shot. It hit me in the right hip, and I fell unconscious."

The coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Albert Doyle, of Sunderland, who met his death on the highway on October 9, convened at Cannington on Thursday night. The verdict rendered was to the effect that the young man came to his death by being struck by a car driven by Wesley Lowes of Cannington, but held Mr. Lowes no way responsible for the accident.

Call Your Envoy

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (AP)—The German government today requested Brazil to recall its ambassador, Jose Moniz De Aragoa, from Berlin. The action was a sequel to Brazil's objections to the return to Rio De Janeiro of the German ambassador, Karl Ritter.

Nellie McClung Is Coming To City

Mrs. R. W. McClung (popularly known as Nellie McClung), who is to give an address in Trinity United Church on Wednesday night, though almost the whole of her life has been spent in Western Canada, is really a daughter of Ontario. Her maiden name was Nellie Letitia Mooney, and her birthplace was in or near the village of Chatsworth, in Grey County. In the year 1880, while she was still a child, the family moved out to Manitoba. Those were early days in the settlement of our Western Provinces and travelling facilities were very primitive.

At 15, the girl Nellie entered the Normal School, and for three years following graduation she taught school in the village of Hazel, three miles from Manitou. In 1892 she attended the Winnipeg Collegiate Institute, there securing a first-class teacher's certificate, and taught school until 1896, when she was united in marriage with Mr. R. W. McClung, a business man of Manitou, and it was while living there that her life of authorship began.

Mrs. McClung has confessed that for her the road to success was not reached without many failures. The desire to write stories came early, but the young aspirant had to face rejection after rejection of her literary efforts. The door swung wide open with the publication of her delightful story of Western life, "Sowing Seeds in Danny. It had its genesis in a short story of that name, but when this was shown to a Toronto publisher she was urged to extend it into a book. This she did, and success was instant. Growing sales tempted a second effort, and "The Second Chance" followed, and her fame was established and other stories succeeded.

But magic in the use of her pen is not the only possession of this gifted woman. As a platform speaker she has attained almost equal celebrity. The same gifts of originality and humor and reasoned handling of facts mark her efforts in this line. Her strong social instincts have led her into taking up one cause after another. One of the first of these was that of woman suffrage. Here she did noble pioneering work and paved the way for political equality of the sexes. Evidently Mrs. McClung had a flare for politics. She for a time held a seat in the Alberta Legislature.

In Church affairs, Mrs. McClung has also taken a prominent part. When the great Ecumenical Conference of world-wide Methodism was held in London, England, out of 12 elected delegates from Canada, Mrs. McClung was the only representative of her sex. She delivered an address at one of its great meetings.

Many honors have come to her during her active life. She has sat in the Alberta Legislature, is a member of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission and was one of the Canadian delegates to the League of Nations at Geneva, Switzerland, last month, throughout the troubled European situation.

Firemen Have Inspected 5,000 Buildings

Peterborough firemen had made close to 5,000 inspections of homes, stores, factories, schools, in the first nine months of this year, in an attempt to keep this city's fire loss at its lowest possible figure, Fire Chief George Gimblett told Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting Friday afternoon.

He recalled that this city's fire loss for 1937 of $3,347.03 was the lowest of any city in the Dominion, while this year the figure had jumped to $7,554.55 during the first nine months. His men are sparing no effort to keep fire loss down, and expect cooperation from citizens, Chief Gimblett said.

Fire Prevention Week dates back to 171 "when Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a bucket and started the Chicago conflagration, or so the story goes," said Chief Gimblett. He told that every school and public building has been inspected this week.

"It may surprise you to know that Nicholls hospital was tested out this morning. Few people seem to realize that our hospitals have a fire alarm system." He said that fully 50 per cent of nurses were at classes or in residence when he rang the alarm, yet inside a minute and three-quarters after the alarm had been sounded they were all at their posts, some of them on the hospital's second floor, ready for any emergency. "A truly wonderful time," he declared.

Petroleum Fires.

Telling of the danger from petroleum fires, he recounted that a few years ago the department was called to put out a fire on Rogers street. A young woman had been cleaning a blouse with gasoline and static electricity had caused a fire. "She was lucky. She threw the pan of gasoline out of doors and escaped injury. Yet less than an hour later we were called back to the house next door. The burning gasoline, when she threw it, had splashed against the frame building."

Although the key rate has been lowered from 50 to 45 cents, he is not yet satisfied, the speaker said. He will not rest until it has been lowered to 25 cents, he declared.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Jack Richardson and Kiwanian Tom Mark moved a vote of thanks. Miss Isobel Duthie was guest artist, sang two selections that were enthusiastically received.

20 Junior Merchants Are Given Lessons

Twice world champion and many times Canadian champion harmonica player, James J. Lawless, Toronto banker delighted 20 Examiner carrier boys in the office last night when he gave them the first lesson in the art of playing the mouth organ.

For 15 years Mr. Lawless has been teaching boys in his apare time and estimates that 100,000 have been so taught. He works in the Bank of Montreal at Toronto and in the course of a month teaches 1600 boys and girls. In his 60 years of playing he has won a host of prizes. He was crowned world champion in 1888 at New York City and was the only Canadian entrant. He has taken the Canadian championship many times and took the world title again in 1929, this time in Philadelphia.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HAPPY REUNION

Douglas Britnell, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Britnell, 335 Rogers street is sitting on top of the word again, because his dog's leg is better.

The dog, a beautiful two-year-old collie was playing on the road two months ago when a passing car struck it and smashed the right hind leg. Dr. Art Johnston, V.S., was called and told the tearful boy that the leg could be fixed, good as new. He set the leg and put it in a cast for six weeks and today the dog is as well as ever. He was seen this morning playing and romping with the happy boy.

Building Boom Is Expected For Next Year

"There'll be five hundred houses built here next year," a contractor remarked to the Examiner in the manner that something was to be said even extravagantly for the bird in the bush.

"Well, I can say this, I've had at least fifty enquiries from people who are planning to build next spring; and they won't be in the $2,500 class either," he aded.

This contractor expressed the opinion that a number of influences account for the broad interest that is being displayed by prospective home owners. First, he said, there is the powerful attraction of all the new comforts and conveniences that can be put into the modern house, with economy in space and work, heating and so on.

"I think people are beginning to understand the advantages of the Canadian Housing Act, and the terms on which they can borrow money and become home owners. I don't know how many are taking the government's plan to themselves, but I fancy there may have been more than you might think. Some of those who are planning for the spring told me they were considering the Housing Act method."

In the meantime building activities have been well maintained, and will continue through November. Three or four houses are being built in the west end where the city's boundary is steadily extending up over the hill.

NO INTERRUPTIONS.

Equipped with a new ladder for their trouble car, the Peterborough Utilities Commission is now prepared to do repair work without interrupting street traffic in any degree. The new ladder can be extended at almost any angle for 24 feet, is so fashioned that it can be extended over the top of passing traffic. Men working on it claim the ladder is so firmly constructed they have no fear of its collapse even when they are working at the extreme end and when it is extended in an almost horizontal position.

Gardens Stand As Emblem Of Friendship

In troubled times like these, the International Peace Gardens between Manitoba and North Dakota stand an emblem of friendship that every nation in troubled Europe must envy, declared Mrs. N. McKee of Winnipeg last night. With her on the platform at Knox United Church was H. J. Moore of Islington, who originated the idea of the gardens more than a decade ago.

Mrs. McKee, who has travelled the continent over without salary or expense accounts in an attempt to further the interests of the project, introduced Mr. Moore to the audience after she had described the work already accomplished in the west. The Peace Gardens stand a symbol of the pledge that the peoples of Canada and the United States shall never take up arms against each other, she said.

The origin of the scheme was at the International Association of Gardeners' convention in Toronto in 1929 when, on the closing day of the meeting, Mr. Moore brought forward his "vision of a great garden of peace to commemorate a hundred years of friendship between these two nations," said Mrs. McKee. She told that immediately members forgot they were to adjourn, sat down and drew up committees to further the project. In the intervening decade or more the garden has become a reality in part and last year a cairn, placed on the boundary line between the two countries, was unveiled before nearly 70,000 people. Much work is yet to be done and funds are needed badly, she said in a plea for contributions.

In the ten years he has worked for the establishment of the Peace Gardens he has never received a cent of salary, not even of expense money, Mr. Moore told his audience, nor has any other man connected with promotion. For four years he devoted his entire time to the work and even now spends all time except that in which he has to earn his living. He concluded his address by showing beautifully-colored slides of the Peace Gardens as they are today.

During the course of the program Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, pastor of Knox Church, sang by request a song "The Garden of Peace," the words for which had been speciall written for the opening of the Gardens last year.

Kent Officiates At Canadian Art Exhibition

LONDON, Oct. 15—(CP). — The Duke of Kent to-day opened the Canadian art exhibition at the Tate Gallery. With the High Commissioner for Canada and Mrs. Vincent Massey he toured the unusual show of pictures by Canadian painters whose joint activities have extended more than a century.

Under the guidance of Eric Brown, director of the National Gallery, Ottawa, almost 300 pictures by Canadian artists were hung and bronze and marble statues placed to best advantage.

Art galleries in every large city in Canada lent paintings. Particularly noteworthy contributions were made by those in Montreal, Toronto, Regina and Vancouver.

Mr. Massey sent a large proportion of his collection of Canadian paintings from his London residence to the Tate.

There had not been a major show of Canadian artists' work in London for more than 10 years and there never had been an attempt at a retrospective presentation such as this.

Several of the canvases displayed were painted in the 1700's. There was a selected group of paintings by Cornelius Kreighoff, whose delineation of Quebec life in the early 19th century became internationally famous.

Kane's Chieftains.

Paul Kane, Toronto furniture maker, who went west under the patronage of the Hudson's Bay Company almost a century ago to paint Indian chieftains, was well represented. The work of Paul Peel, painter of children and patronized by royalty, was shown by one striking canvas.

Care was taken not to stress any one phase of Canadian art. The early portraitists were as much to the fore as the group of seven and every province was given a fair share of honor.

Landscapes were the favorites of the few who saw the pictures prior to the opening for the general public. Canadian colors, whether brilliant in autumn or clear and vivid in spring, found favor in English eyes, accustomed to more subdued tones.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Massey held a reception. Graham McInnes of Toronto broadcast a description of the exhibition and the pictures for the British Broadcasting Commission.

Omemee Names Rink Committee

OMEMEE, Oct. 15.—(Special)—The council of the village of Omemee held its October meeting recently with Reeve Endicott in the chair, Councillors Parsons, Burgess, Stephenson and Bent in attendance.

A deputation consisting of Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Laidley waited upon the council and asked for use of the Coronation Hall for November 10, for the Women's Institute, and without charge.

Councillors Bent and Parsons moved that ten dollars be spent in repairing the old railroad bed south of the village. Carried.

Councillors Parsons and Burgess moved that the rink committee be composed of H. Jones, G. Tripp, G. Bent for the coming season, and that secretary-treasurer be paid $25 for his work. Carried.

Councillors Bent and Burgess moved that Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Parsons and the reeve be a committee to meet with a committee from Emily township council to make arrangements for the Armistice Day service. Carried.

Councillors Parsons and Bent moved that the treasurer be authorized to issue cheques for the following accounts: Street lights for September $84.67; A. L. Williamson, quarter salary, $31.25; Orval Toole, brick, re jail, $4.50; F. C. H. Bent, relief, $3.60; M. D. Earl, relief, $5.45; J. Magee, re work on jail, $4.40. Total $133.87. Carried.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT MAY BE that the Orfuns aren't going to set the Senior O.R.F.U. ablaze this year—it's the first of a three-year titular plan—but at least the senior entr yis having the desired effect in advertising the city. The town's monicker is appearing regularly in many Ontario dailies and in Montreal, as well as via radio, because of the football grouping the Orfuns enjoy. And the recent Examiner grid edition has received a favorable mention in a lot of sheets, for instance such spread-apart spots as Toronto, Sarnia and Ottawa. Like the circus tent in a hurricane it covered a lot of territory in a short time. Walter Gilhooly, sports editor of the Ottawa Journal, devotes a good part of his pillar Thursday to Peterborough.

* * * * * *

HE SAYS, says he: "Peterborough came back to senior football on Monday when the Orfuns played Nationals in an O.R.F.U. opener at Montreal. Orfuns didn't exactly throw a bombshell into the Ontario Union ranks in their first appearance but back home the Peterborough Examiner and the town merchants did nobly by the team. The Examiner got out a special edition with a football section plastered with advertisements and containing 12 pages. What's more, it included a number of interesting stories on Peterborough's bright football past which ended in senior company 29 years ago."

* * * * * *

The Good Old Days

WALTER EXPLAINS THUSLY: "The town contributed many of the game's shining stars. Ross Craig, whom fans of yesterday claim was the greatest plunger to ever carry a ball, hailed from Peterborough. Craig hadn't an equal in the business of demolishing opposing lines when he played with Hamilton Tigers and Hamilton Alerts. Carrying on the family tradition, his son is kicking half for the Dundas intermediate champions. Ben Simpson, the Hamilton school teacher, was a native of Peterborough. Simpson played around at soccer until he reached Queen's and the benefits of higher education. After graduation, he moved to Hamilton and then spent a half dozen autumns travellin gthe Big Four circuits booting the yellow and black to victories over Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal.

* * * * * *

"ANOTHER PLAYER whom the fans remember is Pete Campbell. With Maynard, Gall and Newton, Campbell formed the smoothest, fastest-striking combination that's ever worn the dark blue of Toronto University. These man orginated the razzle-dazzle style of backfield play in this country and they rank among Varsity's immortals. The running pass as they executed it was something fans haven't seen before nor since. Dr. A. W. McPherson, like Pete Campbell, was a Peterborough boy who gained fame with Toronto U. McPherson was a fine football player in his own right but, when starring for Toronto and also managing the team, he had Casey Baldwin, Gordon Southam and Bull Ritchie with him. Nothing could challenge that outfit when they drove for the Dominion title. There are more who made reputations on Peterborough's gridirons and foreign fields—Dick Sheehy, Ottawa's dashing outside; Ross Laing, who starred at end for McGill when Frank Shaughnessy first took over the helm; Gamey Stratton, who succeeded Pete Campbell as quarterback with Varsity. If they were playing football today, Orfuns wouldn't worry about anything in the O.R.F.U. or outside of it." We'll add a reverent "amen."

How Gil Got There

DINK CARROLL in Maclean's magazine this month deals with Sarnia as a football centre. And he mentions Gil Putnam, now assistant grid coach here, this way: "There's the case of Gil Putnam, the old Balmy Beach player. He wanted to locate in Sarnia and he wasted some time in the beginning trying to contact officers of the Imperial Oil Company in Toronto and capitalize on his football ability. Then he got smart. He packed up and went to Sarnia. For days he stood outside the employment gate with the rest of the applicants, waiting to take anything that offered. One day he got a job. After that, he turned out for football. He made a place on the team and people began to take an interest in him. When it was discovered that he had gone to Michigan Tech, he was given a chance in a position where his technical training was useful to him. He got where he wanted to get by taking the right route."

* * * * * *

SINCE THE SCISSORS is responsible for most of today's output here, we might as well finish the Putnam quote: "However, the fact that Gil played a sweet game of football did not stop the company from promoting and transferring him from Sarnia a few years later to a position where his technical knowledge was needed, thus depriving the team of a player with many good years of rugby ahead of him. The same thing happened to Bruce Spears, who was promoted to Toronto at the height of his rugby career." Gil has headquarters for a big travelling job in Peterborough and could still get in there and play a whale of a game. He is a huge, husky gent.

On a Hunting Trip

AT A SCANDALOUSLY earl yhour this a.m., the Petes' ball team embarked for Hamilton to tackle Stratford Nats in the third and deciding game of the O.B.A. senior final series. The most valuable thing in the crew, or so the boys felt, was the left arm of Frank McNally—and some of the players favored the idea of wrapping the forkside flipper up in cellophane! Game was due to start at 2.30 in Scott's Fark, with a number of local ball fans on hand, and scores will be wired back every three innings. Come awn, youse Petes, fetch us a championship this time.

LOTS OF CHATTER at the lacrosse meeting last p.m. in the local "Y" as the executive and players met to wind up the season's affairs. Just a business matter, with discussion of finances, bills to be paid, equipment and such. Probably another such gab session will be held before winter and final dope will be passed upon. Maybe election of 1939 officers then, too. Nothing definite to date on a banquet for the boys, but they deserve it for bringing the 1938 senior "B" Ontario lacrosse title to this centre. Lacrosse in the past couple of years was revived in Peterborough in a large sort of way and the gutted-stick game is now one of the town's leading summer sports.

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Bright's of Hamilton took the first of the O.S.A. intermediate "A" finals from Copper Cliff last eve, 6 to 5....The Bright's bunch beat out Toronto who trimmed Oshawa, who had eliminated our Westclox males....Motor City scribe thinks our grid osifers aren't systematically advertising Orfuns' home games throughout Central Ontario, as much as they might....He also knocks the semi-pro ball idea in the province, feeling (as we do) that homebrews should be developed in minor loops....Hockey Club officers here aren't idle, but are working to ice good senior and junior "B" puck squads this winter....A suggestion, worthy of thought, has been made to have Coach Bill Irwin of the Orfuns, manage the Petes in hockey this winter—Bill having had hockey executive experience in Toronto ....Heavy badminton season is getting underway locally again....Maybe Leo Deadey didn't hit so well in ball with the Petes but the ex-Argo outside star sure hits 'em in football....This is Scouts Apple Day

Thanks previously conveyed to the city council for the use of the Oval were strongly endorsed and also voted to the Examiner for full reports of matches. Other routine business was transacted and the meeting closed in a tone of strong confidence for the future.

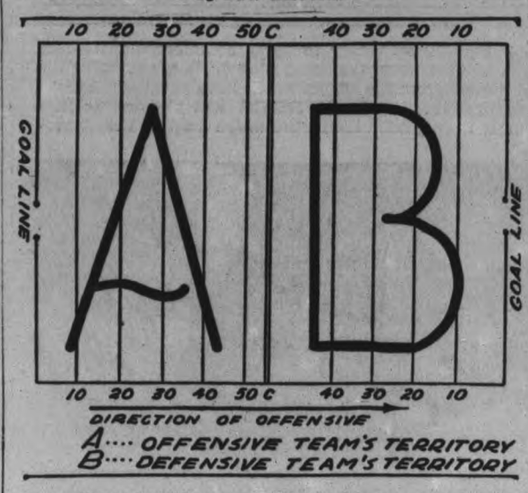
Scooter For Postie

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 15—(CP)—Latest in up-to-date transportation for rural postmen is the stream-lined motor-driven scooter used by one of the "posties" operating in this area. Those who have seen this particular mail carrier in action believe that with the advent of winter and slippery roads he will go back to the motor car or even the horse and buggy.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Planning Your Attack

By LEW HAYMAN



Every offence should be governed by a general scheme of attack. Quarterbacks, in calling plays, must have a fundamental idea of what to call on certain downs in particular parts of the field. This gives them a basis of logical reasoning, and from there on they can think things out for themselves as they go along.

Since the defenders are also supposed to be logical thinkers, one must be able to deviate from the orthodox play when the situation presents itself. Competitive ability and good sense then come to the fore. However, one cannot get into intricate plays or inside football until he ha sthoroughly mastered the orthodox plays. Now let's go over the thing to do when you have the ball at various parts of the field. Take a look at today's diagram, and moving from left to right, that is with the offensive team on their march down the field, we'll go over what to do from one end to the other

Between Goal Line and 10-Yd.Line

This is the vital danger zone. KICK ON FIRST DOWN. There are but two general exceptions to this rule .... when it is near the end of the game and you are stalling for time, and when there is a strong wind against you.

Between 10 and 30 Yd. Lines.

Try strong running plays. Don't call plays which require much ball handling. A fumble in this area may prove fatal to your chances. KICK ON SECOND DOWN .... unless the yardage from a 3rd down is very small. That is, if you have only one or two yards to go. As far as the kicking goes, of course, you must again take into consideration the strength of the wind, time left to play, and the score.

Between 30 and 50 Yd. Lines

Now out of immediate danger, but still in your own territory. Use end sweeps, reverses and cut-backs. Intricate ball handling still taboo. With a weak running attack, kick on second down. If your offence has been fairly successful, wait until third down to kick. When to kick in this area may also depend on the abilities of the two kickers. If you have the best hoofer kick on the second down.

Between 50 and 40 Yd. Lines.

Now in your opponent's territory. Try long passes on either first or second down. If intercepted it may only amount to the same as a caught kick. If completed, a touchdown might result, or at least you will probably be in position for a field goal attempt in the next series of downs. KICK ON THIRD DOWN, unless you have a strong wind at your back and are trying for single points.

Between 40 and 20 Yd. Lines

Open up. Use deception. Use your touchdown passes. Gamble. Let 'er go! Extended runs with many lateral passes. KICK ON THIRD DOWN.

Between 20 and 10 Yd. Lines

Always keep to the centre of the field, so that you are in a good position for an attempt at a field goal. Try your very best pass plays. If opponents have a weakness, work on it and put it to your advanage by hammering away at it. It is easier to score from this zone than From the 20 yard line to the goal from within the next 10 yards. line is PAY DIRT. You must score!

Between 10 Yd. Line and Goal Line

This is absolutely the most difficult area to gain ground in. The defence will be concentrating. They are keyed up to a fighting pitch to prevent that score. Try surprise plays . . . your strongest scoring plays . . . special plays USE YOUR BEST MEN IN YOUR STRONGEST PLAYS.

In this last area extra effort is positively essential. That will to win, the desirous feeling for victory, must be instilled in every player. An actual crisis has been reached and must be conquered . . SCORE!

Now that you know what to do and when to do it, and have scored two or three touchdowns through a combination of good play and the old fight, we'll go back to the how-to-do-it business. On Monday I'll go over a few running plays.

Coe Hill Pioneer George Gilroy Honored At Partridge Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Oct. 15.—On Friday, October 14, a sumptuous partridge dinner was served at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert Pattison in honor of Mr. George Gilroy's 83rd birthday.

Mr. Gilroy was born in Frankford, living there until three years of age, then moving to Prince Edward where he resided with his grandmother until 14 years of age. He later travelled through eastern Canada for over six years as foreman of a lumber company.

At the age of twenty Mr. Gilroy moved to what was known as Coe Hill Mines, where he has resided ever since. Coe Hill Mines at that time consisted of two small wigwams. The only house within six miles was owned by Wm. Gunter. Thick timbers were slashed making trajls as roads to crawl through going as far as Madoc, Belleville and Brighton to carry back provisions, in order to survive.

Oxen were used to clear land as horses were scarce. The timber was burned and the ashes saved to be drawn to Belleville where potash was made. At the age of thirty he married Miss Agnes McCauley of Peterborough and they were blessed with nine children, four daughters and five sons. Two sons were killed overseas, Gordon returning with whom he lives now. Mrs. Robert Pattison of Coe Hill is a daughter and Archie Gilroy of Belleville and Roy Gilroy of Kingston are sons.

He has been hale and hearty, attending four church services each Sunday, besides Bible study each Friday night.

Later in the evening a large number of old friends and acquaintances gathered at his home presenting him with birthday greetings. Before leaving a lunch was served and they all sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Third Schooner Race Postponed

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP).—The third race between the schooners Bluenose and Gertrude L. Thebaud, in a three-out-of-five series for the championship of the North Atlantic, was postponed today because of rain, poor visibility and lack of wind.

Captain Angus Walters' Canadian defender, Bluenose, captured the second race yesterday while the Gloucester challenger, Captain Ben Pine's Thebaud, won the first race on Sunday. Twice before the boats have been unable to hold a race because of poor conditions.

The two skippers will battle it out again tomorrow over two circuits of an 18-mile triangle, the course which had been marked off for today.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I sorta expected to be doing some restrained chortling in this colume this week about the Petes and the Sr. O.B.A. title but that will hafta be postponed for a wee kowing to the lads getting nosed out in Stratford on Mon. when the pitching what has been a strong point all through the playoffs suffered a kinda slump for the day and the Nats managed to get 8 runs while we was collecting 7 off Mister Schoolmaster Craig who took quite a lacing and was lucky to get out with his shirt.

It Was Clear Cut

Here Sat. the Murphyites as I call our talent win theirselfs a clean victory over the boys from Stratford in a game in which our eminent forkballer Mister Francis Patrick McNally of Hudson, Mass., outpitched their Mister Craig, school principal and one-time resident of the Ottawa area. It was quite a pitcher's duel for a while until Mister McNally got tired of waiting for his teammates to start shellacking Mister Craig's offerings and lambasted 1 for himself poling a long double to the left field fence on which Mister Cadd hotfooted it from the initial corner to the plate with the 1st run of the ball game. That was the only 1 too until the 8th when after Mister Baird had dropped a long hoist from Mister McNally the boys started teeing off on the Schoolmaster and pounded four runs over the plate. That was plenty to win on although the enemy did manage to score a couple in the final frame, thanks mainly to Mister Murphy being too eager to complete a double-play and dropping the ball.

Something Else

Monday was something else again. Whether it was the fact that over 3,000 customers was in the pews when the ball game started or not anyway both teams was more or less jittery and the baseball was more like a picnic battle than the senior finals. Mister Craig was sent back at the Petes by the Nats and he was no mystery especially to Mister Doll, Mister Calladine and Mister Murphy but then our Mister Kitchen who started and Mister Jakafby who followed was no conundrum either and the final result was the boys was beat 8 and 7 although they finished in a way that had the Stratford folks shivering in their seats scoring 3 runs and having the tieing run on the middle hassock when the final out was registered.

They Done Well

Our rugby team, Mac, spent Thanksgiving Day in Montreal and they had what I would call a very fair start, giving the Nats a good battle over most of the distance after a bad 1st quarter. They found by that time that the big names on the Montreal team could be stopped with a hard tackle just like as if they belonged to Cobourg or Belleville or Lindsay and after that sunk home Mister Irwin's lads in their Hallowe'en toggery were holding their own pretty with Mister Ferraro, Mister Hempey, Mister Burns and Company. This Saturday they tackle Balmy Beach. They aint no reason why they should be expected to beat that outfit but if they give the B.B's something a little more tough than the workout the Toronto scribes has been predicting I for 1 will be satisfied. Next week the Sarnia Imperials will be here. Better get down early for that 1. That will be the big ball game of the year.

Now it's time to cut loose. Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Oct. 15.—(AP).—E. C. Segar, the house painter who became a cartoonist by taking a $20 mail order course, left in death to-day a $1,000,000 legacy of comic characters to amuse the world.

The creator of "Trimble Theatre," a quaint comic strip printed daily by more than 500 newspapers, and "Popeye The Sailor," a movie cartoon with fan saround the globe, died at his home here last night. He was 44.

Since last January, his condition had been so serious that he did little actual drawing. Others carried on the whimsical adventures of Popeye, spinach eater de luxe; J. Wellington Wimpy, hamburger chef, and the Oyl family—Olive, Castor and Anna.

King features announced in New York that "Thimble Theatre" would be continued as a daily strip, just as "The Gumps" lived on after the death of Sidney Smith, the cartoon family's creator, in 1935.

Segar was a native of Camptown, Ill., where he got his artistic start helping his father paint houses. When a St. Louis newspaper rejected his first cartoon, he took a correspondence school course. R. F. Outcault, drawer of Buster Brown and Tige, got him a job on The Chicago Herald, turning out a Charlie Chaplin comic strip. But it was years before he struck a gold mine with the "Thimble Theatre."

Popeye, the be-chinned sailor was a punch in either fist, was born in 1929 after Segar had moved to California.

McGill's Battle With Toronto Closely Watched

TORONTO, Oct. 15—(CP).—A definite lineup on the intercollegiate rugby football union and the Ontario union senior series should be available for Eastern fans after today's clashes drawing together the victors of opening games last Saturday.

The program is highlighted by the invasion of McGill Redmen, rated one of the strongest teams from the Montreal university in a decade, into University of Toronto. A near-capacity crowd of 17,000 is expected to watch Herb Westman lead the Redmen's attempt to avenge two defeats from Toronto last year.

McGill were without Westman then and his return, giving McGill at least equal punting with any team in the circuit, has been counted to spark McGill to the college championship. The big backfielder kicked all McGill's points in a 4-1 victory over Western last week.

Minus Two Players

Impressive in victory over Queen's, Toronto will be far from early-season strength. They have lost Jim Macdonald and Don Mumford from their backfield through injuries and illness and it is doubtful whether Doug Turner, bulwark of their line, will see much action. Cam Gray, Toronto's punting and passing star, will lead their attack.

Another close struggle is expected at London where the champion Queen's will decide the union's cellar position with University of Western Ontario Mustangs. The Mustangs have been installed slight favorites to hand Ted Reeve's charges their second straight defeat.

Imperials Meet Montreal

Leadership of the O.R.F.U. will be decided at Sarnia with the mighty Imperials testing Montreal Nationals, loaded with such former Big Four luminaries as Johnny Ferraro, Tommy Burns, Len Hutton and Ernie Hempey, who starred in the Thanksgiving Day defeat of Peterborough Orfuns. But Imperials, union champions for seven years, will get kicking par excellence from Hugh Stirling and mainly on that, they rate as winners.

The Orfuns, young and inexperienced, are not given much chance in their opening home game against Toronto Balmy Beach, who will play without outsides Charley Boy and Bert Haigh, injured in the 8-6 defeat from Imperials Monday.

The interprovincial union has been pushed into the background by the feature games. Ottawa Rough Riders invade Hamilton and Toronto Argonauts go to Montreal and there isn't anyone willing to chance a call that Tigers will beat Riders or that Cubs will take the national champions. The favorites both won easily last week.

Remember When—

Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington Senator shortstop, was the "goat" of the world series against Pittsburgh which finished 13 years ago today. "Peck" committed eight errors in the seven games, two more than Hans Wagner in 1903 and Joey Sewell in 1920. Pittsburgh won the series four games to three.

Rugby Football English Origin

It was in 1823 that William Webb Ellis of famous Rugby school in England, first caught the ball and run with it. So originated rugby football, but not until 1871 was a governing body formed, known as the Rugby Union. A plaque has been placed in Rugby school as a memorial to William Webb Ellis as the protagonists of rugby football. There are records of football extending back to 217 AD, but it had a troubled career as in the 14th and 16th centuries proclamations were issued banning the game. It eventually came into its own after a long formative period.

American and Canadian football are derivatives from the game invented and played at the famous English school and its evolution was briefly as follows: Princeton and Rutgers on Nov. 23, 1869 played the first inter-collegiate game in the history of American football. Rutgers won by 6 goals to 4. The rules for the game were specially drafted and followed generally those of the London Football Association ,then as now, known as "Association" or "Soccer". Later Columbia and Yale competed. In 1874 McGill University introduced English Rugby to the States by arranging and playing on May 14 of that year, a game with Harvard. In the following year, Harvard invited Yale to play under the English rugby rules. Certain concessions and alterations were made and the rules under which the game was played were called "Concessionary Rules."

In 1872 an intercollegiate convention was held at Springfield, Mass. on November 23 and organized the American inter-collegiate association. It adopted the rules of the Rugby Football Union of England as a common playing code. Immediate and basic changes were made in these rules that started a movement in American football for continuous rule changes. In every year, except three, from 1872 to 1929 important alterations were made. The result of these changes has been to create a distinctive American and Canadian game stated to be "featured by the presence of sustained, swift and intense action, skilful and varied performances and by the brilliant predominating characteristic of strategy and tactics".

It is certainly very vastly different in rules, strategy and tactics from the English Rugby game whose name it has taken and which was its actual progenitor.

Swimming And Diving Trophies Are Awarded At Y.W.C.A. Meet

Excellent performances were given at the swimming meet in the Y.W.C.A. pool Friday night when in the presence of a large crowd of interested spectators spirited competition for a number of swimming and diving trophies and excellent work by the life saving candidates provided an interesting program.

In the life saving tests for which Gordon S. Minty was the examiner, Delina Anderson, Doris Fanning and Ethel Barnes were successful in passing the examination for the bronze medaillon while the award of merit was won by Lillian Long and Ethel Barnes. Ruth Dalliday was successful in winning a bar to the award of merit. All these candidates were pupils of Miss Caroline Littlefield.

The contest for the babies' championship and the Wood trophy was won by Margaret Currie, aged eight with 187½ points while seven-year-old Keith Reid was second with 141 points.

In the competition for the intermediate diving championship and the Comstock Trophy the results were as follows: 1, Jean DeCarlo; 2, Angeline DeCarlo; 3, Phyllis Liddell.

The Gordon trophy in junior life saving was captured by Helen Currie with Loraine Brady second and Jean Millard third.

The Queen Alexandra girls won the shuttle relay race and the Cruikshank trophy in the public school competition while the Littlefield trophy for the school diving championship was taken by the Convent girls with the Prince of Wales and King George schools second.

The judges were Miss Littlefield, Gordon S. Minty and Jerry Corbett with Mrs. Currie as assistant.

The senior competition and the senior life saving tests will be staged later in the Y.M.C.A. pool and there will be a swimming exhibition by the Finnettes as part of the program.

Bill Cook Has Some Good Recruits

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 15—(CP).—Manager-coach Bill Cook watched his Cleveland Baron veterans and potential recruits in early season workouts here today and forecast a bright future for them in the winter's campaigning in the International League.

"The recruits are the most promising in years," the former New York Rangers stars said. "You can't tell yet, of course, but the situation certainly is bright, for all the veterans have recovered from the injuries that crippled us during the closing weeks of last year's campaign."

The Barons set a minor professional hockey attendance record last year.

Hockey Clubs Will Be Much Stronger

TORONTO, Oct. 15—(CP)—Professional hockey, the biggest business in winter sports, plunges deep into another build-up campaign this week-end when the last two National League Clubs to enter training camp leave Toronto.

This is the sport that has brought more money to New York's Madison Square Garden in the last 10 years than any other, the sport that set new attendance records almost everywhere around the league last winter and is out to gain new customers this season. In line with its rise, hockey's inner picture has changed rapidly.

This time it comes out more compact but more nearly over-stocked with players. Voluntary suspension of Montreal Maroons' franchise, because the business has become more highly competitive, has in turn made other clubs stronger and made it harder for the young player to win a position. No team besides Chicago, which has no farm club to draw from, has called less than 40 men to camp.

Pre-season training means more this year because the matter of getting away to a successful start has taken on new importance. The league's 1938-39 set-up—purposely or not—places greater emphasis on gaining first place.

Six In Playoffs.

Six teams again will enter playoffs for the Stanley Cup, symbol of the world championship, but because the league has been cut from eight clubs to seven it will operate as one group instead of two. There will be only one leader when the schedule ends and that leader will be declared N. H. L. champion. The Stanley Cup playoffs will be an aftermath to the big race.

Oddly enough, Chicago's world champion Black Hawks will be as greatly altered as any club when they leave their training headquarters at Champaign, Ill. Paul Thompson, long a high-scoring forward, has been installed as coach and Bill Stewart has dropped the coaching duties to preside as manager. The Hawks have picked up Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco and Earl Robinson from the defunct Maroons and have traded Louis Trudel to Montreal Canadiens for Joffre Desilets.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

NOTHING UNIMPORTANT

PLAYERS WHO DISCARD carelessly, while trumps are being run, waste a lot of tricks. Close observation of the declarer's methods in his play to the early tricks may give a clue to his hand and point out the necessity of holding onto your own long suit while tossing off cards of shorter suits.

South bid 1-Club on this deal, North responded with 1-Spade and South bid game in clubs.

As the cards lie, South should lose two hearts and two diamonds, but West made the bad lead of his singleton diamond, which East covered with the K and South with the A. As declarer had no entry to dummy except the uncertain play to the hearts, he decided to lead out six clubs. On the last two of these, West had thrown his two spades, but East, without paying attention, tossed diamonds. The result was that South was able to run the remainder of his diamonds, which, with the six clubs, gave him his contract.

If East had noticed the two spades dropped by West, he would have known that South was blank and tossed all of his spades instead of diamonds.

Monday's Problem

What is the proper defense against South's 3-Diamond contract?

110 Holsteins Are Entered In One Of Greatest Exhibits At Roseneath Fair

(By A Staff Reporter)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 15.—Fourteen of the Holstein breeders of Northumberland County warmed the heart of their mentor and fieldman, Robert Holtby of Port Perry, by marshalling 110 of the "black and white" cattle in that class at the Roseneath Fair here Friday afternoon.

Mr. Holtby was delighted with the response of the men of Northumberland to the combined appeal of the fair board and the Holstein Association, assisted also by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Arthur D. Runions of the Kemptville Agricultural School, formerly of Peterborough, was the judge of this class which was confined to Holsteins and to this county. He began his task shortly after twelve o'clock noon, and completed it in the growing dusk about six o'clock.

Mr. Runions, G. A. Brethen of Norwood, Sam Comrie of Otonabee, Ian McLeod of Brighton, agricultural representative in Northumberland, and others all agreed that the "black and white day" as it was popularly called, was an astonishing success, and probably an object lesson in attracting local breeders into the show ring.

Mr. Holtby's Idea

Imagine 110 Holsteins in the cattle section of the Roseneath fair grounds, and you visualize the other breeds being pushed into the background. And that is actually about what happened. Mr. Holtby told the Examiner he got the idea originally at field day at Burlington, Vermont, and heard there of a show in the United States, to which the breeders brought their cattle for the benefit of the breed and its producers, and not for the winning of prize money.

"When you get breeders filled with that spirit you know they have the right disposition and that conditions are sound," Mr. Holtby said. "When I got home I got thinking about the $40 the Holstein-Friesian Association gives to each of its clubs in a county. They contributed it for prize money to the nearest agricultural society, but it wasn't having much effect. So I mentioned the idea to the directors of the Port Perry fair, and to make a long story short we had 115 Holsteins shown at the fair on September 28, and the prize money we rounded up was $244, providing 122 two-dollar prizes."

An Immediate Success

So, the Port Perry experience was an assurance of what could be done here. Mr. Holtby spent three days in the county interviewing breeders some time prior to the fair. The prize money, pooled by the fair board, the county Holstein Club and the provincial government amounted to $220, enough for 110 two-dollar prizes.

The committee of management was composed of A. H. Martin of Brighton, who preceded Mr. McLeod as agricultural representative in Northumberland, Lorne Evans of Norham, Lindsay Anderson of Campbellford and Archie Campbell of Roseneath. One of the rules was that every exhibitor had to produce a certificate of a federal blood test. Prizes were all of the same amount, two dollars, whether it was first, fifth or seventh place. That equality of reward was designed to eliminate any resentment of those less successful than others. If only one or two prizes were required by fewer entries in one class, the rest of the prizes allotted to that class were passed on to the next.

"If the money is not all taken up by changing to other classes it will be added to prizes already given in get-of-sire classes, as far as it will go."

In other words all the money was to be distributed, and presumably it was. Each man showing an animal had a number hung over his back for the benefit of Mr. McLeod who was assisting as recorder, and Mr. Runions awards were registered according to those numbers.

As soon as the judge's decision was made known, the winners each received a two dollar bill. In some classes there were three prizes, others six and some nine, but for the championships the awards were ribbons.

This is not prize money that is being handed out," Mr. Holtby said. "It is expense money."

They were all registered Holsteins and pedigrees had to be produced in each class.

Some Classes Big

The female section was apparently much stronger than the male. Mr. Runions had a long line of fifteen two-year-old heifers as one example of the job he had to handle; and again there were nine dry cows in that section. For an hour or more the crowd around the show ring numbered at least three hundred people most of them from Northumberland, because the exhibits were all from the county, emphasizing the local aspect and interest.

The breeders taking part in the first "black and white day" at Roseneath fair were, with the number of animals they exhibited: Lorne Evans, Warkworth, 6; J. Stanley Roseneath, 8; Honey Brothers, Dartmacklin, Cobourg, 9; A. J. Campbell, ford, 14; Eric L. Merrill, Dartford, 7; Craig Nelson, Campbellford, 13; E. L. Anderson, Campbellford, 9; W. A. Atkinson and Son, 3; J. Arthur Down, Hilton, 5; Hugh J. Petty, Campbellford, 6; H. G. Ward, 8; Arthur F. Ward, 6; Bertram Hoskin, Cobourg, 10; Fred Samis, Warkworth.

The Runions' Awards

Senior champion bull, Honey Bros; reserve senior champion A. J. Campbell.

Female junior champion, Craig Nelson; reserve junior female champion, Honey Bros.

In the other sections for which money awards were given, only the first three are quoted from the list:

Bull, 3 years and up—1, Honey Bros.; 2, H. J. Petty; 3, B. Hoskin.

Bull, 2 years—1, A. J. Campbell; 2, Eric L. Merrill; 3, Warren Atkinson

Bull, senior yearling—1, J. C. Nelson.

Cow, 4 years and up, in milk—1, J. C. Nelson; 2, H. J Petty; 3, E. L. Anderson.

Heifer, 3 years—1, Honey B[illegible]; 2, H. J. Petty; 3, A. J. Campbell; 4, E. L. Anderson.

Heifer, 2 years—1 and 2, Honey Bros.

Junior get of sire—1, J. C. Nelson; 2, Honey Bros.; 3, H. G. Ward.

The obvious purpose of the black and white day was to enlist the interest of Northumberland breeders by excluding Holstein men from elsewhere; and also get them into the show ring and reflexly to create more enthusiasm for the general purposes and activities of the county Holstein Association.

It certainly provided a splendid feature for the Roseneath fair, and attracted a great deal of attention to the Holstein classes.

Collegiate Notes

FOOTBALL

P.C.I's junior and senior football teams opened their home schedule by splitting the count with Oshawa. Both games were played at the exhibition grounds.

In the morning the juniors were defeated 18-7. They lacked good subs and the regulars were forced to do heavy duty.

Bill "Poo" Hamilton and Bullock stood out for the losers. Hamilton's tackling was a starring feature. Bill plays on the secondary and gives promise of being a future senior star.

The senior team showed Oshawa a different story by taking a 20 to 0 verdict.

Bill Harla, speedy backfielder, starred with his fast runbacks and clever ball handling. Nels Foster did some nice forward passing and helped P.C.I. to gain many of their first downs.

The third team went into action Thursday night and were defeated by St. Peter's H.S., 30-0. It was a hard struggle for an inexperienced team.

The junior team played an exhibition game with Grove in Lakefield and defeated them 14-6. A large crowd from P.C.I. say the game and this along with the win should give the lads much-needed encouragement.

The crowds to date have been comparatively poor. If a team is to win it must have support and a large crowd of rooters is the best means of doing this.

STUDENTS' COUNCIL

The governing body of P C I. for the school year 1938-39 was finally chosen after a hard-fought campaign.

It is interesting to note that in electing the candidate for the office of secretary Miss Margaret Westbye won out over Barbara Scott by the small majority of 6 votes.

It is believed that this is the closes result ever seen in a school election here. The complete Ickie party was installed with Alex Young as president, Misses Catharine White and Margaret Westbye as vice-president and secretary respectively; and treasurer is Jim Sand.

Congratulations Ickies and may you have a successful year.

FIELD DAY LEFTOVERS

The senior boys' champion was not declared on field day owing to the fact that time did not permit the running of the half-mile.

This event was run off Tuesday night and was won by Barrie Jack. This did not settle the score but only complicated matters.

On Wednesday Don Duncan was left 3 points up on Jack. When Jack won the last event and Duncan came second it gave Jack 3 more points and tied it up. Therefore we have two senior champions and each, having a total of 18 points, will receive a cup.

FIRE DRILL

Rudely awakend from a mid-afternoon slumber on Wednesday the students of P.C.I. evacuated the building in response to the sharp, staccato clang of the fire bell.

Chief Gimblett of the City Fire Department was making his annual inspection of the drill system and found that the students could awaken and leave the building in two minutes and eighten seconds.

The whole procedure lasted about 10 minutes and was a welcome change from the regular routine.

CAMPUS FLASHES

Ab Leether, ace quarterback and kicker for the senior squad has been out of action all week with an injured leg. Ab has been missed at practice and it is hoped that he will soon be around again....The B.A.A. operated a booth on Field Day. It was capably supervised by Mr. Alex Shearer, Mr. W. Paxton Clarke and the B.A.A. executive... During the day, two camera fiends, Ben Ackerman and John Hooper, were seen taking motion pictures of the events. It is believed that these pictures will be shown at an early date...There should have been some excellent pictures taken on Field Day judging from the number of cameras in evidence. It looked like a colony of newspapermen taking pictures at a photographers' convention. . Donnie Diplock is back into the game after a few days' absence. He turned in a stellar performance in the backfield on Saturday. . Jack Kirkwood, ex-P.C.I. foothball player is a gridiron official and handled the games on Saturday...Miss Barbara Scott, unsuccessful candidate for the office of secretary on students council was elected form representative to the council by acclamation in Form IVA

THREE CHEERS

Dr. H.R.H. Kenner evidently felt the need of support at the football game on Saturday when he called Gwen Bond and Ted Clarke to the platform in the assembly hall to lead the school leaders.

Ted and Gwennie were the cheer leaders at the games last year and did an excellent job. As a result they have been reappointed and will again call for clamour and uproar from the supporters.

On Tuesday morning Gwen and Ted had the students rehearse the two yells and then attempted to teach th "freshies" how it should be done . . Both cheerleaders are expected to travel with the teams—rah.

REORGANIZATIONS

The camera club has already reorganizd and will hold their first discussion meeting next Wednesday at 3.30 under the supervision of Mr. V. R. Henry, honorary president of the club.

The school orchestra plans to organize this week and it is expected that Mr. A. J. Weames will again be the leader.

The practices for the bugle band are being held now and it is expected that Noel Barr will have the band ready for a week from Saturday when the football teams entertain Lindsay here.

FIRE CHIEF SPEAKS

On Thursday morning Fire Chief George Gimblett addressed the student body. His subject was Fire prevention. Chief Gimblett told of the origin of fire prevention week after the burning of old Chicago in October. 1891. He stressed the need for care in the home, where 85 per cent. of the fires originate through carelessness. He also pointed out that the youth of today can do much in fire prevention. The Chief closed his address by congratulating the students and teaching staff on the fine performance at fire drill the previous day

FIELD DAY CHAMPIONS

The girls' field day champions were presented with cups by Dr. Kenner and Miss D. Brisbin. The girls to receive cups were Eleanor Craig, senior; Jean Carter, intermediate; and Eleanor Pue, junior. Miss Brisbin congratulated the participants and those in charge of the meet. She then presented Miss N. Strickland, G.A.A. representative of Form IX with the form pennant. This form gathered in the greatest number of points in the events.

The boys' champions were also presented with cups by Dr. Kenner and Mr. H. A. Craig. Don Duncan and B. Jack received the senior awards; Stroyan Leith, intermediate and Bill Hall, junior.

There were two records broken in the girls events while Stroyan Leith was unbeatable in the dashes, coming in well ahead of his rivals.

way east of Port Perry had been abruptly cancelled by the Department of Highways.

He added that a bombshell had been thrown into arrangements by the fact that it was reliably reported a high official of the Department of Highways had told a service club member from Peterborough if Peterborough would demand a highway from Brooklin to Peterborough, it would be started at once.

Mr. Dutton traced growth and progress of organization which had been formed to get a fair share of highway appropriations and complete a highway between Peterborough and Port Perry and on through Uxbridge, Aurora, Newmarket and on to Yonge street.

"We have no quarrel with any other highway organizations nor are we interested in any other project. We are here to emphatically reaffirm our former stand of demanding the completion of highway 7A from Port Perry to Peterborough.

Time For Action.

Dr. L. W. Dales, reeve of Newmarket was the next speaker and delivered a fiery fighting speech in which he declared it was high time the Association "showed its teeth." "My confidence in people has been restored by the speech just made by Alderman James Dutton. He has re-affirmed his intention of supporting this project to the finish. Peterborough is not forsaking its friends in this district. I want everyone of you to realize that Peterborough is the head and brains of this organization. We are only the arms and legs and if the head is taken away there is no organization. It is high time that we show our teeth and if necessary go and lay our problems right on Mr. Hepburn's doorstep. We have been met with a very uncompromising attitude every time we approached the department of highways. This highway would pay for itself in five years. "Why should all highways lead into Toronto, does it not look as if certain financial and political leaders in Toronto are opposed to this Central Ontario Highway system. He closed his speech with further tribute to Mr. Dutton.

Wilfred Bowles, official delegate for the Reeve of Cartwright township said no railway services his section of the country east of Port Perry. All of the farmers must truck their hogs and cattle to market and in the winter time, they are snowed in. "If we don't get this highway now it won't be built in this generation. It is the most important highway system mooted in years. It means much to the farmers, settlers and merchants over a wide area that is now forced to use dirt roads. Western Ontario is criss-crossed by paved highways. Why should the farmers in this section be bled to build dual highways in the southern part of Ontario. It looks to me as if there is dirty work at the crossroads, when the Dept. of Highways cancels a contract after work has been started and then tries to induce another municipality to seek a different route. I would urge that our troubles be placed right before Premier Hepburn."

Others who spoke briefly in support of the highway program were George Hewitt, president of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, F. J. Overend, a past president, J. Jefferson, reeve of the Township of King, Reeve Toole of Whitchurch Towship, George Macdonald, former mayor of Peterborough and Mayor J. Low of Uxbridge, Board of Directors.

Bowes told the meeting that in future the Central Ontario Highways Association would consist of the Mayors and Reeves and presidents of all service clubs in every municipality interested in the highway across Ontario from Sarnia to Montreal, and these men would act as a board of directors. He also stated the existing organization would be extended east and west and officers would be elected at the meeting.

Fred Overend introduced a slate of officers seconded by Reeve J. A. Noals of Aurora which was accepted without change. The slate is as follows: Alderman James Dutton, president; Reeve Dr. L. Dales, Newmarket, Mayor J. Low, Uxbridge, and Mayor Charles Boulding, Aurora, vice-presdents; Reeve W. M. Letcher, Port Perry, treasurer and W. M. Bowes, secretary. Hon. M. F. Hepburn is honorary president and Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General and Hon. T. B. McQueston, Minister of Highways, are honorary vice-presidents.

Delegates who attended the meeting from Peterborough were Alderman James Dutton and R. S. Cotton, G. A. Macdonald, F. J. Overend, J. Gerahty, J. J. Dorris, E. A. Outram and W. Hewitt.

Japanese Cut Canton Line Twice

Hong Kong Storage Is Left Choked With War Supplies

HONG KONG, Oct. 17 (AP)—Japan's invasion of south China swept on today with what military observers considered amazing rapidity.

The vital Canton-Kowloon Railway was cut at at least two points. One column landed on the Pearl River delta and raced overland to sever the line 15 miles north of Hong Kong. Another drove westward and cut it at Cheungmuktau, about midway between Canton and Hong Kong.

Other forces crossed the East River after the capture of Waichow and fought their way up the Waichow-Canton highway to within 50 miles of Canton.

Indications the Japanese intended to drive straight on to the south China metropolis were seen in the fact that Japanese warplanes heavily bombarded Tsengsing, Chinese troop concentration point 45 miles east of Canton. Canton was placed under martial law.

Wongsha Railway station was hit by 17 bombs yesterday and more than 20 persons were killed in extensive Japanese air raids. Communications between Hong Kong and Canton were paralyzed.

In many instances it was reported Japanese planes, meeting no opposition, were diving continuously to within a few hundred feet of the ground and machine-gunning the Chinese.

Hundreds of Towns Razed

Literally hundreds of hamlets and villages were reported razed or burning as a result of air attacks.

A new Japanese landing at Namtau, on the Pear River delta near Hong Kong, was reported to have been made yesterday with remarkable ease and lack of opposition.

Military observers believe a decisive battle will be fought near Tsengsing, where the terrain is favorable for a defence stand and where the Chinese must block the Japanese or permit an attack on Canton from the east.

Amazing war refugee scenes were being enacted along the East River and at Canton as tens of thousands trudged into the interior. Fully 500,000 civilians were reported already to have left Canton.

With the Canton-Kowloon Railway in the hands of the Japanese and Japanese soldiers practically at the border of Hong Kong, the question of Hong Kong's economic future is a commanding one—whether the British colony can continue to receive the benefits of a wartime boom.

It is estimated that 750,000 tons of cargo are now in storage here. The immediate effect of the invasion has been a decrease of 2,000 tons a day in outgoing cargo, while an estimated 2,000 tons is arriving daily to swell storage.

Cargo now stored includes a large amount of military supplies intended for the Chinese. Estimates of this cargo run as high as $1,000,000.

2 Doctors and Fire Squad Revive Baby Pronounced Dead 30 Minutes

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 17 (AP)

JUDITH CAROL WINES, the 6¼ pound "blue baby who was pronounced dead for 30 minutes, cried lustily today and brought new hope to tired eyed physicians and firemen who had toiled successfully for nearly 24 hours to bring her to life.

Judith Carol was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wines at the family home yesterday. Suddenly the baby stopped breathing, turned blue and "died."—but the mother remembered the fire department rescue squad which was called with two doctors, 30 minutes after Judith Carol's respiration had stopped.

Using an inhalator, oxygen was forced into the baby's lungs and within eight minutes, her color was normal and life returned.

The two doctors, who refused to allow their names to be used, said the baby was dead when they arrived.

Over Half 4,000 U.S. Volunteers In Spanish War Said Lost; Canadians Get Off Lighter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—More than half of the 4,000 United States volunteers who took up arms in the Spanish Civil War apparently have been lost in action.

Surveys undertaken after the announced withdrawal of foreign volunteers by the Spanish Government failed today to account for at least 2,000 men.

Between 1,000 and 1,200 Americans are understood to be in the units now being withdrawn. Some of them are injured and have been in hospitals. Between 200 and 300 others are reported still to be in Spanish hospitals.

About 100 wounded veterans have returned to the United States. State department reports show that 80 to 100 are in General Franco's prison camps.

The department has records of the deaths of only about 200 Americans during the entire campaign. The remainder are simply missing.

CANADIAN LOSSES LIGHTER

TORONTO, Oct. 17. — (CP) — Friends of the Mackenzie Papineau battalion, organization supporting that unit in the Spanish civil war, estimated today Canadian casualties in the conflict were much lighter than American.

The "Mac Paps" supporters here said about 1,200 to 1,250 Canadians crossed to fight in Spain. While they had no figures on the recent Ebro offensive, they said unofficial estimates of fighting elsewhere showed 125 to 150 killed, 38 taken prisoner by insurgent forces and 50 missing. Canadian casualties in the Ebro fighting were said to be light.

Officials said that a large number of Canadians served in the artillery, where casualties were not as great as in the infantry. Another reason for lighter Canadian casualties was that the Canadians did not suffer as greatly as Americans in the march fighting.

Ban On Hunters?

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 17 (AP) — State Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne, advised that 29 forest fires were reported during the day, said last night "there seems to be no other course than to close the woods" to hunters "during the present crisis."

Kinne F. Williams, state superintendent of fire control, said that of the 29 fires, three were still not under control.

German Road Hogs To Have Tires Deflated On Spot

Berlin, Oct. 17 (AP)

A NEW ORDER states traffic police may deflate the tires of "road hogs" and reckless drivers right at the spot where they are caught. Authorities explained the need of severe measures by the fact that, despite more stringent control, the annual average of 8,000 persons killed and 175,000 injured on Germany's highways remains almost stationary. Fines and license suspensions also may be imposed.

Eight Problems Facing Chamberlain

LONDON, Oct. 17 —(CP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain returns to London tomorrow to face the task of bringing the nation's defences into shape to meet any new war threat and to take the complex problems affecting Great Britain in all parts of the globe. On Wednesday he will preside at the first cabinet meeting in two weeks and the agenda of the ministerial conference is one of the heaviest in recent months.

Among the important questions to be discussed by the ministers are:

1. Defence.
2. Vacancies in the cabinet resulting from the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper and the death of Lord Stanley.
2. The situation in Palestine.
4. The Anglo-Italian agreement concluded last Easter but not yet made effective.
5. The Anglo-American trade treaty.
6. The civil war in Spain.
7. The new Japanese offensive in South China and its effect on Hong Kong.
8. The situation in Central Europe in the wake of the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Observers inclined to the view Mr. Chamberlain might seize the opportunity of two vacancies in his cabinet to effect a general re-shuffle, possibly adding one or two new portfolios.

Anderson For the Job.

"A Minister of National Service" was widely precidcted and Sir John Anderson, who had long experience in Home Office affairs as a civil servant, was mentioned for the post.

Some predicted a Ministry of Supply, with Sir John Inskip possibly being chosen to combine those duties with his present post as Minister for the Coordination of Defence.

Another possibility was creation of a Ministry of Merchant Shipping for the purpose of reorganizing the merchant marine. Viscount Runciman, an authority on shipping, was mentioned for this post.

Earl Stanhope, president of the Board of Education, was mentioned to succeed Mr. Duff Cooper as First Lord of the Admiralty, as were W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, and John Colville, Secretary for Scotland.

To succeed Lord Stanley at the Dominions office Mr. Morrison and Euan Wallace, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, were mentioned.

Churchill's Appeal.

An outside possibility for a Ministry of Supply was Winston Churchill, who long has urged such a

Ontario Potato Harvest Tumbles 30 Per Cent. Below 1937

TORONTO, Oct. 17—(CP).—Ontario's 1938 potato production was estimated the lowest since 1916 by the Provincial Department of Agriculture's October crop report issued to-day. Total 1938 production was forecast at 7,016,500 hundredweight, 30.7 per cent less than last year's 10,130,500 hundredweight. For the preceding 10 years average production was 9,865,500 hundredweight.

The Department placed 1938 per acre yield at 48 hundredweight compared with 67.2 hundredweight last year. It said Central Ontario counties showed the greatest decline. Production in the north was reduced considerably by a late blight rot but the crop in Southern Ontario was comparatively free from disease. An inspection of commercial potatoes is being undertaken to ascertain amount of diseases affecting the crop.

Production of turnips, mangolds, sugar beets and fodder corn was estimated greater than 1937. Sugar beet acreage amounted only to 28,200 this year compared with 30,300 in 1937 but production was estimated at 293,300 tons against 240,400 tons last year. Favorable weather brought per acre yield to 10 tons against 7.94 in 1937.

The Department said total tobacco acreage of 73,000 was 28 per cent above 1937 and the largest acreage planted to tobacco in Ontario's history. The new growing areas were extended in Middlesex, Oxford and Brant counties.

Production of flue-cured tobacco was estimated at 61,000,000 pounds, increase of 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 over last year. Average yield of 1,000 pounds per acre from 61,000 acres was less than 1937. Buying operations in the flue-cured leaf are expected to start in November.

Burley tobacco output was estimated at 10,000,000 lbs, increase of 3,000,000. About 9,300 acres of burley were planted but, the Department said, 500 to 600 acres mainly in Kent were lost because of excessive rainfall.

Planting of dark tobacco increase. The One Sucker type was increased 500 to 600 acres over 1937, giving a total dark tobacco area of more than 2,700 acres. Total production was not expected to exceed 2,800,000 pounds.

Air Giants Wing Ontario As Trans-Canada Service Is Inaugurated

Sir William Mulock Who Saw First Train Leave Toronto, Watches New Saga; Flood Of Express Delays Start Half Hour

TORONTO, Oct. 17 (CP).—East and West were just a few hours apart today when a giant Trans-Canada Airways plane landed at Toronto's Malton Airport at 1.40 p.m., E.S.T., after leaving Winnipeg at 7 a.m., E.S.T., with the first eastbound air express. Less than two hours previously another T.C.A. plane took off for Winnipeg after landing at Toronto en route from Montreal and Ottawa.

TORONTO, Oct. 17 (CP).—Trans-Canada Airlines today inaugurated air express service across the country when a plane landed at Toronto's Malton Airport at 10.25 a.m. E.S.T. from Ottawa and took off at 10.55 for Winnipeg.

The giant plane made the hop from Ottawa in slightly less than two hours. It arrived at Ottawa at 8.30 after taking off from Montreal at 7.27. Stops were scheduled for Porquis Junction and Wagaming, Ont., en route to Winnipeg, where the plane was expected to land around 5 p.m.

An interested spectator was Sir William Mulock, retired Chief Justice of Ontario, who many years ago saw the first train steam westward from Toronto. He watched the cargo being stored, inspected the cabin and tapped the metal propellor with his cane.

Manufacturers in widely-varied lines sent shipments west on the big transport. They ranged from orchids to suitings.

"You can carry eggs in that all right," commented one of the 500 spectators as Captain Smith made a perfect landing. Captain Smith said the trip was delayed because so many manufacturers wanted to send goods from Montreal. The take-off was delayed half an hour while the express was being loaded.

During the brief stop at Ottawa, the plane picked up express, including a bouquet of flowers from Mayor Stanley Lewis and Mrs. Lewis to Mayor Miller of Vancouver.

Duck Hunter Is Drowned In Rice Lake

(By Staff Reporter)

KEENE, October 17. — One man was drowned and another narrowly escaped with his life in the shallow waters of Rice Lake near Keene on Saturday afternoon, the first casualty of this year's duck shooting season.

George McIvor, 26, of 495 Cambridge street, lost his life when the canoe which he and Albert "Bud" Evans, Lansdowne street, were hunting overturned. McIvor was a married man, father of two children. It is believed one of the men stood up in the canoe and it turned turtle. Both men were imprisoned underneath the overturned boat and McIvor, who was wearing hip-length waders, became entangled among the thwarts and was unable to free himself.

Evans managed to get from beneath the boat and called frantically for help. Other duck hunters heard his cries and came quickly to the scene. They found Evans in an exhausted condition and hauled him into one boat, striking out for shore, while others managed to extricate McIvor from rice beds and mud beneath the canoe, after a lengthy struggle. They paddled him to shore, applying artificial respiration all the while and until Dr. H. Wright of Keene arrived on the scene. After attempting to resuscitate the man for some time, Dr. Wright pronounced him dead.

The accident occurred half way between Shanty Shores and Sugar Island, a mile and a half south of Keene village, in about five feet of water, it was reported. The overturned boat was found to be within about 75 yards of the shore.

The other hunters who heard Evans' calls for help and came to the rescue were Thomas Wallace of Toronto, James Dickson of Keene, Bill Robinson of Keene and Thomas Wedlock of Peterborough. They took the body of McIvor to Wallace's cottage and continued artificial respiration until Dr. Wright's arrival. Constable David Silvester and County Coroner Dr. H. N. Young were notified. No inquest will be held, it was announced.

McIvor, an employee of the Canada Packers Limited, was born in Millbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McIvor, who still reside there. He had lived in Peterborough for the past two years. His wife was formerly Margaret Hawkins.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Nisbett Funeral Home, Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James United Church officiating. Interment will be at Gardiner's Cemetery, Millbrook.

First B.B.C. Sunday Dance Program Stirs Lord's Day Protest

LONDON, Oct. 17—(AP).—The first cautious venture by the British Broadcasting Corporation into Sunday broadcasting of dance music brought a quick decision by the Lord's Day Observance Society today to "protest with every nerve and fibre of our religious conviction."

H. H. Martin, secretary of the society, called the 20 minutes of modified jazz at church time yesterday morning an "indefensible and deplorable desecration of the Sabbath."

The BBC put Charlie Kunz and his band on the air at 11:45 a.m. without calling it a dance program. The orchestra avoided crooning and extreme jazz. Until yesterday the BBC always had clung to classical music, if any, on Sundays.

Campbellcroft Couple Mark 65th Wedding Anniversary

(By Staff Reporter)

CAMPBELLCROFT, October 17.—A cable of congratulation from King George, together with telegrams from Acting Prime Minister Hon. Ernest Lapointe and the Governor-General were received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. William Wright of Campbellcroft.

The couple were celebrating the 65th anniversary of their wedding when the messages came to them. Among Canada's longest-married couples, they have been life-long residents of this district and are still in good health. Mr. Wright is 87 years old, and Mrs. Wright is five years his junior.

"May I join your many friends in congratulating you upon the 65th anniversary of your wedding. Best of wishes for continued happiness through many years to come," read the Acting Prime Minister's greeting. King George and Lord Tweedsmuir sent similar greetings.

"It was a day much like this one that we slipped quietly away and got married sixty-five years ago,' reminisced Mr. Wright. He was born in South Monaghan township and has lived all his life in and around the Bewdley district. He farmed until thirteen years ago, when he retired and moved to Campbellcroft. His 200-acre farm, now operated by a son, is located in Hope Township. It was in 1874, a year after his marriage, that he moved to that property. The farm had been worked before, but much of the land that he later cultivated was in stumps, just as it had been left when the timber had been felled, and he had to clear it before he could plant his crops.

He has always been an active man and in his youth regularly cradled four to five acres of grain a day—there were no mowers in those times. "I started to plough when I was ten years old and I kept at it for sixty solid years, and more," he said. Mrs. Wright was formerly Harriet Ball, was born in Hamilton township.

They found farm life a happy existence. "Sure, I got tired of it at times, but you get tired of anything," Mr. Wright said. "We always had plenty."

Even after his retirement Mr. Wright insisted on growing his own vegetables and it was this work that brought him his only lasting ailment. "He was digging potatoes and he had a heart attack," one of his sons said. "Of course it was only 104 degrees in the shade that day and those potatoes couldn't have waited." Since that time, Mr. Wright has not much use of his legs.

The couple have had, in their 65 years of married life, precisely 65 descendents. They had 11 children, ten of whom are still living, 46 grandchildren, and 8 great-grandchildren. The ten living children are John A of Peterborough; Mrs. Frank Coates of Edmonton, Leonard B. of Redvers, Saskatchewan; Dr. Stewart Wright of Toronto; Mrs. C. Dean of Garden Hill; Mrs. Frank Boddy of Toronto; Mrs. S. S. Finley of Thornhill; Robert of Toronto; and A. Bruce Wright of Hope Township, now working the old farm.

3 Gangs, 7-Ton Jack All Needed To Free a Woman

Montreal, Oct. 17 (CP)

THE COMBINED EFFORTS of Montreal police, firemen and tramways employees were needed early today to release a woman pinned by the head between a tree and the brick wall of a house with her feet danging three feet from the ground. The woman had slipped while sitting on a balcony railing.

Police tried first to release Mrs. Francis Orr, 49. Firemen were called and several attempted unsuccessfully to push the tree away from the wall with a seven-ton "jack." The tramways department supplied the men and a powerful jack to budge the tree and release Mrs. Orr, held almost 45 minutes.

Over 70 Burned-out Families Game To Try Again As Rain Ends Fire

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 17. —(CP). — Showers over the forest fire zone to-day brought the hope to settlers from the burned out areas that they might be able to return shortly to their land. They wished to rebuild and start anew in the 9,00 square miles of fire-wrecked countryside.

Ontario government officials, headed by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, drove through the townships struck by the conflagration which broke out Thanksgiving Day and swept for 100 miles along the International boundary, causing 20 deaths in Ontario and Minnesota.

It is estimated more than $100,000 will be required to rebuild settlers' homes. More than 70 families lost their dwellings, but further inquiry might advance the figure.

Cash Assured.

Government officials assured refugees, quartered at Fort Frances and Stratton, that the money will be provided and work will start immediately. The rain showers seemed to fall in line with the rehabilitation program as they came Saturday while the Citizens' committee and relief officers were conferring.

The moisture brought grins to faces of the fire crews who have battled day and night for a week against one of the most serious outbreaks in the history of the timber country.

Citizens of Fort Frances and International Falls, just across the border in Minnesota, relaxed after ceaseless vigils while flames crept to the outskirts. Thousands of feet of hose were wound up as the crews at Fort Frances headed for bed and the first unbroken sleep in seven days.

Fighters kept watch at Clearwater Lake, Sphene Lake and Crane Lake where flames still spurted through muskeg, timber and grass. Sphene Lake escaped the rainfall but the blaze near the tourist resort were described as under control.

One Settler Sticks

Charles Plummer, 65-year-old resident of Dance township where 17 persons died, including two women and 10 children, was located in good health during the week-end. The courageous settler clung to his bors place Saturday, happy that his the countryside.

Plummer waged a lone and courageous battle against searing heat and flames to save his home.

Provincial policemen, seeking to learn his fate, found him at a neighbor's place Saturday happy that his home still remained although other buildings had fallen.

Czechs Must Support Rome-Berlin Orbit To Satisfy Duce, Hitler Italy Hints

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP)

A STRONG HINT came from Italian official quarters today that in order to satisfy Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler Czechoslovakia must come within the orbit of the Rome-Berlin axis.

A bulletin of the Informazione Diplomatica, distributed by the ministry of popular culture, indicated the Prague government's policies—political, economic and "spiritual" — must swing toward those of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The bulletin said negotiations for the cession of Czechoslovak territory to Hungary would be resumed in a few days and the outcome would be successful for Hungary. It added that once the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia are fixed in accordance with Mussolini's principles they would be guaranteed by Italy.

Informazione Diplomatica refrained from saying just how far Czechoslovakia would be expected to go in re-adjusting its policies to the ideas of Berlin and Rome. Foreign authorities here, however, suggested the following adjustments as mostly likely to satisfy the two poles of the Fascist-Nazis axis:—

1. Abandonment of any anti-Fascist attitude.
2. Closer economic relations with Rome and Berlin.
3. Severance of political connections with Soviet Russia and France as represented in Prague's mutual assistance pacts.
4. Outlawing of the Communist party and perhaps dissolution of Masonic lodges in Czechoslovakia.
5. Adherence in spirit if not in fact to the anti-comintern (Communist International) triangle of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

Montreal, Oct. 17 (CP)

FOR constitutional reasons it is "impossible" for the Federal government to go ahead with the St. Lawrence waterways project without the consent of Ontario and Quebec, Premier Duplessis said here today.

During an interview granted here, the first since his trip abroad, Premier Duplessis suggested the St. Lawrence waterways was "unnecessary and impossible without the consent of the interested parties."

Explaining his argument regarding the waterways, the Premier admitted the federal government had jurisdiction over the "waters" of the St. Lawrence since that jurisdiction covers "navigable rivers."

"But as far as power production is concerned," he contended, "that's a matter of provincial jurisdiction. The privy council has decided more than once that riverbeds belong to the provinces, and you know that without the bed there is no river."

Premier Duplessis pointed out the project, under examination by Canadian-United Staets governments for its possibilities of immense hydro-electric power production, would involve dam construction.

"The dams would have to be built on the river-bed and the province's own the beds," he held. "Consequently it would be impossible for the federal government, from a constitutional point of view, to undertake the works in question without consent of the interested parties."

Premier Duplessis reiterated his approval of the stand by Premier Hepburn of Ontario opposing the waterways scheme.

Both Hungary Czechs Move Troops

Budapest Considers Plans Sent By Hitler, Il Duce

BUDAPEST, October 17—(AP).—Hungary continued to move troops and war equipment to the Czechoslovak border to-day while the Cabinet met to consider suggestions, made by Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini to settle the minority dispute.

Roads were crowded with requisitioned buses, trucks, farm carts and horses moving troops toward the north. Many of the mobilized reserves travelled to the border by train.

(Reports from the frontier said Czechoslovak troops also were moving up to their lines facing Hungary. One Czechoslovak diplomat at Komarom said it was possible that Prague had assembled 500,000 to 750,000 men along the Danube.)

The public in Budapest seemed no longer afraid there would be war, but wondered how much longer they would have to wait for the great victory celebrations prepared for the day Hungary occupies the hundreds of square miles of Czechoslovak territory she expects to get.

Peace Not War.

Officials continued to emphasize that the mobilization was for peace, not for war.

The peace proposals from Hitler and Mussolini were submitted in response to a note addressed to Germany, Italy, Great Britain, France and Poland asking for a quick conference of other means of settling the dispute with Czechoslovakia.

Poland was also known to have made proposals for a solution, but it was not known whether Great Britain and France had replied.

The plans under consideration were said to include a suggestion by Hitler that a mixed commission of Czechoslovak, Hungarian, Polish, British, French and Italian diplomats meet in Germany within a week. Mussolini's plan was said to be similar except that he proposed that the commisison meet in Italy.

Plowing Match Set For Tuesday

A record number ot entries in the annual plowing match being held on Tuesday at the farm of David Miller, lot 14, concession 1 Dummer Township, about a mile northwest of Warsaw village was forecast today by Howard Quinn, president of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association.

Mr. Quinn said that it was usual to receive requests for from 12 to 15 teams but to date at least 25 outside plowmen had communicated with him asking that teams of horses be provided for their use. This together with the fact that a great number of junior farmers between the ages of 14 and 20 are expected to compete should make the match a memorable one.

Considerable interest in match plowing has been aroused by officials of the organization who made arrangements for three plowing demonstrations in the County. Those were held on the farms of William Hays, Douro; George Robinson, Otonabee and Nicholas Swan, Otonabee. At these demonstrations J. J. Duffus, M.P. was on hand to instruct all the young fellows in the fine points of match plowing. At least 25 boys have turned up and tried their hand at the plow with commendable results and the majority of these are expected to compete on Tuesday.

Three Mohawk Indians from the reserve at Deseronto have signified their intention of entering. Thomas Brant, secretary of the Plowmen's Association wrote that he and two others would compete and asked for accommodation.

The plowing starts at 9.30 Tuesday, Octobe. 18th and meals will be served on the grounds by the Women's Institute of Warsaw.

Clarke Young of Milliken, Ontario, well known as one of the outstanding judges in the province will judge the work.

Eight Problems

department. In a broadcast to the people of the United States last night Mr. Churchill predicted compulsory service in Great Britain in the near future and appealed to the American people to join the European democracies to "confront not only military but moral aggression."

"Praeponderant world forces are upon our side," he said. "They have to be united to be obeyed. We must arm. We shall no doubt arm. Britain is casting away the habits of centuries and will decree national service upon her citizens. The British people will stand erect and will face whatever may be coming."

"Replying" to Chancellor Hitler who named him as one of a group who would "like to make war," Mr. Churchill said Great Britain and France bowed to Hitler at Munich, but:

"If through an earnest desire for peace we have placed ourselves at a disadvantage, me must make up for it by redoubled exertions and if necessary by fortitude in suffering.

"We must recognize that parliamentary democracies and liberal and peaceful forces have everywhere sustained a defeat which leaves them weaker, morally and physically, to cope with dangers which have vastly grown."

Will You Wait, America?

"Will you wait until British freedom and independence have succumbed and then take up the cause when it is three-quarters ruined, yourselves alone?"

"I hold the belief that we have now at last got far enough ahead of barbarism to control it and to avert it if only we realize what is afoot and make up our minds in time. We shall do it in the end. But how much harder our toil, the longer the delay."

The diplomatic editor of the Yorkshire Post (Conservative) said he had learned that when Parliament reconvenes the Prime Minister probably will make a statement on various reports of a contemplated air pact with Germany and on the Anglo-Italian agreement.

"Several versions are now current, not only of the lines on which an air pact might be concluded, but of a possible general European settlement," the paper said. "At the moment, however, they should be treated cautiously for responsible authorities here have no knowledge of any definite schemes, nor is it yet known whether the Prime Minister had more than the most informal discussion on this subject during his recent talks with Hitler at Munich.

"The Anglo-Italian agreement is likely to be one of the questions the cabinet will consider at its meeting Wednesday and it is expected Mr. Chamberlain will be invited to inform the Commons on all latest developments in foreign policy in the debate following the re-assembly of the House in November."

Air Pact Out

Declaring an air pact with Germany was unlikely, the diplomatic editor of the Daily Mail (Independent) said:

"Well informed quarters point out that Britain, after making so many statements that her air force must be made equal to any within striking distance, would be unlikely to assent to a proposal which left her inferior to Germany in the air."

The newspaper added that "security depends upon one fundamental condition—the nation must close its ranks and unite as never before behind the prime minister."

"The claims of party and promptings of self-interest must be set aside," it went on. "Mr. Chamberlain looks for a solid backing of all Conservatives and the good will and co-operation of opposition parties, of industry and of labor, in the immense effort he is making to achieve national security."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said:

"With the lamented death of Lord Stanley following the resignation of Mr. Duff Cooper, two vacancies in the cabinet have to be filled and it may be that a new ministry will have to be created for taking charge of national service.

"From the trying experience through which the country has passed two benefits have been reaped: The first is the awakening of the public to the realities of the times and the second is the breathing space granted in which measures may be planned to set afoot which are commensurate with what the realities demand.

"For it is bovious today that no piecemeal expedients will suffice for the occasion. Planning and mapping and effort must be on a big scale; they must be so contrived that all parts of the machinery not only respond to supreme control but are equal to the strains which each may put on the others.

Czechs Resigned To Looking For Nazi Backing

PRAGUE, Oct. 17—(AP).—Czechoslovakia appeared today to have switched her gigantic reconstruction task to a new course in co-operation with Germany.

Chancellor Hitler, it was learned, has assured Czechoslovakia that the country now is on a sounder basis and that it can retain its culture and achieve greater prosperity by co-operation within the German orbit.

Czechoslovaks according to indications, are resigned to the necessity of looking to Germany for support.

The past few days have seen a striking change in German-Czechoslovak relations, contrasting sharply with the strained situation when Europe seemed on the verge of war over the Sudeten problem.

While the controlled German press now speaks of help for Czechoslovakia, the controlled Czechoslovak press speaks of cooperation with Germany.

4 Ministers to Berlin

An increasing desire to cooperate with Germany was seen in the Czechoslovak cabinet's decision yesterday to send four ministers to Berlin: Finance minister Joseph Kalfus, minister of commerce and industry Imrich Karvas, agriculture minister Vladislav Feieraband and minister without portfolio Hugo Vavrecka.

These sources insist it is absolutely certain that Hitler is not interested in grabbing more territory by threats or force, provided Great Britain and France treat Germany as an equal.

Hitler does not want Alsace-Lorraine, these sources said. It is no secret, however, that Germany has plans for eastward expansion, especially regarding Rumania, but Germans here said it would be a "peaceful penetration" for the development of resources in a manner beneficial to eastern Europe as well as Germany.

ter from my well," he said. "She got my buildings but I saved my house. Then I got a team and drove to a friend's in Burris township. I've been there since."

Through cracked lips he apologized for being "such a bother" and told police officers he apreciated their trouble "but I guess I'll be kicking around for a long time to come."

Provincial police found Ivan Brandrick trudging along the road after surveying his fire-ridden bush clearing.

"I'm no baby but by gosh, I could cry," he said, after viewing the havoc wrought at the spot where he spent five years hard work.

Nothing was left of his place but ugly black stumps and grey ashes.

Brandrick described the bitter fight that started just when the family was preparing to celebrate Thanksgiving. Waves of flame swept against the farm property and heat became intense.

"I told my son Pat, just 19, to run up and let out the beaver dam above where the fire started to come closer," he said. "I loosed a dam closer in so as to flood the place as much as possible. But it wasn't enough. The fire kept coming closer.

"We kept on hauling kegs of water and wetting buildings and hay. My housekeeper and her two children helped for a while but I told her to take the kids and lie down in the middle of the clearing. By that time it was so hot you could hardly breathe and sparks were dropping around us like rain."

The hay went first, then the pulpwood pile. Finally nothing was left but the house on which sheets of flame played. With bare hands they pulled burning moss from between the logs in the cabin.

"When the flames started closing in again I lost my nerve," Brandrick said. "I guess I went out of my head for a minute when the flames started closing in again. I remember opening the door of the house. The hot air outside rushed in with such a force it almost threw me to the ground. I started to pull stuff out.

"But my son ran around and gave me a shake. 'Come on dad, we're not licked yet,' he yelled. I was all right again after that. I yelled to the women to lie flat and keep the kids' heads down, and we kept working at the house.

"It was holy terror. I was through the Great War but this was far worse. I'd take the firing line any day. You'd have far more of a chance than against those raging flames."

In the tour of the ruined forest and farm land, Mr. Heenan and government officials saw farm homes, settlers' cabins and barns now nothing but charred wrecks. Bodies of farm livestock dot the still smouldering muskeg, and sheep and cattle, which escaped, glean little food from hay patches the flames jumped.

Swing To Farming.

Mr. Heenan said the settlers will be encouraged to start agricultural operations instead of depending on pulpwood cutting for main financial returns.

"We are investigating the possibilities of putting these people on good lands now within the Crown or vacated by previous tenants," Mr. Heenan said. "Our tour has impressed me of the hopelessness of returning many of these people to their old home sites."

"I feel it would be much more satisfactory to place many of them in sections closer to the railroad tracks. It would be more desirable to place them near schools rather than to re-settle them in burnt-out country where not only new schools but new roads would have to be built.

"We will have to provide them with shelter, stoves and other necessities for the winter. They will also need food and clothing. All this will have to be done before the snow flies."

Treasure For Great Conference

A view of the obverse side of the magnificent monstrance, or ostensorium, which will be used in the 8th National Eucharistic Congress, which opens in New Orleans on October 17. The monstrance, weighing 24 pounds, is said to be one of the most exquisite and valuable sacred vessels ever created. More than $200,000 of jewels, platinum and silver were used in fashioning it. The monstrance itself is of pure gold except for the angels supporting the luna, CENTRE, the Virgin Mary and the saints at the base, which are of sterling silver.

Singer Nearly Loses Her New Mate As Old One Uses Gun In Beverly Hills Love Tangle

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17—(AP).—Jealousy?—or self defence?—clashed as rival theories today to explain the shooting of singer Ruth Etting's new husband by her divorced mate and former business manager, Martin (Moe) Snyder.

Snyder, held in jail on suspicion of kidnapping and attempting to murder Myrl Alderman, 30-year-old bridegroom and radio musician, was quoted by police as saying: "He was shooting at me, so I shot at him. Ruth won't prosecute me, because she still loves me."

There was scant affection in Miss Etting's silver voice as she angrily blamed the gunplay in her luxurious home Saturday night on Snyder, whom she divorced in Chicago last November after 17 years of wedded life.

"I don't believe I will ever sing again...ever," she said, sitting beside the hospital bed of Alderman, who secretly married her in Tijuana, lower Calif., last July.

"Snyder was merely jealous. He's not satisfied unless he's making trouble. He's threatened to kill me before—and even telephoned from New York last January to threaten me.

Had Gun of Her Own

"Snyder's story was that Myrl shot at him is ridiculous. That boy never owned a gun. I did, though, one that I had had for years. Snyder's gun was the only one there Saturday night until Myrl had been shot and was lying on the floor. Then I slipped into the bedroom and got mine.

"Snyder saw it. He took it away from me and threw it on the floor. Edith Snyder picked it up and shot at him—her own father. I believe that girl would lay down her life

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 17.—Fire which threatened to destroy Petherick's garage and a large pile of cord wood owned by T. J. Horkins broke out at noon on Saturday. The flames originated in a pile of old car bodies stored back of the garage and in a few minutes had gained such headway that they threatened the garage. Fire Chief Williams and his men responded to the call and soon had the blaze under control.

Accident Toll 6 Over Weekend

TORONTO, Oct. 17 (C.P.). — Despite heavy traffic, drawn to the highways by summer-like weather conditions, only two persons were killed in motor accidents in Ontario during the week-end. Four fatalities from other causes brought the province's toll of violent deaths to six.

Falling beneath the dual wheels of a motor truck taking him home from work, Jack Reynolds, 40-year-old Porquois Junction laborer, was killed on Saturday night. He is survived by his widow and six children.

The other fatal motor accident, a head-on collision on a highway near Bowmanville, took the life of Alvin Larson of Oakland, Calif. Police were told Larson had pulled out to pass a motor truck when his car struck one driven by John R. Mc-

Western Canada marketings Saturday totalled 2,379,000 bushels compared with 524,000 bushels a year ago.

Cash wheat dealings were slow and a small quantity of No. 4 Northern sold ¼ cent higher earlier in the season.

Coarse grains generally were steady in quiet routine trading.

Earle—Morrow

A quiet wedding was solemnized at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon by Rev. M. C. Parr, when Grayce Matilda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Morrow, Peterborough, became the bride of Richard Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Earle, Peterborough.

The attendants were Miss Margaret Morrow, sister of the bride, and Mr. Frederick Earle, brother of the groom.

Conway—Weymark

HAVELOCK, Oct. 17.—St. John's Anglican Church was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding on Saturday at four o'clock, when Marjorie Sophia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Weymark of town was united in marriage to William Edward Conway of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. E. Lemon of Norwood.

The bride entered the church with her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. The service was fully choral, the surpliced choir singing "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden."

The bride looked lovely in a gown of turquoise blue, triple sheer over blue taffeta, veil and halo of imported embroidered lace, long lace gloves and silver slippers. She carried a white morrocco bound prayer book from which long streamers of ribbon and forget-me-not were entwined.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Alex Simpson, of Havelock, acting as matron-of-honor, wore rose coloured, waterwave, triple sheer, over yellow crepe, with shoulder veil, halo of roses, and gold slippers. She carried a bouquet of baby mums, roses and fern.

The groom was attended by the brother of the bride, Mr. Ralph Weymark of Williamsville, New York. The ushers were Rev. Edward Rigby of Coboconk and Mr. George Worboy of Toronto, cousin and uncle, respectively, of the bride.

The bride's gift to her attendant was a wine coloured purse. The groom's gift to his attendant an initialled gold tie-pin, and to the ushers leather bill-folds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Weymark receiving the guests in a dress of navy triple sheer with cut velvet and gray accessories. She wore a corsage of forget-me-nots. Her sister, Mrs. George Worboy, of Toronto, assisted her wearing navy over lace. On the lace covered table, the wedding cake was placed on a pretty mirrored centre-piece.

Rev. R. E. Lemon proposed the toast to the bride with the groom replying. Rev. Mr Robinson of Japan spoke of the Japanese customs of love and marriage.

The young couple left on a motor trip through Western Ontario, and will return via the United States. The bride travelled in a wine colored knit suit, grey tweed coat, and wine accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway will reside on Rubidge street, Peterborough, on their return.

Among the out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Colquhoun, Kingston; Mrs. Thomas McCracken, Roseneath; Mr. Thomas Jackson and Miss Mary Jackson of Willowdale; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weymark, Williamsville, New York; Rev. and Mrs. Edward Rigby of Cobocönk; Rev. C. Cooper Robinson, Kobe, Japan; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. George Worboy, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Rightmeyer of Toronto; Miss Marion Worboy, Peterborough; Miss Marion Graber, Buffalo, New York; Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon, Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. V. Melville, Campbellford.

We Noticed

....Enjoying Sunday sunshine on a bicycle built for three were two little girls in green coats and caps. Chubby legs swung from a cleverly built basket-seat just ahead of the handle bars of dad's bicycle, and delight in their adventure was written all over the happy faces of the pretty pair.

... That a blending of yellow, coppers and bronze which stands out in glowing contrast to the dark green of the firs and the paler green of the spruce trees has replaced the more brilliant tints of early Autumn leaves, but flaming color is seen in the bright outburst of the sumach leaves; the orange of the bittersweet berry; the ruddy apple, and in the grape that hangs in purple clusters from its leafless vine. To such unutterable loveliness was Nature hostess on Sunday, when many searchers of beauty enjoyed another day of glamour and sunshine after almost three weeks of perfect weather.

New Book Is Of Local Interest

A very interesting book has just been published entitled "Edison's Open Door." The author is Mr. A. O. Tate, who, in the early days of Mr. Edison's rise to greatness, acted for some years as his private secretary. The book is more than ordinarily illuminating, as it provides many sidelights on Mr. Edison's character and on the difficulties which beset him in the production of his early inventions.

The author, who is no stranger to Peterborough, having visited the northern mining sections of this district many years ago, is to speak on Tuesday, October 20th at 9 p.m., over CFRB, and his address, entitled "We, the People," should be of special interest to many who were personally acquainted with Mr. Tate during his residence in the city.

Men Are So Much Improved In These Times That They Make Far Better Husbands Than Did Their Grandfathers Who Were Regular Martinets

A CORRESPONDENT asks: "How do you think the young men today compare with the young men of the past as husbands and fathers? Don't you think that nowadays when a girl gets married she takes a far greater risk than her mother and grandmother did? Do you think that the modern man makes as good a husband and father as his father and grandfather did?"

I think that the modern man is the greatest modern improvement and that the girl who marries him has a 50 per cent. better chance at happiness than her mother and grandmother did. Also that the modern father is the first father in the whole history of the world who has even tried to understand the obligations of fatherhood, to say nothing of making an honest attempt to pull off a good job at it.

If you throw up your hands and cry out: "Look at the increase in divorce!" and cite the number of sidestepping husbands, I reply that it isn't because there are more unfaithful husbands or more drunken husbands or more cruel or trifling husbands. It's because women won't stand for the things now that they formerly did. Mary chucks her husband out of the side door for doing the very things that Grandma would have endured in patient, silent suffering because she thought that a wife's role was to be the understudy of a martyr.

The truth is, we have raised the standard of husbands. We have educated them, improved them, grandifloraed them so that the most ordinary, common or garden variety of the modern species would have taken a blue-ribbon prize in a husband show fifty years ago.

In fact, the women that we pity and "poor Sally" now have got just about the sort of husbands that Grandpa was. For Grandfather, without knowing it or intending it, was an overbearing, arrogant, egotistic, selfish tyrant, who talked a lot about gallantry and chivalry and protecting women, and then proceeded to make a doormat of poor Grandma.

He grabbed her pocketbook on her wedding day and doled her out of it just what he saw fit to give her. And he felt that she should be so eternally grateful to him for saving her from being an old maid that he didn't need to do anything else to make her happy the remainder of her life.

If Grandma had asked Grandpa for an allowance on which to run the house and for her own personal use, he would have thrown a fit. Why, the thing was unheard of! Didn't he pay the bills? Couldn't she come to him like a beggar every time she wanted a nickel for soap, or a pair of new stockings? Perish the thought that a woman had any right to any money that she could spend without giving an itemized account of it to her lord and master!

But it is a mighty mean and tight-fisted husband in these days who does not voluntarily give his wife an allowance, not as a favor, but merely as a square deal and because it is a fair and honest return for her services as housekeeper and wife and mother. The modern man recognizes that financial independance is just as necessary to a woman's self-respect as it is to a man's.

Grandpa was a tyrant in his household. If he was kindly natured and amiable, he was a benevolent tyrant. If he was surly and ill-tempered, he was a brutal tyrant. But in either event, his will was law, and poor Grandma had never a word to say about anything. All that was expected of her was to meekly accept his mandates and do his august pleasure.

The modern man has even eliminated the word "obey" from the marriage service. He regards his wife as his equal, not his slave. He consults with her, advices with her, makes her his partner, his chum, his companion.

Grandpa thought that being married to him was picnic enough for any woman, and that she couldn't possibly desire any more thrilling amusement than sitting at her home watching for his return at night. The modern husband realizes that housework is dull and monotonous, and he makes an effort to bring all the pleasure he can into his wife's life. He takes her out to places of divertisement where she will see the bright lights and hear laughter and music and get something new to think about.

Grandpa left Grandma at home when he went forth for his pleasures. John takes his wife along and they have good times together. It was grandpa who used to travel. Now it is Mary Jane and the children who run over to Europe, while husband stays at home and makes the money to pay the bills.

If Grandma had any talents except for cooking and having babies, Grandpa ruthlessly squelched them. The modern husband encourages his wife to develop whatever gifts she has. If he is very modern, indeed, he is willing for his wife to go on with the career that she has spent thousands of dollars and years of study fitting herself for and in which she is winning success. He would not like to give up his lifework with all of its interests and its emoluments just because he got married, and he extends the same privilege to his wife.

Oh, there are a million ways in which the modern man shows justice and generosity and kindness and human fellowship to his wife of which Grandpa never dreamed. Indeed, it is not too much to say that nearly all of the bad husbands nowadays, the husbands who are breaking women's hearts and making them miserable, are men who are the old-fashioned kind, just like Grandpa.

The modern father is also a better father, because Grandpa's idea of being a good father was to be a martinet who enforced implicit obedience on his children and to make them do and think exactly as he did and thought. He picked out John's profession for him without regard to John's talents or desires. He selected Mary's husband for her, and if John and Mary rebelled there was a grand family row and they were turned out into the cold, cold night.

The modern father tries to help his children make the best of themselves. He studies them and tries to understand them. He sympathizes with them and is their best loved friend instead of their most feared oppressor.

Fashions

Young flattery for any figure. The model includes street and formal length versions. Black mat crepe is smart for the street length version....perfect for afternoon tea...cocktail party....dinner and theatre in the evenings. The becoming vee neck is accented by dainty lace trim. Or if you like, it may be of contrasting crepe in chartreuse, purple, red, etc. Satin-back crepe with the trim of the lustrous side of the satin is equally effective. The formal version is stunning in gleaming satin crepe, smooth woollen or shimmering velvet. The skirt with plenty of swing, wickedly splits open at the front. What a joy to sew....the sleeves of the street length version cut in one with the shoulders. The front of the dress, cuts in one with the draped neck. You'll finish it so quickly.

Style No. 3426 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch contrasting for street length dress.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"There are a hundred touches of kindness that come to us every day to tell us that we are not orphans or outcasts upon the earth." —V.D.

Dear Friends:

This is to acknowledge the kindnesses of some of my friends who read my column. "Margaret," of Havelock, sent me such a nice chicken recently, because I had been ill. Thank you so much "Margaret," you have no idea how much it bucked me up.

And "L. L. M." sent me some lovely pickles and preserves. Please, L. L. M. let me know your name and address so I can thank you by personal letter. Your messenger would tell me nothing, but that these things were from a reader of my stuff.

And to J. L. P. of Water street, thank you so much for the subscription to that magazine. I hope you received my personal note of thanks, and I am sure I shall derive much benefit from reading it.

To "A. G. D." of Barnardo Ave., thank you indeed for such a lovely poem, and also the letter which accompanied it. It makes my heart warm each time I read it, and am so glad I am of so much help to you and so many others.

Now, where name and address is enclosed I answer personally, but where only initials or a pen-name is used I can do nothing. To one who signs herself "Elderly Lady' of Lakefield: thank you and believe me when I say it would make me happy to receive this.

Isn't kindness a marvellous thing? It might seem just a small thing to the one who does it, but it is large in the feeling it leaves with the one to whom it is shown.

Not so long ago I heard a young woman rail at someone because they had done something kind for her. She stormed that she did not want anyone to do things for her, she could do them for herself.

And I thought that life would teach her differently, that she would find out how things shared are nicer, and that we all must do some sharing else we do not truly live.

Even a meal with someone congenial tastes better, and good times must have others in it else it develops into loneliness. Companions in travelling help the time to pass more quickly, and several pairs of eyes can see more than one pair.

Men and women have gone stark staring mad because they had no one to share their solitude. Families stay together so they can share love and experiences with each other.

Sharing your troubles with God makes the burden lighter. Trying to carry them alone will get you down. Sharing what you have read and studied helps many others besides yourself.

None of us have all the sunshine to ourselves, nor the rain, nor the storms, we share it with one another. If only one got the sun to shine on them, it would burn them up, the rain would drown them, and the storm beat them into the ground.

And so this lovely sunny morning, I thank all those who were so kind as to share with me the things that gave them pleasure, so that I also had pleasure.

George Herbert tells us this about a Grateful Heart:

"Thou that has given so much to me,
Give one thing more, a grateful heart;
Not thankful just when it pleaseth me,
As if Thy blessings had spare days;
But such a heart whose pulse may be Thy praise."

So, again thanking all these for their kindness, and hoping to still continue to be of help and comfort, Your Friend, ROBERTA.

'Y' Plans Fine Season's Program

The educational committee of the Y.W.C.A. has outlined a most interesting program for the fall and winter.

A special feature, starting October 19 and continuing for 10 days, will be the handicraft school, arranged in co-operation with the Community Welfare Council of Ontario, when instruction will be given in weaving, pewter, leather, pottery, rug hooking, puppetry, soap carving and making of toys. There will be classes in the mornings and early afternoons; classes for children after school, and classes for business girls in the evenings. Already a number of groups from factories, stores and churches have shown an appreciation of this opportunity.

On November third, Miss Hesson of the C.P.R. will show pictures and lecture on "Through Europe Today."

Elocution lessons are a new item on the educational program this season. Miss Gwen Parnell will teach both seniors and juniors. A number have enquired each season for lessons in expression, and the Y.W.C.A. is pleased to have Miss Parnell on its educational staff.

The reading club, which was a new group last year, will meet Wednesday evenings, starting in November. A special committee from the club is already at work planning the program of reading for the season.

Nov. 13 and 19 is world fellowship week, when a special program is being planned, which will include a speaker for one of the evenings.

The St. John's Ambulance first aid course is already meeting each Wednesday evening.

If sufficient register, a course is to be given in personality, charm and etiquette. This course has been very popular in the Toronto Y.W.C.A., and has included also studies on "Happy Marriages" and "Happy Homes."

The leadership training course and the Red Cross home nursing classes will commence in January, as will also the household workers' course, which has been helpful in training many girls and in helping them secure better positions. Those who have taken the course are organizing into a club and planning a program of cooking, sewing, handicraft, etc.

Handling Our Wheat Crop

The Examiner has received several inquiries dealing with the selling of Canadian wheat. They centred around several points as a rule—what does the Western farmer actually get for his wheat when the price is fixed at 80 cents—what does it cost to ship wheat to the head of the lakes, and who pays for it. There was also another question as to how much it cost to place the grain on the European market and who paid for that.

Through the courtesy of Hon. W. D. Eunled, Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Examiner has received a report prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics which gives a comprehensive answer to most of these questions. This paper had asked for a figure at a central point in Alberta and another in Saskatchewan as a basis on which to work, so Calgary and Regina were selected by the Ottawa Bureau.

Freight charges from Regina to Fort William are 20 cents per 100 pounds, or 12 cents a bushel; handling charges at country elevators, including insurance against loss by fire and storage for 15 days, official inward inspection, weighing and registration fees, and selling to an exporter on the Winnipeg market, amount to 3.5 cents per bushel. This leaves for the farmer at the 80 cent price, about 64.5 cents per bushel for wheat grading No. 1 hard.

Freight rates from Calgary to Fort William are 26 cents per 100 pounds or 15.6 cents per bushel. The other charges referred to above are virtually the same, which would leave the farmer 60.9 cents for No. 1 Hard.

If the grower delivered wheat he would be paid according to the grade. The 80-cent. price would cover only the best. We could not secure the figure showing the drop in price as the grade decreased in the operation of the Wheat Board, but the latest quotations in the cash market at Winnipeg reveal these variations, the figures being given to the nearest quotations minus the decimals:

No. 1 Hard	63	No. 4	Northern	50
No. 1	Northern	63	No. 5	wheat	43
No. 2	Northern	59	No. 6	wheat	36
No. 3	Northern	57	Feed		35

So the farmer who delivered grain quite well below the top trade might be receiving nothing more for it in actual cash than 40 cents per bushel.

The next question is getting the wheat from Fort William and Port Arthur to shipping points in the east and then across the ocean. There are certain costs which have to be met in the elevators at the head of the lakes and these amount to 1.5 cents per bushel and are absorbed by the Wheat Board. The lake freight rate to Montreal is 7.5 cents per bushel, and that charge also goes to the Wheat Board. The ocean freight rate including insurance to a British port such as Liverpool is 7.65 cents per bushel, and that makes a total of 16.65 cents from Fort William to Liverpool and it is paid by the Wheat Board. Therefore at the 80-cent price the wheat would have to be sold in Liverpool at 96.65 cents per bushel to come out even, but wheat has been selling there around 81 cents, meaning a loss on each bushel sold of 15.65 cents.

A study of these figures indicates that the Western wheat crop must place a deal of money in circulation for transportation and elevator charges. A survey of the above charges, regardless of whether they are paid by the farmer or the Wheat Board shows this:

Freight Calgary to Fort William	15.6
Elevator, insurance, etc.	3.5
Total Western costs	19.1
Loading at Ft. William	1.5
Lake rate to Montreal	7.5
Rate to Liverpool	7.65
Total Ft. Wm. to Liverpool	16.65
Western charges	19.1
Total transportation	35.75

So every bushel of wheat which leaves Calgary for Liverpool calls for an expenditure of 35 3-4 cents, but that figure would be slightly less for points closer to Fort William. For the purpose of easy reckoning we will use a figure of 30 cents. If there is a crop of only 250,000,000 bushels to be moved it means an expenditure of $75,000,000 for rail, lake and ocean transportation and elevator and insurance costs. It seems to be an open question as to how much the Western farmers are making for themselves, but they are stirring up business for others. Meantime the Wheat Board is losing on every bushel sold.

Smell Another Plot

If there is no trouble in Europe, then there are plenty of folk who seem bent on creating it. They are not satisfied unless they have some new plot, and this time it centres in Alsace-Lorraine, two provinces which voted themselves into France under terms of the treaty of Versailles. Hitler in several of his recent addresses said as plainly as any man could that he had no desire to again have this territory allied with Germany.

But the commotion has started. The Chamber of Commerce of Strasbourg, principal city of Alsace-Lorraine, and almost immediately on the German border line, forwarded a resolution asking that the French government negotiate a treaty of commercial accord with Germany. And that is interpreted as meaning that there is a move on to create a second Sudetenland out of Alsace-Lorraine because some 2,000,000 citizens, nominally French, speak a German dialect.

It is difficult for people living in that district to convince any person that there is no deep plot involved because they want to carry on business with the Germans who are distant from them to the extent of only a few miles. So it is that Paris, easily excited and particularly voluble when in that condition, debates about the coming trouble in Alsace-Lorraine and spokesmen appear to be certain Hitler is merely biding his time until he desires to reach out and again occupy that land which is where France meets the south-western corner of Germany.

These two provinces were taken from France by Germany in the war of 1871, and then came back again to France as a result of the outcome of the war of 1914-18. In the treaty of 1871 there was a provision which said that those who desired to remain under French rule might move out of the country and enter France, and an exodus of some 60,000 persons resulted. Germany did put on considerable pressure following 1871 and French names were forbidden for children or for firms in business, and a determined effort was made to cause the University of Strasbourg to become intensely German. By 1910 ninety per cent. of the residents of Alsace-Lorraine spoke German and 10 per cent. used French.

Hitler says he does not want the territory, but the business people there say they want some sort of a trading agreement with Germany. That seems a reasonable enough suggestion, but Paris in its present mood can see in the suggestion nothing but a plot to have the provinces once more included in the German nation.

Two Prices For Coal

It may seem strange to have the president of the Toronto Retail Fuel Dealers' Association declaring he would welcome the creation of a fuel board to regulate the business. We have heard of a good many men in business whose one desire is that the goernment shall simply leave them alone. It is different in this case.

We learn the chief trouble is that there are so many unfair practices in the business, and they are unfair to the consumer as much as to the retailer. One example: A group of men working in the same place of business come together and decide to pool their winter coal orders, and in the end they find they have an order to place for several hundred tons of coal. The custom is to have some one make the rounds and find where he can place this business to the best advantage, and the result is that these people in the pooled business secure their coal at a lower price than others who go out and place their orders as individuals. So there are two prices created right there—one for the man who is in the pool and a higher price for the one who is not.

This might appear to be a defect which the dealers themselves ought to correct but it is reported the plan is in operation now as formerly. And it is not a fair one.

A Credit To His Land

Malik Sir Firozkhan Noon is High Commissioner for India in Great Britain and Ireland, and was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws at the University of Toronto. It is customary for those to whom such preference is shown to make an address. In this case people might have allowed a certain latitude for imperfect English had the guest answered in our tongue. But this Noon gentleman spoke in Urudu, which to him was an acquired language, after which he spoke in Persian, which is an accomplishment, and later in English which he had studied at Oxford instead of having to spend time on Greek.

When the High Commissioner got around to English he said something which was rich in simplicity and frank in hope. Like this: "The youth of the world need particular attention if the world is to be saved from atheism and spiritual death. May the university long be an instrument to draw men to God. May we all learn the great truth that happiness lies in sacrifice and in making others happy."

If Malik Sir Firozkhan Noon is a fair example of the type of learned and wholesome men which Britain is aiding to develop in India then his presence in this country and the ideas to which he gave such ample utterance are notable testimonies to a cultural standard for which no apologies need be made.

Their Income Is Large

E. C. Segar, creator of the comic strip "Popeye the Sailor" is dead at his home in California. Just 44 years old. His condition has been such that he has done no drawing himself during the present year.

When a young man Segar worked with his father and his occupation was the painting of houses, but he wanted to draw pictures. When he submitted his first material to a newspaper it was refused as being of no value. Segar then invested $20 in a correspondence course. It was when the idea of his "Popeye" character was found that he started to go ahead and he was at the time of his death reputed to be worth over $1,000,000.

The men who originate characters in comic strips generally employ a staff of artists after they get the work under way. Sidney Smith started "the Gumps" and he died in 1935 but the strip goes on. The income of some of those who have managed to put a popular strip on the market is large; they sell to hundreds of newspapers and it is by far the most lucrative business in connection with the newspaper world of today.

He Had His Day

Tom Longboat is now 51 years of age and he helps with the work of cleaning the streets in Toronto. That's necessary and useful work but of course no one pays much attention to him now.

It must be all of 30 years ago when Tom Longboat, Onondaga Indian, ran himself into fame. He first took the Hamilton marathon. He came out first in the Boston Marathon in 1907. Time was when admirers used to write to him and he received scores of letters and offers each day. There was once a reception for him in Toronto where thousands lined the route of the parade and cheered for him. It is recorded that some firm started making a cigar named after him.

Yes, Tom Longboat was riding high then. He went to the front in the years of war and probably few know he is cleaning streets in Toronto today. Perhaps the same streets over which he passed years ago when he was the guest of honor at the head of the parade. Perhaps like a good many others he has had occasion to find that fame is rather a fickle thing.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The fishing schooner race was called off one day because there was no wind. Come to think of it that should pass anywhere as a perfectly good reason.

Men who are familiar with such matters report a sun spot 130,000 miles long, but they still persist in referring to it as a "spot."

Style experts say a woman over 40 should wear softer colors. That's hard as some of them feel then it's time to turn on a little added dazzlement.

Wasps invaded a school room in St. Catharines and drove the pupils out, and the sad part is that none of the scholars offered to stay and take a chance of getting stung.

Man in Montreal was fined $100 for illegally practising as a lawyer. And we noticed only a few weeks ago that three lawyers had been banned for illegal practices.

Speaker from United States says Canada and United States owe a great debt to the men who made Magna Carta possible. If our debt stopped there we'd be in fairly good shape.

Woman in Auburn was so disturbed about the murder of her husband that she offered a generous reward for the finding of the murderer. Response was rapid as next day police arrested the woman.

Retired sea captain was married early in the year, but his wife divorced him the other day because he was spending all her savings. Surely we are not arriving at the point where there is anything wrong with a wife supporting her husband!

Peterborough is not the only city which has spent its relief money for the year too soon. Niagara Falls set aside $57,000 and at the end of September had but $7,000 left. Brantford has also had a conference with authorities at Toronto on the same question.

TROUBLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake was bald for years, and all his hair had stripped its gears, his dome was shiny too; Jake used to sing a doleful tune, that he'd gone bald by far too soon, in spite of all he'd do.

¶ For Jake had rubbed and rubbed some more, he'd worn a spot upon the floor, before the looking glass; he must have used whole quarts of dope, and dried up his supply of hope, that he might grow some grass.

¶ Jake went away two weeks ago, and no one knew where he might go, for not a word he said; but he came back the other day, and now he has a crop of hay, that fastens on his head.

¶ Jake's wig has curls upon it now, the front drapes down across his brow, nor is it short and tame; and people pass him on the street, and fail to holler when they meet, he doesn't look the same.

¶ That's not your cousin Jake they'd say, when I was there the other day, they only stop and stare; the man we knew they all explain, had a shiny dome above his brain, and not a wisp of hair.

¶ My Cousin Jake is vexed I know, he feels that he puts on a show, and chants his hymn of hate; the trouble's plain as it can be, he had to first explain to me—I am your Cousin Jake.

War Has United People of China

FIRST AS TO THE war in China. This war is now dragging into the fourth month over a year. When it was started the Japanese warlords had not the slightest doubt that China would collapse with the first blow as it has in the past. It was a shock when they discovered the fighting strength of the Chinese and the new national spirit which possessed the nation. The leaders in China are largely young men who have been educated in Great Britain and the United States. They brought back to China modern ideas and aimed to establish a new unified state. Under General Chiang Kai-Shek and his brilliant American-educated wife, there was developing a national spirit when war broke out. The cruel bombardment by the Japanese of great Chinese cities and the horror of their methods of warfare has tended to consolidate China. The warring factions have drawn together, writes Arthur Ford in the London Free Press. Communists and anti-Communists have made peace. So Japan to its amazement has found itself facing a determined China which refuses to admit defeat.

The Chinese authorities knew that war was likely to come and had made preparations long in advance. Their advisers were largely German. They planned a gradual retreat into the interior and a continuance of guerrilla warfare. This strategy has been followed to the letter. With the fall of Shanghai the Chinese retreated to Nanking. When Nanking was captured the seat of government was set up at Hankow. Suchow next fell and the Japanese hoped this would end the war. However, the Chinese only became more resolute and the Japanese to save their prestige had to hasten their drive to Hankow. Continuous rains and the destruction of the Yellow River embankments held up the advance. But the Japanese persisted and the likelihood is that Hankow will fall in the near future.

However, this will not end the war. The Chinese have already moved their headquarters 600 miles further into the interior to Chungking. They will withdraw into the interior and continue their guerrilla warfare. It will not be the end, but only the beginning. The latest move of the Japanese is to invade Southern China in order to capture Canton and cut off the Chinese from their source of armaments. This will probably succeed and it will be a severe blow to China, but it will not be vital. It may prove as embarrassing to the British as the Chinese. Honk Kong is across the bay from Canton and it means that British trade in munitions will be strangled. It is Japan's first defiance of British interests.

MYSTERY OF THE SEA.

(London Times)

THE COMMITTEE of Lloyd's have been in no hurry to post the German trainin gship Admiral Karpfanger as missing. It was not till last week that this formality followed the official posting of the vessel for inquiry a week before. These two steps are the usual prelude to the settlement of insurance claims and, but for regard for the distress of the relatives of the ship's company, the action might well have been taken earlier.

The Admiral Karpfanger, a steel four-masted barge of 2,800 tons, formerly the fast Finnish vessel L'Avenir, sailed from South Australia on February 8 for Europe with grain, and no word has come from her since she was in wireless communication with Norddeich on March 12.

The ship's company numbered 60, which happens to be just the same as that of the Danish training ship Kobenhaven, a steel, five-masted barque with an auxiliary oil engine, which disappeared 10 years ago while bound from Buenos Aires for Australia. The number of cadets in the Danish vessel was 45, which corresponds with the number carried in the German vessel this year. There was the same mystery in both cases.

MARKET FOR RODENTS.

(London Observer)

TOKYO—RATS AND mice are ordinarily thought of in Japan, as elsewhere, as unmitigated pests.

But in the present period, when substitute material are being sought on every side, they have been included in the general scheme of "commodity mobilization".

Their skins, it is asserted, can be tanned and used as material for knapsacks, brief cases, vests, lining of coats and other articles which are usually made out of more valuable materials.

The market for dead cats and dogs is rising for the same reason, the value of their skins.

The prices of the various animals are reported as follows: Five to seven yen (six to eight shillings) for a dog, one yen for a cat, ten sen for a rat, and five sen for a mouse.

GOVERNMENT TAXES.

(Kansas City Star)

PEOPLE WHO WONDER why business doesn't go ahead and employ more workers might not find a single ready answer to their question, yet they should be interested in a report just made by the National Association of Cost Accountants.

This organization became curious about the portion of industrial company income paid out in taxes. It found that while all forms of government took one-fourth of the total national income last year, the amount withdrawn from industrial income was one-third. That was taken from net income. It was equal to 18.5 per cent. of total direct payrolls.

DIFFERENT NOW

(Kitchener Record)

Speaking to the Police Association of Ontario, Professor L. Joslyn Rogers said: "I remember when I was a child we used to run when we saw a policeman coming. That is not true of children today." Due to traffic conditions, youngsters get to realize that the policeman, representing the law, affords protection. It is better that the kiddies grow up with that attitude.

• 170,000 Jews Caught In Vienna

THE JEWS OF Austria have been doomed to extermination or expulsion, but, before either fate overtakes them, they must submit to pauperization and degradation. All those employed in any kind of official or public position, whether at universities, law courts, schools or hospitals, have been dismissed. Only those doctors who are absolutely indispensable have been retained on the insurance panels; pharmacists have been warned that they must transfer their businesses to "Aryans;" and lawyers are afraid to appear in the courts. Theaters and concert-halls, cinemas and cabarets, newspaper offices and publishing houses, have been "purged," for culture in Austria is now to become purely "Aryan." All non-Jewish firms have discharged their Jewish employees, numbering tens of thousands, though some of those who could not be replaced have been reinstated. All large Jewish industrial establishments and shops have been ordered to employ nazi "commissars," who control the incoming correspondence and all money affairs; and many business enterprises have already, under compulsion, been transferred to "Aryans." Every non-Jewish shop displays a swastika and a printed notice with the words "Aryan business" or "German-Aryan business," while all Jewish shops, and cafes too, are obstructed by pickets (sometimes Jews, and often even the Jewish proprietor of the shop) holding placards with the wording "Don't buy from Jews!"

No wonder that hundreds of them have sought refuge in suicide, while the number of supposed suicides that were really murders will never be known. Pressure is being brought to bear upon Christians to divorce their Jewish husbands or wives, and countless tragedies are occurring daily. As in Germany, the Jews are stigmatized as a pest. They are forbidden to visit the public baths in Vienna, they must no longer walk in the Prater, and if they venture to enter a cafe, whose windows are besmeared with the word "Jude," they risk being ordered by storm troopers to scrub the floor or wash the walls.

The German Government wish the Jews to evacuate Austria, and especially Vienna, within four years. The Jews will require no persuasion to leave; indeed, they would all flee at once from the nazi plague. But whither and how? For weeks past dozens of consulates have been besieged daily by crowds of Jews anxious to obtain visas for other countries—at least 80,000 applications have already been made. But the Government at present will not allow any Jews to leave. It has enacted a decree requiring all Jews in Greater Germany to register all their property above the value of 5,000 marks so that "the property subject to the special declaration shall be used in harmony with the needs of the German economy." That is, the Jews will be fleeced before they can quit the country.

According to the census of 1934 there were 191,000 Jews in Austria. There are now about 185,000 of whom 170,000 are in Vienna. They have for years been a dying community, for in 1923 there were over 200,000 in Vienna alone. A high death-rate, a low birth-rate, increasing unemployment, growing poverty, and a steady emigration, have produced their effect. Before the nazi invasion there were 25,000 Jews in Vienna unemployed and about 60,000 dependent on the Board of the Community, which spent 40 per cent. of it budget upon their relief. Over half of the Jews engaged in trade and one-fifth in the liberal professions and similar vocations. Owing to their practically total exclusion from the Government and municipal services, their intellectual class was largely attracted to the liberal professions, in which they numbered 1,300 lawyers and 1,500 doctors.

The Jews of Austria have deserved a better fate, for they have served their country well and loyally. For the past two hundred years they have helped to create its culture, to further its economic development, to advance its fame. Although less than 3 per cent. of the population they have received four of the eight Nobel prizes awarded to Austrians. They have made Vienna celebrated for its school of medicine. They have given to philosophy the genius of Freud, to literature Schnitzler and Stefan Zweig, to music Mahler and Bruno Walter, to the theater Max Reinhardt and Hugo von Hoffmansthal. They developed the Vienna press, and were among the leading publishers. They were also pioneers in the economic sphere, for they introduced a number of leading industries, built the first railway, and initiated transport by steamships on the Danube.

But all their manifold labors have been in vain.

• Law Says They Can't Marry

THE STRANGE case of William Shipway, Ailsa Craig councillor, who wants to marry his stepdaughter who is of no blood relation, and cannot under Canadian law, is not without precedent, although legal men felt the law was wrong.

"I had just such a case when I was on the trial bench, and I had to tell the man he had no right to marry his wife's daughter," said Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell.

Shipway, 40 years old, appeared in County Court at London, Ont., charged under the morality section of the Criminal Code. Because of the law, Shipway was forbidden to marry the girl of his choice, though she was of age and no blood relation to him. Unable to wed they lived together, anyway, and on Sept. 26 a child was born.

Shipway married a widow several years ago, who since has died, and the girl in the case is the widow's daughter by her first husband. When Shipway and the girl, who is 20, wanted to wed, they found the law would not allow a man to marry his deceased wife's child. They told the court they had sought also to marry in the States, but there, too, the law would not permit. Shipway was allowed suspended sentence to permit efforts to be made to carry the case further.

Legal men, with the exception of Mr. Justice Riddell, said they had not known there was such a law, and at any rate did not believe it should exist.

"Did you think it fair?" Mr. Justice Riddell was asked.

"I told the man I thought it wrong, absurd, foolish," he replied.

"Should it be changed?"

"I don't make the law; I just declare it—and sometimes very fiercely," he chuckled.

"I haven't the foggiest notion why he shouldn't marry the girl," said Peter White, K.C. "If the girl is no blood relation, I cannot see why not. It's a weird thing."

"I would say that if there is no blood connection, I cannot understand why they should not marry," said a justice of the appeal court. "Yes, I certainly think if there is such a law—I haven't read that statute recently — it should be changed."

POLITENESS.

(The New Yorker)

FOR THEIR ANNUAL end-of-vacation treat, two little girls we know asked their mother to take them to a matinee at the Music Hall and after that to tea at their favorite restaurant, the Automat.

They found the Automat crowded, but finally managed to get three seats at a large table, where they teaed in company with several amiable Sixth Avenue types.

"Did you see that awfully polite man at our table, Mummy?" one of the daughters exclaimed when they were safely out on the street. No, Mummy said rather faintly, she hadn't; which man? Her child spoke in the radiant tone of one only recently initiated into the social graces of the great world. "The man that tipped his hat when I passed him the chili sauce", she said.

TRAIN AND PLANE.

(B.H. in Victoria Times)

THE OTHER DAY I kept abreast of a heavy grain train down the Fraser Canyon for miles and miles, so close that I could see the tobacco glow in the bowl of the engineer's pipe, and I found that I wished then, as intensely as when I was seven years old, that I was a locomotive engineer, with a giant of steam under me. In time, I dare say, the airplane may acquire a glamour like that, but not for many years. We may use it but we shall never love it as we love a train. An airplane is a new thing, an upstart. A train was our friend in boyhood, and the sound of its whistle will always remain in our hearts.

NEIGHBORS.

(Detroit Free Press)

A LETTER TO THE editor suggests that it would be neighborly if persons with debris to burn in their back yards would not start their "smudges" on Monday, when other people's washing is on the line.

And it would also be neighborly if owners of vacant lots would cut their weeds and not allow them to go to seed and next year contaminate adjacent gardens and lawns.

The course of urban life would run more smoothly, with fewer dark looks or bitter words over back fences, if everyone concerned was less selfish and gave a little more thought to the comfort and convenience of those who live next door or even a few doors away.

WHO THE STRAIN IS ON.

(Timmins Press).

Premier Hepburn has launched a commission to survey mental hospitals in Ontario. Of course, the members of the commission would be crazy not to take the jobs thus created. They'll call for a nice salary and expenses per diem. It certainly seems that the taxpayer can stand up under quite a strain before he breaks—mentally— and financially.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AFTER THIS I BEHOLD, and lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; and cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb. . . .

And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them.

They shall hunger no more, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. Rev. vii, 9, 10, 13-17.

IN THE WRONG PLACE.

(New York Sun)

THE DAUGHTER OF a jailer in North Carolina found herself in jail after acknowledging that she had assisted the escape of two prisoners. One of these apparently stood in some risk of a death penalty. The young woman is quoted as saying she just couldn't stand the thought that such a nice young man should perish in a gas chamber. He promised her faithfully, she said, that he would go straight and keep out of trouble hereafter. The escaped prisoners are suspected of new crimes after they got out, including the murder of a man shot when resisting highway robbery.

This jailer's daughter was in the wrong place. She seems to possess some of the more obvious qualifications for a nice job on a United States parole board.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE

All honor to the brave, who wield
In freedom's cause, the battle blade,
And fearless stand, for sacred right,
Against aggression, powers arrayed.

A laurel wreath the warrior's mead,
His grateful country's proud acclaim,
In deathless characters inscribed,
His name on history's roll of fame.

And shall not equal honors be,
His, who, by reason's gentle word,
Saved, not his native land alone,
But the world from the unsheathed sword.

So hurrah, hurrah, for Chamberlain,
Old England's peace Apostle, son,
Who, when dark gathering war clouds lowered,
Brought peace, and world wide blessings won.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

A Bit of Nonsense

Marked Man

Grumpy Old Gent (to urchin who is pushing his way into queue outside picture house)—Here, my lad, where do you think you're going? Go back to the end of the queue.

Urchin—But I was in here already. I only went out to buy some sweets.

Old Gent—And how do you know you've come back to the right place?

Urchin—Because I chalked a big white cross on your back to mark my place!

Don't Mention It

An Aberdonian was getting married. After the ceremony was over the best man enquired: "I suppose you gave the minister a fee?"

"Oh, yes," said the cautious Benedict. "I gave him sixpence."

"And what did the minister say?" asked the surprised best man.

"Nothing at all. He just looked at the bride and gave me threepence back."

AFRAID TO MARRY

HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Judy's father has gone west with her stepmother while her own mother, remarried, is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count. Judy observes that Ronald, one of the many guests at the Boland estate, takes an unusual interest in Abbey's affairs. Judy is present when the Count, in the Boland library, is about to extract a book from the rows of imitations there. Then Abbey appears, much embarrassed. Ronald phones Judy asking her to locate Abbey for him, stressing its importance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 23

JUDY SAT AT THE telephone table in her low, green and white room, pansy brown eyes hurt and bewildered, a slim hand holding the telephone as though the instrument must become animate and explain the call, if the caller wouldn't.

"I'll hunt for Miss Boland," she said at last. "Perhaps she is riding or skating. There are lots of people here, and it's gay."

It's so gay it makes my head ache, Ronald, she wanted to say. People keep saying brittle words that crack, and laughing brittle laughter that is hollow. I don't like it here. I want to go away.

"Listen very carefully, Judy," Ronald was saying, as though she were a child. "When you get Abbey, ask her to call me at one. Either here or at my apartment. It's terrifically important. I must see her, or at least talk to her."

"I'll find her," Judy promised.

I'll find her and give her your message, and all the time I'll wonder and wonder why you have grown fond of Abbey . . . I'll be an obedient secretary, Ronald, but one of these days very soon I'll be leaving here. Then it won't be necessary for me to carry your messages to another girl. We Rogers' have our pride just as you have it in your mountains. I don't want to care for you—but I do.

She felt better when she had admitted the fact. Before, it had been crowding against the doorway of her mind, striving to come out. Now she had unlatched the gate, and here it was. It wouldn't hurt so much.

Judy upbraided herself for fickleness. How could she have loved Craig so short a time before, and now feel swift bells ringing when she saw a bright head flung back, and lips that quirked into a teasing smile? Wasn't she fickle, as fickle as those whom she had condemned because marriage was such a transient part of their lives? Yet she knew that there was a difference in the two loves.

Craig had been a habit, and the habit had made the affection she bore him a routine. There had been love there, but fear had restrained it. If the love had been greater it would not have been so. Not once had she wanted to flee with Craig to some far corner of a sea, or a cliff on the side of the mountain. But she would have laughed at storms, warmed at hillside fires, if Ronald were there.

She knew it in a flash so blinding that it left her breathless, as though she had been walking on an upward road too long.

Once she had thought Ronald liked her. That was before she had seen him with Abbey.

Then Judy consoled herself with another line of reasoning. If Ronald had cared for her, wasn't this shifting of his affections added proof that love had its day and died? Maybe there was not such a thing as a clean, strong fire that burned consistently. Maybe there were just a lot of little fires, and pretty soon the human heart held piles of little ashes where love had been.

That had been her fear for the years at boarding school. It had checked her when she might have married Craig. Now it strengthened her when her heart was bruised by Ronald's attention to Abbey.

She found Abbey down in the swimming pool. The pool was a long one, and its waters were the green of its tiled basin. People in gay swim suits were frolicking there. Abbey was stretched lazily under a sun lamp. When Judy repeated the message, she sat up quickly.

"Is that all he said?"

"Yes, that's all."

"Call him for me, right away, will you, Miss Rogers? I'll take the call in the booth down here."

So Judy got the law offices, heard Miss Martin's voice announce that she would summon Mr. Birrell, and a moment later heard his voice.

"Just a moment, Ronald," she explained calmly. "I have Miss Boland for you."

The conversation was a long one. Once Judy saw Abbey's gesture with a white hand as though the man must catch the emphasis of her words. When she came out, she called to Judy:

"Mr. Birrell is coming out on the next train. Will you ask the housekeeper to prepare the south guest room?"

A big party was scheduled at the estate for Christmas Eve. In some way this was connected with Ronald's insistence that he must talk to Abbey, Judy decided. A time or two that evening, when the guests were lounging carelessly around the long rooms where open wood fires burned cheerfully, Judy overheard a few words of conversation. She noted, too, that Abbey was careful to make everything casual — as though some business matter, not important but well to have out of the way, had brought him. With this party, the formal entertaining for the coming nuptials would be on.

Judy wondered if Ronald was trying to prevent Abbey from proceeding further with her wedding plans. She paused, quiet as a carved statue, at a new thought. The dowry had to be arranged. Of course! Ronald was objecting, for he knew when that step was taken the marriage was almost irrevocable, at least until such time as the two principals decided they had had enough of matrimony with each other.

A curious friendship had been developing between Count Phillippe and Judy. She recognized his handsomeness, his wit, his humor which laughed at everyone, himself most of all. She did not approve of him in any way, but she found him interesting and likable. Mrs. Bedford would have made him a more acceptable wife than Abbey would, Judy thought. The widow understood the rules by which he lived, and could match them. Abbey, for all her self-confidence and arrogance could not meet them.

Thus, it happened that Judy and Count Phillippe talked gaily together, now and then. Judy was certain that he enjoyed her society more than that of the heiress, possibly because she did not ask anything of him. He could relax with her, not watching for signs of withdrawal or anger.

That was the situation on the night that Ronald came so hastily from the city. The guests went to bed along about midnight. Judy stirred restlessly, trying to sleep. Ronald was under the same roof. That was good. Snow drifted against the windows. A dog barked. It barked again. It growled. Then there was a vast white stillness. It was too still. Judy got up, wrapped a warm dark blue velvet negligee around her, slipped her feet into beaded moccasins, and stepped through a window to the balcony on which her room opened. This was better. The sky was unusually bright to be so heavy with snow clouds. The sound was rough. A lighthouse blinked its lantern like a wicked red eye in the distance.

Judy leaned against a post, not thinking, not wondering. Because she was so silent the man who was creeping along the balcony did not know that she was there until he was almost upon her. He paused just as the brown eyes looked up.

"Hands up!" It was a throaty whisper.

Judy held them up. She wasn't as frightened as she imagined such a situation would cause her to be. The man was a prowler, doubtlessly, and would swing down the lattice in a moment.

The man advanced a step instead. "You're the Boland dame?" he asked.

Man Is Rescued From Pickpockets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 17.—A man living near Roseneath was the near victim of a pair of pickpockets, when he became intoxicated and fell asleep on the edge of a road near the outskirts of the village here Sunday. He was known to be carrying a sum of money and James Ryder, Hastings, said he had suspected a pair were watching his actions and following him.

When Ryder picked him up the pair were hovering nearby. He was brought into the village and put to bed. The suspected pick-pockets are believed to have taken $15 from the man earlier in the day but he still had a greater sum in his pockets when found. The suspects are part of a show troupe following the fall fairs.

A Meter-Test

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct 17—(CP)—Grand Rapids today began a 90-day test of 750 parking meters, expected to yield $100 a day in civic revenues. The meters line most downtown streets and are designed to mark hour or half-hour parking periods, depending on the zone.

Motorists must drop a nickel into the machine when he parks his car. Once the car is parked and the coin deposited, the machine's arm drops. At the end of the stipulated period, if another coin is not deposited, the arm stands up, and if the car isn't moved, a policeman will issue a summons.

Espionage Trial Opens In New York

Regarded as one of the most important witnesses in what has been termed the "greatest spy trial in the U.S., Senta de Wanger was closely guarded by Federal detectives as the trial against four members of the alleged espionage ring opened in New York. Only four of the 18 persons indicted on charges of conspiring to transmit army, navy and air corps secrets to Germany face the jury, the rest having fled the country. Guenther Rumrich, one of the defendants, pleaded guilty to the charges as the trial opened and faces a possible sentence of 20 years in prison.

Societies Meet At Springville

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 17. — The Springville W.M.S. met for its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) Brown on Wednesday.

Mrs. A Hunter presided and the meeting opened with the singing of a hymn. The Scripture lesson was taken from Luke 17. Mrs. Hunter chose the topic "Work" for the devotional period and introduced this by reading the parable of the talents.

A vote of appreciation was voiced to the junior girls who so ably did the serving for the September 'at home.'

It was decided to ask the Fairmount W.M.S. to be guests for the November meeting and to ask Mrs. Morton, the Presbyterial W. M. S. president to be the speaker for that occasion. Mrs. J. Gandy very kindly offered her home for the meeting and the lunch committee will consist of Mesdames Shaw, Staples, Whitfield and Whittington, and Miss J. Schaeffer.

The ladies were delighted to hear that Rev. M. C. Parr had offered to give his illustrated address on his European trip, at Springville, and the president is to make arrangements that will be convenient for him.

Mrs. Graney, the peace secretary, read a very suitable poem, entitled, "What Makes a Country Great?"

Miss J. Schaeffer gave a brief address on "Why I Am a Member of the W.M.S."

The Women's Association then held a meeting. It was decided to join with the Young People's Society on Friday evening, October 28. At that time, Miss Jean Fairburn, who has recently returned from two months' motoring through Western Canada, will give an address on her trip.

The sending of a bale to the west was then discussed. As no definite appeal from there was known of, it was decided to leave it over till a later date.

Final arrangements for the fowl dinner were made and the committees appointed.

Mrs. L. Whittington, the treasurer, was instructed to buy more flatware to supplement the supply on hand.

It was decided to have a pot luck dinner as soon as it could be arranged.

For Tuesday, October 18

Although this may be heralded as a day of great enterprise and high promise, judging by the lunar transits, there may be a condition of stress and strife, with sudden visitations that are likely to upset all calculations that are likely to upset calculasition may appear, bringing hazard to excellent prospects unless they are manipulated with much acumen as well as finesse. Superiors and those in authority may be consulted.

Those whose brithday it is may anticipate a year of some excellent opportunities for advancement, profit and expanding fortunes, with the definite support of employers, superiors or those in power. At the same time, there may be peculiar or unexpected propositions from strangers. These seem surrounded by jeopardy to all favorable enterprise unless managed with much tact, sagacity or strategy. Move slowly for safety.

A child born on this day may be adventurous, enterprising and ambitious, possibly with ideas too large for practical purposes. It may have over-expansive and exaggerated ideas of success in untrodden fields.

Bird-Loving Mouse

LINCOLN, Ill., Oct. 17 (A.P.). — Richard Steiner owns a mouse which evidently has a grand opera complex and an affinity for canaries. He captured the mouse after it had squeezed into his canary's cage and joined the bird in a duet. Confined now to a finely screened cage, the mouse continues its singing, disdaining all food except—bird seed.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"CLUCK-CLUCK," said the hen. "Don't come too close. I'm busy."

Knarf, the shadow-boy with the turned-about name, looked at her for a moment. "You don't look busy at all. You're just sitting down."

"Just the same, I'm busy."

"But what are you busy at?"

"I'm setting on eggs."

"What for?" Knarf asked.

"Cluck—you're very stupid. What does anybody set on eggs for?"

Knarf shook his head. "I don't know. I never set on eggs."

"You set on eggs to hatch them. Now go away and talk to someone else. I told you I'm busy."

Knarf Patient

Knarf, however, didn't go away. He just sat down and kept looking at Mrs. Hen.

"Cluck! What are you staying here for?"

"I'm waiting."

"Waiting for what?"

"Waiting for the eggs to hatch out."

"You're even more foolish than I thought. These eggs won't hatch out for a week."

"What takes them that long?"

"It's really a very short time when you come to think of it."

"But why do you have to keep sitting on them all that time?"

"I'm not sitting on them. I'm setting on them."

"What's the difference?"

"When you sit you just rest. When you set on eggs you well, you keep them warm. Eggs won't hatch unless they're kept warm."

"I'll keep them warm. Let me set on them."

"Cluck—you're very stupid."

"I should say not!"

"Why won't you let me set on them?"

Because They're Hers

"Because — cluck-cluck — they're my eggs and when they hatch out they're going to be my chicks. And because—cluck—when they hatch out, I want to march around the hen coop with all my chicks and call out to everybody: 'Cluck-cluck—look at my chicks! Look at them! I hatched them out myself! I'm their mother! Aren't they beautiful? And I'm the one who set on the eggs and hatched them out! I did it myself!' And, you see, I couldn't do that if I let you set on them, could I?"

And Knarf saw that she was right, and bade her a very pleasant good-morning, and didn't bother her any more.

U.S. Considers Making Atlantic Squadron Permanent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP). — The United States Navy's new "temporary" Atlantic squadron, some officials believe, may become a permanent though probably not a major sea force.

The unit was created last month and was more than doubled a week ago. It now consists of 38 warcraft.

Naval circles heard today it would be augmented further before the year's end by the Memphis and the Milwaukee, the remaining fleet battleforce cruisers. They are undergoing routine overhaul on the west coast.

Though the navy officially has emphasized that the squadron was designed to fill a temporary need, some senior officers have expressed the belief privately that the high command may find it expedient to continue an Atlantic squadron without undertaking creation of a separate fleet.

A fleet comparable to the main force in the Pacific, Congress was told this year, probably would cost $3,000,000,000.

Under the theory that the squadron may be made permanent, the seven cruisers and destroyers forming the original setup would proceed to the Pacific when the United States fleet returns west in May after its Atlantic war games.

By that time, however, other new warcraft will have come off the building ways. These would take places temporarily with the Atlantic squadron.

In the meantime the navy would have available an organized force in the Atlantic ready for an emergency. In the event of a European war, for instance, officers said, the new cruisers and destroyers would be available for convoy duty and other special missions.

"MEN AT WORK!"

The most cheerful sign on the road

"MEN AT WORK" is an encouraging, cheerful sign upon the highway.

It is the happiest sign on the business highway too.

Business enterprise, making wise use of banking service, is the mainspring of employment.

The contractor responsible for that "Men at Work" sign gets the job of building that stretch of highway by being the lowest responsible tenderer.

Not always does he have the ready money to buy all the materials, pay wages and build it out of his own resources. He goes to the bank and, having assets and a good reputation, he negotiates such advances as he may need.

He orders materials, sets men to work. As the job proceeds, engineers' certificates enable him to collect from those with whom he contracted, and the work goes on.

The highway finished, the bank is repaid. Such repayments enable the bank to supply credit to other responsible borrowers.

A manufacturer gets a large order, with an early time limit for delivery. With only a hundred men, his factory cannot turn out the articles within the time required. With more men he can do it—but he lacks sufficient cash.

Operating his factory, as a going concern, with a profitable order and having a reputation for integrity, he asks the bank to lend him what he needs to pay wages.

The bank makes him a loan. He takes on more men. They get wages. The goods are turned out, delivered and paid for. The manufacturer repays the bank with the agreed interest.

He has his profit and can spend some money developing new business to keep his men employed.

How does a bank make these advances — where does the money come from?

Banks, having branches throughout Canada, mobilize the surplus funds of millions of depositors, large and small, and, based upon them, make credit available throughout the country as may be required.

Millions of little sums represent the toil, production and lifetime savings of Canadians—your fellow-citizens.

Safeguarding these deposits is the bank's first care.

Deposits of $1,000 or less—most of them much less—are owned by 3,770,000 out of Canada's 4,084,000 savings depositors. The total of all bank savings deposits in Canada is nearly $1,584,000,000; the average savings deposit in a bank is only $387.

Wisely safeguarded by Canada's chartered banks these deposits furnish credit that keeps "men at work" when used by Canadian business and industry—producing new realizable wealth from Canada's great resources. The country and all its people benefit.

In the field of business deposits, out of an average of 660,000 "current" accounts, 596,000 amount to $1,000 or less.

Savings deposits are, primarily, the basis on which banks can make loans.

Only the confidence of the people and their willingness to leave their money on deposit, enable a bank to lend money and—at small profit-margin to itself—serve the community.

We have mentioned the contractor and the manufacturer. The same process stimulates employment throughout the whole fabric of production, industry and commerce.

Loans to agriculture and for marketing agricultural products totalled in 1937, $88,294,000—9.0 per cent. of all ordinary bank loans shown on the return to the Minister of Finance, October 31st, 1937.

Of this sum $57,490,000 went to farmers, cattlemen and fruit raisers and $30,804,000 to grain dealers, seed merchants and grain exporters.

Other bank loans went to municipalities and school districts; wholesalers, retailers, manufacturers of and dealers in lumber, pulp and other forest products; fishermen; fish packers and curers; public utilities including transportation companies; stockbrokers and bond dealers; provincial governments; mining men; churches, parishes; hospitals; and to charitable and religious institutions.

Canada's chartered banks defend and protect the safety of the funds of depositors—the millions of thrifty souls we have described, whose life-savings they entrust to their banks.

No Canadian depositor, through the world-shaking events of recent years, has had to fear for the safety of a single dollar lodged with Canada's chartered banks.

The funds of depositors are their own — not a pool from which everybody may draw at will for any and every new financial experiment.

Belmont Couple Honored On Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 17.—Celebrating forty years of wedded bliss, Mr. and Mrs. David Seabrook, pioneer Belmont couple, were honored by their family and friends Friday evening at their home. Assembling at the fine old homestead where Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook have lived ever since their marriage in 1898, the presentation of a substantial purse was made to them by Messrs. Leslie Whitney and Charles McCutcheon on behalf of their many friends and neighbors. A very lovely social time was spent, memories of years gone by being recalled by the older folk, while the younger members of the group enjoyed some games and dancing. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook were married on October 14, forty years ago by the Rev. Gibson of the Anglican Church, Norwood. Mrs. Seabrook, prior to her marriage was Flora Toms, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Toms of Belmont. Mr. Seabrook was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Seabrook of Asphodel and later of Havelock.

Living in a typical old-fashioned log home which was built a few years before their marriage, they have watched their two small acres of cleared land grow to over fifty. Mr. Seabrook in his 69th year still enjoys the ability to work his own farm. His wife attributes her excellent health to work. She enjoys reading, one of her favorite pleasures in her leisure moments.

Both animal lovers, they have two dogs, Barney a collie, and Gip a hound. They speak proudly also of their fine team of horses, which although both over 22 years old, still perform like colts.

Descended themselves from large families, they have ten children and seventeen grandchildren. Their seven children yet living, and all married are: Mrs. Charles Ellis, Mrs. Wilfred Ellis of Belmont; Mrs. Harry Toms, Mrs. Garnet Stevenson and Osborne of Havelock; Mrs. Harold Dunk of Campbellford, and Mrs. Albert Brunke of Kingston.

Warsaw Institute To Feed Plowmen

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 17.—There were a goodly number of ladies at the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. George Weller, was in the chair.

Full plans were made for the dinners and lunches to be served at the plowing match on Oct. 18th.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 8, when Lakefield and Hall's Glen branches and perhaps others are expected to be present. The W.I. convention in Toronto is set for Nov. 17-18-19.

Roll call for the day was "Something for which I am thankful."

Current events were given by Mrs. D. Miller. Mrs. T. Crowe, who had the program for the day, had arranged a very interesting clothes pin contest.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson was guest speaker. His subject was "Things for which we should give thanks."

In thanking Mr. Wilkinson, Mrs. Weller reminded the gathering that generally speaking we take what we can get as our due. She also spoke of making friends in Warsaw. She had come a perfect stranger fourteen years ago.

Mrs. George Taylor spoke of an Indian mother and baby who needs care. Mrs. Miller in speaking of the Indians said that the government is now definitely looking after their health and education.

A little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Payne on Oct. 13.

Mrs. K. Payne is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Payne.

Mr. Uriah Payne is very ill at his home.

Brave Heart, Strong Arm, Clear Head Needed In Youth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 17.—A strong arm, a clear head and a brave heart are the three things you must have if you would be successful in life Dr. Charles Barker told an audience of over four hundred school children Friday afternoon in an address delivered in the High Schol auditorium here.

If you would be healthy in years to come from the habit now of drinking ten or twelve glasses of water a day and never eat between your meals, or you'll pay for it with poor health in years to come. He urged the students to take ten minutes each morning for exercising the chest and abdomen. To do any kind of job whatever it be in school or in a profession after leaving school you must "learn how to think." To emphasize this Dr. Barker divided the people of the world into two groups. The larger one constituted those who did not think for themselves and just did enough work "to get by." The smaller group represented the people who were succeeding. There are many who graduate from schools and colleges and yet have not succeeded merely bcause they have always been content to do just enough work to get by on. The speaker quoted Thomas Huxley that great English writer who said the "chief purpose of education is to train your mind and will to do the work you have to do when it ought to be done whether you like it or not." He then proceeded to demonstrate how failure to concentrate resulted in wasted effort. The power to say no is the result of a brave heart. The ability to say no particularly to our friends when they ask us to do something which we know is wrong is one of the greatest assets to have.

Respect is Lost

Addressing himself to the girls he asserted that when they permitted the familiarities of necking and petting their boy friends lost some of their respect for them and reminded them that "it is you girls who pay the price if you get into trouble." "A girl is entitled to have boy friends and she should have them" but the speaker warned against the parking in automobiles after the show or dance which would inevitably lead to trouble. It was then a brave heart was required claimed Dr. Barker.

Addressed Rotary

A Rotarian for twenty-four years Dr. Barker addressed the club at a luncheon held at noon. President Harold B. Neal introduced the speaker. Prefacing his remarks on the subject "By-Products of Rotary Clubs" this lecturer quoted the late Thomas Edison who, when asked what he considered was his greatest achievement in life replied that it was "to have made a few honest-to-God friends."

"Rotary does that for a man better than any other organization on the face of the earth," he claimed. It makes the type of friendship that will stand behind you when you make fools of yourselves or when your back is to the wall, when hard luck has overtaken you. Giving as proof of this friendship fostered in Rotary clubs the fact that during the orgy of suicides during the depression which followed the market crash in '29 only one or two business men Rotarians throughout the whole of the United States and Canada took this way to escape their troubles. This, he stated, was due to the friendships developed by these men in Rotary which teaches them how to work together. The political social and religious cliques which are so much more manifest in the small town than the city, may be overcome by the influence of the club and its friendships.

Rotarian Harold Carr conveyed the thanks of the club to the speaker. Among the guests present at the luncheon were Rev. T. H. Floyd, Messrs. G. W. Lucy, George Ironside, W. Kingston, Walter Henson, J. A. Irwin, W. S. Wiggins, L. B. Glover, Cecil McLean, Harold Dunk, C. S. Haig, E. H. Greig, Ellis Darling and F. C. Bonnycastle.

Big Offering Of Apples Made On Farmers' Market Northern Spies $4.25 Barrel

Michaelmas daisies on Saturday's market completed the floral cycle of the seasons that began six months ago with the earliest blossoms from the woods, the hepaticas and trilliums of April and May.

With so much of the products of fields and orchards piled on the benches, almost on par with the quantity and variety of the Thanksgiving market a week ago, it may be irregular to give George Benton's daisies prominent mention in a summary of the sale of foodstuffs produced in the district. The explanation is that the flowers will soon be gone, and besides when you see them on the market in the midst of big cabbages and eggs and chickens they suggest a distracting touch of grace for the fundamental but unlovely natural function of eating.

Michaelmas daisies and bitter sweet on the Benton boards promised an attractive decoration for the dinner table. The daisies were fifteen cents a bunch and the bitter sweet twenty-five cents.

Presumably the Michaelmas daisies are the aster family. Their name indicates their English origin, for they come to bloom in the autumn about the time of the feast of St. Michael and All Angels on September 29, and continue into October in charming displays of delicate colors ranging from white through the rose pinks to pale blue. The wild asters along the country roads, the Michaelmas daisies growing to even bigger bushes in the gardens, and the dwarf asters are almost of identical floral design. They flourish on dry ground, and they are in full bloom when only a few vigorous survivors like the marigolds are their companions. The dwarf bushes grow to only a foot or thereabouts in height; they have quite a long blooming season, and they are available in many fine varieties.

Still Selling Corn

After all the corn that has been flowed through the market during the last two months, Henry Falls who lives on the highway south of Bailieboro sold evergreen Golden Bantam at 20 cents a dozen. Several growers reported that the tomato crop was "just about done". The price for these offerings of some late variety was 25 cents for six quart baskets.

It was another big apple market. Producers from farms along the city's border were competing with groups from fifty and sixty miles away, the Oshawa and Bowmanville district on the west and the Warkworth-Trenton apple axis on the east.

B. Isaac of Norham had an attractive load of McIntosh Reds, Spies, Talmans, and a hamper or two of Russian variety called Arabkoe, a cooking apple selling at 75 cents a bushel. "I had to search through the apple book before I could identify it," Mr. Isaac told the Examiner. "It is a hardy variety and was introduced for that reason." He was quoting Northern Spies at $4.25 a barrel, or from $1 to $1.50 a bushel; Talmans 35 cents a peck; McIntosh Reds $1.35 to $1.50 a hamper.

A. W. Kemp of Oshawa offered McIntoshes, Greenings and Talmans in six quart baskets, 25 cents the basket. The quantity was small, but the baskets were easy to carry away.

Other apples prices were Baxters $1 to $1.25 a hamper; and McIntosh 45 cents a peck to $1.50 a bushel.

Big Cabbage Range.

Mammoth and midget cabbages were cheek by jowl. Big, buxom Savoys that would fill a bucket for ten cents each, and the miniature Brussels Sprouts 10 cents a quart, and two quarts for fifteen cents.

And likewise in the onion family more of nuture's inequality; the large sweet Spanish onions at $1 a bushel; the big Yellow Danvers at the same dollar price and the mites of the species, the pickling onions at 25 cents a basket.

Big Campbellford watermelon at 25 cents seemed to be newcomers; and the first run of Lake Ontario herrings sold at 10 cents a pound. Cauliflowers were all the way from 5 to 20 cents; a hugh vegetable marrow on the Dixon stand was priced at 15 cents; red cabbage 10 cents a head; Hubbard squash 10 cents.

The local gardeners have been putting on a big show every Saturday, with the weather entirely in their favor. You can still buy broccoli at five cents a bunch; carrots six quart baskets for 25 cents; and the last of the wild grapes, so they report from the rail fence vineyards, at 20 cents a basket.

Potatoes Steady.

H. Horner of Campbellcroft sold White Winter potatoes at 85 cents a bag, but other growers of different varieties were asking one dollar. The supply seemed to be light. Celery was ten cents a bunch. And the onion family was also represented by bunches of the little green assertively odorous variety.

First grade honey was 55 cents for four pound tins, and the amber quality was 40 cents. Fresh pork 15 and 17 cents a pound, and lamb 15 and 21 cents. Parsnips, six quarts for 20 cents.

Chickens were 22 to 25 cents on the board and may be sold at the upper quotations; butter about 22 to 23 cents; and eggs 30 to 35 cents.

Farmers say they can take a chance on the weather for a few weeks more. During the recent warm spell there was no hurry about attacking the roots of all kinds. They were just as well in the ground as out, Arthur Stinson said. The freeze-up is generally about the 16 to 19th of November.

Veteran Claims New War Engines Not As Terrible As Painted

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP). — A Great War veteran who has scrutinized the "terrible engines of war" finds them neither as fearsome nor as awe-inspiring as one might expect.

Col. E. J. C. Schmidlin director of engineering services, Department of National Defence, told members of the Engineering Institute of Canada last night that in spite of advances in design and fire-power of modern weapons, conditions in any future war would be no worse than those of 1914-18.

Each advance in weapons of offense, he said, had been offset by corresponding improvements in defensive armament.

Best defence against air raids, he declared, was to meet the invaders in the air before they reached their objective. A fleet of fast pursuit ships could cope successfully with the attacking ships, he asserted.

If this method had been followed in the Spanish war, he doubted if the insurgent airmen would have caused the damage they did.

Jews Warn Arabs More Killings Will Not Stop Zionism

JERUSALEM, Oct. 17 (AP).—The Jewish agency for Palestine replied to a warning by the Palestine Arab defence committee today with the declaration that further killings would not deter the Zionist movement.

The Arab committee on Monday warned Jews of the far east to expect trouble if the Zionist movement persisted in further immigration into Palestine.

A Jewish agency statement said "we see a possibility of fruitful cooperation between Arabs and Jews in Palestine, but an essential condition is the recognition of the basic rights of the Jewish people in the Holy Land."

The statement added that no dangers would deflect the Jews from a policy of returning to Palestine which "is dictated by historical necessity."

There was widespread belief a climax was approaching in the Palestine crisis. Disorders in the last 12 weeks are unofficially estimated to have claimed 1,850 casualties, including more than 800 lives.

Military To Take Over

With the return, scheduled for today, of the high commissioner, Sir Harold MacMichael, from conferences in London, and the arrival of British troop reinforcements, it was believed the military would would resume the initiative and reoccupy the country.

The troopship Neuralia was due at Haifa today with addition soldiers, to help the thousands already here.

Politically, the Arabs appeared confident of eventual victory. Frequent attacks on Arab notables indicated the rebels were trying to liquidate opposition in the ranks, leaving one united party as sole negotiator with Great Britain, which has a mandate over Palestine and has entertained proposals to split the holiday land into Arab, Jewish, and British-dominated districts.

for me. Saturday night she almost did."

Miss Snyder, Miss Etting's stepdaughter and secretary, concurred with the singer and Alderman's recital of events. It was:

That Snyder, at pistol point, forced Alderman to drive him from a radio station to the Etting hillside home, where, in the music room, he threatened all three members of the household. (Snyder told police he went there "to discuss arrangements for some Beverly Hills property with my former wife.")

That Snyder shot twice at Alderman from a distance of 12 feet as the music arranger sat near Miss Etting on the piano bench. Alderman was struck once in the abdomen.

That Snyder wrested Miss Etting's pistol from her grasp, but Miss Snyder picked it up and fired at him as he chased the singer to the kitchen. He was not wounded.

Ontario Women Lag Behind In Politics

HAMILTON, Oct. 17.—Hon. Iva Campbell Fallis told delegates to the Zonta Club Regional Conference, District No. 3, that she hung her head in shame to think that her head in same to think that Ontario, banner province of the Dominion, did not have one woman as member of the Ontario Legislature. Senator Fallis was chief speaker at a dinner in the Royal Connaught Hotel Saturday night, a feature of the two-day convention.

Discussing women's place in politics, she referred to the prominence they attained in Great Britain and other countries and added that she was sorry to say that in Canada women lagged behind. It was probably the fault of both sides that there were no women in the Ontario Legislature, suggested the speaker. She admitted that a great many Canadian women were not interested in such matters. Senator Fallis did not suggest that a woman should be elected because she was a woman—she must possess other necessary qualifications, chief of which was ability. One of the greatest signs of improvement, she said, was the promise that women of Quebec were soon to have the provincial franchise.

There was an ebb and flow to the tide of feminity, and present was the ebb of time, said the speaker as she traced women's place in the world history. The position of women in countries where dictators ruled was referred to and the speaker attributed the period of decline now being experienced, to this influence.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Skillful piloting by Phil Sauve, who once landed an airplane on one ski when the other was damaged on a winter flight, was credited today with saving the lives of himself and three passengers when part of a plane wing was torn away 5,000 feet above Northern Ontario's dense bushlands.

Sauve and his passengers spent 45 hours on the shore of a little lake 35 miles north of here when the crankshaft of an Austin Airways plane broke on a flight Friday. It severed the propeller shaft. The "prop" flew off and struck the lower right wing, carrying away part of the lifting surface.

"When the wing began to shake and parts of the fabric started to fall, I felt sure we were done for," the pilot said on his arrival here yesterday after the quartet had been rescued by two of seven planes that engaged in a search. "But I decided if we had to go down we'd go down fighting."

He shut off the motor and fought the plunging ship as he aimed for a tiny patch of silver far below, a little, unnamed lake in the middle of Fraleck township's bush country.

"Pieces of the wing were just shredding off into space as we swerved and glided down," Donald T. Groom, one of the passengers, said later.

"I took a short, sharp dive and took to the water at about 90 miles an hour," pilot Sauve related. "I couldn't reduce speed because I was rapidly losing control of the plane and the struts where the propeller had hit were falling off. If the other half of the lower wing had gone, we'd have gone, too."

But Sauve landed safely then fell limp over the controls. He said he "quaked like a schoolgirl" after it was all over. Groom took off his shoes and socks and waded to shore, pulling the plane in close to the rocks and enabling the others to land.

Groom, Lawrence Ashcroft of Sudbury and Joe Laflamme, noted Gogama, Ont., wolf tamer, were Sauve's passengers on a flight from Gogama, 80 miles north-west of here, to Sudbury. When the plane failed to arrive here, seven searching plans took the other but poor visibility and smoke from a bush fire hampered the pilots.

Pilot Chuck Austin, co-owner of the airways firm, found the stranded party yesterday afternoon. The four men carried a week's rations of food and sleeping bags and were in no danger of starvation.

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT"

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon for First Church of Christ Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday.

The Golden Text was "God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." Selections from the Bible included the following from Matthew 23:23, "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint, and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following: "Atonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life and Love."

PLANNING THE HUNT.

Local hunt clubs are busy completing the details of their annual trip to the north and it is said that there will be an unusually large number of deer hunters this season. Incidentally the hunter is one citizen who is not hoping for a continuance of the present weather into November. This summer temperature is not much good for hunting and would make it impossible to keep the game.

Quint Pictures Make Jean Hersholt Social Success–As Baby Expert

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 17.—(CP).—Jean Hersholt, the character actor who plays the part of the country doctor in films featuring the Dionne quintuplets, has become a social success for the first time in his life.

"It used to be, when I went to a party," he said here, "that I could talk only about pictures, books and stamps—if I could get anyone to listen to me. But now I'm rated as a baby expert. Women flock about me as if I were a handsome romantic actor. And the questions they ask!"

Hersholt, who portrays on the screen the role created by Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the quints, in real life, says he refuses to pinch hit for the little country doctor in discussing babies. He gives the women evasive answers.

Hersholt said he is convinced that Yvonne of the quintuplets is a natural actress. He declares also that Annette may be the most beautiful. Emilie is mechanically-inclined, takes everything she can get her hands on apart. Marie and Cecile, Hersholt said, seem to have unusual talent as singers.

The actor admits frankly that before his first picture with the quints he thought his goose was cooked as far as films were concerned. But his characterization as Dr. Luke has won him a new following, hundreds of fan letters, a radio program, and a fresh start in the entertainment world.

Hersholt returned recently from Callander, where scenes were made for the newest picture featuring the quints, called "Five of a Kind."

Dunning Expects To Resume Finance Job

OTTAWA, Oct. 17.—(CP).—Making a splendid recovery from an illness which kept him indisposed since last June, Finance Minister Dunning is optimistic of returning once more to active political life.

He is back at his Ottawa home now after thee months convalescence in Prince Edward Island and Atlantic City. He took ill suddenly during the Budget debate in the Commons last June with a heart ailment and after consulting leading doctors has received assurance that his good health and vigor may be restored.

"I have every hope of a complete recovery," said the 53-year-old Finance Minister.

It was not known how soon he will resume his work in the Department but for awhile he plans to remain at his home and keep in close touch with Departmental officials.

Revenue Minister Ilsley has been handling the finance portfolio along with his regular duties since Mr. Duning took sick.

Airlines Steps Out.

One of the Government-owner enteprises, Trans-Canada Air Lines, passes a milestone to-day with the first daily express flights from Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto to Vancouver. Transport Minister Howe, who has supervised the establishment of the air line, is in Western Canada on Government business but probably will be back in the capital soon. He anticipated that mail will be flown on the Trans-Continental hope shortly and eventually daily passenger flights are planned.

The proposed revision of the Canada-United States trade pact provides the chief subject of political speculation here. Negotiations have been practically completed as far as the Canadian Government is concerned but there are delays in the Anglo-U.S. agreement which is being negotiated simultaneously. Some observers here believe the pact will involve tariff changes which will necessitate a fall session of Parliament.

The Rambling REPORTERS

NO FISHING.

It was reported to-day that a citizen living on George street north parked a cardboard sign beside a puddle of water in a depression in the concrete in front of his home after the light rain last week, which read "Private Pool—No Fishing." The man claims he has asked the Board of Works to repair the road so that the water will not remain there after a storm, but so far no action has been taken. Following the last shower his annoyance took a humorous twist and he brought chuckles by putting up the notice.—McG.

Czechoslovakia Is Described As Dream Child

Czechoslovakia, the troubled little land in the heart of Europe, was described by A. R. Kennedy, editor of The Examiner, addressing the Rotary Club at their noon-day luncheon ase a land of great contrast, and tradition and a country which since its beginning has been characterized by a sense of insecurity and impending trouble.

"It is the dream child of three men who hoped to give a homeland to the Czechs and Slovaks. Located as it is in the centre of Europe it has been the cockpit of trouble for centuries and every war or invasion has left its mark on the country.

It has never been a country like Canada. The feeing of security and stability which we enjoy is entirely lacking. There has always been a rise and fall a coming and going and a predominant feeling of insecurity," he said.

Kind, Corteous People

Their customs, habits and outlook are entirely different to ours. They dress differently, lay out their streets differently and in many places the street signs could not be read even by a leading authority on languages. Added to this in the older sections of the city of Prague, capital of the country there is a terrific smell. On the other hand they are a kind, courteous people.

The old cathedral in Prague, called the Cathedral of St. Vitus was an outstanding work of art according to Mr. Kennedy. In this church there is a stained glass window which depicts progressively the life of St. Vitus. His father was a pagan and when the son became a Christian the father, angered, tied him and boiled him in oil. His jumping up and down at the pain from the hot oil, gave the name to that nervous disorder so common in many children to-day, and called St. Vitus Dance.

The speaker described the "Apostle's Clock" in the old city as a work well worthy of being classed in the seven wonders of the world. This great clock in a tower works only on the hour and directly on the hour, an immense mechanism parades the twelve apostles before the face of the clock. Hundreds gather to watch this clock, people from all the nations in the world, and the clock is centuries old.

Buying Done on Street

Merchants stand on the street and if a customer spots a piece of merchandise in the window which he wishes, the merchants unhook a latch, swings open the window and takes out the piece, accepting the money right on the street. The country is noted for its fabrics and works of art, but there are sections of Ruthenia which is still wild and primitive and wayfarers are forced to carry rifles for their protection against animals or quick tempered herdsmen of the hills.

He said the average person in Czechoslovakia is poor and even the outstanding artists receive only a small return for their work. They have a density of population in the city sections and a scarcity of outlook.

Mr. Kennedy prefaced his talk with the statement that in giving a talk on a country particularly one like Czechoslovakia which has gained so much prominence in recent months there is the great danger of getting the reputation of being a foreign expert, but in this case he added he was merely one giving his observations made during a trip to the country some years ago.

The appreciation of the Rotary Club was voiced by W. R. Morris and again by Alderman James Dutton, president of the Club.

Objection Taken Paying Taxes Two Instalments

Voicing opposition to the proposed new system of paying taxes in two instalments a deputation of rural ratepayers awaited on the County Council of the Township of North Monaghan at the regular monthly meeting on Friday night. They complained that the farmer wants to pay his taxes in the fall, and also voiced objection to the road rate for the work done all over the township. They contended that there should be a levy made on the special area and another made in the country to cover requirements.

The deputation was composed of W. G. Waterman, John Clarke, G. N. Moncrief and Reg. Hunter.

Court of Revision for the township will be held at the Courthouse on Saturday, October 29 at two o'clock in the afternoon. Reeve James Milby was instructed by resolution to attend the adjourned sale of the County of Peterborough and to purchase in the name of the township of North Monaghan all properties in the township which do not bring taxes and costs.

No Action Taken

C. B. Shaver and D. Cameron of the Bell Telephone Company asked the council to pass a by-law authorizing some person or persons in the township to whom the Company might make application to proceed with local work. No action was taken as this question is slated for discussion at the next regular session of the County Council.

John McDonald asked the Council to construct a sewer on Charlotte street west to service a property on the south side of Charlotte street in the township. The township board of health have already advised council that a sewer should be built at this point and Bruce Johnston, township clerk was authorized to obtain permission for such a project from the Provincial Board of Health.

Constable Bruce Menzies, appeared before the council asking that the members take some action on his application for increase in salary. The question was deferred until the new council takes office next January.

503 Inspections Made In Week

During Fire Prevention week Chief George Gimblett and members of the Fire Department made 503 inspections of stores, factories, churches, schools and hospitals, and in the seven days Chief Gimblett delivered fourteen lectures.

All the city's schools came through fire drill in good form, Chief Gimblett reported. Shortest time it took pupils to escape from their classes was at the Immaculate Conception school where 178 students were standing in the school-yard 50¼ seconds after the alarm sounded. Other schools, because they have all larger attendances and more class-rooms, took longer but all were out within one minute 27¾ seconds, except the Collegiate where 1,120 pupils escaped from 40 rooms in the record time of two minutes and eighteen seconds.

"In all schools, hospitals, homes, and the Convent, fire drills and fire alarms were found to be in good condition," reported Chief Gimblett.

5 Liquor Cases Are Adjourned In Police Court

It was a day of adjournments . . the local police court this morning with the result that what looked like a long docket petered out. Magistrate Langley voiced objections to the postponement of some of these charges and in one case ordered a peremptory adjournment, informing both the accused and the Crown that the case must go on then.

Mary Hayton, charged with having liquor in a place other than her residence, was the first to ask for an adjournment. She asked that her case be allowed to stand over until Tuesday of next week.

"I am not anxious to have these adjournments," said Magistrate Langley. "I'd like to have these cases disposed of."

Crown Attorney McElderry said that in any event the Crown was not ready to go ahead and so the case was adjourned until Tuesday of next week by consent.

Harry Carter, charged with illegally keeping liquor for sale, also asked for an adjournment, stating that his counsel was in Toronto. He was remanded until next Tuesday, bail being renewed.

A drunk charge, said by the Crown Attorney to be connected with the previous two cases, was likewise laid over until next week.

Roy Courneya, charged with illegal possession of liquor, was the next to ask the court for an adjournment.

"I have not been able to get my witnesses," he told the Magistrate.

Magistrate Langley reiterated his opposition to so many adjournments but finally set the case for next Monday, making the adjournment a peremptory one.

"You will have to go ahead then," he declared, serving notice of both the Crown and the accused that the case must proceed next Monday, or be dismissed.

7,000 Attended Lillico Draw

Ray St. Louis, 212 Charlotte street, was the lucky winner of the major prize, an Atlas Monarch car heater at the formal opening of Ivan Lillico's new show rooms and service station at Charlotte and Aylmer streets, Saturday evening. W. H. Bright, 308 Stewart street, won the second major prize, an Atlas tire, and the third award, five gallons of Marvelube, went to Mrs. W. Howes, 373 Queen street. Ten others listed below won lubricating jobs for cars.

Citizens and visitors to the city formed a steady stream through the doors of the building from Saturday afternoon until late Saturday night, when the draw took place. Prior to that a reel of talking pictures were flashed on the brick wall of a building nearby and a throng jammed the station yard to watch it. The film was entitled: "Through Darkest Africa." Two girls smartly clad in riding breeches and blue shirts passed roses to the women who attended and upwards of 1,000 delicate blooms were handed out free. Memo pads were also distributed.

It was one of the largest crowds to attend a formal opening of this type in the city, and it is estimated that there were more than 7,000 tickets placed in the box prior to the draw.

A complete lubricating job for a car was won by the following ten persons: Vernon Spilsbury, 335 Downie street; C. Seymour, 686 Water street; Mrs. J. A. Pife, 247 Princess street; M. H. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

FOR TWO CENTS, we'd pass up this pillar de piffle for today. We don't mind telling the tale of a football reverse here — since 'tis more or less to be expected in Orfuns' first year in senior ranks—but doggoned if we feel like weeping for two or three paragraphs about the petered-out Petes in baseball finals. At least, we didn't have to watch the Petes expire—when their pitching and hitting wobbled badly—as our job was to cover the grid game Saturday. En passant, we might point out the jinx Hamilton has on local senior ball squads. They've just reached O.B.A. finals three times in their history and three times they've lost out in Hamilton. The town is downright unhealthy for local ballsters! But let's discuss the football fray first.

* * * * * *

TOO MUCH WEIGHT and far too much Abbie Box beat the Orfuns 18-2 before more than 3,000 home fans day before yesterday. The Bam-Bam-Bammies had it over the locals on avordupois and experience, but Box was the big difference in our book. His kicking and passing had Orfuns backed up in their own area a good part of the game and those skyscraper hoists he got off after plunking the cowhide deep into the pigskin averaged a gain of 20 yards over home hoofing. Twice his forward heaves to Humphries paved the way for touchdowns in the last half, after Bill Irwin's bunch gamely held the Ponton pack to a 5-2 score at halftime. Box also got a field goal.

* * * * * *

Orfuns Were Out-boxed

BEACHES bussed their way down here expecting to buzz through the Peterborough rugbyists, using their reserves. They planned to give Ab Box a big rest, only use him occasionally, and give their substitutes most of the game. After Orfuns held 'em to a 1-1 score in the first quarter, they began to worry a bit. Ab Box was shoved out there and he stayed in nearly the balance of the tilt. And the regulars were used most of the game, too. Orfuns would have come close to beating them, otherwise. As it was, the boys here did a good job of it, but faded gradually under a hot sun and before the rough and heavy Balmies in the last half. Bill Flack injured his hand on Manorek's noggin during the fight in the third quarter, when both were put off. Bill claims the other hit him three times during previous plays and he finally retaliated—and certainly held his own.

* * * * * *

WE'RE NAMING no local stars, all the Irwin outfit going down gallantly after a gritty display against the best team—most likely—in the senior O.R.F.U. Two youngsters, Curtin of Orfuns and Lush of Toronto—he played for Malverns 'gainst P.C.I.—turned in a rattling good showing. Orfuns weren't getting the kicking, their forwards didn't click as well as Beaches, and they didn't have a good defence against forward throws. But Balmy Beach players told 'em afterward that the Orfuns ought to give Sarnia a whale of a battle here next Saturday. The Beaches said, and it sounds reasonable: "Sarnia only beat us 5-6 and Ab Box was injured at the start of the second quarter, and out the rest of thegame. Otherwise, we'd have beaten them handily. A little luck and you'll beat them, too." And look how Nationals (whom some thought we over-rated) stepped right into Sarnia and held the champs to a 12-all tie, and should have won!

* * * * * *

Bummer Is a Bumper

BUMMER STIRLING was pretty much the whole works for Sarnia, the 32-year-old brilliant booter scoring all his team's points to eke out a tie. He crashed over for a touchdown, kicked a field goal and hoofed four single points. In the second period, he punted a 70-yard lulu and then tore down the field to rouge the Montreal receiver —and that's one for the book. Ferraro and Burton cashed in right smartly on golden opportunities to cross the Imps' line for tries as the Nats startled the rabid Sarnia rooters into a severe attack of the jitters with their savage attack. They seemed to forget the fact that the great Sarnia squad was the opposition and on their own gridiron. Like Bill Irwin of the Orfuns remarked to Manorek here, as Ted met stonewall opposition twice on bucks: "Hey, Manorek, these kids down here don't know you at all—better tell 'em who you are!"

* * * * * *

WELL, let's take the case of the ex-Petes in baseball finals. Their pitching and hitting, like lifeless October leafery, went up in smoke, and we don't relish the job of raking up the ashes. It was a big disappointment and, while we congratulate the scrappy Stratford Nats—who proved they were money players and have a fine flinger in Craig—we can't believe they could have ousted the Petes who rubbed out Niagara in two straight. But the locals lost the series with their sorry showing in Stratford last Monday and they couldn't get clicking Saturday in Hamilton. Kearns and Starr were their only binglers, and Lefty McNally lacked speed and control on the slab. As a dispatch from Hamilton states: "The erratic hurling of the starting pitchers made the game a long-drawn-out affair, and there was little fielding or hitting of championship calibre. Both teams played as though they were at the end of the trail and probably the only redeeming feature was Craig's fine relief work and the consistent hitting of Kalmusky and Hanlon."

* * * * * *

Take It Away, Stratford

AND so we don't get that elusive senior ball title in this year of war crises and good gate receipts. It has gone for the garbage pail so far as the Murphyites are concerned. The boys feel the long delay for the T.A.B.A. wrong-robin series hurt their chances. Well, anyawy, the Petes made a good showing till they hit finals this year. With a runty loop and some exhibition jousts they waded through the hot spell, knocked Oshawa for a row of coal scuttles come autumn and did ditto to the Falls. They started right against Stratford but went intermediate "B" the next two big tilts. The club officials acted like sports and threw the players a big dinner party in the Royal York on Saturday night, just as if the boys had copped the title. Like a lot of fans here, we were disappointed and surprised at the locals' loss but those things will happen. Our sympathy to the Petes' ball squad.

A CHAP IN KEENE WRITES us to say that the competition in O.S.A. intermediate "C" playdowns was far from soft and that, though the Keene crew found hard opposition in the Southend Loop here, they met their toughest against Port Colborne in the finals. Seems the Ports were a hard-hitting bunch of experienced athletes assembled for the purpose of copping the intermediate 'B" championship. Poole and Deline were the ace twirlers in the short- diamond sport. "By some peculiar ruling," the party writes, "they were put in 'C' company by the O.S.A. and took everything in stride till they met Keene." The Keene crew was bolstered by two good outfielders in Earl Hahn and Toe Ibey of Hastings, and the gang played heads-up ball to take the Ports. Smarter infielding, good pitching, faster baserunning and ability to bunt or punch out hits, rather than slug, are given as reasons why Keene copped the title. That's the dope.

GRAB-BAG: St. Kitts' teams won juvenile, midget and bantam lacrosse titles in Norwood at a playoff tourney Sat'day eve; it seems to be St. Catharines' year in lacrosse....Prexy DeGruchy and Sec. Bailey of the O.R.F.U. attended the grid game here; and Mayor Hamilton made the prize draw....Ivan Miller of Hamilton, official scorer at the ball final Sat'day, pitched against the Petes in 1920 when Plowites defeated the locals, also by a 9-4 score, in Guelph....Eddie Murphy and Chuck Kearns will now turn out with the Orfuns at practices, but we doubt if Bob Doll will play football....Ned Vitarelli and Bill Calladine are visiting in Baltimore with Pick Hines, probably planning on staying for the winter to play hockey....Yammy Jamieson of Kingston is the proud poppa of a baby daughter....Hamilton won the O.S.A. intermediate "A" final series from Copper Cliff in two straight....P.C.I. teams drill all week for school rugby games in Oshawa next Saturday....The Lindsay footballers were beaten in both games in Oshawa over the week-end....Fans at the Exhibition Grounds on Sat'day found senior service in field markings and Bill Jackson's comments on the game via loud-speaker....Oh, well, one title a year is above par in this borough, n'est-ce pas?

HASTINGS, Oct. 17. — Cornwall were ousted from the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse finals in the bantam, midget, and Juvenile classes by three St. Catharines teams on Saturday night at Norwood Arena. Cornwall bantams, beaten by a 6 to 6 score were the only team from the Eastern town to put up a fair battle against St. Kitts. St. Catharines midget and juvenile aggregations showed much superiority over their rivals. All games were quite clean, with but one casualty when Lowe for St. Kitt's midgets received a bad gash over the forehead as he scored a goal. Three stitches were required to close the wound and put him out for the game.

Grove Squad Takes Lakefield Seconds

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 17.—The Lakefield Preparatory School's "under-fourteen Rugby team defeated the Lakefield High school second team 6 to 0 in their first scrap of the season, fought out here on Wednesday last.

The High School team played well, it being their first turnout, but the Grove had the advantage of a good deal of the play and showed the effects of thei rexperience already this season.

Wilkes for the Grove showed up well in the line plunging; Tilley and Herold excelled in running. Moore stood out in the tackling and Carr-Harris and Arnoldi were noticeable for their kicking and passing respectively.

Carl Hurl and Basil Arthurs were outstanding for the High school. The line-ups were:

Lakefield Preparatory School — Snap, Wishart; insides, Moore, Thompson; middles, Hemsted, Wilkes; outsides, Christie, Harris; quarter, Tilley; halves, Arnoldi, Carr-Harris, Herold; flying wing, Urquhart (captain).

Thebaud Grounds In "Pea Souper"

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Fog, Indian Summer calms, and a mishap to the challenging Gertrude L. Thebauld today gave crews of that vessel and the defender Bluenose of Nova Scotia, another day of rest from International Fishermen's Cup competition.

The big schooners have been harrassed by fog and calm since last Wednesday when Bluenose won and evened the series at one apiece in their three-out-of-five match for the cup.

The race committee ordered postponement to Tuesday when Captain Ben Pine's Thebauld ran aground yesterday in a "pea soup" fog while leaving the harbor for Boston.

The grounding apparently caused no serious damage but Captain Pine seized the opportunity to have his ship's bottom rubbed smooth.

With The Boy Scouts

Attention, All Officers.—Meeting for all scout, cub and rover officers is called for 7.30 p.m. sharp at the association headquarters, George street, on Tuesday, October 18. The district commissioner requests that the meeting start promptly and that all concerned make it their duty to attend.

The subject on hand is the leaders' conference that will be held in Peterborough next month.

Attention, All Rovers.

A joint meeting of the 1st and 5th rover crews will be held at the centre rover headquarters on Simcoe street, over Dr. Muray Fraser's, at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, to hear a talk on Civic Management and Affairs by S. R. Armstrong, Peterborough City Clerk, and the best-versed man in town on that subject. Any rover scouts interested are welcomed to join us on this occasion.

The cub packs are still going strong, when at St. George's three new chums wer eaccepted into the pack. The boys were Tom Douglas, Ken Bailey and Ronny Naish. Sonny Paquette rose from the rank of chum when he was invested as a tenderpad into the world wide brotherhood.

Another pleasant ceremony was the investiture of Raymond Titterington as sixer of the Brown six. This was followed by the presenting of his second star to Ken Hopkins. Ken will now be able to wear the Leaping Wolf on his uniform when he goes into the scout troop.

Troop Committeeman Mr. Moscrop paid the pack a visit, as also did Mr. Titterington, who led the boys in a couple of games.

At All Saints, the cub got strictly down to business and the following boys passed various tests: Tom Griffen, Billie Brooks, Irwin Clapham, Vic. Doughty, Doug. Kidd, Bill McCulloch, Norm. Harris Bob Kennedy, Doug. Markwick, Bob Adams, and Allan Paterson passed the National Anthem; Bert Panter, Claire McDougal, Jim Webb, and Tom Ashby passed First Aid; Ameron Shannon, Ernest Darling, Jack Chambers, and Allen Tracey passed First Aid and National Anthem. Clinton Mowry passed First Aid, Cleanliness, Time and Somersault.

And so time marches on toward the close of the Bill Coleman Memorial Trophy. Who will be the winner?

All the scout personnel wish to express to their friends in Peterborough their sincere thanks for the support shown on Saturday's Apple Day campaign, some 34 barrels of apples were disposed of. They were the best apples yet. And congratulations are extended to the apple purchasing committee in their foresight. They were on the grounds and picked the apples themselves, thus getting the right goods.

St. John's cub pack were honored by several visitors last Friday, when District Commissioner Hornsby, A.D.C. Lew Grant, District Cubmaster Gordon Clegg paid an official visit; Akela Pete Dominic of Sacred Heart and Scouter Ingham of St. Andrew's also called.

The program of games and mass instruction in second star semaphore signalling was put on.

The pack has been asked to give up their meeting place in the hall next Friday for the A.Y.P.A. Conference, and arrangements have been made to go through the Bell Telephone Exchange. Cubs will meet in uniform on the bandstand in Victoria Park at 6.30 p.m. and will proceed from there to the Bell Telephone plant.

The Sacred Heart Pack have had a deal of activity of late, and three new members have been attached to the troop committee. A very interesting and successful venture has been started in a pack log book, in which a different sixer writes each week, giving his description of the activities.

Akela Frank Pammett visited the pack and took the inspection.

Ray Kelbrick and Eldon Paquette were invested in the pack as tenderpads during a ceremony at which Mrs. Kelbrick and Mrs. Paquette were present.

Last Friday District Commissioner Hornsby paid the pack an official visit and took the grand howl and inspection. Two boys were made two-star cubs at a pleasant ceremony; the boys being David Jones and Bernard Amyotte. Bobby LeBarr was invested as a tenderpad; his mother being present at the ceremony.

Frank Lucarno proved his prowess as an athlete and was presented with the badge showing his accomplishment.

A very interesting serial story is being told by Akela; the boys ever eager to hear the adventures of Rikky Tivvy Taving.

Three of the group committee were present last week: Messrs. W. J. Grady, J. Amyotte and W. S. Bogue.

Eight dollars were raised at a paper collection.

St. Andrew's troop committee are holding a meeting at the residence of Rev. Dr. E. W. Young at 439 Rubidge on Friday, October 21, at 7 p.m. The scout and cub officers should be present to meet the committee and discuss the various activities with them.

The Bulldogs are holding a two-point advantage over the Beavers in the troop competition. A.S.M. Begley took some of the boys in second class first aid, whilst the others took tenderfoot work under the scouter.

All Saints' troop held a short meeting Friday night, after which they proceeded to St. John's Parish Hall, where they joined the rest of the scouts to receive the last minutes talks on Apple Day by Chairman Sturrock, Dr. G. Murray Fraser and District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby. —The Skipper.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—The forward pass, both as weapon and boomerang, rarely has been so vital a factor in any week-end United States College football program as it was Saturday, when 13 of the country's previously unbeaten major grid powers crumpled for the first time this season.

Only the Middle West—where Minnesota put on a last-quarter drive to top Michigan, 7-6, and Pittsburgh swept past Wisconsin, 26-6—and the southwest came out of the day's battles without sustaining casualties among their favored contenders.

Alabama, confidently seeking another Southeastern Conference championship, was checked by Tennessee 13-0 and Kentuckey fell before Washington and Lee 8-0. In the West the surprises were fast-rallying Stanford's 27-16 defeat of Oregon and Oregon State's fumble-recovering 13-6 victory over Washington.

Passes and pass interceptions figured prominently in each of these games except Tennessee's victory, scored on two long power marches and a stout defence, and the Oregon State triumph.

Two Princeton forwards gave the Tigers their first touchdown and the necessary jump to beat Pennsylvania, 13-0. Syracuse struck through the air three times in the last quarter for all of its touchdowns and a 19-17 conquest of Cornell.

Yale Beats Navy.

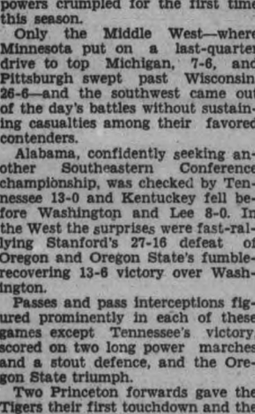
Similarly Yale set up and scored its touchdown on Gil Humphrey's passes and got in position for the winning field goal to edge out Navy 9-7; Colgate blanketed Sid Luckman and his receivers, intercepted one of his passes for the second touchdown and gave Columbia its first beating by 13-0; New York University bowed 7-0 to one brilliant stab through the air by George Stirnweiss, North Carolina quarterback, and favored Dartmouth employed passes for three of its five touchdowns in routing Brown 34-13.

The only defeat of an unbeaten Eastern team in which aerials did not figure was also unbeaten Carnegie Tech's 7-6 victory over Holy Cross.

Ohio State interceptions of Northwestern passes nullified the Wildcats' 12-3 margin in first downs, the game ending in a 0-0 tie; Missouri bowed to Iowa State, unbeaten Big Six leader, 16-13, although sophomore Paul Christman completed 14 of 28 pitches for 218 yards, and Michigan State, ran back two interceptions for scores and routed West Virginia, 26-0.

Elsewhere there were Army, intercepting a Harvard pass on its own 20 and then covering 79 or the 80 yards for the deciding touchdown in a thrilling 20-17 victory on one forward-pass play; Vanderbilt, travelling 39 yards in two tosses to top Mississippi State 13-7 and continue unbeaten; Tulane, with Bronco Brunner firing the two payoff shots that gave the wave a 27-16 decision over Rice, and Stanford, which also struck through the air in upsetting Oregon.

Welter Champion



Sammy Luftspring (ABOVE), who once kept fans yawning with his "fancy Dan" tactics in the ring, turned fighter and removed the Canadian welterwight crown from the head of Frankie Genovese in Toronto. Sammy, who is rapidly gaining renown in the welter ranks, was winner by a technical knockout in the 13th round of the title scrap.

Buttons And Cash

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Garland Raid, 54, railway machinist, is one bachelor who solved the button problem by making Lady Luck pay dividends. He picked up a button three years ago and nearby found a penny. A few hours later he found another button—and a dime. Becoming a "bit superstitious," Reid said he continued to search for buttons—and one night he found a $400 roll of bank notes.

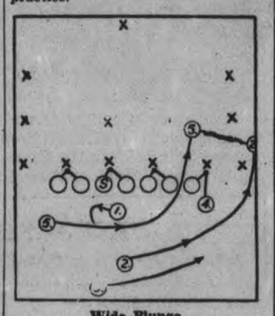
Three Basic Plays For Your Running Offensive

By LEW HAYMAN

Key to Diagrams

Today we'll go over three running plays that will give an idea of how they are planned and carried out. Needless to say there are dozens of plays along the lines of the ones we'll discuss, but you will find these good basic plays for your game. If you'll just watch the diagrams while I go over the movements I think you'll find them quite easy to follow and to put into practice.



Wide Plunge

The players line up as shown. Ball is snapped to No. 1, who spins and gives it to No. 5. No. 5 slices off the outside of his own middle. Meanwhile backs Nos. 2 and 3 have started moving to the right before the ball is snapped. No. 2 times himself so that he first draws the outside secondary wide and then comes in to be in a position to take the lateral pass from No. 5, should the latter have passed the line of scrimmage successfully. No. 4 back, as shown, helps block the defensive middle.

Ball is snapped to No. 1, who spins and give it to No. 5. No. 5 takes a plunge and then passes laterally to No. 3, who, in turn passes to No. 2. No. 4 blocks the defensive outside. The timing on this play will depend on the speed of your halves. Don't forget to note who is blocking who in these plays, as indicated by the various signs.

Simple Reverse to Weak Side

Ball is snapped to No. 1, who half-spins, faking a pass to No. 3, who has started out as if he were going to hit the line carrying the ball. Meanwhile No. 4 has come over, taken the ball from No. 1 and raced to the weak side with No. 2 ahead of him so as to be in postion for a lateral, which No. 4 makes, as shown. No. 5 blocks the outside on the defensive team's weak end.

Baseball Team Be Together Next Season

The Peterborough ball club wound up the season, after losing to Stratford Saturday afternoon, in sporting style by staging a dinner party in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on Saturday night.

A private dining-room was engaged and officers and players assembled around the festive board and enjoyed a delightful repast, after which President Verne Dawson was chairman during a round of speech-making.

President Dawson himself, Secretary J. J. Dorris and William Kay of the executive congratulated the players upon the fine season they had had and thanked them for their loyal support while the whole lineup of players in turn thanked the executive for the manner in which they had carried on the club's business. Both players and executive paid tribute to Manager Eddie Murphy for his fine leadership throughout the season. Trainer Jim Young and Gordie Burns, bat boy, were called on for speeches along with all the players.

A feature was the statement by Bob Doll and Lefty McNally, the two American members of the team, that they had never played with a better bunch of fellows than the 1938 Petes. Both players said they had been treated wonderfully by players, executive and by the citizens of Peterborough and remarked that they would liked to have been able to respond by winning the championship. The trend of all the speeches was that the gang should remain together next year and grab off the Ontario title.

In his address President Dawson referred to the fact that Bill Calladine was leaving for Baltimore to play hockey there this winter, and on behalf of the ball club wished him every success.

Oil Trouble

BOTHWELL, Ont., Oct. 17—(CP)—Reeve Thomas McRoberts has a new oil well on his farm in nearby Zone township but the gusher, only 100 feet away from the reeve's house, presents a problem. As the drillers struck oil the strong flow of gas sent oil gushing eight feet in the air. The gas is blowing so strongly that it is almost impossible for workmen to approach the well-head and the farm house may have to be moved for safety.

BALMY BEACHES BEAT ORFUNS BY 18-2 IN SENIOR GRID CONTEST

Ab Box Is Big Difference As Orfuns Fight Gamely Before 3,000 Local Fans

Towering punts by Ab Box and superior weight by the Beaches gave the Ponton pack an 18-2 senior O.R.F.U. win over Orfuns here Saturday. It was Toronto's first win of the grid season and the second straight setback for the locals. A crowd of over 3,000 witnessed the return of senior football to Peterborough, after an absence of 29 years, and the fans seemed satisfied with the Orfuns' gritty performance.

Though lacking the weight and experience of Balmy Beach, the Irwin squad battled bitterly and went down fighting in the last half after holding their classy opponents to a 5-2 score in the first half. Brilliant booting and forward passing by Box was the main difference in the outcome, the Orfuns being unabe to match kicks with the Beach star and failing in an aerial attack. It was 1-1 in the first quarter, 5-2 halfway through, and 12-2 going into the third.

Touchdowns by Seymour in the third and Harris in the fourth were the only major counts. Box booted a placement in the second and the other points were singles. Two lengthy runs by Lush of Beaches, the forward passing combination of Box-to-Humphries, with the Box booting, and a fist fight were game features. The fight broke out in the third quarter between Flack and Manorek and bother players were ejected from the game. Orfuns kicked on a decision as the second closed, the referee blowing his whistle to stop play but allowing Beaches to obtain possession when Orfuns let the ball go as the whiste sounded.

Use Regulars

Box, Humphries, Sward, Manorek and Lush were outstanding for the visitors. The whole team turning in a good game, and the Beaches were forced to use their main-string stars most of the route instead of injecting substitutes throughout as they had planned. Box was used nearly three quarters of the contest, and he made a big difference. The Orfuns' line held up good against the battering of the bruising Beaches. The whole home team tired under the pounding and faded some in the second half—the warm sun also being hard on players—but they fought gallantly till the end. The work of Loucks and Crowe was again good, but there were no individual stars in the local lineup.

Something of a kicking duel developed in the first quarter as both squads played straight, careful football and awaited breaks. Sward and Crowe were doing the hoofing with the former gaining a bit on the exchanges. A Balmy forward was tried for 20 on Beaches' 45-yard line. It was incomplete but the referee ruled interference and allowed the play to go through. Two bucks were stopped, Thompson being hurt, and Sward hoofed one over the line with Reynolds rouging Crowe for a point. On a rolling ball, Crowe came up fast to recover his own kick on Toronto's 50-yard strip but an attempted forward saw him thrown for a loss. He booted out and Deadey took Sward's short return kick with play shifting around centre. Curtain blasted through to block a kick at midfield and later Loucks ran back a kick 10 yards to Toronto's 45. On a sweeping end run, Crowe moved the sticks and Loucks bucked for five. Loucks then kicked to deadline to tie the score. Sward's kick was fumbled and Manorek took the ball on Orfuns' 25-yard chalk as the frame finished.

A Field Goal

On second down in the second heat, a forward from Box to Humphries netted 15. Sward ploughed through centre for three to the Orfuns 5-yard mark. A forward was incomplete and Bock booted a field goal to make it 4-1. Frizzle was downed on Beaches' 36 after the kick and on a towering punt by Box, Krug was nailed on his own 25-yard line. It was kicked back when a plunge failed, and Toronto had possession on their own 50. Humphries took a 15-yard forward pass, and another forward by the same pair moved the pigskin to Peterborough's 35. They missed a long forward heave and Loucks failed by two feet to run out a kick by Box, being roughed by Shields. Leo Deadey grabbed a loose ball as Sward fumbled Crowe's kick on Beaches' 40. Line plunges by Crowe and Loucks, with an interference penalty called on the Ponton pack, took the ball to the Toronto 20-yard chalk. Crowe knifed through for five, A forward was incomplete, and Crowe kicked to deadline for a point. He was later brought to earth on his own 30 after another hefty hoof by Ab Box. The half ended 5-2 for Balmy Beach.

On a short return kick by Loucks, Toronto took possession on a runback by Frizzle of 10 deep in Orfuns' area to open the second half. Sward bucked nine yards to Orfuns' 25. Manorek gained six more on an end run and added seven on a barge through the middle. The next buck was smothered and Box missed a placement, giving Beaches a point on a deadline kick. Ward ran back Loucks' kick 10 yards to midfield. A forward failed but Box kicked into touch for a point, making it 7-2, Sward was stopped on his own 48 on the local kick and Marsh threw Lush for a two-yard loss. Crowe ran the Box boot back to Orfuns' 27 on a neat 12-yard sprint. They could make no headway so booted and Frizzle was held on Beaches 40. A forward was not completed and Crowe was knocked out of bounds on his 22 on another skyscraping kick by Box. Beaches were penalized 15 for roughing Crowe and Loucks plunged for five, but they were forced to kick again and play shifted up and down for several minutes, Beaches gaining on kick exchanges. A fight broke out on Orfuns' 40 between Flack and Manorek, officials finally stopping it and the pair were penalized, police escorting them off the field for the rest of the game. Krug was downed on Orfuns' five on a kick and Loucks' return boot went out on the Peterborough 40. Box tossed a forward to Humphries and the later was yanked down eight yards out. Seymour plunged over for a try which was not converted, the quarter ending with a 12-2 score.

Gallops 55 Yards

Early in the fourth, Lush broke loose and galloped 55 yards on a dazzling dash before Loucks pinned him on the Petes' 30-yard strip. Loucks fought his way through a ring of rivals to battle his way out on Sward's kick back of the line, but a short local hoof gave Toronto the ball on Orfuns' 35. They worked it up to the 20-yard mark, Shields of Orfuns being injured on one play. Loucks again ran out the kick but the Beaches pounded their way back up. Lush pulled off another neat end run before Leo Deadey dropped him on Orfuns 35. Box booted but Loucks got it out of danger and ran it 15 yards before Casson cornered him. Beaches were penalized 15 on rough tackling, but a local forward failed, Marsh to Deadey. Lush shook loose after Beaches gained possession for a 30-yard runback to Orfuns' 25. Humphries took a forward from Box but was stopped a yard from the goal-line. Harris hammered his way over for a try and Box threw a forward to Halden to convert it, making the count 18-2. Orfuns kept fighting and bucks by Magee and Loucks, with Crowe's seven-yard end run, plus a penalty to Toronto moved the ball to midfield. An onside kick went screwy and Beaches gained the leather lemon. A kick was blocked and Crowe recovered and hoofed to Beaches' 5-yard strip. They moved the sticks on bucks and then Box belted it far away just before the last whistle.

Roughriders Are Defeated By Bombers 14-6

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17.— (CP). — Carl Cronin, pudgy Notre Dame Alumnus, solemnly reflected to-day the disaster that nearly overtook his Calgary Bronks Saturday, and whole-heartedly desired a winless 1938 football season for the neighboring Edmonton Eskimos.

There's really nothing personal attached to Carl's fervent wish, but a winless season for Edmonton would set first place in the Western Football Union, squarely in the laps of Cronin's bucking Bronkos.

Calgary, in scoring a 6-4 victory over Edmonton at home Saturday, narrowly escaped defeat. A last-minute touchodwn drive by Eskimos was stopped inches from the goal-line and Bronks managed to stay even with Winnipeg Blue Bombers who travelled to Regina to defeat Roughriders 14-6.

In the Western Intercollegiate Union, University of Saskatchewan stopped University of Alberta 13-0 at Saskatoon, and North Shore Lions moved into first place in the Vancouver Big Four with a 2-0 win over Meralomas in the west's fourth game of the day.

To-day Calgary is tied for Conference leadership with Winnipeg. Each has a single scheduled game remaining, Bombers meeting Regina, and Bronks facing Bob Fritz' Eskimos next Saturday. An Edmonton victory, coupled with a Winnipeg victory at Regina, would tumble Calgary into second place—an undesirable position under the Union's current play-off system.

Second and third place teams in the final standings meet in a sudden death game for the right to meet the first-place team in the western final. If Calgary and Winnipeg both win their next game, then Calgary officially will gain first place honors because they have outscored Bombers 14-6 in the two games the teams have played against each other this season.

Tired Of Being Roughed, He Fought Back

Big Bill Flack matched fists with husky Ted Manorek of Balmy Beaches in the grid game here Saturday and the Orfuns lineman at least broke even. Both were ejected from the game and they were escorted off the field by police, Flack nursing a sore knuckle—which he had bounced off Manorek's chin—and the Beach backfielder nursing a sore nose. The fight occurred in the third quarter and resulted when Flack, tired of being roughed by the other during line scrimmages, did some roughing back. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Stratford Nationals Beat Petes In Third Game 9 to 4 To Win The O.B.A. Senior Title

(By Fred Craig)

That elusive baseball bubble, the senior Ontario championship, which Peterborough teams have been vainly chasing since Jake Solomon threw this town into the major division of the O.B.A. twenty years ago vanished beneath a barrage of Stratford hits at Scott Park, Hamilton on Saturday afternoon when the Nationals took the rubber game of the final series 9 runs to 4, before 1,500 fans, most of them from Stratford.

As in the second game at Stratford, the principal factor in the Petes' defeat was ineffective pitching. Lefty McNally who had stopped the Stratford gang with five hits in the opening fixture had nothing with which to fool them Saturday and he was in difficulty most of the journey until finally taken out in the eighth frame after the first two batters in that inning had hit safely. By that time the ball game had been lost. It was just not McNally's day for his curve ball wouldn't and his fast ball wasn't and the Nationals had no trouble breaking through his service.

The Nationals did their best to hand the Petes the title for in the second game they started Craig with only one day's rest and he hadn't much in his repertoire and Saturday they elected an erratic southpaw Bob Carrick to do the gunning and left him in there until he had passed nine men in less than five frames. However the crackup of the Petes' strong pitching staff—and for that the long layoff and lack of work can be blamed—more than offset the Nationals' mistakes in their selection of gunners.

Hitting Falls Off

On top of ineffective pitching Saturday there was also a let down in the Petes' attack and the fact that 13 men were left on the bases tells its own story. The big three in Monday's game Doll, Calladine and Murphy who came through with three hits each were held to one blow, a single by Calladine, in the final struggle.

The Petes, however, have no alibis. They were outhit 14 to 7 Saturday and admit that the better team on the day's play won the ball game.

Kalmusky, Nationals second baseman led the Stratford attack with three hits, one a triple that drove in two runs while Radiff chased three runs over the counting station. This pair with Schoolmaster Craig who did a fine job of relief hurling when he took over from Carrick in the fifth inning were the Stratford heroes and Craig was carried off the field on the shoulders of Classic City fans when the game ended.

Both teams kicked in with a couple of errors in the first two frames but after that fielded without a flaw and there were some smart defensive plays to liven up the action. McGillivray contributed some flashy fielding in spite of two errors, while for the Petes Doll had a doubleplay unassisted, Kearns a nice catch of a short fly to centre and Whatley a great throw home to cut off a run at the plate.

Petes Good Start

As in Stratford the Petes got a good start. Kearns drew a pass and was sacrificed to second by Whatley. Starr singled off Radiff's glove and stole second and Doll walked to fill the bases. Calladine rolled to Kalmusky forcing Doll at second but McGillivray made a bad throw to first trying for a double and Kearns and Starr scored. Murphy flied out to Given.

McNally was in trouble as soon as the Stratford half opened. Radiff singled to centre and Kalmusky on the ground into right. McGillivray bunted safely trying to sacrifice and the bases were full. Miskimmons hit weakly to Cadd who threw badly to the plate, allowing Radiff to score. Hannigan lined into Doll's hands and the Petes' third sacker stepped on third to double Kalmusky. His quick throw to Cadd almost nailed McGillivray for a triple play. McNally tossed out Given.

The Petes filled the bases in the second on walks to McNally and Whatley, with a single by Kearns in between but there were two out and Carrick got out of the hole by striking out Eddie Starr.

Stratford tied the score without a hit in their half. Hanlon drew a pass, went to second on Baird's sacrifice. Carrick fanned. Radiff hoisted a long fly to Burton in left and Hanlon scored when the Petes' fielder dropped the ball. Kalmusky rolled to McNally.

The Fatal Fourth

There was nothing doing in the third but Stratford broke the game wide open in their half of the fourth. Given opened with a walk and was nearly doubled off first when Hanlon bunted a fly to McNally. Baird singled to left and Carrick to right scoring Given and sending Baird to third. On a squeeze play Baird raced home as Radiff bunted safely past McNally. Then Kalmusky slashed a triple down the right field foul line, scoring Carrick and Radiff. Stratford tried the squeeze play again but were outguessed this time Kalmusky being caught cold when McGillivray failed to hit the ball. McGillivray then walked but Miskimmons ended the inning by rolling out to Calladine.

The Petes made their last bid in the fifth. Doll and Calladine drew passes and after Murphy had struck out, Burton was also walked filling the bases. Cadd forced Doll at the plate on a tap to Radiff but McNally came through with a single to centre scoring Calladine and Burton. When Carrick failed to get the ball over for Kearns and passed him, again filling the bases, the southpaw was taken out in favor of Craig. Whatley teed off on a fast pitch from the relief pitcher and drove it deep to centre field but Given made a nice catch and the Petes big moment had gone.

Craig held them to two hits and no runs for the balance of the game.

A SOCCER PURGE

BRISTOL, England — (CP). — Bristol City football club's manager was suspended for the season, the club fined $483, and four amateurs declared profesisonal after a league inquiry into payments to amateurs and bonuses to players.

McGill Punts Win Over U. of T. 10-7; Imps And Nats Ties 12-12 Riders, Argos Swamp Tigers, Cubs

The kicker is still the thing in Canadian football.

Of course, it's nice when there is a powerful man on the team who can plunge like a ten-ton truck going through a wood fence, or a passer who can flip the ball into an end's pant pocket on the run. But the proper answer to a consistent 60-yard punter hasn't yet been found, except if it is another such punter on the other side.

Take McGill for an example. They have a fine passing attack and such powerful plungers as Andy Anton, Bob Keefer, Bob Kenny, Murray Telford, and Ronnie Perowne. Yet their plunging and passing offensives were both in the background on Saturday as long Herb Westman kicked them to a 10-7 victory over University of Toronto in one of the East's feature games.

The victory, taken before 18,000 jammed into University of Toronto Stadium, gave the Redmen undisputed leadership of the Intercollegiate Union, the only circuit with an individual leader after the second week's play on the eastern schedule. Sarnia Imperials and Montreal Nationals remained tied for the Ontario Union top after a 12-12 thriller at Sarnia, and Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders held the Interprovincial Union between them by romping over weak opposition.

The Red Highlight

Westman, sparking the best Red team from the Montreal University in a decade, shot Toronto Blues back into second place on a succession of long hoists that ranged from 55 to 80 yards. He punted two swift points in the first quarter and Toronto never really threatened to overcome the lead.

Behind 2-1 after the first half, when they tried and failed to match Westman by ground gains and passes, Toronto weakened gradually in the final two quarters. Westman drove another two points with his kicking and Perowne smashed off 36 yards from scrimmage to set up Telford's touchdown from two yards.

Perowne's drive and the touchdown Toronto got from it were the only spectacular features of the game besides Westman's kicking. Russ Merifield fumbled the touchdown kickoff, Toronto recovered on McGill's 25, matched another 15 yards on a talking penalty to Captain Lou Ruschin of McGill and Cam Gray fired a scoring pass to Bob Shuken over the McGill line.

There were only three minutes to play after that and the Blues, who made 15 first downs to McGill's five and completed six passes to McGill's one, didn't get out of their own territory as Westman hoofed them backwards, threatening to add to the McGill total.

Some Hot Kicking.

Sarnia got superlative kicking, too, from Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, who scored all their points in a gallant uphill fight to tie Nationals after Johnny Ferraro galloped 55 yards for a first-quarter touchdown. It was the first time since 1933 that Imperials failed to win at home.

It was 7-4 at the half, Stirling having booted a single and placement and Johnny Riddel a single for Nationals. And when it seemed the Imperial ace was leading the team to more points in the third quarter Nationals snatched quickly at another opportunity. Burton intercepted a lateral on the Sarnia 20 and raced over unmolested for a touchdown Tommy Burns failed to convert.

Stirling, who got a point on the third-quarter kickoff, charged back after that, kicked a single, and a few minutes later plunged over for an unconverted touchdown, making the score 12-11 for Nationals. Doggedly, Nationals fought to hold the edge in the fourth quarter, but Stirling wiped it out with a 70-yard hoist. His try for the winning point on the last play of the game was only five yards short.

Mustangs Take Queen's.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs also came from behind with a 77-yard touchdown march at the tail-end of thre third quarter to defeat Queen's 10-7 and tie Toronto for second place in the college circuit. The champion Queen's, winless in two starts, held a 7-1 lead at half-time on a field goal, two singles and a safety touch.

Alf Hurley culminated the Mustang march by scoring the touchdown on a quarterback sneak on the first play of the last quarter. Clem Faust, Lyn Thompson, and Wally Hilton were Western's stars.

There was little competition for the other three winners. Tommy Daley scored three touchdowns as Rough Riders swamped Hamilton Tigers 42-6 at Hamilton and Art West got two as Argonauts breezed past Montreal Cubs 25-2. Ab Box led Toronto Balmy Beach to an 18-2 victory over Peterborough Orfuns, scoring or leading the way to all his team's points with fine passing and punting.

JOCKEY GOT THE BIRD

SYDNEY—(CP). — Jockey W. Lappin got the bird in a race here. He rode into a flock of doves and one of the birds was scooped in Lappin's body as he crouched on his mount and was carried for about a furlong.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT DECLARER HATES

ONE THING WHICH a declarer usually hates to have you do is lead a suit which both he and your partner can ruff, your partner getting last whack at the trick. This enables your associate either to over-ruff or conserve a trump, an option which may mean the defeating of the contract.

North passed as dealer on this hand and East bid 1-Spade. West called 2-Hearts, East 2-Spades and South 3-Diamonds. Neither opponent felt like proceeding further, so the contract was played there.

In response to his partner's bids, West led the Spade Q. When declarer won this with the K in dummy, he immediately laid down the spade A, on which he threw the club 5. West ruffed with the diamond 9 and returned the club 2, which East won with the A. East continued with the club suit, leading the 6, which South ruffed. South then laid down the diamond A, capturing West's K. The result was that he lost one club, two hearts and the trick ruffed by West, so that he made his contract.

When East was in with the club A, instead of returning a club, he should have led another spade, as if South held the A and K of diamonds he would have led two rounds instead of using the spade A for a discard in spite of the fact that East had bid the suit twice.

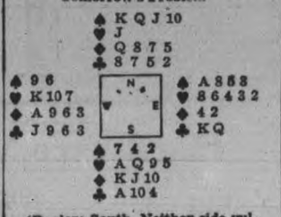
Tomorrow's Problem:



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Against bidding of 1-Heart by South, 1-Spade by North, 2-No Trump by South and 3-No Trump by North, why should West prefer leading clubs to diamonds?

Editor Brands Medical Services Free To Feeble Minded As "Raid On Public Health"

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17—(AP).—Henry L. Mencken, Baltimore editor, asserted yesterday the way the medical profession gives free service to the feeble-minded approximates "a raid on the public health.'

Unable to make a schedule address at a symposium on medical problems at Duke University at Durham, N.C., today, Mencken discussed medical problems in an interview and cited the free clinics of the John Hopkins Hospital here as an example.

Complimenting the work of the medical staff in service to 1,000 poor daily as valuable "beyond computation,"he added nevertheless, "The John Hopkins is the most brutally anti-social agency ever set up in Baltimore."

"The woman's clinic delivers about 1,400 babies a year in its own studios and about 500 more in the homes of their mothers. Its patients are about evenly divided between whites and blacks. Of the white mothers during a typical year 39.5 per cent. were found to be (I quote) 'seriously defective and feeble minded and of the colored mothers, 73.6 per cent.

Some Figures

"Exactly half the white mothers were registered at the Baltimore Social Service exchange as habitual or intermittent paupers ,and more than 37 per cent of the colored mothers. Of the whites, 89 per cent. came from families known to be afflicted by alcoholism, mental aberrations or other impediments to normal living, and of the blacks 86.1 per cent.

"Finally, of the white women 3.6 per cent had syphilis, and of the colored women 22.6 per cent.

"Imagine permitting such ghastly caricatures of humanity to reproduce their kind ad limitum, and not only permitting it, but even facilitating it.

"What sort of children do they beget? The answer is to be found in the records of the John Hopkins itself. The women who are being delivered of pathological specimens to-day are the daughters of pathological specimens who were delivered at the women's clinic 20 years ago. Twenty years hence their daughters will be back, ready with more syphilitic babies.

Husbands Also Patrons.

"The husbands and lovers of these precious ladies are also steady patrons of the hospital. They give their custom to the alcoholic and syphilitic wards. To be sure they are human, and so we must succor them. But how far precisely, do we propose to go in encouraging them to multiply their kind? How long are we going to endure a raid on the public health, the public security and the public solvency that increases in sweep and boldness every year?"

John Hopkins Hospital authorities refusing to be quoted by name, commented Mencken was "technically correct" and added his statements "might also apply to any of the large hospitals of any of the large cities of the country."

W.M.S. Of Hastings Plans For Rally

HASTINGS, Oct. 17.—The monthly meeting of Trinity United W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. W. Way on Thursday afternoon. During the devotional period special prayers were offered for China and Japan.

NEURITIS

"Kept from work for 3 weeks"

Anyone who has experienced the pain of Neuritis knows only too well how this ailment will put a shoulder, arm or leg out of action. Not only do you have the sharp pains to contend with, but perhaps fear of lying up and losing your job, too. Mr. V. H. says:

"My left arm kept me from work for three weeks with Neuritis. I went to one man, and he gave me oil, but it was no use. I then went to another, he gave me ointment, that was no use. Then I tried a bottle of Fynnon Salt, and within a few days, I was ready for work."

This is only one of the many cases where the regular use of Fynnon Salt has helped Rheumatic ailments. Why is this particular remedy so beneficial? Because it gets down to the cause. A ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water releases a combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium—"Salts of the Earth" similar to those that give famous Mineral Springs their beneficial properties. They work through your system, assisting in breaking up the painful Uric Acid crystals, driving out poisons, and assist the liver to fuller action. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists'. 328

Additional Troops Are Sent To Palestine

Admitting that the situation in Palestine was very grave, Malcolm MacDonald, colonial secretary, has announced that additional troops are being despatched from England and India to aid in restoring order in the Holy Land, where the Arabs are conducting a systematic program of terrorism against Jewish settlers. Members of the Jewish Settlers' Defence Corps are pictured, TOP, with barbed wire and iron fence posts as they set off to erect a barbed wire barricade to protect their homes from marauding bands of Arabs. Because of frequent Arab attacks on convoys of trucks and shooting of truck drivers, British troops have been established in highway outposts, BOTTOM, along all important roads in the Holy Land. Entrenched troops and armored cars feature these British highway patrols.

Foxboro Is Plunged Into Darkness As Car Smashes Into Hydro Pole

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 17.—The village of Foxboro was plunged into darkness early Friday morning, when a large switch box atop of a hydro pole was loosened from its fastenings after the pole had been struck by a motor car driven by Henry Hubbs of Moira, formerly of Wellington.

Hubbs was proceeding north through the village when he apparently lost control of the vehicle which crashed into the pole. Fortunately the pole did not break but the force of the impact loosened the switch box, which controls the lights of the village.

The automobile was a complete wreck, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine reported after investigating the matter. The accident occurred shortly after 2.00 a.m. Hubbs and a woman passenger both escaped without serious injury, although the lady sustained minor cuts and bruises. Both occupants were forced to crawl from out of the wreckage. It appears that Hubbs had apparently fallen asleep just prior to the accident.

Has Hand Amputated

His left hand terribly mangled after it had been drawn into the knives of an ensilage cutter, Fred Mayes of Thomasburg, 60-year-old farmer, was rushed to Belleville General Hospital on Thursday afternoon, where his injuries necessitated an amputation at the wrist. The operation was performed by Dr. Harold Welsh, Roslin physician.

According to reports emanating from the scene of the accident, Mayes was feeding corn to the cutter when in some manner his hand became caught in the revolving drums, drawing it into the machine where swiftly turning keen-edged knives slashed it to virtual ribbons.

What is said to be a record in grain production and threshing occurred on the farm of J. F. Westfall, Second Concession of Sidney. Charles St. Hilaire, well-known thresher of this district threshed 1,134 bushels of mixed grain in an afternoon.

The grain, grown and harvested by A. Hetherington and his son, is said to be one of the finest yields in the district.

Schools to Reopen

Tweed schools, closed for the past few days due to a slight epidemic of scarlet fever, will reopen on Monday if no further cases develop, Dr. M. G. Dales, medical health officer of the village, stated.

The ban on the churches, theatres and other public buildings, where people congregate will also be lifted, he added.

Children were forbidden to attend schools, churches, theatres, or other public meetings a week ago. Since that time ninety children have had the Dick test with 65 children being inoculated.

With inoculation of the children, we are not only taking steps to protect them at the present time, but it will also be a protection for them in the future, the doctor said.

A charge of spreading false information was laid against Cecil Revoir of Magog, Quebec, Thursday afternoon by Chief Constable Clare Hayes of Tweed.

Chief Hayes claims Revoir came to his home Wednesday evening with a story that the Bank of Canada at Ottawa was to be held up Thursday morning. He gave a description of the robbery that was to take place and also described the men who were to take part in the holdup, stated Chief Hayes. Revoir was taken to Perth on Wednesday where he admitted Thursday morning that he had made up the story.

A Coroner's jury Thursday afternoon exonerated Harry MacMullan of Tweed from blame for the death of Erma Levecque, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Levecque of Johnson's Corners, on Oct. 3. The jury's verdict stated that the little girl had come to her death "when accidently struck and run over by a truck operated by Harry MacMullan."

Several witnesses were examined and al claimed that no negligence could be attached to the driver of the truck.

A very bold robbery was committed at the village of Bonarlaw on Wednesday night, when thieves entered the general store of Bell and Barlow, by way of the front door in spite of the fact that this entrance is always in the light of an electric bulb immediately over the entrance. A small amount of cash, chiefly in coppers, was taken and some canned goods and tobacco. Officers Gray of Marmora and Dymond of Madoc are investigating.

Boys working in some coal mines in England are to attend school one day a week at full pay.

TUBE BURSTS

GLACE BAY, N.S.—(CP). — Two railway workers had to leap from a moving locomotive when a boiler tube blew out, filling the cab with steam. The engineer, Hugh MacPherson, remained aboard and brought the train to a halt.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 22c

Duff Cooper Has No Hope Of Peace With Nazi

PARIS, Oct. 17 (CP).—The German language weekly newspaper Die Zukimft yesterday carried an article signed by Alfred Duff Cooper in which the former First Lord of the Admiralty declared Germany's Nazi regime prevented a German and British people from working together for peace.

The article, featured in the anti-Nazi weekly's first appearance in Paris, said many in both France and Britain believed Prime Minister Chamberlain gave in too much to Chancellor Hitler in the Czechoslovak crisis.

"It is difficult to see how peace can ever reign between Christian peoples and the Nazis," wrote Mr. Duff Cooper who quit his British cabinet post in protest against Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy.

"But I believe in the bottom of my heart that peace can reign between all civilized peoples."

"The English people look to the future. They are aware that Chancellor Hitler, whose demands are increasing endlessly, will some day create a situation the inevitable result of which will be war.

"The people of Great Britain feel that war can be avoided only with the aid of its real ally—that is, the German people. The people of Great Britain have no aversion for the German people, but only for the present Nazi regime, which they deeply distrust.

Champions of Liberty.

"The people of Great Britain are champions of liberty. . . The British Empire is composed of men of many races and many creeds. The principle of the Empire is that the same law shall be applied to all men, whatever their religion or race.

"The Nazis believe there is only one race worthy of possessing the world. They have invented a race which they call 'Aryan' and which real scientists do not recognize. This 'Aryan' race, say the Nazis, has the right to persecute other races. . .

"The Nazis reject charity, grace and humility and declare them imported from the Orient. They condemn the race to which the founder of the Christian religion belonged and declare it unworthy of enjoying civil rights.

"It is therefore difficult to see how peace could ever reign between the Christian people and the Nazis. But I believe from the depth of my heart that peace can reign among all civilized peoples."

All Jerusalem Guards Are Doubled

Snipers Spread Terror All Day Monday Casualties Now 1,850

By James A. Mills
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

JERUSALEM, Oct. 18 (A.P.). — British troops doubled guard strength to-day lest Arab rebels attack the modern districts of Jerusalem after a night of terrorist bombings in the old section of the city.

Columns of British armored cars and truck loads of police patrolled streets outside the old city's walls.

The situation in the old city became so critical shortly before midnight yesterday that authorities had to rush military and police reinforcements to protect the Jewish and Armenian quarters, which were understood to be the only parts of the old city under complete Government control.

Other troops guarded every approach to the city.

Outlying garrisons deployed to recapture insurgent-held towns, preliminary to a punitive expedition by the full strength of 20,000 British troops and police to crush the estimated 10,000 Arab forces. They protest Jewish immigration sponsored by Great Britain under her League of Nations mandate to govern Palestine.

Out to Gain Control.

Officials set for the British force four main objectives, all aimed at recovering territory held by the Arabs:

1—Repair, occupation, and control of widely sabotaged railroads.

2—Restoration and maintenance of telegraph and telephone communications badly disrupted by the insurgents.

3—Re-establishment of security on all highways, many now strewn with land mines.

4—Occupation of the more active rebel centres and punitive measures against the recalcitrant Arab villages.

The present garrisons, in line with the fourth objective, now are campaigning to recapture the towns of Beersheba, Gaza, Hebron, Bethlehem and Jericho.

Throughout Monday snipers fired from alleys, cellars and house tops, adding unnumbered casualties to the total of more than 1,850 rolled up in the past 12 weeks, including more than 800 dead. A police station was set afire.

18 Students Run Their Own Boarding House

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Eighteen University of Toronto students, who operate a big boarding house for themselves at a weekly cost of $5.80 to $6.60 a man, hope some day to see an apartment building or two owned and run on a co-operative basis for students.

Rowell Bowles, a senior, today outlined the three-year development of the boarding-house residence officially known as the Toronto Co-operative residence. It was admitted to membership in the Co-operative Union of Canada over the week-end.

Inspired by the Japanese social worker, Kagawa, leader of the co-operative movement in his country, four students worked out plans for a co-operative residence after hearing him speak at a conference in Indianapolis in 1935. They rented a house on the campus from Victoria University and each of 18 male students deposited $10 as initial capital.

"We try to run at current boarding house rates—$5.80 to $6.60 a week—including board and room," said Bowles, a fourth-year student in the Philosophy, English and History course. "In addition each fellow does four hours work a week."

The co-operative hires a caretaker and a cook gets lunch but the students prepare breakfast and dinner. In addition to the 18 in the house, there are a don, a professor in the university, and a hostess, the don's wife.

Overcharges Refunded.

"As any other co-operative, we refund an overcharge," Bowles explained. "Last year we declared a 15-per-cent dividend."

This season, he added, the co-

Want Canada To Take Sudetens

Propose 4 Dominions Let 20,000 Anti-Nazi Settle

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP Cable)—The Canadian government has been informed by the United Kingdom government of the gravity of the refugee problem in Czechoslovakia with a view to promoting a mass movement of anti-Nazi Sudeten Germans to Canada.

The figure of 20,000 is mentioned as the share of the four Dominions—Canada, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand—in a world-wide effort to repatriate these people who fled into Czechoslovakia rather than live under Nazi rule. For the most part they are Social Democrats, opponents of Chancellor Hitler, who fled from the ceded territories.

It is understood here that funds are available to set them up in Canada as farmers if the Canadian government will accept them. The United Kingdom government has merely acquainted Ottawa with the gravity of the situation and all decisions must be made by the Canadian authorities.

The refugee committee of the League of Nations is supervising the evacuation of Sudeten German refugees from Czechoslovakia.

Otawa Silent.

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Pending receipt of advice from the British government in regard to a proposed movement of anti-Nazi Sudeten Germans to British Dominions, Resources Minister Crerar, who has charge of Canadian immigration, declined to-day to comment on the situation other than to say any request of this nature from the British government would receive careful consideration.

Macaulay Backs Hepburn On Wheat Stand

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (CP)—Leopold Macaulay, leader of the Conservative party in the Ontario Legislature, supported the declaration of Premier Hepburn against the Federal government's guarantee of a minimum price for Western Canada wheat in an address last night before the Toronto Eglinton Riding Conservative Association.

"Sometimes I don't like Premier Hepburn's methods or the violent phrasing of his statements, but I think he is completely justified in his protests against the wheat bonus," Mr. Macaulay said. "I can't blame the administration for feeling that Ontario is being made the milch cow for Canada when Western farmers get 85 cents a bushel for wheat, and the Ontario farmer can get only 50 cents.

"There is discrimination, too, in freight rates and the difference comes out of the treasury. The Dominion government must stop yielding to the economic pressure of groups and begin treating all farmers equally."

Scored 80 Cent Price

(In recent addresses, Premier Hepburn has criticized the action of the Dominion government in setting 80 cents a bushel as the minimum price to be paid western farmers by the Canadian wheat board for No. 1 Northern wheat, basis Fort William. The premier also has charged discrimination exists between railway freight rates in eastern and western Canada.)

He charged that Prime Minister Mackenzie King's handling of Canada's foreign policy during the recent international crisis was "slipshod and negligent" and claimed the Conservative opposition should have been kept informed of developments.

Mr. Macaulay said Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Dominion Conservative leader had told him "the prime minister did not telephone or write a single syllable of what was going on, even though reams of information was reaching him by cable almost hourly."

Mel Campbell, Girl And Pal Nabbed In Windsor For Mt. Brydges' Bank Job

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP).—Melville Campbell, 35, was arrested today by Windsor and Provincial Police in a raid on an apartment here. Police charged him with the robbery last Thursday of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and a Richmond, Ont., bank last July.

Katherine Byrne, 22, found in the Campbell apartment, also was arrested and charged with receiving stolen goods. John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor, also found in the apartment, was held for investigation. Two loaded revolvers were found in the apartment. One was identified by police as having been stolen in the Mount Brydges holdup when $4,000 loot was obtained.

Police said $2,000 in stolen money was recovered in the raid. A warrant was out for Campbell's arrest since soon after the robbery of the bank at Richmond, Ont., near Ottawa, when $12,000 loot was taken. Oscar Campbell, a brother of Melville, was sentenced to 12 years in Kingston on the Richmond Bank robbery.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Campbell and Miss Byrne, police said, have been living in the Windsor apartment since August 22 as Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Thompson.

Provincial Police took Campbell and Donaghue to London, where J. W. Flatt, manager of the Mount Brydges Bank, and R. A. Norman, bank teller, will view them in a police lineup.

Twenty Provincial Police arrived here yesterday to prepare for the raid. Inspector E. D. L. Hammond said police received the tip three days ago that Campbell was here. He would not disclose source of the information.

When police broke into the apartment, they found Campbell and Miss Byrne. Officers said there was a loaded .38 revolver under a pillow and the other gun was in a dresser drawer.

The room was littered with beer and whisky bottles.

20 Wounds on Body.

Campbell's face bears only slight evidence of the gunshot wounds he was said to have suffered in a police ambush last August when he drove away from his brother Oscar's hideout near Ottawa. Police said there were about 20 wounds on his body. All indicated, they said, he had received correct medical attention.

Provincial Police had expected Campbell to give himself up for five days, but when he failed to do so, they raided his apartment. They said they found $2,000 in the water closet in the bathroom.

Provincial police who conducted the raid said Campbell jumped out of bed as soon as they entered, then kicked a screen out of the window and prepared to jump when another group of Provincial Police below ordered him back at the point of their revolvers.

Third Brother Jailed.

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Howard Campbell, brother of Oscar Campbell, who recently was sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary at Ottawa for bank robbery, was arrested here to-day and held on a vagrancy charge.

Police refused to discuss details of the arrest.

A third brother, Melville, was arrested at Windsor and charged with robbery of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of Canada last week.

Campbell was remanded in police court until Oct. 25 by Magistrate Tinker. The magistrate said bail would be discussed later in the day.

Daladier Favors Calling General Vote

PARIS, Oct. 18 — (AP). — New labor problems and increasing political problems beset the government of Premier Daladier to-day.

Renewed reports gained circulation in political circles that the Premier was considering dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies to permit an appeal to the country for support through a general election.

Only concern for the chances in an election of some of his Radical Socialist party colleagues held him back, these sources indicated.

The Premier has encountered increasing difficulties since the agreement September 30 at Munich to partition Czechoslovakia and a subsequent reactio namong Leftist groups that it was too high a price to pay for peace.

Rightist groups are attacking his execution of the national defence-rearmament program. Socialist dissatisfaction became more marked to-day. Comment increased that the Premier had not yet made use of the power to govern by emergency decrees, granted by Parliament two weeks ago.

The Premier's efforts to extend the work week in aviation plants from 40 to 45 hours met an abrupt setback yesterday when thousands of workers quite at the end of the day and went home.

The secretary of the powerful Paris Labor Union Central ordered a street demonstration Saturday to be the "beginning of action" to gain workers demands.

Major J. H. Clark Named Speaker

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP). — Major J. H. Clark, Liberal member in the Ontario Legislature for Windsor-Sandwich, will be Speaker of the Legislature at the coming session. Major Clark visited Premier Hepburn to-day, was formally offered, and accepted the honor. He succeeds to the Speakership left vacant by Hon. Norman O. Hipel, elevated to the Cabinet as Minister of Labor.

On the opening day of the next session (probably in February) Major Clark will be nominated by Premier Hepburn.

Toronto, Oct. 18.

POLICE today held a 14-year-old boy, who broke his leg in a 16-foot jump from a bicycle parts factory, on a shop-breaking charge along with a 15-year-old companion who was helping him down when police arrested him. Constable Len O'Hara found the boys when he heard a noise inside the shop in the central part of the city.

Cross-Examining Of Lafleche Begun By Drew

Col. Drew was the author of an article in Maclean's Magazine which led to the inquiry. The investigation concerns a contract under which the John Inglis Company of Toronto is to manufacture 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the Department of National Defence. The company, of which Major James E. Hahn is president, also holds a contract to make 5,000 guns for the British War Office.

Col. Drew questioned General Lafleche on his knowledge of the terms of reference to the Royal Commission. General Lafleche said he was familiar with the terms, particularly those relating to association of any member of Parliament with the Bren contract.

"Have you any information in addition to that you have already given, in regard to activities of members of Parliament in this connection at any stage?" Col. Drew asked.

When General Lafleche started his reply Col. Drew asked Mr. Justice Davis to instruct the witness he wanted straight answers and "not speeches."

Refers to Plaxton.

General Lafleche said he had no memory of any member of Parliament other than the one he had mentioned in his evidence, being connected with the contract. "He continued to take an interest in the outcome of these negotiations."

Col. Drew: "You mean Hugh Plaxton (Liberal member for Toronto-Trinity)?"

"Yes, sir."

"How often did he see you?"

"I couldn't answer that definitely."

"Well, was it once a year or 10 times a year?"

"Probably four or five times."

General Lafleche said the first discussion he had with Mr. Plaxton over light machine guns was October 9, 1936, when Mr. Plaxton

Survivors Located In Nick Of Time Huddled Down Shaft

TIMMINS, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP)—Carbon monoxide fumes swept through the darkened corridors of the 1,250-foot level at Coniarum mine near Schumacher last night and left one man dead and eight others partially asphyxiated.

Matthew Butkovitch, 36-year-old Yugoslavian, was trapped in an attempt to escape. He fell behind a pile of timber and rescuers worked two hours chopping away the wood before the body was extricated.

His companions, choking and weak, were huddled at the foot of the shaft, when a rescue crew assisted them to the surface and applied artificial respiration.

Touring Club Owners Get Stabbed In Fight

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP). — Two night club proprietors from Albany, N.Y., touring the night spots here were stabbed and seriously wounded early to-day during a fight in the Swing Club.

Detective James Hamill said the fight started when the two men, Raymond Fine, 27, and his brother, Donald, 30, became angry over their inability to find their hats when they prepared to leave.

Detective Hamill said the brothers, owners of "Dinty's Paris Gardens" in Albany, and a third man who drove here with them yesterday fled after a fight that raged from the barroom to the street. The brothers were overtaken, stabbed and beaten.

Police held the owner of the Swing Club, Al Schechtor, and seven employees.

Ex-Spy Says Munich Pact A Fraud Hitler Had No Intention Of War

LONDON, Oct. 18—(CP-Havas).—Captain Von Tintelein, said to be a former agent of the German intelligence service, said last night in a speech at Bromley that the Munich four-power settlement was a "gigantic fraud" because Germany would not have gone to war.

"The affair of two weeks ago was a gigantic fraud and bluff, and both England and France fell for it," said Captain Von Tintelein. "I have positive and definite information and evidence of it. It was never a question of war or peace at all.

"The German high command was opposed to war throughout, and if war had come something would have happened in Germany that you would never have thought of."

West Stokes Up Under Blanket Of Snow But Fire Fighters, Farmers Cheer

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18 (CP)—Winter nipped at Western Canada today and residents rushed to stoke furnaces, particularly in Manitoba and Saskatchewan where the season's first snow fell, heavy and wet.

But the raw weather was timely. Rain and snow in Manitoba ended immediate threat of forest fires just as week-end rains relieved the fire situation near Fort Frances, Ont., where 20 persons died last week in flaming timberlands.

Heavy snow in riding Mountain National Park, 250 miles north-west of Winnipeg, smothered six small fires. Rain which developed into sleet quelled more serious fires at Ashern 115 miles north-west of Winnipeg where the town itself had been threatened. Rain stopped fires at Sprague in southern Manitoba.

Heavy rain in Winnipeg and Brandon yesterday turned to sleet and finally to snow, ending a long period of dry weather in the province. Most of the snow melted as it hit the streets. Low temperature at Winnipeg was 22 degrees.

Snow fell in many parts of southern Saskatchewan, extending across the southern part of the province as far west as Assiniboia. It melted in the far west but still lay on the ground in south-eastern Saskatchewan. Farmers welcomed the moisture. Regina recorded a low of 32 degrees while it was 24 at Saskatoon yesterday.

No snow was reported in the more settled districts of Alberta but Pilot Harry Winny of Canadian Airways reported in Edmonton large areas in the northern part of the province are blanketed with snow. Practically all the small lakes between Edmonton and McMurray, 130 miles north, are frozen over, he said. The temperature fell to 24 in Edmonton yesterday and 20 in Calgary.

Predict British, French War Debts Be Paid U.S. After Nov. 8 Elections

Last Minute News Flashes

BUFFALO, N.Y.—The Buffalo Evening News today quoted Dr. Allan Ray Dafoe as saying King George and Quen Elizabeth will visit the Dionne quintuplets when they are in Canada next summer.

FRANKSVILLE, Wis.—Forty children were injured, none seriously, when an air tank of the water heating system in the Franksville grade school exploded. Fifty others escaped unhurt.

OTTAWA.—Mary Donnelly, 28, of Toronto went on trial before County Judge E. J. Daly today on a charge of being an accessory after the fact in connection with the $12,000 holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Richmond last July 19. She pleaded not guilty through counsel. The woman was arrested last July 31, with Oscar Campbell, 41, of Toronto, serving a 12-year penitentiary sentence for the robbery.

LONDON.—A Buckingham Palace spokesman commenting tonight on reports the King and Queen would visit the Dionne quintuplets during their visit to Canada next year, insisted no definite plans had yet been fixed. "I haven't the faintest idea whether their Majesties will see the quintuplets," he said.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—(AP).—The financial newspaper, Agence Economique et Financiere, predicted today that British and French war debts to the United States would be settled after the American elections next month.

The newspaper, close to the ministry of finance, said France then "would, moreover, benefit from the possibility of obtaining important credits" in the United States.

"In view of the evolution in attitude of governing circles in the United States as well as in England," said the newspaper, "it seems normal to consider that after the elections to be held Nov. 8 in the United States, it will be possible to examine and settle the problem of war debts with the entire breadth of view necessary."

France owes more than $4,250,000,000. (Great Britain's debt is approximately $5,000,000,000.

Six Priests Arrested In Vienna Campaign

VIENNA, Oct. 18—(AP).—Six Roman Catholic priests and an employee of Theodor Cardinal Innitzer were under arrest today in continuation of what Nazis declared were measures against the "treasonable" attitude of the clergy toward the Nazi party and Chancellor Hitler personally.

Those arrested, Nazis said, were suspected of organizing a demonstration before St. Stephen's Cathedral Oct. 7, during which Catholic youths chanted, after the Nazi fashion, "we want to see our bishop," using the word "bishop" instead of the customary "fuehrer."

11,132 Cattle In Peterboro' County Have Been Given T.B. Test

Of the 29,000 cattle in Peterborough county ,11,132 had been tested for bovine tuberculosis up to October 12, with 395 reactors, Dr. G. R. Penhall, general veterinary inspector for the Department of Agriculture in this district, informed the Examiner today.

"And we have had splendid co-operation from the farmers," Dr. Penhall added. "Not one of them has complained or objected in any way. The work has gone ahead in an agreeable and pleasant way, and if you say anything about its progress I'd like to mention the helpful attitude and disposition of the farmers toward it. I'd like to pay this little tribute to them because it has been a pleasure to work with them. They are a fine lot of people, and that is true not only of Otonabee but also in Smith where seventy herds have been tested and elsewhere throughout the district.

The district of which Dr. Penhall has charge comprises Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough and sections of Northumberland and Durham.

Reactors 3½ Per Cent.

The percentage of reactors in the work that has been done so far is 3½ per cent, as compared with 19 per cent in some districts of the Toronto zone.

The T.B. testing is the prime requirement to the establishment of Peterborough county as an accredited area. It was a policy which A. D. Runions, former county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, helped promote. Following the ways of democracy, the farmers took a vote on it, and when the result showed that a large majority of them were in favor of it, their wishes were conveyed to the government through the agency of the county council. It is only fair to J. J. Duffus, M.P., to recall that he urged the undertaking of the tests this year although only Dr. A.

New York, Oct. 18 (CP)

PASSERS-BY and police became impromptu goatherds yesterday when a billy-goat made a sudden and unexplained appearance on Seventh Avenue and lived up to tradition by butting everyone not quick enough to get out of the way. An officer eventually cornered the goat in a hardware store and lassoed him with a rope supplied by the proprietor, while crowds cheered.

2 Fires In 17 Minutes Put 16 On Street And Starts Arson Squad In Action

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)

TORONTO ARSON SQUAD is investigating two west-end fires that broke out within 17 minutes today and drove 16 persons to the street in night attire. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

The first blaze in a row of single-storey frame garages and a casket manufacturing plant in Claremont street still was burning when alarm for the second fire was sounded. A second alarm was turned in when firemen reached the scene, a furniture store and apartments on Queen street west.

Ten persons in apartments over the store were driven out by flames sweeping the rear of the building. Six others had to leave an apartment behind a neighboring shoe repair shop.

Mary Blustein, asleep in a room over the furniture store, told police she was awakened by someone rattling the door of a warehouse used for furniture storage.

"Someone started to shout fire," she said.

Damage to the furniture store and apartment was set at $16,000 while damages to the garages and trucks inside was estimated at more than $3,800.

Strong Jap Column Swings Down Upon Famed Bocca Tigris Forts

Capture Would Let Nippon Warships Through To Pound Canton Put Capital Under Fire From 2 Sides

By Elmer Peterson
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

HONG KONG, Oct. 18 (AP).—A strong Japanese column drove southeastward today across flat terrain toward the Bocca Tigris forts, capture of which would deal a sharp blow to the defence of Canton whose water approaches they guard.

If the invaders can eliminate those fortifications—which the Chinese call "Tiger's Mouth" and which are supplied with modern armaments—they will enable warships to fight a way to the south China metropolis.

A vicious land attack on the stronghold appeared imminent as the column pushed on after capturing Cheungmuktau, midway between Hong Kong and Canton, about 80 miles apart, and on the vital Canton-Kowloon Railway.

With an estimated 3,000 square miles of Kwangtung (Canton) Province conquered in less than a week, the Japanese intensified efforts to reach Tsenghsing, 50 miles northeast of Canton on the Waichow-Canton highway.

They also blazed their way toward Sheklung, an important railway centre 50 miles due east of Canton on the East River.

A constant stream of cannon, tanks and trucks carrying soldiers moved through Waichow from Bias Bay, where the new Japanese expeditionary force landed last Wednesday. Observers believed the advance presaged a final drive on Canton, an important source of supplies to Chinese armies 600 miles to the north.

Urge Month Delay In Oil Inquiry

CALGARY, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Adjournment for a month of the royal commission inquiry into Alberta oil production and prices was considered possible today pending completion of reports and evidence to be submitted.

When the hearing, which opened yesterday, resumed today counsel representing the commission, various oil companies and the Alberta Petroleum Producers' Association will submit a "program of procedure" in presenting evidence.

J. J. Frawley, counsel for the two-man commission, charged yesterday the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation of America, with headquarters in New York, controls manufacture and sale of Standard gasoline in Alberta because it had a monopoly on use of Tetra Ethyl lead, necessary to bring gasoline as refined from Turner Valley crude oil to a 70 octane grade for use in high compression motors.

He said the Ethyl Corporation controls sale of Tetra Ethyl lead under United States and Canadian Patents, permitting only licensed dealers to handle it.

Of the total gasoline gallonage used in Alberta, Imperial Oil Limited sold 47.50 per cent, either through its own marketing agencies or in sales to other companies, Mr. Frawley said.

The Imperial Oil Limited, he said, sold supplies to the North Star Oil Company, the Maple Leaf, McColl-Frontenac, Union Oil of Canada and the Canadian Oil Company Limited. All gasoline sold by these companies, he indicated, came from Imperial Refinery sources.

Turk President Gravely Ill

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 18—(AP)—An official communique said today President Kamal Ataturk was gravely ill. He is 38-years-old.

The communique said:

"The condition of the president, who has long been suffering from a liver complaint, suddenly grew worse on Sunday. And although a slight improvement occurred overnight his illness is still maintaining a grave character."

The health of the "Grey Wolf," who built a new nation on the ruins of the Ottoman Empire had been the subject of disquieting rumors for months.

Last May Ataturk gave to the nation the bulk of his wealth, estimated at several million dollars. One of his last reported activities since then was a reception he gave King Carol of Rumania June 19 aboard his yacht, the Savarona.

During his 15 years of power Ataturk has separated church from state, outlawed the fez and veil, abolished the Sultanate and ended polygamy in Turkey.

Mata Hari Stories Downfall Of Spy

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A United States army deserter resumed today his story by which the government hopes to convict three alleged spies of selling military secrets to Germany.

Guenther Rumrich, 32, a principal government witness now that he has pleaded guilty, testified in federal court yesterday that he was a lifelong reader of tales exploiting the mystery and glamor spun over the doings of spies.

Among those who intrigued him was Mata Hari, the Japanese woman who hired out to the German Government in World War times.

In a brooding monotone, he told his part in the shadowy plot, allegedly directed by "high officials of the German War Ministry," which would mean death before a firing-squad in time of war.

The maximum peace-time penalty is 20 years in prison, although Rumrich hopes for mercy for "putting the finger" on his three alleged co-conspirators.

Rumrich never glanced at the trio he says he worked with in the plot—pretty, titian-haired Johanna (Jenni) Hoffman, 26, former beauty shop employee on the North German Lloyd liner Europa; Erich Glaser, 28, former United States army private, and Otto Hermann Voss, 36, former mechanic at the de Seversky airplane plant at Farmingdale, Long Island.

operative could have filled the place twice. Members tried to obtain another house but were unable to find one they could operate successfully on their available capital. They hope, however, to run a second house next fall.

Women students interested in a co-operative "came within an ace of having a residence" this year. The project fell through, Bowles explained, because of a misunderstanding with owners of the building they intended to rent.

"Membership is open," he said of the co-operative. "There are no restrictions on politics, race or creed. There is a Japanese in the house. We have students from all across Canada."

Bowles, who hopes to become a United Church minister, said the co-operative was affiliated with other student co-operatives in Canada. This year, he believed a co-operative residence had been established at University of Saskatchewan.

The co-operative would like to develop like some of the large ones in the United States. In University of Southern California, the students co-operative owns two or three of the largest apartment houses in the city.

"It seems to me," he concluded, "this is one of the ways to meet the student's economic problem which is becoming steeper all the time. It is becoming more difficult all the time to obtain part-time work."

Change Of Heads In Spain

JUAN NEGRIN DIEGO MARTINEZ-BARRIOS

According to reports received in London the Spanish Loyalist government premier, Juan Negrin, has resigned his office and may be succeeded by former President and Premier Diego Martinez-Barrios. Report of Negrin's resignation came after a radio speech by him, delivered during an insurgent air raid on Barcelona, in which he rejected the suggestion of mediation by the four Munich pact powers to end Spain's civil war. Negrin is a Socialist. Martinez-Barrios a left Republican.

Day Charges Reds Calling Jobless To Rally In "Scared" Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 18. — (CP.)—Mayor Ralph C. Day carried his charges of Communist agitation in the ranks of single unemployed to city council last night. He repeated a statement made earlier in the day that Communists had extended invitations to single unemployed from all over Canada to head for Toronto and read confidential reports on the subject.

Mayor Day said Communists sent official statements throughout the country to the effect that the unemployed now had Toronto City Council "buffaloed" and "on the run."

The Mayor named Alderman Stewart Smith as leader of the Communist party in Ontario; Alderman J. B. Salesberg, Communist director for trade union work; Harvey Murphy, president of the single unemployed association, and George Harris, secretary, as members of the Ontario Communist party executive.

The mayor read a report of what he alleged to be minutes of meetings held by this association.

He read: "Word has been sent throughout all the "jungles," police stations, overnight stops, etc., throughout Canada, to head for Toronto, that the City Council and Provincial Government are afraid of us and are going to provide a special building, supply beds, bedding, heat, food, etc., and give the association the running of it without interference.

Need More Power.

"However, as only through a strong fighting organization can we hold this, or gain any future concessions hLwisfNee sions, we need every possible man here in Toronto. This is only the beginning; Vancouver will be a kindergarden beside this."

Unemployed took possession of a hotel and a Vancouver building last year?

Quoting from the association's minutes of a meeting here October 7th, Mayor Day read: "Toronto is to be meeting place.

The association has the City Council and Provincial government buffaloed. And all that is necessary is that every man on the road come to Toronto at once and he will be assured food, clothing and shelter for the winter. It is expected that next year the matter will come to a head and a heavy show of power in a demonstration form may be necessary."

Mayor Day then read from what he said were minutes of a meeting October 12 in a house on Ontario street here. He said "The Young Communist League has recruited a unit in the organization of 40 transients, ranging in age from 16 to 21.

They are under the leadership of Joseph Haurin, former Loyalist soldier recently returned from Spain, and Wally Dent of the Y. C. L. They met every Friday at 7 pm at 386 Ontario street"

From what he said were minutes of a meeting held last Friday, the Mayor read: "Developments today at the city hall have caused much elation within the ranks of the organization. Walker and George Harris say that the city is now on the run and that the councillors are afraid of us."

Mayor Day told a deputation of unemployed the city would care for its bona fide single unemployed but not for men from out of town.

Prowlers Shoot Hat Off Officer But Fail To Stop Him

Owen Sound, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP).

SERGEANT Jack McCaffrey of the City Police Department was shot at by prowlers on the property of the C.P.R. in the of the British American Oil while investigating a potential robbery Sunday night. The bullet struck the crown of his hat, tearing three holes through it without so much as ruffling a hair.

McCaffrey and P. C. Croucher, investigating activities of two men on the oil companies premises, surprised the men who ran along the tracks at the rear. As Sergt. McCaffrey raced around the end of a string of box cars a shot came out of the dark, tore his hat off. His answering shot failed to take effect and six hours of subsequent search failed to reveal anything.

Cree Indian Brave Dies In Alberta At 110

EDMONTON, Oct. 18 (CP.). — Mista Jim, reputedly 110 years old and the oldest Indian in Northern and Central Alberta, is dead, it was learned to-day. The near-sightless Cree died from old age on October 1 in his cabin on the Winterburn Reserve nine miles west of Edmonton.

Born not many miles from the reserve, Mista Jim never saw his father. "He was killed in a war with the Blackfeet," he said in an interview last April.

Exact age of Mista Jim is not known.

"We estimate he was between 107 and 115 years old from what he had told us," said an official at the reservation. "So we have placed his age at about 110."

A devout Christian since he was baptized "William Jim" by a minister years ago in "Fort Edmonton," Mista Jim was buried in the reserve's small cemetery after a simple funeral service on October 3.

Louis Rice and his son, Leo, poultry dealer, said the accused sold them chickens later identified as those stolen from McNevin. Fleming denied being in the Rice place of business and his wife said her husband was in bed at the time he is alleged to have sold the fowl. The charge is adjourned a week.

Hitler's Word Supreme In Europe If Franco Wins Says Duchess

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(CP)— The Duchess of Atholl, in an address here last night, said that if the insurgent forces led by General Franco triumph in Spain, France would be so encircled by dictator-ruled countries and her colonial communications would be so endangered that Reichsfuehrer Hitlers world "could not fail to rule throughout Europe."

The Duchess said General Franco is heavily indebted to the Berlin-Rome axis for help in his revolt against the Spanish government and the influence of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini would be strong in Spain if the insurgents succeed. She said also that since Spain is the mother country of many of the South American republics, that influence could be extendad to the new world.

The Duchess is on a lecture tour to raise funds for the food relief ship being sent from America and Canada to the Spanish government.

Unity Of Ireland Stirs Wide Range Of Views

LONDON, October 18 —(C. P. Cable)—Newspaper comment in Belfast, Dublin and London today reflected a diversity of views regarding Prime Minister De Valera's new proposal to end the partition of Ireland.

The Eire Prime Minister in an interview with the Evening Standard called for an all-Ireland parliament at Dublin with autonomy over local Northern Ireland affairs for the Belfast administration.

The Belfast News Letter (Unionist) asserted Mr. De Valera wanted to "blackmail the British government by talking of Free-State estrangement in a time of war." and said: "Mr. De Valera's proposals are wholly unacceptable Northern Ireland is within the United Kingdom and intends to remain there."

The Belfast Northern Whig (Conservative) charged Mr. De Valera with using the "Hitler technique."

The Belfast Irish News (Nationalist) declared: "It was Britain that created the partition problem and it is Britain that must help solve it if her earnest desire is for a friendly and contended Ireland."

Path To Cooperation

The Irish Times, Dublin, said: "Mr De Valera suggests that with the ending of partition the way would be clear for real cooperation between Dublin and London. The government and people of Northern Ireland have it in their power to make a gesture however slight in favour of the principle of unity. Thereby they can do great service to the imperial cause which they always had at heart."

The London Daily Mail (Independent) said: "Deeply though the friendship of Eire is valued, our people cannot be expected to coerce Ulster. Mr. Chamberlain has made it absolutely plain that unity is a question to be settled betwen Ulster and her neighbor.'

The London Daily Herald (Labor) described the Eire Prime Minister's proposal as "One which at the very least is worthy of sympathetic consideration," adding "So far as Britain is concerned, what is essential is that while watching the interests of all minorities, any policy which offers the possibility of permanent solution of the British problem shall receive due consideration."

Cross-Examining

brought Major Hahn to his office where a Bren gun was mounted. He could not recall ever having discussed machine guns with Mr. Plaxton prior to that date.

Shortly after that Mr. Plaxton and Major Hahn went to London. He had a cable from Plaxton from London, but didn't se him until the parliamentary session of 1937. He would not say Plaxton was "pushing" him harder than anybody else in connection with the Bren gun.

"But he was pushing you about six times a year," Col. Drew observed.

Between the date the Bren contract was submitted to the interdepartmental committee and March 17, when the committee passed it, he had seen Plaxton on several occasions, General Lafleche said.

"He called at my office to find out what was being done."

Col. Drew: "He knew this contract was before the committee?"

Witness: "So did everyone else."

Col. Drew: "Do you mean all members of parliament?"

General Lafleche said he meant all members of the department. He did not know of any other members of parliament who knew of the contract's progress. Mr. Plaxton had a "natural interest" because the proposed plant was in his riding.

"Did you ever know," Col. Drew asked, "of a member of parliament so intensely interested in his riding that he would make a trip to England to further that interest?"

"I don't recall any at the moment," General Lafleche replied.

Col. Drew asked where General Lafleche dined on the night of March 17, 1938, the night the interdepartmental committee at a session lasting until three a.m. approved of the contract. The General could not recall.

"If I suggest to you that you dined with Major General A. C. Caldwell (Master general of the ordnance), Mr. Plaxton and Major Hahn at the Rideau Club would you say that is incorrect?"

"I would say there is nothing improbable about it. I belong to the Rideau Club and I dine there infrequently."

Col. Drew said surely the witness could remember with whom he dined on that night.

"Who paid the bill?" asked General Lafleche.

"I don't know. I hope you didn't," said Col. Drew.

General Lafleche said he could not say he did or didn't dine with the three men but would look it up. Mr. Justice Davis asked how he could look it up and he said the books of the club would show it and would also show "who paid the bill."

Recalls No Report

Col. Drew asked in any report was made by officers who attended the 1935 jubilee celebration and subsequent conference in London relating to light machine guns, not particularly the Bren gun. The witness said he would have a search made but could not recall any special report on machine guns.

"You have said the war office preferred the guns should be made in a private factory?" asked Col. Drew.

"Yes and that was made inevitable by the policy of the Canadian government," said General Lafleche.

"How?"

"I felt it was necessary that there be made a sufficiently large number of units so that the capital expenditure might be spread. But I could not satisfy the requirements of the British government for 5,000 guns if they were to be made in a government owned factory."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Winnipeg wheat futures drifted lower for the second session to-day due to lack of interest and weakness at Liverpool. At the final bell prices were 1¼ to ⅝ cent lower. October 60¾, November 60½b. December 59¾, and May 63 to 63⅛.

Large scale French wheat sales and excellent wheat crop conditions in Argentina encouraged liquidation at Liverpool. Outside interest was slow at Winnipeg because no export business could be traced overnight. During the session only a small quantity of durum was bought by export firms.

The English market closed 1⅝ to ⅞d lower. Overseas sources reported France had sold 3,974,000 bushels of wheat to the United Kingdom and 5,500,000 bushels to Italy in exchange for sulphur.

Toronto May Set Tax On Meals To Aid Hospitals

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Possibility of the inauguration of a special tax on hotel and restaurant meals or a local amusement tax was foreseen to-day as Toronto's city councillors sought a solution to the problem of recurring hospital deficits.

The City Council late last night voted to request the Board of Control to continue its investigation of deficits, created in four hospitals, and report its recommendations to the next council meeting. Hospital authorities have declared services may be curtailed unless funds are raised to meet the deficits.

During the debate several councillors referred to meal taxes imposed in Montreal to collect revenue for hospitals.

"I understand that in Montreal they take care of such hospital problems by imposing a special tax on meals," Alderman Ernest Bray interjected.

Alderman Dr. J. Gordon J. Millen suggested adoption of an amusement tax to raise the necessary funds, a tax similar to that in effect throughout Ontario until the summer of 1936, when it was withdrawn by Premier Hepburn. The provincial tax was on a graduated scale.

Ontario Aid

The premier announced yesterday the government would take no action to aid the hospitals, even though the institutions found it necessary to close. Declining a request that the government pay the western hospital's $73,000 deficit, Mr. Hepburn said: "This is a squabble between the city and the hospital and we don't intend to get into it."

Total deficits of the Western, the Women's College, the Mount Sinai and the Mothercraft Society Hospitals are listed at approximately $114,000. Controller J. D. McNish charged before the council the actual total was $67,000, a figure he said represented the actual operating deficits. He said $114,000 included hospital capital charges.

The deficits were incurred through treatment of indigent patients. Mayor Ralph C. Day said 66,191 patients had been cared for during the last hospital year and of this number 14,968 came from outside municipalities.

Early History Of Methodistism In Campbellford Area Outlined

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 18— The anniversary services held at St. John's United Church on Sunday were marked by exceptionally large attendance at both services at which the Rev. Dr. H. A. Kent, president of the Theological College at Queen's University, Kingston, was the guest speaker. Rev. Harold B. Neal pastor of the church assisted in the service. Special music was provided by the choir under the competent leadership of Haroldе Kitney, three anthems were sung in which solo parts were rendered by Mrs. A. G. Watson. The anthems included "O Worship the Lord in the Beauty of Holiness" (Alfred Hollins); "The Heavens are Telling" (Beethoyen); and "Light of Eventide" (Nichol). Mrs. E. Kitney of Peterborough, guest soloist chose three numbers, "God Is Our Refuge", "O Lord Rebuke Me" and "Abide With Me". The trio constituting Misses Dorothy Henson, Gladys Stephen and Evelyn Barnum also contributed special music for the occasion.

Served From Norwood.

Formerly known as the Seymour charge the Methodist Church history in Campbellford goes back more than 95 years to the time when it was served from Norwood. Although early records have not been completely assimilated it is reported that in 1827 that the late Egerton Ryerson came up through this part of the country continuing as far as Rice Lake where from its shores he preached to the Indians. In these early days there were no churches as we know them now, Rev. Harold B. Neal told his congregation at an "At Home" on Monday evening held in conjunction with the anniversary celebration. In those early days the "saddle back preachers came to the houses where they met and worshipped with small groups of people and would then proceed on, to the next settlement." The forerunners of the first Wesleyan Methodist Church in this town were first a house on Queen street opposite the site of the Cenotaph and following this services were held in the building now converted into an Armoury on Tice street.

In 1866, Rev. Isaac Weldon came to Campbellford as the first resident minister and by the next year nearly 100 people had joined the church and so from this humble beginning it has grown. The present edifice was built 54 years ago. It was also revealed that the Campbellford Charge was at one time connected with the Hastings and Percy (Warkworth) mission. "We owe much to these rugged pioneers who opened up these lands years ago and by their work made possible the many fine things we have today." "Yesterday was one of the most successful anniversaries in many years" concluded Mr. Neal as he paid tribute to the splendid response the congregation had made in their offering which had even exceeded the amount asked for by officials. It was also made known that the free will offering for which the ladies had canvassed when it was decided to abandon the annual supper, had greatly exceeded the amount usually raised by such and event.

Following a period of community singing which opened the At Home held in the church parlors on Monday evening, Dr. H. O. Richardson acted as Master of Ceremonies" and directed an interesting and amusing program during which he called on several members of the audience to lend impromptu assistance in contests which had been previously arranged. Mrs. C. Darlington of Belleville was the guest artist of the evening and she offered several humorous monologues. Messers Kenneth and Morgan Ames contributed two guitar selections and Mrs. A. G. Watson offered a vocal solo. Following this the audience which was divided into groups took part in a number of contests of the Quiz type and for these prizes were given the winners. Latter a delightful lunch was served by the ladies.

Hungary Turns Down Proposal

The shaded areas on the ABOVE map shows the area which the Praha government proposed to cede to Budapest. The Hungarian delegation turned down this proposal and it is expected that an appeal will be made to the signatories of the four-power Munich agreement to settle the dispute.

Terrorists Miss 2 British Police

JERUSALEM, Oct. 17 — (CP-Havas).—Terrorists today fired on Aubrey Silver, British assistant police chief at Jerusalem, and Sergeant Maggill, head of the police post at the Jaffa gate.

Neither of the officials was hit. The terrorists fled after their bold attack.

Privates Cave, O'Neill and Dean of the Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire Regiments were wounded in a clash with rebels near Ramleh.

The old city of Jerusalem has resembled an armed camp during the last 24 hours as strong police detachments patrolled nearly all its streets. A 24-hour curfew was imposed at 7 p.m.

Four Arabs assigned to police the grounds of the mosque of Omar were wounded when terrorists hurled a bomb into the temple's enclosure. Jews regard this as the site of the Biblical temple of Solomon and the Aras as the spot which Mohammed ascended to heaven.

British forces experienced difficulty in maintaining order in the old walled city because of its maze of twisting, narrow streets and crowded houses facilitate the escape of terrorists.

Life Of Eaton Described To Lions' Club

Visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition lost so much time searching for the articles they wanted while shopping at the T. Eaton store that they requested the owner, the late Timothy Eaton to send them a list of all the merchandise with the prices a few weeks before the Exhibition started, and thus the mail order catalogue was born. This was told at the Kawartha Club last night when Major Carl H. Reeve, of the Publicity Department of the T. Eaton Co. addressed the Lions Club, giving a brief history of the Compay and its founder, the late Timothy Eaton.

The late Mr. Eaton was born in Ireland a few months after his father had died. At an early age he was apprenticed to a dry goods store owner and his first job was sorting rags. While doing this he learned to distinguish the different fabrics. There were many things about the business he didn't like and added to this was the fact that the farmers would get drunk and wreck things generally when they came to town, with the result that Eaton formed a hearty dislike for liquor.

Did Not Like Barter.

He came to Canada in 1854, obtained work as a store clerk at Glen Williams, then went into business with his two sisters at Kirkton, where they also ran the post office. Later he started a dry goods store at St. Mary's with his brother, but always he had a feeling of dissatisfaction for the existing system of barter. There was no cash business. The farmers swapped produce for merchandise and generally speaking the merchant got the best of the bargain.

At that time Eaton wrote to a friend in Montreal asking if it would be possible to start and succeed in a store at Toronto which would not sell tobacco or liquor. He was advised against it, but bought a small store on the site of the present Robert Simpson Company, advised that all trade would be cash, and that the prices would be plainly marked on each article. He further stated any article which was found to be unsuitable might be exchanged. Despite stories to the effect that he was crazy, the business prospered, and marked the end of the barter system.

Three Characteristics

The speaker described Timothy Eaton as a man with three dominant characteristics. The first was a belief in square dealing and in the Scriptures, second he was quick to grasp ideas and see in the future and last he desired to give people what they wanted at the lowest possible price.

Major Reeve said practically every department of the T. Eaton Company had its origin in the nimble mind of the founder. The grocery department started after a sale of nuts had been very successful at Halloween. Eaton had several pigs on his small farm which he couldn't sell, so they were butchered and sold by the pound in the store to give the meat department its beginning. Eaton noticed that customers were tired at the end of the day so he served them tea, and this eventually resulted in the restaurant. They used to buy butter from farmers but complaints from customers because the flavor and quality was not uniform brought about the Eaton Creamery, where now 2,500 farmers bring their cream daily.

The first catalogue in 1884 was a 32 page affair, six by nine. Today it contains 370 pages, is 10 by 13 and if one issue were put end to end it would stretch for 225 miles. The catalogue has done its part in the development of Canada and means much to the settlers on the far flung frontiers of the different provinces.

Earl Clarke voiced the appreciation of the club, and chairman Fred Cripps tendered the thanks to the speaker. F. Jamieson, manager of the Canadian Department Stores introduced the speaker of the evening.

Stan Darling, and Jim Dutton, Jr., were introduced as new members of the club.

Daring Pilot Lands Minus Propellor

Pilot Phil Sauve, inset, was welcomed home by his small son, following a remarkable escape from death, when he landed his airplane on a small lake in the dense bush north of Sudbury, after his airplane propellor had broken off as it was flying at a height of 5,000 feet. The skill and daring of Sauve was credited with saving himself and three passengers as he safely landed the crippled airplane despite the fact that the wings had begun to break off. Pilot Chuck Austin, LEFT, found the missing airplane two days afterwards and flew L. L. W. Ashcroft, CENTRE, and Don Groome, RIGHT, two of Sauve's passengers, to Sudbury. Another rescue airplane flew Sauve and the third passenger, Joe LaFlamme, to safety.

Two Are Slain By Negro; School Burned

SYMRNA, Ga., Oct. 18—(AP).—Police today investigated the burning of a Negro school which followed the reported confession by a Negro that he had killed a white farmer and his daughter with an axe handle.

Police chief C. T. White said the 10 room, two storey frame school building was burned last night by a group of unidentified white men.

Earlier in the evening, White said a crowd estimated by state police at nearly 500 beat and stoned several Negroes.

The alleged confession came from a Negro identified by police Captain B. W. Seabrook as Will Russell, 31, in an Atlanta jail. Russell confessed, Seabrook said, that he had slain George Camp, 66-year-old farmer, and his daughter, Mrs. Christine Camp Pauls, 26, last Saturday in a dispute over $5 he said Camp owed him.

The bodies of the man and woman were found in their farm home near here yesterday.

Inviting Their Majesties

Without having had to do much searching at all we have noticed five communities which have already decided they want the Royal visitors of 1939 in their midst. The decision has been made in most cases that the proper way is to invite the King and Queen by forwarding the invitation to Lord Tweedsmuir, His Majesty's representative at Ottawa.

With such a move this paper has not the least complaint; it seems the natural thing to think about. Their Majesties are coming to Canada . . . we want them in our community . . . so we will invite them. It is even quite probable that the visitors will be delighted to hear there are many such invitations awaiting them.

But from information already at hand it appears that the visit to Canada will be of three weeks' duration only, and there are nine provinces in this country and there are some thousands of miles between Atlantic and Pacific. There are but 21 days in the three weeks, and there are nine provincial capitals and the federal capital as well. We have about fifty places which rank as cities and the sum total of towns and villages run into many hundreds. So the practical side of the situation must become assertive and we will have to come to the conclusion that there are many places where their Majesties would be abundantly welcome and to which they will no doubt be invited but which they cannot possibly visit. One has also to consider the human element and the thing which we call fatigue is no respecter of persons. "Seeing Canada" in three weeks, and attending to what may be termed the official visits and functions will make serious inroads on the available time. So it seems certain that many places now asking to be placed on the royal itinerary are going to be disappointed.

Fears The Railway Vote

When Hon. R. J. Manion, leader of the Conservative party, was nominated for the London riding, he dealt with several public questions, and spoke plainly on the railway situation. His attitude on that matter could be quite safely anticipated because he had previously committed himself and the Conservative party.

Dr. Manion is against amalgamation or unification or anything which would create a monopoly. His reason is primarily that he believes the employees of one railway and their families would be able to poll about 200,000 votes and that would be sufficient to control the government. That is, if the government did not so shape its policies to meet with the approval of the employees of the unified railway then they would have sufficient voting strength to put in another government which would do what the railwaymen wanted done. The government, knowing this, would be certain to act as the railwaymen desired and in that way the government would actually be in the hands of and at the mercy of the railway vote. And such trend of argument takes it for granted that a government would have such strong wish to remain in office that it would not antagonize this large group vote.

It is well to analyze such a statement to see whether it is true. At the last federal election in 1935 the number of votes was officially reported as follows:

Liberals	2,076,394
Conservatives	1,308,688
Reconstruction	389,708
C.C.F.	386,484
Social Credit	187,405
Communist	31,151
Liberal-Progressive	18,215
Labor	15,352
Independents	15,765
Other parties	16,448
Total vote polled	4,445,250

Dr. Manion's estimate is that the vote of railwaymen and their families of a unified railway system in Canada would amount to 200,000, and this he contended would be sufficient "to control a government." A little invasion of the field of division shows that the railway vote mentioned is 4 1-2 per cent. of the total vote cast in 1935, and there is nothing to show that the vote of 200,000 would ever be cast in its entirety for any one political party. So Dr. Manion's argument on that particular question does not stand up so well under scrutiny.

It's a Permanent Loss

This province is pretty well sold on the idea of reforestation. In a number of places there are plots of ground where new trees appear to be doing well. Many of these can be computed by counting in acres. But the truth is that the real work of reforestation is by allowing Nature to have its own way. The artificial efforts we may make are hardly comparable to what trees can do in the way of reproducing their kind if given opportunity to do so.

There is no way of stating definitely the amount of timber which has been destroyed in the Fort Frances district, but the fire had its way for a full six days and it was moving rapidly and is referred to as the worst in a quarter of a century. It would probably be futile to make an estimate of the damage done, but it might be safe enough to suggest that this one great fire has set us back in forest wealth to a greater extent than we have been set ahead by all our efforts in tree planting. We have no authority for making that statement and we will gladly correct it if in error.

The tragic thing is that the district which has been burned over is now waste land and can be counted out as far as reproduction of trees is concerned. There are no parent trees left and worse still no trees will grow in land which has been burned.

A timely rain has brought that disastrous fire under control, and fire rangers now wonder if they can remove 60,000 feet of wet hose from the area before frost comes to freeze them. The amount of hose was constantly being increased, and by way of comparison we have 9,450 feet of hose in the fire department of this city. The fire prevention division of our Forestry Department has been preparing for forest fires, and although constantly preparing, an outbreak such as occurred in the Fort Frances division is the one thing they have been hoping would never come to pass. As far as natural wealth is concerned, it is a catastrophe from which we do not recover.

A Plain Question

Sledge hammers and crow bars are now the recognized weapons of what is described as a "racket-busting" squad of Toronto police. When the usual rap on the door does not produce the required result of opening the door then the equipment comes into play. And that of course seems right enough.

But there is something which is hard to understand. The houses against which the force of this squad is now being directed are bootlegging joints, and in the report of activities we read:

> "Two cases of beer and a quantity of wine were seized in the Elm street house. This place, it was claimed, had been operating about three months. Prior to that the accused operator had been located on Centre Avenue."

So this gentleman who is now in trouble had been running one place for three months, and prior to that had been located on another street, both of which addresses were known to the police.

All of which suggests one simple question—why was he not made subject to visitation before by the sledge hammer and crow bar section of the police force?

He's Worth Mentioning

There are days when we spend so much time and space telling of the advances made by bombers and fighting planes the world over that we probably overlook something quite worth while which takes place much nearer home.

So for the moment we will consider the case of Phil Sauve, pilot and manager of the Austin Airways of Sudbury. With three passengers he was on the way from Rondeau Mine to Sudbury, and on that trip things began to happen at an altitude of 5,000 feet.

The first thing to come loose was the propellor and it fell off and that we suppose would be about the same as the engine falling out of a car, only the car would be on the ground instead of 5,000 feet in the air.

Then the wing struts cut and parts of the wing fabric began falling on "in chunks." Then it was that Phil Sauve went into action because there was no need to tell him that something like certain death faced them all. He saw below him one small bit of water and with his powerless plane he headed for it. With damaged wings he managed to keep it from turning over and actually landed so skilfully, but with a speed of 90 miles an hour, that he was finally able to step out into shallow water and tow the plane to a spot where his passengers could step out on dry land. And when it was all over this Phil individual was ready to collapse and he admitted he "quaked like a school girl." We submit that a pilot who can bring his passengers down safely when just about everything that could go wrong has done so is worthy of a little attention.

Who Will Care For Them?

Estimates say that about one-half of the volunteers from United States fighting with the Government forces in Spain are reported missing. There is some record of a number who were killed or taken prisoners or wounded, but for the most part the majority of those unaccounted for are said to have just disappeared. There were originally about 4,000 of these volunteers. There was also a battalion organized in Canada and the number enlisted is reported to have been about 1,250. The casualties in their ranks are not definitely known.

In time the wounded men will be coming back to their homes in United States and Canada. It can be taken for granted that the government of Spain will not become responsible for their care or attention which they will certainly need. Many of them will not be able to work as modern warfare has its own way of breaking men. What then? Will they be eligible for consideration at relief offices here or across the line?

Since relief has come into existence and is recognized as a part of municipal and government service it becomes a more serious question for governments when its nationals pick up and enlist in foreign wars where their country is in no way concerned, and just why any public money through relief channels should go to those who find themselves disabled through participation in such wars is something difficult to explain.

Complicated World

The farmer who has some hogs which he considers ready for the market may never have considered that the recent European trouble would have anything to do with such a routine matter as taking hogs in for sale.

But the world is getting to be a close-knit affair now.

When the crisis was near and actually at its height it had the effect of causing the British pound sterling to drop. Normally the pound is worth $4.86 and a fraction, but during war talk it slid and went below the $4.70 mark.

When Canadian bacon is shipped to London it is paid for in English currency, pounds, shillings and pence, and the payments for Canadian bacon being sold then would be made in the lowered currency.

It is also a fact that the export price on the London market has much to do with setting the price which the packers pay for hogs. So war talk actually served to set back the price of hogs. Yes, it's a complicated world in which we live.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Art gallery in Toronto is displaying a large collection of the painting of women. Pictures we mean.

Fascism has its good points. As proof the order in Germany that road hogs are to have their tires deflated on the spot.

Even the old-timers have been having hard work remembering such a long spell of warm weather in October.

Premier Bracken is calling for lower tariffs. That is unusual. It is customary to ask for such things when one's party is in opposition.

The Liquor Control Board promises an investigation into the source of the supply of beer runners. Well, they don't get their stock from the dairy companies.

It falls to the lot of few men to have caused such a commotion as Albert Williams, 63 years old and a ticket puncher at a London station. Thousands went on strike because Albert did not belong to the union.

Woman in Welland is to get $3.50 for every family she can show has no right to be on the relief list. And like as not some of the local people have remarked that she is around sticking her nose into other people's affairs.

We learn there are to be new precautions taken against impersonation in Toronto civic elections. Just why any person would want to impersonate any person in that town is something we can't quite understand.

The French-Canadian Educational Association was informed by the French minister to Canada that he desired to see French taught to French-speaking children and English-speaking children. And in between times how about considering a little English?

Jury in Quebec considering a murder case asked permission to go to a nearby church and pray before considering the evidence and bringing in a verdict. And we dare say the jury system would function at its best in a community where the task was taken with such seriousness.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, says he does not know of any fund which can be drawn on to finance a visit of the King and Queen to Washington. We can hardly imagine such a statement being made if the President were considering making a trip to London.

TROUBLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When weather's kind of warm just now, it put some wrinkles in my brow, and sort of jogs my ire; for I can never find a way, that keeps folk happy like all day, by tinkering with the fire.

¶ When it chills off when sun is through, I find a little heat will do, a little fire is made; I open up the draft a speck, then find that on the upper deck, it's eighty in the shade.

¶ I know that heat like that won't do, I'd smother with the night half through, the temperature's too stout; I throttle down my heat box then, but when I look at it again, I find the fire's gone out.

¶ Then there's a chance of having chills, and people coming down with ills, being like they shouldn't ought; so gentle I stoke up some more, then find that on the upper floor, the rooms are far too hot.

¶ I do the very best I can, and work like does a patient man, to warm both head and feet; each hour I'm likely to be told, the folks are suffering from the cold, or prostrate with the heat.

¶ I'm not as smart as I should be, and that is plain enough to see, I don't need to be told; I don't mind firing winter times, and warming up the skulls and spines—when it is good and cold.

Man of Mystery Puzzles World

NEVER YET have we seen an adequate explanation telling of F. W. Rickett, the mysterious man who deals in contracts and schemes of such magnitude and daring that they are sufficient to tumble empires.

At the commencement of the war in Abyssinia when Anglo-Italian tension was at its height, one suddenly heard that a British financier supported by an American group had succeeded in obtaining a concession on the oil and mineral rights in Abyssinia in consideration for the floating of a war loan in the City of London and Wall Street.

This brought down the thunder of the press and Senator Borah furiously questioned the American Government.

"It is a manoeuver to drag the United States into war," he declared indignantly.

As for Rickett, he flew towards Addis-Ababa, disapeared, passed through Egypt, then to Rome where he stopped . . . "to change his shirt," he declared. But in reality he saw important personages and was received, they say, by Mussolini himself.

He returned to London. The affair of the concession was eclipsed by graver problems. Had Rickett won or lost? His smile was as imperturbable as ever. At this time it was said that he was in the employ of the Intelligence Department. An important member of this department, however, when questioned, replied: "The Intelligence Service is a secret organization. Mr. Rickett with his startling methods is really not secret enough for us."

After the expropriation of the foreign oil companies by the Mexican Government, Mr. Rickett went to Mexico, and had a long interview with President Cardenas.

He left the President with an option on the production of all the nationalized oil companies and embarked for New York and London to raise the millions of pounds necessary to finance his project.

Once more the newspapers of the world were filled with the exploits of Mr. Rickett.

Just at this time the British Government broke off diplomatic relations with Mexico and the American Government was considering methods of coercion.

Suddenly the revolution broke out in Mexico in the mining state of San Luis-Potosi which contains almost all the riches of the country: silver. The owner of the state, the rebel general Cedillo, was in a position to hold a knife to the throat of the Government.

But who stirred up Cedillo who up to then had spent peaceful, happy days in his pleasant hacienda? Who supplied him with funds to arm and equip an army of 30,000 men? The United States? No. Cedillo who marches to the war-cry of "Mexico for the Mexicans and down with the Yankee gringos!" is not their man.

Then who?

In Wall Street they say that it is Rickett and his syndicate who, not being able to get on with Cardenas, engineered this coup.

The fury of the British Foreign Office and of the Department of Foreign Affairs in Washington is beyond bounds. How can this Englishman and his American accomplice, Smith, dare to finance the spoliation of the English and American companies?

"I am not doing anything dishonest," Rickett replies to these attacks. "Mexico will not give back the concessions. It is necessary then to act as quickly as possible to prevent this oil production which used to be ours, from being diverted towards Germany, Japan and Italy who are lying in wait for it. That is the aim I have in view."

Is he talking seriously? Is he joking? Nobody knows. All that is certain is that this Mr. Rickett who in his little office in the City buys empires, negotiates loans for nations, tickles Mussolini, embitters his own Government and pulls Uncle Sam's beard, is the very devil of a fellow.

THE HIGH COST.

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

THE STEAMER Gullpool has left Churchill with the "third and last grain cargo of the season."

Shipments of grain from the northern port for the season, carried by the three ships are reported as totalling about 1,000,000 bushels.

Investment in the Hudson Bay Railway and terminals was $53,000,000.

Interest on that amount at three per cent for one year is more than $1,500,000.

A total of 1,000,000 bushels of grain having been moved out by that route this year the cost for interest on investment alone is above $1.50 per bushel.

After that there are operating costs to be added in.

If they would close the elevator, quit the railway and forget it, the people wouldn't be reminded so often about the high cost of playing politics.

TRUCKS—PAVEMENTS.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE Winnipeg Tribune claims that in Manitoba owners of passenger cars have been taxed unfairly, that owners of heavy trucks pay less than their share, urges an adjustment. Similar claims have been made many times in Ontario, and the Chevrier Commission, which has been inquiring into transport and traffic problems here for some months, may be expected to discuss the point in its report.

It does seem obvious that a pavement capable of sustaining without damage a huge ten-ton truck must be more costly in its construction and maintenance than a pavement substantial enough to carry passenger cars and the lighter commercial vehicles.

LIFE IS LIKE THAT.

(Hopkins, Mo., Journal).

When a man and his life start to go anywhere, he tells her to get his good suit, fix the buttons on his shirt, get his socks and kerchief, tie his necktie and do a few other little jobs. Then he puts on his hat and says: "Great grief; aren't you ready yet?"

• Why Prayers Are Unanswered

HERE IS A BOY starting to college. He has been brought up in a frugal well-ordered home. He shares in its spirit, is pure-minded, unselfish; he has high purposes; his home training has so motivated him, but he is young; his principles are not yet fixed; it is possible for him to yield to temptation. Going to college is full of risks. In his new world says a writer in the Montreal Star, it will be easy to get weaned from the spirit of the home and to forget the purpose for which he is going to college. His father, knowing this, says: "You are going away from home; all I ask of you is to keep in mind the way your mother and I have reared you; do not let go the spirit of the household. You know what we have lived for; do not forget it. You are going to college, not to have a good time, but to get an education. Keep this in mind, and there is nothing we will not do for you. So long as you share our spirit, you may ask anything of us, and we will do it. Keep yourself one with and of us, and you can ask what you will, within the limits of possibility; we will comply with your demands."

So the boy goes out to face new responsibilities. What does the promise mean—"Ask what you will, and we will do it?" Unlimited cheques, frequent trips home, release from rules, easy courses, a good time generally? Are the requests to be of this sort, based on the father's promise? By no means. The promise is conditioned by the spirit and nature of the request. The boy must be loyal to the home, and he must be animated by the common purpose—an education for service. Whatever he asks for with that end in view, he will get. In this way is given some hint of the meaning of the phrase, "In My Name." The tragedy of Christian experience is found more often in connection with prayer than anything else.

Here is where faith breaks down more often than anywhere else, because the meaning of "In My Name" is not understood. Says someone, "But here is the promise: 'Ask anything'; and there are the unanswered prayers"—"I prayed God to spare my child and it died"; "I prayed that my son might be kept from evil, and he went to destruction"; "I prayed for health, and I am sick." Here faith falters because none of those praying thus have sought to help on the divine purpose. It is here that misunderstanding works so fatally. It is thought that the promise will be fulfilled because Christ has all power. Not power but spirit is what Christ meant. Ask as I ask;- ask—"not my will but Thine be done." Ask for willingness to do the will of God.

• Can't Live On Such Money

THIS LETTER questions whether a family of seven can live on $16.41 per week in Montreal.

I have read with great interest the letter signed "Contented," in your issue of the 10th. instant.

He attempts to show how a family of 7 can be maintained on $16.41 per week. According to his budget, which I will repeat for the benefit of those who never saw the letter is this—

Food 6.50, milk .88, rent 4.00, light 2.00, fuel 2.00, clothing 1.00.

His wife has to produce 147 meals per week at a cost of $6.50, or an average of 4½c per meal. The quantity of meat purchased, would not allow for any surplus fat, that could be turned into soap, so I presume that this commodity is purchased and would be used in such a well balanced household, and I would suggest, that 25c should be allowed for the washing of clothes for a family of 7. Also for baths etc.

He does not say what it costs for soda, starch, matches, newspapers, carfares, school books, shoe repairs, stockings, underclothing, rubbers, haircutting and dozens of other items, that the average housewife is continually digging down into her purse to replace. His clothing allowance of $1 per week is also open to criticism, Canada is no Garden of Eden, between September and May and I am sure that it would cost $1 a week to keep a family of 7 in rubbers alone.

He also states he is suffering from stomach ulcers, but no provision is made for medical treatment, either for himself or his family, so I take it that his doctor and druggist do not make any charge for their services.

No provision is made for the replacement of utensils, furniture, bedclothing etc.

Unless "Contented" can come out flat-footed, with a detailed account of his weekly household expenses, I take the contents of his letter with a grain of salt and come to the conclusion that it is some smart husband, trying to prove to his wife that she is extravagant.

"Contented" may be contented, but I will make an even bet that the remainder of his family are not.

WALTER PARKER.

• Doing Surgery In the Jungle

VOYAGING up the East African coast in an Arab dhow, I came on a Kikuyu girl, suffering terribly from a pain in her side. We gave her a lift to the village near Mogadishu where she visited a witch-doctor.

When we approached, writes Ida Hurst in a London paper, the witch-doctor was sitting on the floor of his hut—a short, fat black man, tremendously old. As we entered, he got up with a grunt, inspected the girl's side and asked her questions.

Suddenly the old man barked at another native, who began to heat a small knife white-hot over a little fire. While the knife was cooling, the witch-doctor bade the girl stand up. As she was trying to do so, he came from behind, and dealt her a smart blow near the temple with a weighted club. She collapsed.

He laid her across a rounded stone on the floor, and instantly made a neat incision in her side. But I could watch no more. At this point the old Arab who was with me touched me on the arm. He whispered, "Come—we go find ants."

We spent the next half-hour hunting up giant black African ants from under stones. We brought back about a score of them alive in a little bag, and my finger bled profusely where one of the brutes had seized it in his pincers.

The witch-doctor took an ant from our bag and held it to the wound in the patient's side. Promptly the ant closed its jaws and, hanging on like grim death, held together that section of the wound. The old man took another ant, and then another, till the whole of the wound was held together by ants. Then he cut their bodies in half, leaving only the head and pincers fast in the wound. As the girl's wound healed, the ants decayed into a harmless white powder.

• Wants His Thrill To Last

(Ottawa Journal)

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL, so Lady Tweedsmuir said at Barrie, is "too clever" to get much satisfaction out of detective stories, because he can guess the murderer "on the first page." That is, perhaps, the professional touch.

John Buchan has written some splendid thrillers and Lord Tweedsmuir knows the signs. He can read the secret of the millionaire mysteriously slain in a room locked and bolted from the inside; he knows instantly that the flaming young adventuress really is a trusted agent of the Secret Service; if twenty members of a house party had reason and opportunity for using that Malay dagger on their host he can unerringly pick the miscreant. Presumbaly he never finds the suspense so great that he must turn to the last page to see if the solemn butler actually was the villain, or was it the scoundred of a nephew after all?

For our own part we should not like to possess this gift, or knack, or whatever it is. We like to share the perplexity of the Scotland Yard man, that dour fellow who can be fooled right up to the last chapter but not to the end of the book. We want to be horrified and mystified as murder is piled upon murder to the spectacular climax of poison or gunnery where the murderer is unmasked and innocence absolved.

And then there is the matter of getting value for our money. There is no dividend in paying $2 for a detective story if we solve the problem in the first chapter, because not often is it read for its literary charm. To get our two dollars' worth we insist upon being mystified, and so we do not envy the Governor General his gift of reading the end from the beginning.

THE LAST WORD.

(Winnipeg Tribune)

CHRISTOPHER MORLEY, the American author, at one time conducted a column on the Philadelphia Public Ledger, then owned by the late Cyrus H. K. Curtis, also publisher of the Saturday Evening Post.

Curtis was piqued at something which Morley wrote and gave him his notice. In the last column he was to publish in the Ledger, Morley inserted an apparently meaningless line: Taming of the Shrew, Act. IV, Scene 1, Line 36.

Readers chuckled when they looked up the reference, for it read: "A cold world, Curtis, in every office but thine; and therefore fire!"

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

TRUST IN THE LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. . . .

He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness; but a false witness deceit. There is that speaketh like the piercings of a sword; but the tongue of the wise is health. . . . In the way of righteousnes is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death. . . .

The fear of the Lord tendeth to life: and he that hath it shall abide satisfied; he shall not be visited with evil. . . . Cease, my son, to hear the instruction that causeth to err from the words of knowledge.—Prov. iii, 5; xii, 17, 18, 28; xix, 23, 27.

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you.

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. . . . And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.—Isa. xxxv, 3-6, 10.

PENSIONS FOR AGED.

(New York Sun)

IN JUNE OF THIS year more than 1,665,000 persons were in receipt of old age assistance in the 48 states, the District of Columbia and Alaska. The national average at that time was $19.68 a month, but that average was affected by such averages as $4.79 a month in Mississippi and $8.99 a month in Arkansas. Those who believe that the average old age pension is now too low do an injury to the whole cause when they argue for pensions such as are advocated in California and when they add to impossibly high pensions the burden of incredible qualifications for pension.

INFORMATION BY RADIO.

(Halifax Herald)

THE OTHER NIGHT they were conducting one of those "question box" contests in a radio studio in New York, and one of the questions was this:

In what Canadian provinces are the following cities located: Halifax and Winnipeg?

The contestant "on the spot" at the moment answered the "Halifax" half of the question correctly, but was stumped by "Winnipeg."

And a few minutes after a complaint was raised that the question was "unfair" for the astonishing reason that "Nova Scotia is not a province, but a crown colony!"

COUNSEL DILATORY.

(Ottawa Journal)

PRIME MINISTER KING was given public praise, and rightly, when he called for this judicial (Bren gun) enquiry. He got the best man possible to conduct it. He would get additional public praise, the Journal thinks, if he would serve notice on the counsel he secured to assist the Commission that it had better get on with its job—which is to bring out the essential facts. Mr. Justice Davis himself has had to protest heatedly against evidence that has no relation to the essential facts.

Six Fox Pups Become Real Attraction

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Oct. 18. — We have all heard of the cunning of the fox, but Reddy Fox was not sly enough for Elmo Chatterson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Chatterson, Castleton. It all happened this way. Elmo was ploughing a field on the MacTavish Campbell farm about two miles north and west of Castleton one day in early May, when he was surprised to see what he thought to be six little police pups following him in the furrow. At first he paid no attention to them but when they still continued to follow he became curious. He stopped his team and went to the house for a bag and came back and to his surprise he found they were quite tame and had no difficulty in catching them. At that time these pups were eight inches long, pointed noses, scarcely any tail and of a grayish color. Elmo, having always lived in the village, was not acquainted with wild animals and never dreamed they were anything but police pups. Elmo took the bag of pups to the house, and when he returned to the field he spotted Reddy Fox sleeping in the sun on the fence. He went up to her and caught her by the back of the neck but he noticed his horses had started to run away, so he had to release his hold. The fox ran a short distance toward the woods, barking as though calling the young ones.

Not Greatly Excited.

Elmo wasn't much excited over his discovery, for he was half way through his supper before he announced he had a bag of foxes in the car. He brought them in the house and let them out of the bag. His father did not believe they were foxes because of the grayish color. They put them in a pen and soon it was noised about that Chattersons had some foxes. Many people came to see them, some thought they were wolves and some thought they were gray foxes; however, they kept them.

Elmo fed them bread and milk, cooked cereal and raw meat three times a day, and they developed into six beautiful red foxes.

On July 11 they were taken back to the farm where they were captured, where the Chatterson family spent the summer.

Turkey Farm.

Another attraction at the Chatterson farm is their flock of turkeys.

One day in the fall of 1937, Mrs. Chatterson was reading an article in a newspaper of the success of a doctor with turkeys. She handed the paper to her husband and said, "Why can't we try it?" The plan was agreed upon. They were given a book as an advertisement on turkey raising, and by following the directions they are rewarded by a flock of two hundred turkeys.

This flock of turkeys range over an eight-acre flat, in full view of the house. The turkey sanctuary is about three hundred feet south of the house enclosed by barbed wire. It consists of a large roofed roosting place, and two covered feeding places and also a sleeping house for Mr. Chatterson. It is the duty of the youngest son, Douglas, to keep watch over the flock. In the morning, Douglas takes down the feed and while the turkeys are eating he sits in an easy chair under a shade tree and reads a favorite book. The turkeys are not allowed to go out of view of some member of the family. Douglas does not bear the whole responsibility of the care of the turkeys, as they have two black watch dogs to help protect them.

The family are very enterprising for besides their responsibilities on the farm Elmo assists his father at the carpenter trade, and Maurice and Douglas have a mail route from Castleton to Burnley.

Swing Boomerangs

DETROIT, Oct. 18 (CP)—Jaded by jitterburgs, sour on swing, a club will be formed here tonight to turn back the clock to the hallowed 1800's and move into a world of Crinoline where people speak in the rounded rhetorical periods of Jane Austen.

Arthur T. Cranfield, composer and music teacher, said the club was started in answer to demands of people principally from 20 to 30 years of age who long for the quiet culture of the nineteenth century.

Girl Breaks Back In 40-Foot Leap

TORONTO, Oct. 18—(CP).—Mildred Noval, 18-year-old seamstress, plunged 40 feet to-day from the fourth floor of a central Toronto building and suffered a broken back and a badly smashed ankle.

The girl landed on a plot of ground below the window, narrowly missing the cement sidewalk.

She was given first aid in a neighboring doctor's office and rushed to hospital in a critical condition.

Police were told by employees of the company (Imperial Pant Company) the girl had been standing before an open fourth-floor window shortly after opening time.

N.B. Fishermen Average Income Is $50

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 18.—The average yearly income of New Brunswick fishermen is $50.00 according to Dr. E. A. Stuart, who addressed Rotarians on the problems of the fishing industry in his home province, where he spent several weeks this summer. This information he stated had been given by a very reliable source and was verified by government statistics. Although the lobster is protected nine months of the year by conservation laws there is no protection for the fish. He felt that the ridiculous prices being paid to the fishermen were largely due to the inadequate distribution system. Fish are very perishable and retain little of their original flavor after they have been frozen and shipped great distances towards their potential markets.

Rotarian Stuart told of an interesting case of a financier who financed and outfitted a party of fishermen who were to repay him the principal from the fish they would sell him at 7 cents a pound. This was all very well until the price of their catch eased off to a cent and a half a pound, leaving the fishermen in the position of being unable to pay off their obligation and have anything left for themselves.

President Harold B. Neal reported that arrangements had been completed for an inter-city meeting to be held in Campbellford on Nov. 14th. Belleville and Trenton clubs have been invited to be the guests on this occasion and will provide the programme. It was also revealed that arrangements are being made to hold a meeting at Petherick's Corners where the farmers of the community would be the guests of the club and a special speaker who would deal with farm problems would be provided by the club.

Ruth Etting Sued For $150,000 As Hubby Thief

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—(AP).—Ruth Etting never sang a torch song so full of woe as this day held for her.

To add to the troubles of the radio songbird, after her first husband shot her second mate, the latter's second wife, sued flaxen haired Ruth for $150,000 love theft damages.

Mrs. Alma Alderman, a willowy blond, charged that Myrl Alderman, Miss Etting's one-time piano player, has been living with her as husband and wife "under a pretended marriage."

It was pretended, the plaintiff alleged, because her own divorce from Alderman does not become final until Dec. 2.

An explanation was not immediately forthcoming from Miss Etting, who had said that Alderman was wounded in her home last Saturday night, that they were married in Tijuana, Mex., last July 15.

Told police investigators could find no record of the ceremony, the singer said: "There are some things a woman has a right to keep secret."

Meanwhile, Martin (Moe) Snyder, known to fellow Broadway habitues as "Colonel Gimp," limped out of jail on $10,000 bail, to face on Oct. 31 a preliminary hearing of charges that he attempted to kidnap and murder Alderman. Silver-voiced Ruth promptly asked for a police guard.

Holding her year-old daughter to her breast, Mrs. Alma Alderman hotly declared that her husband, showered with clothing and jewelry and other expensive gifts, had been lured from her by Miss Etting within a few days of the baby's birth.

A former stage dancer herself, Mrs. Alderman said Miss Etting was capable of earning $1,000 monthly on the radio and $150,000 was "reasonable" damages.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AB FRICK, former athlete and umpire here, writes us from St. Catharines telling of the mammoth celebration 10,000 St. Kitts' fans staged at three a.m. a few days ago when the Mann Cup lacrosse champs returned to town. The Dominion senior "A" titleholders deserved this fitting tribute. Frick says: "If they ever meet Peterborough for that all-Ontario title, I am afraid it would be just too bad for Red Dallin, Pete King and Co." Yep, the Saints trimmed Orillia and the latter bunch beat our senior "B" champs this year, so it adds up. However, Ab says we can show the peninsula gang how to play ball. (This isn't for you, Stratford!) We might point out that our own town goes in big for a variety of sports whereas St. Catharines is chiefly noted for lacrosse, Sarnia for football, and so on.

NIAGARA SCRIBE SAITH: "That Frankie (Schoolboy) Mussel, ace twirler of Mickey Paige's Falls and tops in the Niagara district senior section, had something on the ball and gave promise of going places is not exactly news here. But it comes out that Frankie is now the property of Boston Red Sox. He is signed with Hazelton in the Penn League where Class 'A' ball is dished up. Should he prove too green for that company, he will likely be found with Canton, Ohio, a 'B' club, also owned by Boston." Mussel pitched for the Falls here in O.B.A. semi-finals and the Petes beat him.

Redmen Are Readying Up

WITH A THOUGHT toward approaching cold weather, we give you the Belleville puck prospects. Eddie Thomas will again be at the helm of the intermediate club — it'll not likely step up. Hinton and Watt, goalies, are still around but Ken Murphy, bruising defenceman, has moved north. So has Winkie Wilson, smart forward. Bentley may come out of retirement to take a defence spot again, and the two classy Jackson brothers are available. Speedy St. Louis has passed up a chance to play hockey in Niagara Falls and will likely have a Quinte uniform. Young McCreary can play defence this winter, and another junior grad or two may step up. Cy Barriage is back again, also, but the Redmen figure they need a good defenceman and two smart forwards yet. However, it'll all come out in the wash.

BUMMER STIRLING and the Sarnia Imperials will be the Orfuns' next grid opponents, playing here this Saturday. Now that the great Ormond Beach is gone, the Imps don't look just as tough as when they were winning senior O.R.F.U. titles with monotonous regularity. At least, Balmy Beach and Montreal don't think so. But they'll be plenty tough, and Stirling will again be their big threat. He is by no means a bummer, but got the nickname by accident. Just out of St. Thomas as a young but mighty hoofer, Stirling used to have the boys yelling at him: "Come on, Hugh, bump her; come on, bump 'er Stirling!" And he'd bump 'er some 70 yards or so. The phrase developed eventually into the nickname Bummer Stirling. And how he bumps 'er on the gridiron! Fans here will see if he isn't, as we maintain, about the best kicker in the business—Box and Isbister notwithstanding.

It's Too Dizzy For Words

SARNIA has a play that is a honey to watch—and a heartbreaker to stop. It's the flea flicker play. As one scribe put it: "The flea flicker pass is known to every football coach in Canada as Sarnia's prize trick play but to date no adequate defence has been evolved to stop the short forward pass with criss-cross and end run tacked onto its end. Five Sarnians handle the ball from the time Burr snaps it out until Golab goes over for the touchdown." If we recall rightly, four gents on the intermediate Orfuns handled a somewhat similar play, two laterals off a forward, in a game at Riverside last semester.

* * * * *

ORFUNS' SEVEREST CRITIC to date, Hal Walker of the Globe, now writes: "O.R.F.U. officials are tickled with the Peterborough addition to the league. The Orfuns are far from setups and the wins Montreal and Beaches counted were not as far off as the scores would indicate. Opinion is they are capable of upsetting an applecart or two before the season's out. Loucks their ace backfielder, is said to be quite a shifty gent and a clever all-around performer. According to the Beach players, Peterborough have a big wingline and what they lack in experience they more than make up for by their fight. They say Herbie Hendrie, ex-Beacher, had Glen Salter, Oshawa husky, nearly frying with his chatter about Wrong-Way Corrigan. A gentle reminder that the popular Beach wing had run the wrong way against Sarnia." Before Saturday's struggle, Walker twice wrote that the Balmies would have a light workout against Orfuns, but evidently he has since been talking to some of the Beaches — who figure Orfuns can beat Sarnia.

'Tis Training-Bustin' Time

LIKELY a local ball club meeting will be called in the near future to wind up the season's business. The Petes had a fair year but ran into many delays and much expense, having a poor league and long jaunts in protracted playoffs. Probably a few changes in the lineup for next season, but that's too far off to worry about now. The C.O.B.L. holds its fall meeting here after the football game next Saturday, with business details being cleaned up there, too. Incidentally, Bob Doll has been sought by the Oshawa GM-men for the 1939 campaign but will remain here for the time being, at least. He is a first-rate ball player.

* * * * *

VARIOUS COMMENTS on the O.B.A. final fray appear in different sheets. Stratford scribe is tickled silly, and they had quite a homecoming welcome for the new champs. Galt gent says several places would have drawn more than the 1,200 fans in Hamilton. Oshawa scrivener believes Kitchen should have been thrown against the Nats in the deciding tilt, and adds that the long delay in playdowns hurt the Petes. Quinte columnist gloats on the locals' loss, saying: "There was no joy in Quakerville; the mighty (?) Petes had failed again!" But the Falls' sports editor really went to town, saying the Petes were away off form, that the two weakest clubs to appear in finals in years met this time, and concluded thusly: "Baseball received a black eye through the exhibition."

Puckists Warned Against Miami

EDMONTON, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Prof. W. G. Hardy, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, issued a statement here Monday warning Canadian hockey players they will be suspended if they play for Miami, Fla, promoters before the promoters have fulfilled certain stipulations.

Dr. Hardy said he had been informed the Miami promoters had been attempting to induce players in Eastern Canada to perform in that Florida city during the coming season and he wished to inform the promoters that before they can be recognized by the C.A.H.A. they must:

1. Join the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States;
2. Prove, by posting a bond for return transportation for such players as they want, that they have enough financial backing to ensure that hockey players will not be left stranded in Miami.

Unless these conditions are fulfilled, players going to Miami will be suspended, the Association president said. This will mean suspension in all organized professional and amateur hockey.

Three Gridders Are Tied With 15 Each

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP).— Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, the one-man show of Sarnia Imperials, has started defence of his eastern football scoring championship in great style. After two weeks' play against tough opposition, Stirling leads the Ontario union and is tied with two men from the inter-provincial union for the section lead.

The first Canadian Press scoring summary of the season shows the bummer tied with Stan O'Neill of Ottawa Rough Riders and Art West of Toronto Argonauts with 15 points.

The Big Four leaders have a five-point lead over Tommy Daley and Andy Tommy of Ottawa and a six-point margin over Tiny Herman, Ottawa's giant placement kicker.

An adept pass receiver, Ben Shuken of Toronto has bagged two for touchdowns, ten points, and a point lead over McGill's Herb Westman, who has kicked nine singles. Last season's college leader, Cam Gray of Toronto is among five tied for third place with five points.

Jenny Morris Says Tour "Triumphal"

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (CP)—Jenny Morris, "mother of the Princess Pats," returning to England from her "triumphal tour" of Canada as guest of Canadian soldiers she befriended during the Great War, saw the sights of New York today.

"It was a triumphal tour in Canada," Miss Morris insisted. "Letters of gold could not write the story of welcome I received from my boys and the memories I take home with me. And I had just expected to travel quietly here and there to meet a few old friends of war days. You know I first realized my popularity when a waiter in Canada asked 'Okay Jennie'?"

Miss Morris attended the opening of "Abe Lincoln of Illinois" and was "thrilled" by the performance of Raymond Massey, Toronto - born actor, in the title role. To-day she intends to take in as many of the city sights as she can as guest of Major John G. Rolph, formerly of the Royal Air Force. Tomorrow she will go to see Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina." She sails Wednesday on the liner Queen Mary "unless the tug strike gives me a few days' grace."

She said it was "impossible for me to express my gratitude to my friends in Canada for the wonderful time I had among them. I will be back again in 40 years if I behave myself as we agreed."

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

THE SNAP

By LEW HAYMAN

Ready For the Snap-out

Since the snap starts every play that a team makes his passing must be ACCURATE AND PERFECTLY TIMED. A bad snap-out usually results in a fumble which, I need hardly say, frequently proves disastrous. The snap must realize the importance of good passing. He should PRACTICE at every possible opportunity. Particular pains should be taken to adjust the direction, speed and height of his pass-out to the particular play being used.

The snap should have control of three speeds, namely:

1. Fast—for snapping to the kicker.
2. Medium—for snapping to forward passers or to running backs taking a direct snap about five yards behind the line of scrimmage.
3. Floating—for indirect snapping to the quarterback, when he is almost directly behind the centre, or to bucking backs who are hitting the line on direct snaps, that is, without taking the ball from the quarter.

The snap should use the same one of these three types for the same one plays, that is, don't use a fast one on a certain play and then a medium one for the same play later in the game. The receivers get used to the speed of the ball as they take it and varying speeds will inevitably result in fumbles.

Snapping is a specialized art. Many seem to acquire the knack naturally, but there is a great number who could make a big improvement in their work by constant practice of these fundamentals.

The stance of the snap should be comfortable. He may have his legs in a straight line with the line of scrimmage or one may be slightly back, which usually adds to the speed of the pass-out.

Placing the hands on the ball is of great importance. Have the laces of the ball up. One hand is known as the throwing hand, the other as the guiding hand. The snap in today's picture uses his right hand for throwing and his left hand for guiding. Place the throwing hand with thumb almost parallel to laces, palm flat and fingers well spread, covering the front side of the ball.

The guiding hand is on the other side of the ball, the thumb parallel to laces, palm flat and fingers well spread, covering rear side of ball.

THE BALL SHOULD BE FLAT ON THE GROUND AT ALL TIMES. It is not good form and only hinders your snapping to tilt or turn the ball in any direction prior to the actual snapout. The position of the hands SHOULD NEVER CHANGE FOR ANY TYPE OF SNAP-OUT.

DON'T CHANGE YOUR POSITION. Snapbacks should not change the position of their body, hands, head or feet. For a snap to any back, at any distance the stance should be the same. Changes for different plays will soon be spotted by the opposition.

The speed of the pass is controlled by the throwing hand, the accuracy by the guiding hand. The spiral in a snap is created by both hands, with a quick snap from an underhand motion, the ball breaking off the end of the fingers with a great amount of speed. It's not exactly a clear-cut way to describe the spiral effect, but it's about as clear as it can be made in writing.

The snap's stance, as mentioned, should be comfortable, but he should not lean on the ball. The weight is carried by the legs, which are comfortably spread. The rear is down, hands outstretched on the ball. You can note all these points in today's illustration.

On wet days place the throwing hand a little more under the ball than usual and the guiding hand a little more over the top. This gives you better control over the slippery ball. Under these conditions always aim your pass at the mid-section of the man it's going to.

As suggested by one famous football coach, a good axiom for all snaps might be:

"Not too high, not too low,
"Not too fast, not too slow."

TOMORROW we'll discuss defensive play along the line.

Doyle's Ousting Mystery To Him

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—(AP).—If the state department, which has cancelled the passport visa of Jack Doyle, singing Irish prize-fighter, sends him out of the United States, it will be to the country's financial loss, he indicated today.

"After all," Doyle said in jail, "I'm a fellow who has plenty of money. I planned to spend plenty in the United States."

"But if they don't want me here — well, I guess I can leave."

Doyle expressed bewilderment as to why he was taken in custody by United States immigration officers when he arrived by airliner from Newark, N.J., early yesterday, and his immediate concern today was to obtain his release on bail.

"I can't understand this at all," Doyle's lawyer, Jack Irwin, quoted him as saying. "Why, I know of no wrongdoing."

Dispatches from New York said the state department had cancelled Doyle's passport visa without specifying the reasons. He was booked here on illegal entry charges. It also was reported Timothy Godde may be called as a witness at the New York passport hearing for the "Irish Thrush."

Godde's wife, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, automobile heiress, was once named by Judith Allen, Doyle's former actress— wife, in a $2,000,000 alienation of affections suit, which was later dropped. While it was pending Doyle insisted he and Mrs. Godde had planned to marry, as soon as they were free of their respective mates.

The Marsh trophy is awarded annually to Canada's outstanding athlete, amateur or professional, while the Crowe trophy goes to the outstanding amateur athlete. Coy won the discus throw at Sydney and placed second in the shot put.

Leafs Heavier As Season's Training Opens

PRESTON, Oct. 18. — One of the major first-day interests in the Toronto Maple Leafs' camp centres around the weighing-in ceremony of players. Here's the 1938 first-day stripped weights compared with the 1937 first-day poundage. Board Of Directors Here Returned By Acclamation For Second Time In Club

For the second time since the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, was organized, the board of directors was elected by acclamation. This occurred at the annual meeting of shareholders last evening, and the other time was in 1936.

Before a small crowd of interested shareholders, President K. Sloane reviewed the work of the club for the past season. He paid tribute to all who had given him support and made a strong plea for everybody to get behind the new board and boost the club for 1939.

Gives Report.

The secretary-treasurer, F. Brown, gave the financial report, which was favorably received.

Judge S. Smoke paid glowing tribute to the retiring president and to the other retiring member of last year's board, B. Chesler. After a hearty vote of thanks had been passed to the secretary-treasurer, the caretaker, chairmen of committees, and the press, the meeting adjourned.

At the conclusion of the annual meeting of the club, the newly-elected board of directors met and elected the following officers:

New President.

President, H. Clegg; vice-president, Judge S. Smoke; secretary-treasurer, F. Brown; directors: J. T Braund, J. Fitzpatrick, T. McArthur, E. Wall, and H. G. Walker; Nominating Committee: K. Sloane and J Sedgewick, with power to add; auditors, G. Soulby and F. Dearborn (re-elected).

In electing H. Clegg as president for the coming year, the board has made a wise and safe choice. He has worked his way up to the highest office that can be given any member of the club. To say that he deserved it would be putting it mildly. He has served on several committees and last year was chairman of the important membership committee. He has always been a great supporter of clean sport, and the knowledge he gained as president of the Curling Club will no doubt be of great value to him. In electing Judge S. Smoke as vice-president they have chosen a man who has had many years' experience in lawn bowling circles., which will be of great value to the club. No doubt the affairs of the club will be well taken care of with these two men at the head.

Big Year For Joe

When Manager Joe Cronin, ABOVE, led the Boston Red Sox to a second place finish in the American League this year, it marked the highest point the team had reached in the standings for 20 years. Joe didn't stop at mere leadership, however, as he regained his old time form at shortstop and at the plate, to be acclaimed the best in the circuit.

NATIONAL HOCKEY PLAYERS REPORT AT THEIR TRAINING CAMPS

Wilf Cude Calls Flying Frenchmen To Place First Or Second As Canadiens Show Up Hot

(By The Canadian Press.)

The word is out that Montreal Canadiens will be among the hottest things in the National Hockey League this coming season. Everyone has known all along the Frenchmen would fly again, after getting six additions from the defunct Montreal Maroons, but now Goalie Wilf Cude is calling them to finish first or second.

Cude, who has played behind some great combinations in his years with Detroit and Canadiens, declared after yesterday's workout at Lachine Arena that "his team should be out in front all season, barring too many injuries." He qualified that by admitting the Habitants might finish second, but the little Welsh jitter-bug couldn't see them doing worse than that.

Wilf had to predict through a gashed lip, which he used to block a rising shot from Rookie Wilf Hoch in practice on Sunday. The cut needed six stitches and the goalie is still taking all his nourishment through tubes.

New York's two clubs, Rangers and Americans, are gathering steam in training faster than any of the other N.H.L. teams. The Americans will leave their headquarters at Saskatoon this week to begin a six-game exhibition series with the Rangers on Thursday at Winnipeg, where Lester Patrick's Blueshirts have been drilling.

Patrick on Defence.

Patrick already has designated his son Murray to replace Joe Cooper on the Ranger defence and apparently has decided on Dutch Hiller to take Bobby Kirk's forward berth. Cooper and Kirk have been relegated to the Philadelphia farm.

"I didn't care about getting any other amateur this year as long as I got Joe Benoit," Manager Red Dutton of the Americans said at the recent league meeting. And Benoit, a forward with Trail's Dominion senior champions last season, is one of two amateurs Dutton has had working out with his 1937-38 regulars. The other is Pat Egan of Calgary, who with Wilf Field from Seattle is seeking the defence spot left vacant by departure of Ching Johnson to manage Minneapolis' American Association entry.

Toronto Maple Leafs couldn't wait when they headed for their training quarters at Preston, Ont., yesterday, so they stopped at Galt for an ice workout. The big Leaf squad will commute between Preston and Galt during the preparedness campaign.

Detroit Red Wings were balked by the October heat wave, which melted the ice in Detroit Olympia. The unusual weather already had cut chunks of weight from the Wings, who have been working like Trojans to regain the pedestal from which they thudded last winter.

Only Eddie Shore was missing when Boston Bruins took the ice for their first workout at Hershey, Pa. The veteran defenceman is en route east from his prairie farm, where the barley crop has just been brought in.

Ace With Ottawa

One of the important cogs in the Ottawa Rough Riders' football machine that many critics think will dethrone Toronto Argonauts as champions of the east's Interprovincial Union, is Jack Leore, above, kicking and running star.

Don Budge Refuses $75,000 Offer To Turn Professional

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP)

SPORTS PROMOTER Jack Harris said today he had offered Donald Budge, world's No. 1 amateur tennis player, $75,000 to turn professional, but that Budge was asking "at least $100,000."

Harris, who managed the tour of Fred Perry and Ellsworth Vines last year, talked with Budge by telephone at Oakland, Cal., and announced: "Budge told me he would turn pro if he receives a worthwhile offer. Budge's request for a guarantee of $100,000 is beyond reason. I have made him the best offer possible for his services—more real money than has ever been made by any one in his first year as a professional—$75,000, with the option of a liberal percentage for a professional tour in 1938."

$25,000 Keeping Budge Off Pro List

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 18.—(AP)—J. Donald Budge, the world's leading amateur tennis player, said today $25,000 was all that was keeping him out of the professional ranks.

Budge said he had been offered $75,000 for a one-year tour, but wants at least $100,000. The offer was made by Jack Harris, Chicago sports promoter.

"I told him I wouldn't accept for less than $100,000," Budge said. "That looks good to me. He said he would call me back later. He said he would think over my terms and for me to think over his and that maybe we could get together."

Old Enemies, Leafs Bruins Meet Nov. 3

MONTREAL, Oct. 18—(CP).—The intense rivalry between Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, something which had turnstiles clicking merrily all last season, finds a renewal Nov. 3 as the two teams meet at Toronto in one of two games which open the National Hockey League schedule of 1938-39.

The world champion Chicago Black Hawks start at home the same night against New York Americans, according to the new schedule released today by league president Frank Calder. New York Rangers will be the last team to swing into action, playing Nov. 13 at Detroit against the Red Wings.

A "natural" touch is given the Boston-Toronto opener, however, by the fact the teams undoubtedly are the greatest rivals in present day professional hockey; that each team finish first last year in respective sections; and because they are high-goal scoring outfits and play heavy hitting hockey defensively.

As proof that Bruins are an attraction in Toronto, the attendance record in Maple Leaf Gardens there was shattered twice last year when they played Leafs. Both contests drew near the 15,000 mark.

Archibald Grabs Feather Title

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Joey Archibald, a youngster from Pawtucket, R.I., who never had a case of sunburn from basking too long in the limelight, probably is the most sought after boxer in the featherweight division today.

It's all because Henry Armstrong decided he didn't want to keep the featherweight crown when he had two better ones. Joey took a large piece of that title last night when he pounded out a decisive 15-round victory over New York's Mike Belloise. And now he's in a position to do the dictating about further title awards.

Archibald's victory over Belloise earned him recognition as champion by the New York State Athletic Commission. The National Boxing Association refused to concur, but Joey figures prominently in its plans for picking a successor to Armstrong.

McNulty Hitting His Stride

Joe McNulty is beginning to hit his stride now with Orfuns and should strut his stuff when the locals tackle Sarnia Imperials here this Saturday. McNulty, also a first-rate puckist, is a handy all-around gridder and can turn in a fair chore at punting. He was a star with St. Michael's College and Balmy Beach in Toronto before moving to Northern Ontario, where he stayed out of rugby last year. Joe scales 178 pounds and is a hard man to stop on the gridiron.

Baseball Veteran Dies In St. Thomas

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Joseph W. Knight, one of the "grand old men of baseball," died Monday at his suburban Lynhurst home. He was about 76 years of age and had been in failing health for some time.

"Joe" Knight began his baseball career nearly 60 years ago with the Eries of his native Port Stanley. In the late 70's he went to Bay City, Mich., and from there went to Worcester in the old Eastern circuit. He played also for Baltimore Orioles, Detroit and Cincinnati.

Knight led Eastern League clouters during his term with Providence and was considered one of the greatest outfielders in the game. In recent years he assisted local teams in an advisory capacity and plied his trade as a carpenter.

Windsor Heat Wave "Gets" Hockey Teams

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP)—Windsor, in the midst of an unprecedented autumn heat wave, with scores sunbathing on municipal beaches, tennis, players using shorts, wondered today if it shouldn't change its nickname from Canada's sun parlor" to Canada's tropical zone.

The mercury yesterday mounted to 85 and weather bureau officials said it likely would exceed that figure today. Yesterday's 85 was the highest on record for the Oct. 15-31 period.

Chief sufferers were hockey teams doing fall training in Windsor and Detroit Goalies for the various teams said they were losing too much weight.

Leafs And Stars Try Ice At Galt Arena -

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP).—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and their minor-league relations, Syracuse Stars of the International-American league, settled down today to hard work—with a little play—in preparation for the opening of the 1938-39 season little more than two weeks hence.

Thirty-nine players, 15 Leafs, 16 Stars and eight amateurs, were in camp. For an hour daily the big squad will perspire through still physical exercises followed by nine holes of golf and an hour and a half of bruising hockey. Nights will be free but the players must be abed by 11 p.m.

The players motored from Toronto yesterday and just couldn't wait to get on the ice. Before arriving in Preston, training camp headquarters, they stopped at nearby Galt and worked the kinks out of their legs in a lengthy practice in the arena. It wasn't a stiff workout; the teams won't get down to serious business until this afternoon.

Irwin in 8th Season

Coach Dick Irwin, starting his eighth season with Toronto, watched the impromptu work-out—it was the first time most of the players had skates on this season—with "pleasant surprise." He has high hopes his youthful but experienced team, N.H.L. champions last winter, will bring Toronto its first Stanley Cup victory since the 1931-32 season.

Jerry Connell, defenceman from Port Colborne seniors last season, watched the practice from the sidelines. Connell was signed by the Leafs late last winter. He played lacrosse for Orillia Terriers during the summer and three weeks ago fell heavily during a game and fractured an ankle. He is not expected to take to the ice before December.

Prince Of Wales Beats King George

Prince of Wales took another two points on Monday afternoon when they defeated King George eleven after a keen battle by the score of two to one in the Public School Soccer League and finished in third position.

Crowe Scored Opening Counter.

Prince of Wales set a steady pace to confine the play in King George area, where their full backs put up a brilliant defence. Midfield tactics held sway until Frape intercepted a King George movement to send Crowe away to the other end to open the scoring and held the lead until the interval.

Withers Equalized.

On resuming, the West-enders forced the issue to be taken by surprise by the East City boys, who broke away into Prince of Wales goal to receive a penalty kick taken by Withers who gave the custodian no chance to save. Play ran from end to end endeavoring to break the tie, but it fell to the West-enders to get the winning goal through Batley in the closing minutes. Prince of Wales 2, King George 1.

King George — R. Anderson, goal; H. Withers and D. Ralph, backs; K. Ferguson, G. Powell, and F. Wise, halves; K. Withers, H. Foster, A. Barrie, C. Cornwall, and S. Stewart, forwards; subs., K. Lee and S. Joyce.

Traynor Signs On Again At Pay Boost

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Although the Pirates missed out on the gold and glory of this year's National League pennant, Manager Pie Traynor has signed a new one-year contract at an increase in salary, the Pittsburg Club announced today.

Traynor mailed in the contract from his Brockville, Ind., home just before he left on a hunting trip in Wisconsin's forests.

President William Benswanger, in announcing the hiring of Traynor for his fifth full season, said:

"We feel, and other baseball men of the country also feel, that Pie did a good job in 1938. It was only an unfortunate break that prevented him from winning the pennant."

Informed observers said the salary probably would be around $17,000 or $18,000.

S. H. Logan, Canadian Banker Pays Visit To Peterborough

A distinguished visitor to Peterborough to-day was S. H. Logan, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who was a luncheon guest of Graeme Falkner, manager of the local branch of that organization. Accompanying Mr. Logan was J. E. W. Stephenson, superintendent of the bank's business development branch.

An internationally known authority on business conditios, Mr. Logan told of the decline in business activity during the summer due to severe and widespread crop damage in the Prairie Provinces and next, to external depressants coincident with a marked downturn in American business activity, which, in itself, had world-wide effects.

"World trade, based upon the volume of exports and imports, is estimated to have declined by 12 per cent between the autumn of 1937 and the early part of 1938," said Mr. Logan. By June of this year British industrial production was officially measured as nearly 10 per cent below that of the corresponding month of 1937, while there was a similar downturn in France, one of 6 per cent in Sweden and of about 25 per cent in Belgium and Holland."

"The greatest loss was, of course, in the United States, where the output of industry declined by more than one-third between January 1937 and June 1938. Germany's industrial production rose slightly above that of the summer of last year, owing, of course, to intensification of armament, but in striking contrast, that of Japan fell, notwithstanding the gearing of the country's industrial machine to the great needs of the conflict with China."

Change for Better.

"In July this year a change for the better was apparent both in world and in Canadian economic conditions. American industrial production turned upward in that month, the rise since continuing, though at a slightly lower rate, while in some European countries slight imprivement in business activity was noticeable. In Great Britain the velocity of the decline lessened, with prospects for some important trades brightening. In Canada, industrial production, apart from that in the so-called heavy industries which are always the last to feel the effectsof economic stimulation, increased slightly and a further rise occurred in August."

"There is evidence, however, that the acute crisis in international affairs, sharply illuminated by the struggle over the status of Czechoslovakia, caused a general hesitancy, and the recovery movement slowed down if, indeed, it was not arrested. In Canada, however, we have a domestic influence which is bound to exert constructive effects regardless of conditions abroad. I refer to the comparatively good crop results in the West, where the total grain yield (that of wheat, oats, barley, flax, and rye) is officially estimated as nearly double that of a year ago, 660 million bushels all told, as compared with a harvest of about 370 millions in 1937. These results are not as good as were desired, for one reason, because of severe damage in many districts of Saskatchewan, and grain prices are extremely low, but the movement of the merchantable crops into commercial channels will in itself partly offset the loss in national income which this country has suffered in the past year. Farm, elevator and transportation labor—indeed, all those engaged in the movement of the merchantable crops—will, of course, be compensated for their work, probably to the extent of $40,000,000 in excess of the amount required for their services in connection with the crops of 1937. If to this amount is added even a fair net return to the growers for their grain marketings and for the conversion of grain into meats, poultry and dairy products, we should have from this Western source alone a new fund of purchasing power which would go far to offset that lost through reduction of our merchandise export trade."

"Iron and steel production did not fall greatly until midsummer, when some large special orders, notably at an important point outside Ontario, were worked off. One reason for the marked decline in newsprint production is the accumulation of heavy stocks of paper by American publishers last year, which have since been reduced. In other words, production in 1937 was over-stimulated, and the activity in this important industrial unit during 1938 suffers in comparison. An improved trend in construction work took place in July and August this year over the preceding months, contracts during the summer being nearly equal to those in the like period in 1937, whereas in the early part of 1938 new projects undertaken were about 30 per cent. less." Mr. Logan said.

"One important feature in the Canadian business situation which has not yet been illustrated is the impressive record of the mining industry. Complete statistics on mining do not yet go beyond the first half of this year, for which period the value of such production has been estimated as about $210,000,000, a drop of less than 3 per cent. from the like term of 1937, notwithstanding marked recessions in prices of certain materials, notably non-ferrous base metals. The volume of gold production increased by about 12 per cent., that of copper by 20 per cent., that of zinc by 16 per cent, and that of lead by about 3 per cent. There was a fractional decline in the production of nickel. There has been but little change in the mining situation since these half-yearly statistics were prepared."

MORE ABOUT— 11,132 Cattle

W. Bett could be assigned to this county.

According to Dr. Penhall's report, Otonabee township has undergone the first general test, and seventy herds in Smith township have been examined. The preliminary general test is also in progress in Victoria county; Durham has been completed, and in Northumberland the second general test is under way. Hastings county has requested to be accredited, and is next in line for official attention.

Process of Elimination

If Dr. Bett finds some reactors when he first tests a herd, he returns in sixty days and makes a second test, continuing that spaced process until the herd is free of infection. In the meantime the premises have to be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, and have to be examined by the veterinarian before they are finally approved.

If the first test discloses no reactors in a herd, the inspector does not return to them until all the cattle in the county have been tested and a general retest is begun.

The regulation of the Federal Government applying to that detail is as follows: "An area (county, municipality or district) in which the percentage of cattle infected with tuberculosis does not exceed one-half of one per cent. (0.5) shall be declared by the Veterinary Director-General an accredited area for a period of three years, and when a percentage of cattle infected with tuberculosis does not exceed two-tenths of one per cent. (0.2) it shall be declared an accredited area for a period of six years."

Some Blood Tests.

It is understood that quite a number of the farmers of the district did not wait for community decision to seek accreditation. More than two hundred of them have had their herds accredited for a considerable time. Their cattle are inspected once a year, and at the same time these farmers generally adopt the blood test plan for the elimination of Bangs disease.

In the Government report for the week ending September 28 the progress of accreditation in sixteen counties is reviewed. The facts relating to three counties in this district are set forth as follows:

Durham—First general test: 2,878 herds, with a total of 38,941 cattle; number of cattle reacting to the test and thereby shown to be infected, 2,868; number of herds infected, 791. Total compensation to farmers, $83,939.

Peterborough— First general test: 657 herds, comprising 10,259 cattle; 394 reactors; infected herds, 105; compensation to farmers, $12,170. First 60-day retest: 7 herds, 109 cattle, 12 reactors; 4 herds infected; compensation, $268.

During the week ending September 28, Dr. Bett tested 39 herds with a total of 515 cattle ;there were 27 reactors in three infected herds, and the compensation was $856.

Victoria County up to September 28: First general test: 677 herds, 10,746 cattle, 349 reactors; 86 herds infected; compensation, $9,864.

Massey's "Lincoln" Hailed In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Actor Raymond Massey doesn't see why the fact he is a Canadian should make any difference in the way he plays the role of Abraham Lincoln on the stage.

Theatre critics apparently agreed with him as they drew on all their superlatives to describe his performance of the title role in Robert E. Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" Saturday night. The suggestion that a Canadian couldn't play "such a typically American part" as the great emancipator was forgotten.

That suggestion came a few weeks ago from the Tabloid Daily News which held up its editorial hands in horror of the prospect. The paper suggested audiences would have in mind the fact that Massey was British and would not be able to imagine him as Lincoln.

But Saturday night an audience cheered Massey loudly at the end of his performance, described by Burns Mantle, the News' drama critic, as "perfection."

Massey's Stand.

Massey himself said in an interview before the New York premiere that "my being a Canadian wouldn't have anything to do with the outcome" of his interpretation of his part.

"Some people ask why a man who is not an American should play Lincoln. But if you follow that argument, why should an American play Queen Victoria? Or why should an Englishwoman either. The actress would have to be a German, for the Queen's whole family were German, and she spoke with a guttural accent. No, acting doesn't depend on nationality, but on the actor's ability to understand and interpret."

Massey told how his interest in Lincoln was born in Toronto when, as a small boy, he used to listen to his father's discussions of the president.

His father devoted much of his leisure to the study of Lincoln and the friend with whom he liked to discuss the subject was John F. Goucher, head of Goucher College. As a boy Goucher had met Lincoln in Cleveland shortly before the American Civil War.

Hitler Asks Czechs Yield Non-Nazis

PARIS, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas).—Reports Chancellor Hitler had demanded non-Nazi German refugees in Czechoslovakia be handed over to him today aroused concern in the Paris Leftist press.

According to Genevieve Tabouis in L'Oeuvre (Radical Socialist) the German Fuehrer is "demanding delivery of at least 10,000 Germans who have failed to subscribe to Nazi doctrines."

"The Gestapo (German Secret Police) has arrived in Prague in force and is spreading out in the various towns of Czechoslovakia," Mme. Tabouis said. "In the railroads and in other transport facilities, Gestapo agents are already installed."

Halls Bridge W.I. Hears Fine Talks

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Oct. 18.—The October meeting of the Hall's Bridge branch of the W. I. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith last Tuesday evening, with 25 members in attendance. The president, Mrs. Howard Pearson, was in the chair and conducted the business session. The treasurer reported $88.50 on hand and a grant of $10 was made to the Children's Aid in Peterborough. After a discussion the members decided in favor of the new magazine.

The invitation of the Warsaw branch to meet them on November 8 was accepted. Mrs. Archie Fulton was appointed a delegate to the area convention with Mrs. E. Blewett alternate.

Mrs. Wallace Shearer, relief convenor, took charge of the program and a very interesting and instructive talk on relief and unemployment was given by Mr. Ken Stewart, student minister at the 16th. This was followed by a talk from Mrs. W. Lean of Apsley, district president on what a member should do and should not do, and was very much enjoyed. Mrs. Wellie Pearson gave current events.

Four Germans Placed Under Arrest Taking Pictures Of Panama Canal

PANAMA, Oct. 18 — (AP). — The United States military today held four Germans, one a woman, for photographing key defences to the Panama Canal.

A court of inquiry will determine whether they are to be charged with espionage on the waterway, vital link in American defence by which the United States fleet can be shifted from Pacific to Atlantic or back as emergency demands.

The four were arrested Sunday while taking pictures of Galeta Point, first defence of the Atlantic approach to the Canal.

They entered Fort Randolp reservation in the morning by auto and denied, the sentry said, they had a camera. The question is routine to all visitors.

Search later led to the arrests and confiscation of the quartet's camera and automobile.

Authorities said they were: Ingeborg Guttmann, the woman; Hans Schackow, said to be employed by the German Hapag-Lloyd Steamship Line agency at Cristobal; Gisbert Gross and Edward Robert Kuhrig.

Herridge And Manion Are On Same Train

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18—(CP).—Hon. R. J .Manion, national Conservative leader, was greeted by Manitoba party officials when he stopped over an hour here today en route to Edmonton for a meeting Tuesday night.

Aboard the same Winnipeg bound train was Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to the United States. He and Dr. Manion had a lengthy chat. It was the first time the two had met since the July national convention that elected Dr. Manion party leader and at which Mr. Herridge described the platform resolutions as "a lot of junk."

PENSIONS CONTINUE

FREDERICTON—(CP).—Old age pension cheques distributed in New Brunswick in September numbered 11,371 and represented a total of $161,565. New applications granted amounted to 145 and 109 pensioners died since the previous month.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Attempted Cattle Rustling

SIMCOE.—Police are investigating a claim by Clayton Gillette, thieves attempted to steal some of his cattle during the weekend. Gillette said he was attracted to nearby woods after sundown and found one of his cows tethered to a tree. As he was untying the animal, he said he heard a shot in the woods.

Rural Section Of Monaghan Is Likened By H. B. Rye To "Sudeten Minority Group"

The rural section of North Monaghan Township, in their contemplated move of seceding from the township as it is now made up, was likened last night by H. B. Rye to "a Sudeten minority group," but he added, "I don't know who is going to be the protector who is going to take them under his wing."

Mr. Rye, president of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association, was in the chair at the first meeting of that organization since the summer lay-off. Only 14 others were present.

He voiced denunciation of a deputation from the rural section of North Monaghan Township that waited on the Township Council recently to protest recent changes and expenditures. "They objected to practically everything we succeeded in getting the Council to put through," he said. He told ratepayers that the deputation had objected to the Council's having paved certain portions of suburban district roads, and charged that the paving had not cost the residents of the rural districts one cent. "And all but one who objected live on the highway," he said. "We pay more toward the highways than they do, yet we don't use them."

He criticized one member of the deputation, W. G. Waterman, saying that "he wants to go back to the old road system. I wonder if he'd like to go back to the old system of transportation, too." Mr. Waterman drives a car and he probably wouldn't care to go back to the kind of roads his grandfather used, was Mr. Rye's contention. "Yet he can't have half the pioneer days and half the modern ones," he said.

The suburban section of North Monaghan should form a strong committee to deal with the secession problem should it come to an actuality, he maintained. He argued that the suburban portion should place its side of the case before the Department and should make its need that School Section Number Two should be the dividing line, and that the suburban section should continue to be known as North Monaghan Township. It should not be allowed to become part of Peterborough city and incur the debts of the city, he said.

"We should make it a condition they get their Hydro from Durham and Northumberland County if they go into that county—as they would have to—and then they would find they would have to pay about three times more for it than they do now." His contention was that the suburban section's rates are higher because of the distance power has to be carried to the rural section, while the latter's is lower because a considerable portion is near the source of supply.

Mr. Rye called for election of officers at the next meeting, on the first Monday in November, and expressed the hope a large crowd of ratepayers would be in attendance. The suburban North Monaghan ratepayers must awaken to the fact that the destiny of their municipality lies in their own hands, he said.

The meeting is tabled as a "Symposium on Diseases of the Gastro-Intestinal Tract." Opening at 10 o'clock in the morning, the all-day program will include lectures by Dr. N. B. Taylor of the Department of Physiology, University of Toronto, Dr. Samuel F. Marshall of the Lahey Clinic, Boston, Dr. E. E. Cleaver of Toronto, and Dr. James F. Weir of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester.

Extra Charge Faces Mariposa Man

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 18.—A Mariposa man named McLachlan, with a previous court record, pleaded guilty in police court Monday before Magistrate Gee to the charge of illegal possession of liquor. County Crown Attorney Anderson informed the court that the accused had given considerable trouble at various times, and at the present time was only permitted to buy beer in a beverage room. Constable Adair stated that McLachlan had become drunk and had thrown his father in the creek and had smashed the furniture in the house. The accused was remanded for sentence when Chief of Police Lawler informed the court that he intended to lay a charge of attempted theft of gasoline by means of a syphon.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Moynes, situated on the Oakwood road, a short distance from Lindsay, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday night, together with contents. Mr. and Mrs. Moynes were away from home at the time and the cause of the fire is a mystery. Some insurance was carried on the house.

Bears are reported to be plentiful in the north country, and especially near the boundary of Victoria and Haliburton counties. Wilson McElwain, who lives near Donald, saw a large black bear on the road in front of him when leaving the village. Sam Pasquino also spotted a bear close to his home on the outskirts of the village. The bears are becoming bolder and are invading barn yards in some of the settlements.

Allan Lynch, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lynch, of South Ops, was taken to Ross Hospital on Saturday, suffering from injuries received when he fell from a ladder in his father's barn. His injuries consisted of a broken arm and cuts about the head and face.

Mariposa Home Burned

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP).—While the occupants were away, fire destroyed the large frame house of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Moynes, Mariposa township, Sunday. Joe Ryall, a neighbor, saw the fire while walking along the road and he put in an alarm. The fire spread so rapidly that only a small quantity of the downstairs furniture was saved.

Cause of the blaze was not determined.

This is the first work to be done in connection with the Bell Telephone moving all their wires on Front Street to the Hydro poles and removing the unused poles from the north side of the street.

A number of men have been engaged at the community park for more than a week with a grader, a plow, picks and shovels, where they have been levelling the north end of the park. It has now assumed nearly twice its previous proportions of level ground.

Psychology Course Opens For W.E.A.

The Workers' Educational Association course in psychology which is being conducted by Prof. Dhami at the Collegiate Institute opened Monday night with an attendance of nearly fifty. The study sessions are held every Monday night at 8 o'clock in a room at the Collegiate to which newcomers are directed. In a recent reference to the Association's work it was reported that the registration fee of two dollars was refunded for regular attendance at the end of the course. This was incorrect. The fee goes to the University as a contribution toward the expense of the winter's study course.

Persons intending to take advantage of this study of psychology are urged to register at the next meeting so as not to miss the introductory discussions. Dr. Dhami traced the beginnings of psychology back to the time of Aristotle, explained the modern method of experiment, and brushed aside as unsound and unscientific phrenology and other studies once accepted as authentic.

Young Man Hurt

Joseph Mattucci, 22, of 530 Chamberlen street, sustained a dislocated collar bone and possible fracture of several ribs Monday when the bicycle on which he was riding and an automobile driven by F. M. Somerville, 16 Inverlea street, collided on Sherbrooke street east of George street. Mattucci had crossed a vacant lot on his bicycle and entering Sherbrooke street passed behind a motor car that had stopped at the northeast corner of the intersection of Sherbrooke and George streets. Mr. Somerville's car, going east came along at that moment and bicycle and automobile collided, with the result that Mattucci was hurled from his wheel and injured. The front wheel of his bicycle was damaged beyond repair.

NO CHANGE GAS PRICES

Toronto city is the only place where a reduction has been made in the price of gasoline, and there a one cent reduction is in force since Saturday. It was officially learned today no change would be made in this city or district and even as far west as Vancouver official reports say there is no change. The slight reduction in the wholesale prices make it possible to effect a reduction in Toronto, but carrying charges and other conditions prevent any such change elsewhere.

Natural gold setting with cameo in pink and white are enjoying the most popularity, although there is still a fairly steady demand for the black and white. The majority of the stones come from Italy.

LAST ROSES OF YEAR

The last roses of summer are blooming in the flower and shrubbery beds at the Raybestos factory whose conifers, planted a year or two ago, have made strong growth and are now well established. They were planted by Frank Biddle. Of course, John A. Smith and others still have roses in their gardens, but the Raybestos is the only industrial grounds with remnant blooms.

Dorothy Dix Starts Interesting Engagement In Peterboro' Home

"Did you read Dorothy Dix in The Examiner last night?" a George street man asked a reporter today. "She says the husband of today is one of the greatest modern improvements, especially compared with his grandfather. In one sense it seems that today's men have gone soft in their treatment of woman, and they are no longer "selfish tyrants" and a lot of other things. So I remarked to my wife that the modern woman was getting all the breaks. She puts on a Mona Lisa look and says "If you're a Nelson Eddy or Clark Gable, I'm Jeanette McDonald or Myrna Loy." Now what did she mean by that? I said "Well, I'll let that idea float around before I reach out and grab it by the tail," and she came right back "It won't even get its feathers ruffled."

Dorothy really said a lot in last night's column, and one of the things I said that got my wife's goat was "If the men of today are so much improved, they ought to be more selective. Too many of them are just saps, going to the first bidder. Of course I'm not in that class because as you say I held out for a Jeanette McDonald." And so on far into the night. That's what Dorothy Dix started in one home, but it was quite an interesting engagement."

Robbers Failed To Open Safe At Collegiate

A determined attempt was made through the night by thieves to break open the safe in the office of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School but although the combination was broken off the would-be robbers failed to get the safe open. It contained about $15 in cash. Two large crow-bars and an axe that had been used in the effort to open the safe were found on the scene this morning when the attempt was discovered.

It is believed that the thieves entered the building while classes were on Monday evening and hid themselves until the place was vacated as there were no indications of any break-in from the outside. Several glass apartments were broken in order to obtain entrance to the office. The gang remained in the building long enough to eat supper from the food kept in the domestic science department.

Trent River Bridge Is Condemned

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 18.—The big bridge crossing the Trent River at Trent Bridge has been condemned for loaded trucks of any kind until repairs are made. Heavily laden wood trucks pass through enroute south daily and attention was brought to notice one day last week when the driver of one such trucks felt the span adjacent to the swing part of the bridge spring. Notice was immediately sent to headquarters from which an inspector arrived and had sign boards bearing the notice "Gross Load 5 Ton" placed at both approaches, upon further investigation it was found several sleepers under the spans (not the swing part) had gone, making it compulsory to notify "no loaded trucks to pass over". Two men have been appointed watchmen at both approaches until repairs are made.

The Hughes Hunt Club consisted of Chris, Fred and L. B. Webb of Toronto and the trip was highly successful. The season opens in Quebec Province during the latter part of September and the weather during the past few weeks was exceptionally fine. Black flies were thick but were not particularly vicious. Fred Roy reports that partridge and deer are very plentiful in the district where they hunted and there were not many hunting that particular section.

Drafting Bylaw For Eating Houses

Alderman Gordon informed the legal committee Monday night that information is being prepared for the drafting of a new bylaw regulating victualling and eating houses and their licensing. The chairman's chief concern in the proposed revision is to prevent the Sunday sale of magazines, tobacco and other goods in stores that are granted eating house licenses at present on the same basis as restaurants because they provide soft drinks, "hot dogs" and so on.

It was suggested that restaurants might be graded in several categories, and Mayor Hamilton said that stores might be permitted to sell soft drinks, etc. without a license. By that recourse they would not be regarded as "eating houses" and would not have to be licensed.

"We hope to have the information for the committee in the near future," Alderman Gordon said, "and the members can then debate it and decide what they want to do."

Fred C. Nugent Passes In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP).—Fred C. Nugent, well known Lindsay curler, died at his home here Monday night. Mr. Nugent was a member of curling rinks of Lindsay which have won many prizes throughout Ontario and was a member of past Tankard rinks.

Ten Days Given For Paying Of Tax Arrears

"I get two or three dollars every time I call there," S. H. Mitchell told the legal committee last night in reference to the collection of one of the city's tax accounts.

Alderman Dutton laughingly remarked "Why not call there often?" And Mayor Hamilton said—"Make it every day."

The legal committee of which Alderman Gordon is chairman put in an hour and a half on the list of 1936 tax delinquents last night. Then they revised the 1935 list.

In the beginning of this tax survey Alderman Gordon said it might be helpful to the tax department if the committee went over the accounts that were in arrears and take action against those who were in a position to pay and hadn't done so. A series of meetings has brought the committee through the 1936 list. When that was done last night, the 1935 list was reconsidered in the light of the action taken at the previous meeting and the instructions given.

Alderman Gordon advised suing those who had ignored the committee's demands. In fact the word "sue" was mentioned quite frequently.

"Wait a minute now," Mayor Hamilton objected. "Before you go suing those people I'd like to see them given another chance or some more time to report to us."

"They might at least have had the courtesy to reply," Alderman Bradburn commented.

"Write them that the city will have to take action against them if they persist in doing nothing," Mayor Hamilton suggested.

"All right," Ald. Gordon said. "We'll make it peremptory in that way; if they haven't paid up the 1935 arrears in ten days the city will sue them. And that will clean up the whole 1935 list."

So, the job of sending out the ultimate notices was passed on to W. F. Huycke, City Solicitor.

Some of the property owners on both lists can't pay the taxes that are due, and it is merely a matter of time until their lots or houses fall into the hands of the city. The number in this class is not large, but there are some, especially a few elderly people whose incomes have shrunk, and their equity is steadily diminishing. In other instances the reference to some houses and lots momentarily halted the committee in the realization of financial difficulties of some families that not so many years ago was flourishing.

Cobourg Mayor Gets $300—His First Pay

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP)—Cobourg town council last night passed a resolution voting $300 to Mayor Maurice Booth as an honorium for his year's work. This is the first time a mayor has ever been paid in Cobourg although towns of the same size as Cobourg in other localities pay their municipal heads and councils. It was pointed out that this was not by way of setting a precedent but to compensate the present mayor for the time he has expended on town business this year.

Councillor Mrs. C. Delaney suggested that at the next election the matter of paying councillors be raised.

AFRAID TO MARRY

by HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and licensed by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Judy's father has gone west with her stepmother while her own mother, remarried, is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count. Judy observes that Ronald, one of the many guests at the Boland estate, takes an unusual interest in Abbey's affairs. Judy is present when the Count, in the Boland library, is about to extract a book from the rows of imitations there. Then Abbey appears, much embarrassed. Ronald phones Judy asking her to locate Abbey for him stressing its importance. On the terrace for air one midnight Judy is confronted by a strange man with a gun.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 24

QUIETLY JUDY answered the intruder. "No, I'm not Abbey Boland. I'm in her employ, though."

"Which is his room?"

"Whose room?" Her hands were tired and she dropped them. The man didn't seem to mind.

"You know. The heartbreaker. The count—Count Phillippe Alexis von Gunderfield. Got a present for him, something pretty." He waved the gun. "Right through his lousy heart. That's where he'll get it."

"You don't like him much, do you?" Judy asked, playing for time to think.

"Not at all. Know what his family did? Took our land—swallowed it up with taxes, wrung blood from our souls—" There followed such a tirade of the whole Von Gunderfield family that Judy gasped.

"That's only part of what I think of them," the loquacious gunman ended.

"But the count is poor. His family needs a new bath tub so he's trying to get some money..."

"You bet he's poor and he's staying poor." His laughter, diabolic, yet quiet, shuddered in the night wind. "Don't get me wrong, sister. He didn't steal a girl of mine. No, he bids for money. Like this Boland dame. But I owe his clan a bullet."

There was a noise somewhere. The man swung over the railing. Before he dropped, he said: "I know his room. I'll get him yet."

Plainly the man was a fanatic. He had a real or fancied grudge against the Von Gunderfields. Maybe it had been handed down from one generation to another. Meantime, the count, sleeping peacefully, was probably in more danger than he ever had been in his romantic roving career. Action must be quick.

Judy paused, one hand on the bell that would summon the maid. That would mean lights, voices, excitement. When the din ended the interloper, still at large and now aware of the signal would come back to mark two victims. It would be wiser to warn Count Phillippe privately. Then he would be on the alert and she would have done her duty and could go to sleep.

But how should she warn him? There was a telephone connection between all rooms in the many winged mansion, but at this hour no servant operated it. That was out. Abbey would be cross if she were awakened at this hour. She might tell Ronald...She wanted to tell Ronald. No, she must put him from her life, not rely on him again. Better to see the count herself. As it was, there was nothing to do but forget the whole matter, summon someone and waste priceless seconds entrusting that person with the secret, or knock on Count Phillippe's door. She chose the latter plan.

The wide hall was carpeted. The white doors were closed. Night lights burned dimly in their recesses. It was fortunate she knew in which room his grace, his highness, whatever you called a count, had had been placed. She knocked. No sound. She knocked a little louder. She heard someone turning sleepily. The third time she beat a swift staccato message on the closed door.

"Who's there?" Count Phillippe was wakened thoroughly, judging from that tone.

"Hurry, meet me in the den. It's Judy Rogers."

"Judy! Hold everything!"

She spoke in a stage whisper, hoping he would hear. "Don't—turn—on—the—light. And hurry!"

It was a matter of seconds until he opened the door. To Judy it seemed to be long minutes. She reached beyond him and closed the door. Her knees felt weak. Now that the count had come to her without being stopped by a shot, she was feeling faint and wobbly.

He noticed and reached out a supporting arm. He made no sign that he was curious as to why she had summoned him at the crack of dawn. In a moment Judy withdrew from the arm. She felt better.

"I'm sorry," she said, and tried to smile. "I had to get you out of that room. You were about to be shot."

"Shot?" His eyebrows flew upward in wonderment. "I may deserve it but who would do it?"

"An old tenant of your family's. I saw him on the balcony flourishing a gun, and he told me about it. He's hunting you now. You can't go back to that room. If you'll wait, I'll go to my room and ring for the butler to move you."

"I'll stroll along, just for the walk."

Count Phillippe lounged against the wall while Judy entered her own room and rang the butler. She came back to the door, to wait with him.

She wasn't prepared for the searching glance of his dark eyes.

"Judy, why did you summon me—warn me, I mean? Why didn't you let the bozo shoot me? That would have been the end of the Von Gunderfields and plenty of people would enjoy burning the family crest."

"This is America. We don't let people be murdered in their beds when we know about it."

"It was more than that. You had a reason for coming, Judy, Judy, you don't realize it yourself?" He was silent, eyes still probing hers. "You know, you and I could have been happy together. We could have laughed a lot, and sang, and traveled, if—" He shrugged his thin shoulders. "Never mind. We can't, you know."

The supreme egotism of the man destroyed any fear for his safety that Judy had experienced. She moved away.

"If I had not lost my money, you mean, don't you? I'm sorry to disillusion you but your charm hasn't made its usual impression."

The count laughed softly, his armor of self-confidence undented. "I never had a chance to try, you know."

Judy faced him, cheeks flaming, head high. "If you want to throw away your dowry and your bride, why not be man enough to say so? Why go crawling around for hidden means?"

"But I don't want to! I've no intention of doing so. You rapped at my door tonight. I was willing to die. I am glad to be alive, but the move, my dear lady, was yours."

He looked so foolish in his bathrobe with his dark hair rumpled and his mustache brisling, that Judy relented.

"Here comes the butler. And now—good night!"

She did not open her door, though. Abbey's voice came floating to them. "Rather public for a meeting, don't you think? Sorry to intrude. Three people make a convention, I know, but all the talking wakened me. May I join you?"

"Certainly, my dear Abbey." The count put his arm around her. "Miss Rogers wakened me suddenly from my slumbers with a story of a maniac who wanted to shoot me. She saw him on the balcony. I'm afraid Miss Rogers was having a touch of nightmare."

Abbey examined his face carefully, then apparently decided to believe him. She was scornful as she gazed at Judy.

"What did you see, Miss Rogers?"

Judy repeated the story. It sounded silly and improbably now. Maybe they both thought she had dreamed it.

Abbey gave the butler instructions to have a housemaid prepare another room. She spoke to Judy: "I trust you aren't afraid to retire, Miss Rogers?"

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, October 19.

A fairly active and promising day is read from the lunar figures. There seems to be a situation in which feminine influence is to the fore, either in connection with promoting business or in relation to matters of domestic or social well-being and comfort. It is probable that the element of secrecy may enter into such co-operation or understanding, or that affairs may profit by such intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly active year in which, however, feminine influence or co-operation may be paramount. Progress may be assured by using such assistance through quiet transactions or secret understandings rather than open agreements or contracts. Intrigue may be necessary to gain secret ends.

A child born on this day may be versatile, active and have fine intellectual as well as social qualifications for success and a happy career.

DOROTHY DIX

Failure in the Kitchen, Curtailing Freedom, Trying to Reform, Bringing the In-Laws Into the Home and Neglecting Him For the Babies Arouses Ire of Husbands

LET'S consider the five great mistakes that women make in marriage. First, all of their lives, marriage has been the career they have aspired to follow, yet they have never done a single thing toward preparing themselves for it. The can opener and the corkscrew are the only two domestic implements with which the average bride has any personal acquaintance. If her soul's salvation depended on it she couldn't cook a meal that wouldn't kill an ostrich. She throws half of her husband's salary into the garbage can, and the grounds in the coffee pot would be grounds for divorce in any domestic relations court.

We romantically ascribe all of the failures of marriage to heart affairs, but in reality they are mostly the result of stomach trouble brought on by young wives experimenting with their husband's digestions. Of course, in the end the wife does generally learn how to cook and keep house, but by the time she has done that she has turned her husband into a chronic dyspeptic and they have had so many quarrels over the biscuit and the leathery consistency of the eggs at breakfast that they are permanently alienated from each other.

One of the chief reasons why widows are at such a premium in marriage is because they have learned how to make a comfortable home on their first husband's pocketbooks.

The second mistake women make in marriage is in being too possessive. Most brides believe that there is something in the marriage ceremony that gives them a quit-claim deed to their husbands and that thereafter they own them body and soul. They think that they have a monopoly on their husbands' affections and that they should not manifest even a kindly interest in the mothers who bore them.

They think they have a right to separate their husbands from their old friends and acquaintances; to keep them from taking part in any of their former amusements; that their husbands should never step out of an evening without them, and that they have the privilege of turning out their husbands' minds and seeing what's in them just as they do their bureau drawers.

Now the thing that changes marriage from a silken bond into a ball and chain for a man is the loss of personal liberty. When he finds out that his home is nothing but a jail in which he is locked up at 6 o'clock every night and that his wife is the jailer, who turns the key on him, it is all over except the divorce decree.

He doesn't want to do anything wrong or of which his wife would disapprove. He doesn't want to have to ask her permission to go places, or to have to tell lies about why he stayed downtown at night, or took an old friend to dinner. He just doesn't want to wear his wife's collar or have her lead him around on a leash. He can't stand being "owned," and that is why the possessive wife loses out.

The third mistake that women make in marriage is trying to reform their husbands and make them over according to their own little pattern. Why wives can't take their husbands "as is," they don't even know themselves. Probably it stems from the same feminine complex that makes a woman take her new $20 hat and rip it all up and turn it into a mess. Anyway, a lot of them do it, and it is a terrible shock to a man to find out that the wife who, he thought, regarded him in the light of a combined Fairy Prince and an oracle really doesn't approve of anything about him, from the way he wears his hair to his politics.

Now after a man is grown you interfere with his personal habits at your peril, and many a devoted husband is turned into a grouch by his wife never letting him eat the kind of things he likes, or go to see the shows he enjoys, or sing in the bathtub, or tell a story without correcting him about some detail.

The fourth mistake in marriage that women make is in forcing their families too much on their husbands. Because a woman likes to have Mother always on the premises and the house cluttered up with little sisters and brothers is no indication that her husband pines for his inlaw's society. Yet only too many men find that when they united themselves to Angelina they not only got her but Sally and Janey and Mary and Tommy and Bobby and Father and Mother as well, and that their in-laws not only look upon them as running a free hotel for their benefit but feel they have a perfect right to use their clothes and car as if they were their own.

The fifth mistake that women make in marriage is in being all mother and no wife. Too many women never see their husbands as a man again after their first baby is born. All of their interest, love and petting are given to the youngsters. Husband is not in it, and that is why he so often goes hunting for some other woman to hold his hand while his wife is holding Junior's.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

One day Knarf, the shadow-boy, made himself very small. He didn't have much trouble doing that at all. When shadows want to make themselves small, they simply pull themselves together.

Well, having made himself small, he went for a walk in the garden. He was astonished at the huge boulders that were lying along the edge of the broad road that ran through the garden. He hadn't noticed the boulders in the garden before, and had never known about the broad road.

Just Tiny Pebbles.

Then he laughed to himself. The boulders were tiny pebbles and the broad road was just the ordinary narrow garden path.

"Things look different when you are small," he thought.

All at once, as Knarf was about to lie down under the shade of a buttercup, he heard a stern voice saying: "Out of the way, please! This is the line of march. You'll be knocked over if you get in our way!"

He went for a walk in the garden.

"Who are you?" Knarf asked.

"I'm an ant," the insect replied. "The rest of us are coming right behind me. Mind what I said about getting in our way!"

Sure enough, the rest of the ants came along the next moment. They marched right behind each other.

"It's a parade," Knarf said.

But he soon saw that it really wasn't a parade. For each of the ants carried a heavy bundle on its claws. One ant carried a clover seed almost as big as itself; another ant was dragging a piece of straw much bigger than itself; a third ant was carrying a crumb of bread which had blown out of the kitchen window and which seemed to be as big as a table-top. Then along came a crowd of five or six ants dragging a dead bee.

Gets in Line.

"I wonder what would happen if I got in line," Knarf said. "I wonder if they'd mind."

So he got in behind the ant carrying the crumb of bread. "Here," he said to the ant, "this is too heavy for you to carry alone. I'll help you."

The ant couldn't see him. The crumb of bread was in the way. She thought he was another ant. "I don't need any help," she answered. "But if you're not carrying anything yourself, I'll be glad if you help me." So Knarf marched in the line, wondering what was going to happen next.

Looking Back
On This Date

Sixty years ago today (on Oct. 18, 1878) Canadian newspapers told their readers that Sir John A. Macdonald was once again prime minister of the Dominion, he having for just a month before been given a great majority in support of his national policy.

It is doubtful if any country showed such a reversion of public sentiment as did Canada in that election of 1878. John A. had been repudiated five years before under the shadow of the Pacific scandal. His opponents said his was "a dead duck" politically, and many of his former supporters shared that opinion. But John A. himself, though in dire financial straits, living in semi-poverty in Toronto, never lost faith in his star, knowing that he would again win the confidence of the people whom he and Cartier had united into a dominion. (The only parallel for the Conservative victory in 1878 was the vote in 1935 when the electors defeated Mr. R. B. Bennett by a greater vote than that which he had won five years before.)

After the battle was won, naturally Sir John was the recipient of many congratulations, among them from some of the folk who had given him the cold shoulder in the shades of opposition. But the Old Man bore no malice. Flushed with his victory he could afford to be generous and forgive some little lapse from party loyalty on the part of "weak brothers."

No one seems to have been more pleased by the return of Sir John than Lord Dufferin, who had to accept his resignation in 1873 and was only too glad to welcome him back as his chief adviser. This is proven by the fact that on October 18, the day after Sir John became again prime minister, the governor-general wrote to Sir John: "We have had such intimate and confidential intercourse, and I have had such continual experience of your kindness and affectionate regard, that I cannot help desiring to leave with you some little souvenir of our friendly relations." And he sent photographs of Lady Dufferin and himself, "which I trust you and Lady Macdonald will kindly find a place for on your walls."

Nearly thirteen years were to elapse before John A. laid down the reins of office, called by the Great Elector, mourned by all Canadians and most Britons, and today now revered as our chief father of confederation, who never lost faith in his cause or in the destiny of his adopted country.

Haliborange is a concentration of Halibut Liver Oil and the juice of fresh oranges. It has double the A and D vitamin strength of Cod Liver Oil. It is the finest Food Tonic that you can take to build up resistance to coughs and colds, because it is rich in vitamins A, D and C. Vitamins A and D are body-building, bone-forming and germ-resisting. Vitamin C protects against scurvy. Haliborange has no fishy taste or odour whatsoever, but is perfectly delicious to taste.
In order that you may taste and test Haliborange Free of Charge and know beforehand that you will like it, go to your druggist and get a 5-oz. bottle with the sample bottle attached. Try the sample for tasting. Then, if you don't like it, take the 5-oz. bottle back to the druggist and he will return your money in full—75c. The 5-oz. bottle contains about two weeks' treatment.
Haliborange is splendid for young babies and growing children as well as for adults.

IN MEMORIAM

DARLING.—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Raphael Clifford Darling, who passed away eight years ago to-day, October 18, 1930.

We loved him, yes; no tongue can tell
How much we loved him,
And how well.
God loved him, too, and He thought best
To take him home with Him to rest.
—Ever remembered by his Father, Brothers and Sister.

NICHOLLS.—In loving memory of mother, Mrs. Peter Nicholls, who passed away six years ago, October 19, 1932.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days
When were were all together.
—Husband and Family.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO GOOD REASONS

POSSESSING TWO suits of equal length, neither of which has been bid by anybody, your choice between them may determine the entire result of your defense against a hostile No Trump contract. Most average players will prefer leading the suit which has the higher honor at its top, but experts usually will choose the other, for two reasons. First, all that they have to set up in the second suit is its top card, which usually is better than the second card of the other suit. But more important is the fact that the high card of the better-topped suit constitutes a good entry, whereas the top of the other one is of practically no value in that respect.

At nearly all tables of a duplicate game, South started the bidding on this deal with 1-Heart, North called 1-Spade, and South wound up in No Trump, usually at a game bid.

Wherever West led his diamond suit, three-odd were made. Where clubs were led, the declarer was held to two. A mere glance at the hands will show that the diamond A is a very useful side entry to help bring in the last club, whereas the club J has no such value in helping cash the final diamond. Also, by leading clubs, the defender is trying to set up a jack, whereas by leading diamonds he is trying to set up a nine.

Follow the play through yourself and you will find that with the club lead, the defense gets three tricks in clubs, one each in the other suits, whereas with a diamond lead it takes only one trick in each suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

What is the correct bidding of this deal?

Trent Institute Has Busy Session

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 18.—Members of the Women's Institute had a busy session Thursday afternoon at their regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. Francis Ruttan when there was an attendance of over 30. Mrs. Walter Lewis was in the chair.

The roll call was responded to by an etiquette rule. Mrs. W. C. Inkster read the motto—The Mother, what she owes to herself, the home, and community. The secretary Miss Doris Scott read communications as follows: Letter from Supervisor of Publicity regarding the series of Shakespearean broadcasts; letter from the dept. relating to subscribers for the National Magazine; letter with appeal for the Crippled Children's Hospital; letter re the Home-Making club which will be held at Peterborough training school; letter explaining the leaflets to be distributed to members to read at the meetings, discussing the control of obnoxious weeks. Letters of thanks from the sick acknowledging fruit which had been sent to them.

Demonstration given

Mrs. Harry Mann who was appointed to attend the local leader's training classes held at Peterborough for three different dates, gave an interesting demonstration on "Care of Clothing" testing the different kinds of material by burning with a lighted candle, she also demonstrated covers for dresses, hats, a minature clothes closet which could be made from orange crates at little expense. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Mann. The members discussed subscriptions for the new National Magazine and decided to fall in line with the majority of Institutes. Five dollars was voted for the Crippled Children's Hospital. The treasurer, Mrs. Earl Greenly reported over $30 in the bank. Two dollars was granted to school section No. 10. to go towards the Oratorical Contest and two dollars for Old Havelock school to be used at Christmas season.

The District Rally is to be held at Lakefield Oct. 25, when a pot luck dinner will be served. Only officers will attend, a committee was appointed to arrange for transportation. Mrs. Walter Lewis was appointed delegate to Toronto convention in November, with Mrs. Ward Glenn as alternative.

The members decided to hold card parties during the winter months at the member's homes, as ways and means of raising finances, beginning in November. Mrs. James Cook gave a demonstration on making candy—peanut brittle—which was passed around at lunch time and proved to be a rare treat.

After singing the National Anthem, dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames H. Mann, F. Ruttan, G. Brooks and Thomas Sedgwick. The November meeting will be held on Wednesday instead of Thursday at the home of Mrs. Melville Wight.

It might be well to note here the recipe for peanut brittle which Mrs. James Cook demonstrated—3 cups white sugar, tablespoon of butter, put in a frying pan over a hot fire and stir briskly till it cooks brown, then add 1 teaspoon of soda and half a pound of salted peanuts, stir quickly and turn out in buttered pans.—delicious.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. H. G. McLeod Honored By Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 18.—Twenty-six ladies, close friends and neighbors of Mrs. H. G. McLeod, gathered at the home of Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke, Gravel road, on Thursday afternoon to honor her and her son Harry, prior to their departure to take up residence in St. Catharines.

Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the informal recollections of good times spent with their guest of honor, who has spent the last twelve years in their midst.

At 4.30 the attention of the assembly was drawn to the address delivered by Miss Estelle L. Hetherington and the presentation of a lovely green table lamp by Miss Blanche Clarry to Mrs. McLeod and a set of book-ends by Mrs. M. Kinsman to Harry McLeod.

Following the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," both replied very feelingly on severing ties with Millbrook friends.

Dainty refreshments were then served by Mesdames J. E. Allen, M. Kinsman and Misses Margaret Armstrong, Vaneta Ingram and Ruth Thorndyke. Mesdames H. R. Armstrong and G. Howson poured tea at either end of the table. The guest of honor was also the recipient of an autograph book filled with the good wishes of all those present.

One evening this past week a number of friends from Cedar Valley paid a surprise visit to Mrs. McLeod and presented her with a beautiful blanket, with the colours yellow and mauve predominating. Mr. William Lackey was master of ceremonies. Among those present were the H. Goodwin family, and Mesdames Byers and Saunders.

Expect King To Tour Across Dominion

LONDON, Oct. 18—(CP Cable)—While the official program containing details of the projected royal visit to Canada has not yet been made public, it is generally expected the King and Queen will travel right across the Dominion.

It is believed their majesties will tour Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, although the restriction of the visit to three weeks would make the time they would stop in most places necessarily short.

The official announcement of the trip said it would be made in "early summer." It has been suggested the King and Queen likely would depart in the last week of May. The official program covering the trip is not expected to be made public for several weeks yet.

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP)—Supreme Court sitting opened on Monday before Mr. Justic Chevrier, with five cases on the criminal docket. Yellowknife Blast Takes One Life

YELLOWKNIME, N.W.T., Oct. 18—(CP)—One man was killed and the warehouse of the Morrissette Diamond Drilling Company was wrecked by explosion followed by fire here yesterday.

Dorius Richer, manager at this mining town 675 air miles north of Edmonton, was missing after the explosion. A dismembered body found in the building later was believed to be that of Richer. The home office of the company is at Haileybury, Ont.

Windows 600 feet away were broken and pieces of the building were hurled a quarter of a mile by the blast but serious damage was confined to the building because it is situated in the Jolliffe Island section of the town, some distance from the main section.

Cause of the explosion was not known. No estimate of damage was made.

An explosion was heard at 9 a.m. but no one went to investigate until 45 minutes later when smoke was seen coming from the building. A second blast occurred while the men were approaching the warehouse. Constable Al Fenton of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, standing on a dock 100 feet away, was thrown into the water.

Two Bombers Crash Killing Six

Navigation Message Misquoted Stirs Sabotage Rumor

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP).—Royal Air Force officers investigating the mid-air crash of two bombers in which six died said to-day a cryptic note found near the wreckage was a "navigation message."

The officers said the message read: "What will be our position in one minute?" It previously had been reported the message said: "What will this plane look like in a few minutes?"

An inquest begun at Dunmow was adjourned until Oct. 31.

DESIGN af

Six bodies were recovered this morning from the smouldering wreckages. Since Jan. 1, 174 British airmen have been killed in 93 accidents.

Eye-witnesses said the planes plunged in flames almost immediately after the collision.

The possibility the note was written by a passenger after the crash was thus ruled out. It was also considered impossible that it was written just before the collision because it seemed unlikely a person would write such a message in the face of imminent death.

The victims were identified as Pilot Officer E. C. Wheelwright, Sgt. R. Prosser, Sgt. W. C. Cunnington, Acting Sgt. J. C. Irwin, Sgt. E. M. Walker and Aircraftsman T. M. Boyd.

Mercy Killer Freed By Jury

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP).—Refusal of a grand jury to indict Harry Johnson, 65, for the self-confessed mercy killing of his cancer-stricken wife, left the bed-ridden oyster dealer a free man today.

The Nassau County grand jury reported last night it would not return an indictment. District Attorney Edward Nearby ordered a police guard over Johnson, confined to a hospital by a heart ailment, removed.

Johnson told officials he had agreed to put his 63-year-old wife to death Oct. 1 after she pleaded with him to save her from further suffering. She had lived in agony for years and doctors had told her she was incurable.

Johnson said he piped illuminating gas into the room with a garden hose. "She begged me to do it, begged me over and over again. She knew what I was doing. Her eyes were happy at the last, and she smiled."

Captured By Police

Fifteen policemen surprised Melville Campbell, wanted for complicity in two Ontario bank robberies, while he was sleeping in a Windsor apartment. Campbell is said to have spent some time at the Preston cottage on Chemong Lake late in July.

Japs Cut Path To 35 Miles East Of Canton

HONG KONG, Oct. 19 (AP)—Japanese columns gathered new momentum today and appeared to have slashed their way through Chinese defences to threaten Canton from the northeast and the east.

Terrific air bombardments aided troops of the invaders at the outset of the second week of the Japanese south China offensive which started Oct. 12.

It was stated authoritatively one column had reached Sheklung, on one of four islands in the East River crossed by the Canton-Kowloon Railway about 35 miles east of Canton.

To the north, and there were highly conflicting reports on this "back door" phase of the campaign, another mechanized detachment was said to be steadily nearing Tsungfa, 40 miles northeast of the Canton objective. Still another column was said to be within 25 miles of the Bocca Tigris forts, some 30 miles southeast of Canton, which guard the river approach to the metropolis.

Although semi-official Chinese reports asserted Waichow and Poklo, east of Sheklung, had been recaptured, credence was given dispatches that a Japanese column on the Waichow-Canton highway had sidestepped Chinese defences in the hills near Tsengshing to approach Tsungfa.

Japanese at Sheklung were reported to be repairing two great railway bridges across the East River, said to have been blown up by retreating Chinese. From Sheklung, the invaders have before them flat terrain following the railroad, well suited to mechanized units.

Mufti Calls On Britain To Get Out

Wants No Mandate, Jews Banned If Peace To Come

JERUSALEM, Oct. 19.—(AP). — Coldstream Guards marched into Jerusalem's old city to-day in clean-up operations against rebellious Arabs holding the Moslem section.

They marched in shortly after a form of martial law was proclaimed throughout Palestine to aid 20,000 British soldiers in their attempt to crush the uprising of an estimated 10,000 tribesmen.

In preparation for the clean-up drive, platoons of troops had surmounted scarred walls of the ancient city while others guarded against any possible attacks in modern sections of Jerusalem.

Jewish and Armenian quarters of the old city were understood to be under British control but from the Arab quarter rebel riflemen kept up intermittent sniping attacks.

In his exile home at Karnayel Syria, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, grand mufti of Jerusalem, set forth meanwhile the minimum demands which he said must be met before he would order his Arab followers to stop fighting.

The "brains" and "guiding spirit" of the Arab "holy rebels," the mufti declared that before peace came to the Holy Land England must stop immediately all Jewish immigration into Palestine, grant complete indepedence and a national government to the Arabs in Palestine, and abandon the idea of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land as embodied in the Balfour declaration. of Nov. 2, 1917.

Wants Mandate to End

He also imposed as peace conditions in the revolt which has claimed nearly 2,000 casualties in the past 12 weeks demands that the British mandate over Palestine be ended, that further sale of land to Jews be prohibited, and that an Arab-British treaty similar to the Anglo-Egyptian treaty be concluded. Under such a treaty England would set up an Arab state in Palestine and Jews would have only minority rights.

The British are resolved to bring under control sabotaged railways, restore crippled communications systems, occupy more active rebel centres, and establish security on the highways. To accomplish this, control of the entire country was placed in the hands of an army backed by planes, tanks and artillery. British military authorities took over command of the Palestine police force under the modified martial law order.

In making known his peace terms, the Grand Mufti declared that "No pressure or aggression by the British or the Jews can re-establish peace in the Holy Land," and added that his terms were "the only ones the Arabs will accept for a settlement of the conflict."

Pray At Shrine

Czech peasants kneel devoutly in prayer before the simple shrine of Thomas Masaryk, first president of the republic of Czechoslovakia, and seek divine guidance to lead them through the tragic days which have befallen the republic. No stone marks the grave—only a plain stone oil lamp that is always burning. Around the shrine are the graves of other citizens of Lany. Masaryk insisted that no special marks should distinguish his grave.

Largest Entry In Years Plowing Match

For the first time in the history of Peterborough plowing, machine made furrows, products of a tractor, were virtually equal in every respect to the work of horse drawn plows, at the twenty-fourth annual match conducted by the Peterborough county Plowmen's Association Tuesday on the farm of David Miller, north and west of Warsaw.

Fred Timbers of Stouffville with a tractor and a two-furrow plow was credited with a score of 81 points, only one-half a point less than the scored of 81½ points on the card of John Medd, Port Perry, winner of open class in sod with horse-drawn jointer plows And the Port Perry veteran was only one-half a point up on Harold Collins of Otonabee who finished second in the sod class. The Timbers plowing had everything the best of the non-mechanical classes showed, straight and firmly moulded furrows, compact crown and trim finish, a precise and tidy plot of plowed ground when he had finished his chore in the competition. It was said by way of enlightenment that Fred Timbers should be regarded as a "pro" plowmen, a big leaguer who only last week was starring in the Provincial match up near Barrie. And that is what his work suggested, the master touch of an artist with the cumbersome medium of a tractor drawing a two furrow plough.

Microscopic Margin

If Mr. Timbers dominated his open class for tractors, it was a different prospect over in the sod in class on where four plowmen presented to the big crowd an excellent sample of plowmanship in their four adjoining lots of almost uniform quality.

That was the contest John Medd won, as he has won many another in Peterborough soil; but Harold Collins was so close to him with his performance that the judge, Clark Young of Milliken, treasurer of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, could find only half a point separating them. And that was about as fine a margin as the delicate filaments of gossamer blown across the loamy furrows on a gentle breeze from the south. It was so close as to be practically equal to the Medd score. Before that class was judged, J. J. Duffus said he thought he could see some little extra polish in

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)

MRS. MARY MACKINNON, 31, of Detroit, was separated today from her four children following Canadian and United States immigration department rulings. Mrs. MacKinnon is banned from the United States and her children are banned from Canada.

Mrs. MacKinnon, born in Nova Scotia, entered the United States illegally in 1930 and in 1932 married her brother-in-law. She said she thought the marriage made her automatically a United States citizen.

Her husband died a year ago and she applied to become a United States citizen. She was told her case would be taken under advisement.

This week she crossed the river from Detroit to Windsor to console her sister, Mrs. B. Brewer of Windsor, on her husband's death. United States immigration officials refused her re-entry.

Seven British By-Elections To Test Chamberlain's Peace Deal

By Pat Ussher
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Neville Chamberlain's peace deal with Europe's dictators shortly will be put to the test of public opinion in seven by-elections.

The Government's foreign policy is expected to be the major issue in each with pros and cons of the Munich agreement for the partition of Czechoslovakia threshed out on the hustings.

The by-elections will be in Oxford, Doncaster, Walsall, Dartford, West Lewisham, Fylde, and Bridgewater.

The first six were caused by the deaths of sitting members. The seventh results from the appointment of R. P. Croom-Johnson, K.C., as a Justice of the King's Bench Division of the High Court. The Government held all these seats except Doncaster which had a Labor representative.

Brantford Lawyer Slides Roof As Cottage Burns

Tweed, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)

JOHN M. HARRIS, Brantford lawyer, escaped death early yesterday when fire believed to have been started by sparks from a fireplace he had just completed, destroyed his summer cottage on Loon Lake, near Cloyne, 25 miles north of here. Harris, asleep in an upstairs bedroom was forced to slide down a verandah roof to safety.

The ice-house and several outbuildings were saved. Damage was estimated at $4,000.

Invention Lands Plane Without Pilots' Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP).—An airplane could land without the aid of a human pilot, if a patent just received by the United States government proves workable.

The new system would provide automatic control for airplane landings. The pilot would set the apparatus for action six or seven miles from the field and the device would do the rest.

Its functions include regulating the speed, making adjustments for crosswinds and vertical currents and finally, putting on the brakes and bring the plane to a stop at the spot desired. Five radio beams would be foscussed on the craft to guide it to a landing.

Francis Dunmore, senior radio engineer at the United States Bureau of Standards, contributed the basic ideas for the invention.

Bootleg 'Spring' Worries Odette

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP)—E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner, said today board officials would do everything possible to discover where bootleggers obtained their supplies. As these men were arrested by Toronto's "racket busting" squad, the board would seek to trace their activities.

Mr. Odette said bootleggers' business was done when beverage rooms and liquor stores were closed. "But what would you have us do?" he asked. "Keep open all night or until two or three in the morning as in some states across the line? I do not think the people of Ontario want that.

"Where they keep open until two a.m., the bootleggers begin to do business immediately after that hour. There are always some people who want to buy when the stores are closed and they make the customers for the bootleggers."

Mt. Brydges' Bank Robbers Claimed Hijacked Following Their Raid

Campbell Remanded Week In London Court As Police Unravel Details; Car Used On Job Located In Windsor

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP).—Events leading toward solution of the armed holdup of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank last Thursday moved quickly today.

Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, who faces two charges of armed robbery in connection with the Mount Brydges holdup and one in connection with a Richmond, Ontario, holdup last July, was brought up in county police court and remanded for a week.

Inspector E. D. L. Hammond, of the Criminal Investigation Department, directing the police work, then rushed to Windsor to continue investigation there and bring back Raymond (Dolly) Quintin, arrested last night and charged with armed robbery.

However, a hint that this, a complex crime, in which one group of bandits held up the bank robbers after they had successfully held up the bank, was given credence today as rumors spread that Campbell was taken from the jail here to Windsor. At the same time the black car, believed to have been used by the bank bandits was reported recovered in Windsor.

Maid Is Gagged Home Looted In Toronto Raid

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP) — Mrs. Jean Gray reported to police today a gunman wearing dark glasses bound her in a chair after forcing her into the house from the front door and ransacked the home of Wilfred C. Philpott where she was employed. The man escaped with between $75 and $100.

Mrs. Gray said she was alone in the house on Brookmount road in the east end when the gunman rang the front doorbell just before noon. She said she informed him the owner's wife was not at home and the man forced her back into the house at gunpoint."

An employee at the house for several years, Mrs. Gray said the man was about 24 years old and five feet, seven inches tall. She quoted the bandit as saying: "This is a stick-up."

The woman told reporters the man first forced her upstairs into a bedroom, then made her go down to the cellar and from there back to the kitchen. In the cellar, she said, the man found a piece of heavy cord and with this he tied her to a kitchen chair.

Ransacks Every Room

After gagging her, the man proceeded to ransack the house, she said. He opened drawers in every room and helped himself to all the money he could find.

Philpott said he knew of $55 in his own money that was taken along with a gold sovereign. He said his son also had some money in the house. The robber was said to have raked out some pearls and other jewelry belonging to Mrs. Philpott but did not take any.

Mrs. Gray said she kept on struggling against her bonds in the kitchen. Her wrists were cut by the cord and she also had a bruise over one eye. The gunman fled after being there half an hour.

Mrs. Gray said she managed to drag herself and the chair through the dining room to the front door of the house. Using her head as a latch, she said she opened the door, rubbed the gag away from her mouth and should for help. A young girl passing by heard the cry.

5 Die In Quebec Crossing Crash

LESAGE, Que., Oct. 19 (CP).—A level crossing accident claimed five fives at this Laurentian Mountain village today when a five-passenger sedan was crushed beneath a lumbering freight train.

The list of dead, which made a total of 10 level crossing victims in the province within four days, was given as follows:

Gelinas Fortin, 65; his 62-year-old wife; Ernest Lavigne, 55; a widow, Mrs. Joseph Fortin, 56, all of Contrecoeur, Que., and Adelard Jessaume, 55, of Fall River, Mass.

The accident occurred as the car attempted to make a northward crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway line which meanders through the scattered Laurentian settlements, about 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

The car was ground to debris and it was believed all the victims died within minutes of the crash. Doctors and ambulances were rushed to the scene, about two miles out of the village.

Provincial police at St. Jerome said they had not been notified of the accident and had received no details there.

One Engine Gone, Airliner Aflame Pilot Lands In Dark, Saves 14

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 19 — (AP).—New hero of the airways was acclaimed today, as a mass of burned wreckage marked where Pilot Dave Hissong, with flames lapping about him, brought 11 passengers and three crewmen safely to earth in his burning Eastern Airlines plane.

With one voice of gratitude the passengers testified: "He saved us."

The 14-passenger twin-motored Houston-to-New York ship bust into flames near midnight a few miles from Montgomery, and though his hands were seared, the fuselage burned and one motor dropped out, Hissong stuck to the controls and put the craft down in a dark and strange field.

A moment after the passengers alighted the flames destroyed the ship.

Among the passengers was J. V. Connolly, general manager of Hearst Newspapers, New York, and E. D. Rivers, Jr., son of Georgia's Governor.

Connolly said "The heroism and fine work of the pilot simply were beyond description." Young Rivers said, "If it hadn't been for that pilot I wouldn't be here."

W. A. Foote, Eastern Airlines manager, and also a passenger, said Hissong "was a real hero."

Pilot Hissong and his co-pilot were helped from the control compartment. Pilot Hissong said a damaged propellor probably caused vibration of a motor in a way to start the fire.

U.S. Slips To 4th Place As Holder Of Flying Records

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)

GERMANY'S creation of a big military air force has been accompanied by a steady rise in her position as a holder of world aviation records.

Reporting this fact today, officials of the United States Aeronautic Association said Germany had risen from fifth place among international air record holders on Oct. 1, 1937, to third place on Oct. 1, 1938.

The United States, during the same period, fell from first to fourth place. France took first position during the year, and now holds 49 world records. Italy retained second place.

Bluenose Cripples Her Steering Gear

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 19—(AP).—The third scheduled race between the Canadian defender of the international fishermen's trophy, Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, and the Gloucester challenger, Captain Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud, was postponed today when Bluenose's steering gear became disabled just before starting time. Each schooner holds one victory in the three-out-of-five series.

The two schooners had gone out to the start of an 18-mile triangular course, which they were to have raced twice around, when the big saltbanker from Lunenburg, N.S., raised a red ensign, indicating trouble. A towboat immediately put a line aboard her and started back for the harbor.

The race committee hoisted two black balls; a signal there would be a postponement.

Cyclist Killed

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 19 (C. P.). — John Fenyak, 51, Harrow district farm laborer, was killed last night as he rode his bicycle along No. 18 Highway by an automobile driven by Russell Quick, 20, of Trout Creek, Ont., Parry Sound district community. Quick told Provincial Police he was driving in the same direction as Fenyak and did not see him because lights of an oncoming car blinded him. Kingsville is 25 miles south-east of Windsor.

Ex Almonte Mayor Dies In Fire

ALMONTE, Ont., Oct. 19 (C.P.).—William Wilson Pittard, 68, former Mayor and for a number of years owner and editor of the Almonte Times, a weekly newspaper, died in a fire which partially destroyed his home here last night.

Explosion of a coal oil lamp was believed to have caused the blaze in the old frame house where Mr. Pittard, a bachelor, lived alone. In the habit of retiring early, he evidently fell asleep before extinguishing the lamp.

Born in Carleton Place, Ont., Mr. Pittard served as councillor here for a number of years before he was elected Mayor in 1914. He was returned in 1915, 1916, and 1917. A veteran of the Fenian Raid of 1870, he was the last survivor of that company in this district.

House May Meet Before Christmas To Prorogue Before Royal Visit

OTTAWA, Oct. 19—(CP).—The government is considering calling parliament into session before Christmas in an effort to assure prorogation before the visit of the King and Queen early next summer.

Following the regular weekly cabinet meeting yesterday, Justice Minister Lapointe, acting prime minister, said no definite decision has been reached but the question of an early session is under consideration. Parliament generally assembles in January or February.

The rumored possibility of a special session to deal with the pending revision of the Canada-United States trade pact was ruled out when Mr. Lapointe said if parliament is summoned before Christmas it will not be a "fall season."

Late in November

If the government decides to begin the session earlier than usual, parliament probably will assemble late in November. This would enable the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne to be completed before Christmas adjournment and allow the legislators to start consideration of the trade treaty when they return, providing it is signed by that time.

Two judicial appointments and two federal grants to fire-devastated areas were announced by Mr. Lapointe. Mr. Justice Lucien Cannon of the Quebec superior court was made judge in admiralty for the district of Quebec and Fred H. Barlow, Aster of the Ontario Supreme Court, was appointed judge in admiralty for the district of Ontario.

A $25,000 grant was made to Canadian Red Cross Society to aid fire sufferers in the Fort Frances area of Northwestern Ontario and a $15,000 grant ordered to aid other fire sufferers in St. Luc De Matane, Que.

Chamberlain's Policy Gets 57 P.C. Of Vote In British Poll—Women In Lead

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (CP) — A survey of the British lectorate conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion was reported today to show 57 per cent of the voters approving Prime Minister Chamberlain and his foreign policy.

Results of the survey, said to have covered a cross-section of all voting groups, was made public here by the American Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the British institute. The survey was made after the Munich four-power settlement of the German-Czechoslovakian problem.

According to a brief version of the British poll cabled to the American institute, it showed Mr. Chamberlain is more popular with women voters—who, incidentally, outnumber the men—than with male voters.

Based on the number of votes cast in the last general elections, the British institute's report said the division of opinion as shown by the survey would represent about 12,500,000 votes for Mr. Chamberlain and his foreign affairs policy compared with approximately 9,500,000 against.

Police Sift Even Their Furnace Ashes As Records Of 7,200 Arrests Vanish

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP) — A search so thorough it has included the sifting of ashes from a police station furnace was being conducted today by police officials attempting to trace records of 7,200 arrests wanted in a Brooklyn corruption inquiry.

"Some persons with a terribly guilty conscience is the perpetrator of this," said Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine as he disclosed the police records had been stolen.

William Herlands, city commissioner of investigation, had searched for the books in his six months undercover inquiry into Brooklyn police irregularities, an investigation which is to be assumed shortly by John Amen, a special prosecutor named by Governor Lehman.

Valentine said the destruction exceeded anything he had ever seen in 35 years in the police department. He intimated that the guilty persons might have been involved in a bail bond scandal.

Hitler Ready With Plan To Disarm

Hint Refusal Of 3 To 1 Air Ratio May End Naval Pact

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 19—(CP Cable).—All signs point to a disarmament appeal by Chancellor Hitler to the British Government in the near future. The German controlled press already has sent up trial balloons to give the Fuehrer and his advisers a chance to see which way the wind is blowing, not only on an arms limitation pact, but on the return of the former German colonies.

No direct approach has been made to the British Government, but it would not be surprised to receive from Hitler a suggestion that Great Britain and Germany call a halt in the arms race. In recent speeches Hitler has pointed to the Anglo-German naval greement as indicating his peaceful desires and intentions.

The British Government faces two alternatives: To wait until Hitler makes his appeal or beat him to it with a plan of its own.

Hitler might suggest an air pact of there planes to one in his favor, the approximate reverse ratio of the naval agreement. It is practically a foregone conclusion that the British Government would turn down any lop-sided ratio of this sort and run the risk of Hitler repeating that Great Britain had spurned his overtures of peace. He might even take it as an excuse to repudiate the naval accord.

On the other hand, the British Government might think it advantageous to offer Hitler an all-embracing military pact which would mean parity in the air, three to one in Britain's favor in sea tonnage, and three to one in Germany's favor on the standing army.

The political effect of any offer of this sort is difficult to judge, although it obviously would be fairer than any attempt to bind air defences at their present ratio, which would place Great Britain in a decidedly disadvantageous position.

B.C-Yukon Road Start Hinted In '39

VICTORIA, Oct. 19 (C.P.). — International negotiations may decide shortly whether or not an early start will be made on construction of a motor road through British Columbia and the Yukon Territory to connect Alaska with the United States.

President Roosevelt has already appointed a five-man commission to study feasibility of various suggested routes and methods of financing. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has told Premier Pattullo of British Columbia he will appoint a Canadian commission to work with that group.

There is even talk of starting work on the highway next year. Representative Warren G. Magnuson of Seattle, acting chairman of the American Commission, came here to see Mr. Pattullo, and later said:

"I found the Premier enthusiastic about the project. We want to get work started next spring and believe it may be done. The only obstacle is the technical one of international borders."

One big difficulty, so far as British Columbia is concerned, is to find the money to build a 504-mile section of highway between Hazelton, northern end of the present provincial road system, and the Yukon boundary.

Two Trips to U. S.

Mr. Pattullo has made two trips to Washington, D.C., conferring each time with President Roosevelt. Informed Washington sources say the United States is willing to finance British Columbia's share of the total cost—variously estimated between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000.

That suggestion of an American loan to British Columbia has raised more objections than any other feature of the scheme on grounds the United States may be interested primarily in a military road, which might tie Canada into an offensive and defensive alliance with her neighbor to the south.

Other sources have opposed the scheme, too, saying roads should be built through older sections of the province before opening new territory.

De Valera's Move To End Partition Meets Cool Reception In North

BELFAST, Oct. 19 (CP Cable). — Eamon de Valera's latest overture to end the partition between Eire and Northern Ireland met with a chill response from political leaders of the six northern counties today.

"The people of Northern Ireland will not entertain Mr. de Valera's scheme for one minute," said Sir Joseph Davidson, grand secretary of the Orange Order.

"No safeguards which he can offer will be acceptable to the loyalists of Northern Ireland. We may have our domestic differences but on the question of our association with the United Kingdom we are as one. If our position were threatened we would stand together as a solid mass prepared to go to any length in defence of our liberties."

John F. Gordon, Minister of Labor and president of the Labor Unionist Association, expressed delight at the "firm attitude" taken by Viscount Craigavon, Premier of Northern Ireland, in regard to the new proposals of the Premier of Eire. Lord Craigavon re-affirmed the determination of the six counties to remain part of the United Kingdom.

(In an interview with the London Evening Standard yesterday, Mr. de Valera urged the United Kingdom to persuade Northern Ireland to join in an all-Ireland parliament, the North at the same time retaining autonomy in local affairs. He warned that while the partition remained the chances of Eire's co-operation with the United Kingdom in the event of war were "very slight.")

Thankful For Craigavon.

Mr. Gordon added that "in Lord Craigavon we have a wise and experienced leader who stands as firm as rock on the question of Northern Ireland's partnership with the United Kingdom. It is characteristic of the enemies of Northern Ireland that they are trying to take advantage of the recent international crisis for their own ends."

Thomas Henderson, Independent Unionist member of the Stormont Parliament, said it would be infinitely more preferable for Northern Ireland to abolish its own parliament and go back to Westminster than to accept Mr. De Valera's plan.

"There is no doubt we shall resist to the utmost of our power any attempt to coerce Northern Ireland," Mr. Henderson said. "As one who has fought tooth and nail against the government of Northern Ireland on many matters, I can say that Independent Unionists would have something to say and do if there was any question of merging with Eiree."

The King For Hyde?

Captain Herbert Dixon, chief government whip, declared Mr. De Valera was asking the people of Northern Ireland to give up the King for President Douglas Hyde and to surrender the Union Jack for the tricolor of Eire.

"He asks the working man of Northern Ireland farmer to yield the rights for which he has fought so many years," Captain Dixon said. "I think it is regrettable that Mr. De Valeras undoubted brains and talents are being devoted to political ends rather than uplifting and improving the social conditions of his own people."

First Snow Falls In Saskatchewan

ESTEVAN, Sask., Oct. 19—(CP).—As the season's first snow fell in the Estevan - Bienfair coal field in South-eastern Saskatchewan 500 striking members of the United Mine Workers of America prepared to-day for a prolonged struggle for better wages and improved working conditions.

One obstacle to early settlement was the demand of both the U.M.W.A. and the Canadian Federation of Labor, opposing unions, for representation of any board of inquiry. A statement by the Saskatchewan government said the miners want a board of conciliation, but the Dominion Act allows for only one employees' representative on such a board.

No picketing was reported at the big mines closed in the district. The small mines are still operating with 200 miners at work.

Doctors Swinging To Coloured Gowns

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP). — Men in white are to become men in light green, light blue or pale purple.

This change from classic white for medical garb was explained to the American College of Surgeons today by William Engal, M.D., of the Cleveland clinic.

The reason—to get rid of glare. Surgeons, Dr. Engel explained, are pioneering the new style. Rapid increase in the candlepower of light available for their operations has brought cases of terrific eye strain.

The strain can be avoided by doing away with the snow-white walls, white gowns and uniforms and white "drapes," covers over the patient. A few surgeons already have begun to wear colored gowns.

New York Tugs on Strike So Queen Mary Does Her Own Docking

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).

THE QUEEN MARY, largest ship afloat, docked—in perfect weather—under her own power today because of the New York harbor tugboat strike.

The berthing was nearly perfect and was completed in 34 minutes from the time she arrived off the end of her pier.

The liner brought 1,601 passengers and $25,000,000 in gold from Europe.

One line snapped as the ship began use of her winches to bring her to the side of her pier but four others were immediately put out and the propellers started. The Queen Mary drifted 75 feet before she was brought about.

Full Time Near For G.M. Plants

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP)—Factories of General Motors of Canada, Limited, will soon have all employees back on full time, according to Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager.

The announcement is coincident with one from New York that the corporation will employ 35,000 more workers within the next two weeks. The increase in employment, ooth here and in the United States, is said to be in connection with expansion and production of 1939 models.

During the past two weeks, over 2,500 men have been recalled in factories at Oshawa, Windsor, St. Catharines and Regina. In a month it is expected that 3,000 more workers will have been recalled, and the maximum production payroll of 8,000 will be reached in all four factories.

Production will start in Regina on October 25, two months earlier than last year.

"With our Dominion continuing to exhibit commercial and economic stability, and with the continued prosperity of our basic Canadian industries assured, we have no misgivings for 1939," said Mr. Carmichael. "Prospects for export trade are distinctly favorable."

who was detailed to make the trip to Windsor with Inspector Hammond and his driver Bruce Lindsay, it was reported.

Stories Differ

However there were conflicting reports on this as governor Mitchell of the county jail denied that Campbell had been released and Crown Attorney Newton said he had issued no release order.

Campbell appeared in a crowded courtroom in the county police court here before Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw who read the armed holdup charge.

The charge was that on Oct. 13 at Mount Brydges, being together and while armed with a revolver, Campbell held up the bank and obtained $3,886, certain insurance policies, other papers and one Royal Bank of Canada seal.

After the charge was read Crown Attorney asked for a remand of one week and this was granted.

"Have you got counsel?" Magistrate Hawkshaw asked Campbell.

"Not yet," he replied.

"Do you want to get council?"

"Not just yet."

"You face a pretty serious charge," Magistrate Hawkshaw counselled.

"I've got a week to get counsel," Campbell replied in a confident tone.

John Donahue, 32, of Windsor and Miss Kathleen Byrne, 22, of Windsor, who were brought to London yesterday afternoon with Campbell, remained in their cells in the jail.

Yesterday they were taken before Jack McLarty, justice of the peace, and remanded to jail for one week, being held as material witnesses.

After he was remanded in the county police court today Campbell was taken to the office of identification officer Walter Harpur of the city police force for fingerprinting.

Out On $10,000 Bail

Inspector Hammond said today that he planned to bring Quintin, who was out on $10,000 bail on a charge of house breaking when picked up by Windsor police last night, back to London late today.

Whether or not he will be placed in a police identification line up upon his arrival here is not known. The bandits who held up the Mount Brydges bank were masked and yesterday when Campbell and John Donaghue were placed in a line up, Manager J. W. Flett and Teller R. A. Norman were not able to identify them positively.

Police last night denied that the gang responsible for the Mount Brydges robbery had been interested in either the recent safe cracking at Listowel or a series of house breakings here.

Opera Singer Is Coming To City

Miss Marjorie Lawrence, the Metropolitan Opera soprano who is coming here for a concert on October 26th, at the Collegiate auditorium, is fond of animals, but she insists it's no treat to be locked in New York's Bronx Zoo on a dark and chilly night.

Miss Lawrence went through the experience not so long ago. She admits she was frightened almost to death, although she was accompanied by a full-sized escort.

"We wandered through the Zoo hour after hour," she said. "It got darker and darker. The wolves were howling, the laughing hyenas were laughing, the monkeys were chattering, the wretched seals were barking and splashing in their tanks. And not a soul in sight. Oh, it was horrible!"

Miss Lawrence said that she and her unnamed companion went to the Zoo about four o'clock in the afternoon.

"It was a lovely day," she said "and we decided on the spur of the moment to take a look at the Zoo. I'm crazy about animals, and Zoos are my weakness.

"We went in a taxi and entered the park by a small side gate. We wandered around and had a wonderful time. When the sun began to set the skies were so beautiful and we were sitting on a bench for the longest time, listening to the twittering of the birds. All of a sudden, my friend said, 'What on earth is the time?' He loked at his watch. It was 7:15.

"It was very still and lonely, and the animals were beginning to howl. We looked for an exit. The first one we came to was closed. So was the second and the third and the fourth.

"We were locked in. At first we thought it was funny, and we giggled a lot—you know how it is. But gradually we got pretty desperate.

"We finally found the main entrance. It, too, was closed. First my friend tried to lift me over the wall. I climbed on his shoulders, but it was too high. Then I decided to try to crawl through the bars of the fence. I'm not very big and I made it. My friend tried next. He got stock and when he pulled back, he ripped his pants on a nail or a spike or something.

"So now I was out and he was in. I felt sorry for him and crawled back again to keep him company. We wandered around for quite a while longer, and don't know how long. Then we found a watchman. He let us out."

Car Turns Turtle In Highway Ditch

Wet weather was responsible for at least one accident today when Herbert W. Andrews of Belleville turned turtle in the ditch just east of the end of the pavement on No. Seven Highway.

Andrews and his wife were bruised and shaken when the car skidded and turned over in the ditch. They were treated at Haveock by Dr. D. J. Holdcroft and returned to Peterborough a short time afterwards to report the accident to Provincial Traffic Officer Broughton. The car was not seriously damaged.

Business Men Are Planning Frolic

At an executive meeting of the Peterborough Business Men's Association at Hooper's Tea Rooms Tuesday night with J. W. Watson, president, in the chair it was unanimously decided to hold a Frolic some time early in November for the purpose of raising funds to ensure the success of another Santa Claus Parade. Within the next ten days all Peterborough men will be requested to become members for the 1938-39 season. The committee in charge of membership is Harry Adams, Harold Freeman and W. J. Cunningham.

Montana Cold Snap Ends 3-Days' Snow

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 19—(CP)—Sub-freezing weather settled down on Montana, glazing highways in some snow-swept areas and intensifying the search for two hunters and a 60-year-old woman lost in the season's first snow storm.

The three-day snow fall abated early to-day as the mercury began to drop.

Grave fears were expressed for the safety of Mrs. Anna Reilly, 60, of Butte, feared lost in hills pocked by many prospectors' pits.

Guy Pizer, of Pocatello, Idaho, and James Cummins, 22, of East Helena, are on deer hunts.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19 (C.P.). — Large Canadian wheat export sales and threats of frost in the Argentine gave Winnipeg wheat futures a strong undertone to-day after two sessions of lower prices. At the close prices were ¼ to ⅝ higher, October 61, November 60; December 60 to 60⅛, and May 63¼ to ⅜.

Wheat opened fractionally higher in sympathy with strength at Liverpool and Buenos Aires. Scattered support come from export firms and southern interests. Offerings throughout were light.

Canadian export sales of 750,000 bushels, did not affect to-day's pit operations. Volume was small.

Mrs. R. H. Turner Re-elected Red Cross Head

Heartfelt gratitude that the peace time policy of the Red Cross Society which has been instituted and developed during the past 20 years is still carried on, and that the threatened need for transforming this policy again into one that would meet a wartime crisis is, for a time at least, unnecessary, was expressed by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, secretary of the Peterborough Branch Red Cross Society.

In her annual report of the year's work, presented at a meeting of the Society Tuesday afternoon in the Public Library, Mrs. Kenner stated that 30 families, or approximately 100 individuals, have received assistance through the visiting housekeeper service. A fine work among needy ex-service men was again this year capable carried out by a small committee under the chairmanship of D. A. Loomis, and all cases, either those referred to him by the Ontario Division or brought to his attention locally, have been personally investigated and the necessary assistance meted out.

The outpost Hospitals, which are doing such a magnificent work in the various parts of the northern section of the province, were materially assisted by a contribution of $850 from the Peterborough Red Cross Branch, and to the Well Babies' Clinic for its excellent local service among young children, the sum of $50.00 was voted.

During the last week of November, when the annual provincial campaign was held, contributions amounting to $2,198.00 revealed the interest and confidence of the citizens in Red Cross work.

Conveners Reports

Conveners reporting for their committees were as follows: Mrs. Walter Perks, for the purchasing committee; Mrs. Charles Ray for the visiting housekeepers service; D. A. Loomis, the ex-soldiers' relief report; Mrs. Frank Lynch, report on home nursing; Mrs. John G. Mills, report on the anual campaign of the Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross.

The correspondence report was given by the secretary, and it was decided that Christmas relief would be dispatched to three ex-soldiers' families living outside the city.

Two new members on the executive, Mrs. H. B. Fitzgerald and Mrs. A. H. Cook, were introduced by the president, Mrs. R. H. Turner, who also welcomed the members back to the first meeting of the Fall season.

Plans were made for the annual campaign, which will take place the week of November 14, and an appeal for canvassers was made.

DOROTHY DIX

Mothers Are the Dearest Things We Have, But They Can Also Be the Dearest Enemies, Working Untold Harm to Their Children Through Selfishness.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am very much in love with a splendid young man who is everything that any girl could ask for in a husband. We want to get married, but I am an only child and it would hurt my mother and father so tegribly for me to leave them that I do not even dare suggest marriage. They have always disliked every boy that I even had a date with. When I come home of an evening and am going to stay at home my mother is cheerful and everything is so pleasant, but if I am going out she is gloomy and has nothing to say, and looks perfectly despairing. You know mothers are the dearest things we have and if getting married is going to sever relations between mine and myself I am content to be an old maid. It is my mother versus the boy I love. What shall I do?—LELA B.

ANSWER:

As you say, mothers are the very dearest things we have. Sometimes. And sometimes they are our dearest enemies. Sometimes they are the cruelist, most selfish creatures on earth, and your mother belongs to this latter class.

She knows that the very best thing that can possibly happen to any girl is to marry a fine young chap, such as your sweetheart is, who is able to take care of her and stand between her and the hardships of life. She knows that such a chance as that, to settle herself advantageously, comes to a girl only once, and then virtually always when she is young and pretty. Yet because she is thinking of her happiness and her pleasure instead of yours, your mother is willing to deprive you of this certainty of happiness, she is willing to tear love out of your life, for she will be equally opposed to your marrying any other man and to doom you to a lonely and frustrated life.

She has nothing to offer you in place of what she asks you to give up. Not even a support. You will always have to work as you are doing now, and she expects you to do this for the sake of gratifying her jealousy, and for you to be contented to sit at home every evening with no livelier amusement than the companionship of two people who want to look at you. Cheerful prospect for the future, isn't it?

To call this kind monopolistic, possessive feeling love is nothing short of sacrilege. It is nothing on earth but the rankest egotism, the putting of one's self before everything else on earth. Love seeks the happiness of the beloved one. It prefers another's good to its own. It is utter selfishness.

There are many mothers who ruin their children's lives as your mother is seeking to ruin yours. I know many elderly men and women who did not marry because their mothers had hysterics every time they thought of their children leaving them. I have known many cases in which mothers have literally broken their children's hearts by wailing and weeping and affecting to go into a decline until they forced them to give up the girls and boys they were in love with.

And as I have looked at these elderly men and women defrauded of their years of happiness, defrauded of love, defrauded of wives and husbands and children and homes of their own, I have thought that no punishment could be too great for the crimes their mothers had committed against them.

So my earnest advice to you, Lela, is to refuse to become a victim of your mother's child fixation. Just regard her as a pathological subject who needs the attention of a good alienist and go along and marry your man. Don't argue with her about it and have your nerves tor nto tatters by her tears and reproaches. Just step out some fine day to the nearest minister and come back with your wedding ring.

After it is an accomplished fact she will reconcile herself to it and be as happy and chipper over it as you please. I knew one mother who threatened to kill herself if her daughter married, but the daughter had backbone enough to go along and do it, whereupon mother began bragging about what a fine son-in-law she had, and went to live with him for the balance of her life.

Don't forget this, either, that while your mother may try to keep you from marrying when you are young, she will reproach you for not marrying and wonder why you are an old maid when it is too late to get a husband. Buy your mother one of the popular books on psychology that exolains how deadly a thing is this distorted mother love.

"Thank Offering" Theme of Meeting

"Thank offering" was the theme of the October meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle, held last night at the home of May Welch, Princess street.

The Doxology was a fitting opening to the worship period, which included the Lord's Prayer in unison and Psalm 15 read by Olive Searles.

With the president, Jessie Martin, in charge, business occupied an important place on the program. Since the K.L. Circle celebrates, this fall, its twentieth anniversary, plans were made for this special event.

On Sunday evening, Nov. 13, the Circle will have charge of the church service, while on Monday night, the Circle will take the form of a travelogue and anniversary tea. Rev. W. R. Tristram of the French Congo, has been secured as guest speaker for both occasions.

Committees to take charge of arrangements were appointed as follows: Tickets and publicity, Nancy Pooley, Connie Wagar and Mrs. Wagar; program, Olive Searles; decorating and refreshments, Jennie Cuff, Gladys Langton, Eleanor Fife, Mrs. W. M. Wood, and Mrs. Arnold.

"A Special Thank-offering Meeting" was the splendid playlet presented by a group of the members led by Mrs. W. Rose, with Zetta Wood, Dorothy Drysdale, Nancy Pooley, Gladys Langton, Jessie Martin, Pearl Butler, Vera Leggitt and Anne Deyell, assisting. The thank-offering was then received and followed by the dedicatory hymn, and a beautiful solo "Do Not Worry" contributed by Geneva Sedgewick.

"Weaving a New Web" was the interesting subject of the chapter for study, told by means of a poster illustration by Connie Wagar.

The usual social hour concluded this successful meeting, when refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Jennie Cuffe and Olive Searles.

Bride Wears Mother's Veil

St. Andrew's United Church was the scene of a pretty and interesting wedding ceremony at one o'clock this afternoon (Wednesday) when Muriel Frances Donaldson, daughter of Mr. T. O. Donaldson and the late Mrs. Donaldson, 318 Monaghan Road, was united in marriage to John A. K. Comstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Comstock, 356 Rubidge street. Rev. E. W. Young officiated, and wedding music was played by R. B. Harle, L.L.C.M.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by Miss Tuna Hart as bridesmaid. Mr. James H. Turner, B. Com., was best man.

The bride wore a lovely gown of French white brocade fashioned on long princess lines, with a fitted jacket, and a deep, flared flounce at the skirt hem. Her sleeves were long, and tapered into points over the hands, and she wore her mother's wedding veil of embroidered tulle, which fell in filmy, graceful folds from a wreath of pearled orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was of red roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore a frock of old rose taffeta, princes style, made with a fitted jacket that had short, puff sleeves. Her short veil was caught with a cluster of burgundy flowers, and she wore burgundy gloves and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, where Mrs. Comstock mother of the groom, received, wearing a wine French lace gown with wine accessories.

For travelling the bride wore a swagger coat with a collar of Arctic blue fox, a wine dress, and wine accessories. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Comstock will live in Peterborough.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

BABY FRETFUL?

FRETFULNESS is not natural. It is a sign of trouble. A warning alarm to which you must quickly respond.

Read how Mrs. George Mitchell responds: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets so helpful when my baby gets irritable and upset. I give him one or two tablets and in a short time he is relieved and sleeps so soundly."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor —dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Not Fair To The Farmer

Some time ago experts at the University of Saskatchewan considered a bushel of wheat. Wheat is a big crop in Saskatchewan and so when the men at the university picked upon a bushel of wheat for consideration they were attacking something which was of very general interest.

They wanted to know what it cost to grow that bushel, so they kept careful accounts of everything which was expended in its production. They left out nothing which had a rightful place in their calculations, and of course they added nothing which should not have been included.

The answer they finally gave was that it cost $1.05 to produce a bushel of wheat. No doubt they would check and double check that answer knowing well enough it would have to stand up against criticism and examination. That figure has been used several times when members of Western ridings debated their problems in debates in the House of Commons. And it has been the same always—$1.05 is the cost of raising a bushel of wheat in Saskatchewan.

There may have been some good purpose served by arriving at that cost price; possibly it has given some farmers opportunity to say it was too high, while others could then defend it. But the point comes here: The price quoted at Winnipeg for No. 1 Hard, and that is the best wheat grown in the West, stands now at 63 1-2 cents per bushel. We can for the moment forget the half-cent and costs of transportation and take simply the two figures—the cost of $1.05 and the selling price of 63 cents—and we find the farmer has lost 43 cents on each bushel of good wheat sold. And that is the difference between what he should get and what he can get.

Farming is different from a good many other lines of business and it is right here the difference stands up like a sore thumb. The fact that he may know well enough his cost price does not enable him to recover that price when he sells. That $1.05 does not mean a thing to the gentlemen in Liverpool who watch wheat coming from all over the world and decide on the basis of supply what they will pay for it.

It is worth noting too how definitely all the other charges are fixed which enter into handling the wheat after it is grown. The elevator charges are set according to what the service costs; the freight to Fort William is known to a decimal point. The rate from Fort William to Montreal is 7 1-2 cents per bushel, a definitely fixed and recoverable price, and there is another 7.65 cents for taking the wheat across the ocean. From the time the farmer delivers his wheat at the elevator until it is across the ocean there is a succession of operations in handling it and in each and all a price is fixed which means a profit to those providing the service. And yet the primary producer, the farmer, whose wheat is being handled, must take what he is offered for it regardless of what it has cost him to produce it! He is the one man who is asked to take a chance.

Going Back Home

There are a number of people staying in a refugee camp at Fort Frances; they are young children some of them, but among the assembly are a man and wife of almost 70 years. Possibly everything they possess has been burned to a crisp—really they don't know. When the fire rangers found them they were battling with an onslaught of flame which was too great for them and they ordered them to leave. The little barn and the outbuildings had gone but man and wife were backed up against the little log house making a last desperate stand. And possibly that went too after they were permitted to defend it no more.

People in a refugee camp talk of course about what they intend to do in the future. There is no speculation about what this man and wife intend to do. They're going back into the district which has been burned and spoiled, and they're going just as soon as the authorities will allow them to leave. One might ask why, but a short statement by the wife settles the whole question — "I couldn't go to a new place. When you live in one place thirty years it gets to be home."

When this couple went in there thirty years ago there wasn't a thing in the way of settlement. They cut down trees and built a log home; they cut down more trees so they might grow vegetables and finally some grain. And today although the country is black and changed that little spot with its few acres is home. And they are going back.

Human nature runs that way and it always has. It is recorded that when Jacob was old in years and near the end of his days he called Joseph to him and his last request was, "Bury me not I pray thee in Egypt. But I will lie with my fathers and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their burying-place." Although Egypt had dealt kindly and well with Jacob his heart was in the place called home. And that couple nearing the mark of three score years and ten, subsisting for the time in a refugee camp, are waiting for one thing only—to hear the authorities say it will be all right for them to start again for the spot in the great north district, charred and perhaps still smoking — which they call home.

Doing The Right Thing

The world has offered a great deal of sympathy to Mr. Edouard Benes who considered it advisable to resign as president of Czechoslovakia. He has been described as a patriot; he has been named as a martyr to a great cause, and probably there is an element of truth in it all. When a man is in trouble it is well to know that he has sympathizers.

The trouble with a good deal of sympathy is that it is so intangible. One cannot do very much with it except bow low in gratitude and accept it. If it comes in the way of a dozen telegrams it is not possible to take the telegrams to the nearest restaurant and use them for meal tickets. If the sympathy takes the form of letters it is hardly possible to use the letters when it comes time to go and settle things for the time being with the landlord. Whether ex-President Benes came to realize the truth of this we know not.

But the University of Chicago has gone farther. Whether it offered Dr. Benes sympathy at any time we know not, but it has offered him a position on the staff and he has accepted it. His post will call for lectures on democratic institutions and he will have the advantage of not having to depend entirely on text books and the theories of others. He has lived through and passed out from experiences which should fortify him for his new position.

After all there is something to be said for offering a man a job instead of smothering him in sympathy when he's somewhat up against it and does not know which way to turn.

A Miserable Custom

Judge and jury of ten men and two women are listening to evidence being offered at a trial in New York. And it is no ordinary trial. There are three prisoners in court and they are all charged with being members of the German spy ring. Two of them are naturalized American citizens and one of them was formerly an officer in the U.S. army.

Among other things they are said to have stolen secrets connected with the defences of the Panama Canal; confidential information regarding the placing of military forces, and also the location and nature of modern anti-aircraft equipment. Then it is charged the spies stole specifications of several new aircraft carriers, and obtained information of industrial plants which would probably be used for the manufacture of munitions.

In all it seems these gentlemen have been getting their hands on everything which some foreign nation would like to know. And all they have secured has been promptly forwarded to Germany.

The case is well worth considering in its relationship to other matters. At the moment and for some time past United States and Germany have been on friendly terms; there is an ambassador from Berlin at Washington, and Washington in turn has its ambassador at Berlin. In both cases we take it these gentlemen proceed on the basis of peaceful nations; they observe all the amenities of good custom and pleasant habits and so on.

And at the same time the German secret service department has its men in United States buying, stealing or copying secret information, plans and documents which the government of United States does not wish to have revealed. How, then, is it possible to hope for anything like a feeling of trust to exist between nations? Observing the customs of peace must be a thing which is not heavily weighted with sincerity. An individual could not possibly live long at peace with a neighbor after he became aware that under cover of darkness or during his absence the neighbor was stealing things from his home. The spy ring, or as it is more pleasantly called the Secret Service department or the Bureau of Intelligence, is a widespread habit. Born in suspicion and reared in distrust it remains as a stumbling block to peace and it must be regarded as nothing short of a powerful ally of those who wax fat from the making of armaments.

So They Stay Out

We have a good deal of machinery in this country for dealing with industrial disputes and strikes, but there are occasions when it does not work because it cannot.

For example: There are 500 miners on strike in the soft coal mines near Estevan, Sask. In another mine there are 200 men who are continuing their work. The reason for the strike is given as wages and working conditions.

Members of the Saskatchewan government are interested in getting the strike settled, but the miners favor a board of conciliation while the operators ask for a Royal Commission. There might not be much difficulty in changing the operators' view to the board of conciliation, but the law governing it calls for one representative of the employees, one from the employers and a chairman. In the Estevan situation there are two unions involved, the United Mine Workers and the Canadian Federation of Labor, and each claims the right to have a representative named to the board of arbitration, but the law makes no provision for such dual representation. The unions will have nothing to do with a Royal Commission, so there the matter rests and all our machinery for settling disputes grows rusty because they say there is no way of using it. Meantime with winter coming on 500 men are idle; no coal is coming to the surface and no wages are being earned, and all because they are standing — foolishly we think — on the letter of the law instead of trying to enter into the spirit which prompted conciliation measures.

We Are Paying

There is a good deal written and spoken at times about Canada being unprepared for war, and it might be the conclusion would be drawn that we have indeed done little or spent little for war purposes.

There was a statement issued by Pension Minister C. G. Power showing that on the last day of September there had been 98,037 cheques issued, and they go each month to pensioners of the Great War or to their dependents.

Since the Pension Act became effective during the days of the war Canada has paid in cash for purposes of pensions no less than $770,017,364.

The annual expenditure at the moment is computed to be $40,442,626. In six more years it can be stated that the amount we have paid in pensions for the Great War will be over the billion dollar mark. And that of course has nothing to do with the cost of the war itself, or the various schemes of rehabilitation which were entered into by our various governments. We may be, it is true, unprepared for war, but we are paying on a large scale for the war in which we did participate.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One man boasting of his voice claimed there was a time when it could be said he had sung in every bar in the city.

The Nazi newspapers do not like Mr. Churchill. Nor is he, it is reasonable to suppose, much in love with them or with anything they represent.

A minister is suing a church in London, Ont., for arrears of salary, and at the moment we cannot think just where he got his text for that.

Paper in Japan suggests that Chamberlain should try and pacify Japan. Might be better than the present method by which they crucify each other.

London, Ont., lawyer had to cut $5,000 from a bill of $13,276 which he rendered for services to the city. Perhaps he never had any training in how to make out an expense account.

It is complained that Premier King didn't give Hon. Dr. Manion information in regard to the European crisis. As we remember it he did not give any person any information.

The statement that there are only enough machine guns in Canada to equip five per cent. of the country's militia would seem to indicate there has been some sleeping at the switch.

British Broadcasting Corporation has been criticized for having dance music on a Sunday program, but that cannot be worse than the amount of bla we have to listen to from people who advertise their merchandise on the same day.

United States people have invested $3,630,000,000 in the Dominion of Canada, so it's no wonder President Roosevelt said they'd be ready to fight if any foreign power tried to dominate this land.

James Neel of Perry, N.J., was told by his doctor to go to bed and stay there. His house took fire and he called firemen and remained in bed while he watched them put the blaze out. When it comes to carrying out the doctor's advice James ranks very high indeed.

Alcohol Always Stays the Same

FOR MANY CENTURIES the people have been using alcoholic beverages with an idea that there were many gradations of the "stuff that cheers."

The great and obvious truth that alcohol is first, last and always, alcohol has at last been accepted in spite of the "Eminent Authorities" who would have us believe that it is the "elixir of life."

Down the corridors of time there has come a deep seated belief that alcohol was susceptible to beneficial results by aging. But now we find out that alcohol was alcohol when it was first distilled and remains alcohol, nothing more or less, until it is consumed or evanesces by evaporation.

The various juices or carrying agencies in which the alcohol swims may undergo some changes through the process of ageing, the flavor may change, but the alcohol, per se, remains just exactly the same as it was the hour it was produced, elementally a narcotic. Mild, strong or medium classification being solely gauged by the percentage of it found in the agency carrying it, be it beer, ale, whiskey, gin, rum, cider, wine or nostrum.

The alcohol made today will do just exactly to the human body what the alcohol made 3000 years ago could or would do. It will stimulate it first and then produce a depressing reaction or coma, all dependent upon the amount consumed and the resisting powers of the party drinking it.

Alcohol would prove the greatest of human blessings if the wonderful stimulation and brain expansion it produces could be experienced and enjoyed without the terrible penalty of the reactionary compensation each and every drop of it demands and collects.

Alcohol can be and has been disguised with every flavor imaginable in zealous efforts to make it palatable, it has been sold in millions of guises, but now we fortunately discover that fundamentally it is always the same; just as water is always water whether it is served as orangeade or horse linament, it is oxygen and hydrogen, name it what you will.

The one and only way alcohol has ever blessed humanity has been that it has proven a great educator to those possessed of sufficient common sense to realize its true status in this world.

It is worth something to know that alcohol cannot be clothed or panoplied with any agency which will make it anything else but alcohol.

Its potency can only be gauged by the attenuations accorded it, its results on the amount consumed. A little bit of alcohol will give one a little bit of effect.

The law of diminishing returns decrees that alcohol like every other thing taken into the digestive tract, is tolerable only up to a certain point then it becomes destructive.

Gold being elemental remains always gold, alcohol, elementally a spirit remains aways alcohol; mix them with what you will.

The best way to find out all about alcohol is to drink it in allopathic doses and then experiment and try to find any agency devised to mere man which will mitigate the penalty of drinking it.

As long as alcohol is available it will always be possible to buy an hour of fun and so called pleasure with a day of misery and inefficiency and thus does it bless mankind.

Those who know and understand the price and are willing to pay with misery what they purchased with folly get a great kick out of alcohol. Those who cannot "take it" on the chin and start to gobble katzenjammer mitigators are only adding insult to misery, only doubling and prolonging the penalty. Old Man Alky is a great collector, tolerating no postponements, allowing no discounts, adding penalty upon penalty upon those who prolong the payment.

Only those who have felt its effects are qualified to speak of its actions, says Roscoe Lawrence in the Easton, Pa., Free Press. Reformers and goody-goods who rail against it generally utter a lot of ballyrot and misinformation about the world's greatest educator—alcohol.

The only way for a person to find out what a truly glorious, wonderful, healthful and desirable thing sobriety is—is to get drunk.

A few wild oats sown in the field of human experience will produce a goodly modicum of the avenin of practical knowledge so essential to life and the living of it.

ABYSSINIA TO-DAY.

(The Spectator, London)

A SERIES of four articles which the Manchester Guardian has just published on Abyssinia cast an important light on conditions in that unhappy country. The articles are dated from Jibuti in French Somaliland, the terminus of the railway from Addis Ababa to the coast, and consist of extremely detailed and explicit statements. Their general effect is to show that the country has by no means been subjugated by the Italians, though the old government, of Hailie Selassie has been destroyed; it is said, for example, that a single band of 10,000 men armed with Belgian Mausers is raiding, and even settling temporarily, within forty miles of Addis Ababa. The Army of Occupation is put at 200,000 men, 300 aeroplanes (from which mustard-gas is still sprayed) and 10,000 lorries, the cost of which "would be immeasurably beyond the power of any sane Italian Government, and would be intolerable even to a country as rich as Britain." Roads are being built, and houses for administrative officials, but practically nothing else, and there is no colonization or sign of any. It would obviously solve many of Italy's problems if she could persuade Jews to settle in Abyssinia. Apart from them, it is hard to see where the men or the money to develop the country are to come from—and equally hard to see how Italy could retain it if she were ever engaged in a European war.

• The Night the Lights Went Out

FOR NEARLY two years now Hydro has given up our light. In common with thousands of other folk we have learned to depend on the electric button. In barn or house a push on the button brings a flood of light. We push those buttons without ever thinking, and little do we realize what an important convenience is electricity until a night when power interruptions plunge us into frequent and lengthy periods of darkness.

The first period of dead wires came just as the chores were being done, says Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald, and that made necessary the use of lanterns in the barn—and, after Hydro, lanterns are a very poor substitute light.

Perhaps it is just as well though that the lights should have failed. We may actually become more appreciative of the blessing that Hydro really is, and perhaps be a little less inclined to do a bit of cussing when the quarterly bills come due. We may even learn to appreciate the Hydro workers who must, judging from the frequent interruptions, have been busy the other night. And perhaps we may even become appreciative of the old-fashioned coal oil lamp. At the moment of writing one of them was our only source of light, the electric bulb having once more flickered out. That old coal oil lamp would not be a very attractive long time proposition, but it certainly has proven itself a friend in time of need.

THESE October days! What a grand chance they give us to get some of the regular Fall work done up—and even a few of the very necessary repairs on buildings. The livestock enjoys these days in the fields. There is not so much fodder out there any more. Most farms are getting to be rather short of pasture. Even so, the cows manage to find enough so that stable-feeding can be materially reduced.

For many years back we have noticed that Oxford County farmers were making use of Fall rye as a pasture crop in late Autumn and early Spring. In this locality we cannot remember ever having seen a field of rye pastured. As an experiment a small field was sown to rye in early August. We were fortunate in getting a nice shower just about then, and the grain sprouted and grew. The field possibly should have been pastured a week or two before the cows were turned in. In fact, we did not realize that there was so much growth on the field as there was. We are well satisfied with results, and while the field was quickly eaten off, there were either too many cows, or not enough acres of rye; the crop is making good second growth and should provide more pasture this Fall. Perhaps it will prove to be the crop to tide us over those weeks in the Fall when the regular pasture fails and it is still too soon to stable the cows.

• No Money In War; So It's Out

I FIGURED OUT there would be no major conflict on what to me was political analysis. Now I am informed, by those who know more than I do, that the reasn there is no war raging in Europe is not because of either military or political considerations at all; that the sole reason the guns are not barking is the economic factor.

I sat at lunch with some men the other day who talk to London, Paris, Berlin and Rome every day by phone with the same ease and casualness that I call up the house (five minutes before dinner time) to announce that I won't be home, writes Malcolm Bingay in the Detroit Free Press.

Here's the gist of what they said: There will never be another World War.

"Big Business," one of them explained, "has found that war costs too much. No return on the investment. That is the big lesson Business learned from the last one. The winner loses as much financially as the loser. Science has advanced so far that war is impractical. Technological development has so completely changed the technique of war that there is no profit in it for anybody.

"The civil war in Spain has shown what would happen if a world conflagration broke out again. War would no longer be a fight between armies; it would be a fight against whole civilian populations. Hitler is not balmy. He knows his machines could destroy London but he also knows that while he was wiping out that city Berlin, too, would be destroyed by counter-attack.

"War is being out-moded not because it is barbaric, not because the world grows more humane, not because we are getting more civilized, but because of the law of self-preservation.

"Business is international, and business is based on the fundamental rules of common sense. Before 1914 there were Englishmen who thought that if Germany were crushed England would get her markets. There were Germans who thought the same way about crushing France and England. Well, who got the markets? Nobody, because there were no markets. That's the only lesson learned from that war.

"Business now knows that it cannot kill off its customers and then sell them goods. Sounds rather obvious but it took four years of aftermath to make it apparent. The World War was the first one ever fought under modern mechanics—and it will be the last one.

"On the French border is the Maginot line—unbreakable; on the German border facing it is the Siegfried line — unbreakable. Stalemate! Neither can beat the other. For the same reason there will never again be a great naval battle. The naval engineers sit down and study the ships and the guns. Like a game of chess. The one that has the superior force wins without a shot being fired. The winner roams the seas and the other stays in harbor. The aeroplane—the new weapon that is outlawing all war—flies over cities and drops bombs on civilians, men, women and children. Science which first made war more hideous has now made its possibilities so hideous that it not only means murder but also certain suicide for any nation.

And don't listen to this bunk about munition makers fomenting war. They once did. But now that's E. Phillips Oppenheim stuff. All the profits made out of munitions in the World War wouldn't pay off one millionth of the loss in legitimate profits.

No, business is business and war is bad business, so it's out. Modern wars have to be won through financing and nobody with brains enough to run a peanut stand can see where they can get a return on their investment through war. Peace will be maintained as a matter of harsh practicality."

WHY THEY FAILED.

(Detroit Free Press)

A WELL-KNOWN FIRM of hatters in London, England, which has been in existence for 202 years, went out of business the other day.

The firm was established in 1735 and prospered by making good hats and selling them entirely on merit.

The reasons why it was forced to the wall is stated by the London Express: "The firm failed to adopt modern methods and never advertised."

Any firm that doesn't keep pace with the times in these respects must expect to be outdistanced by its more alert competitors in this fast-moving age.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THE FIRST DAY of the week when it was yet dark, unto the cometh Mary Magdalene early, sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre. . . .

Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord. . . .

But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you. Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless, but believing. And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and My God.

Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.—John xx: 1, 19, 20, 24-29.

Marler Is Sued By His Son For $300,000

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP)—A writ asking $300,000 damages was issued yesterday in Ontario supreme court by Leonard Marler against his father, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Washington, and Dr. George H. Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London, Ont.

The writ was issued in Marler's behalf by John R. Green, attorney.

Young Marler's statement of claim alleges that his father and Dr. Stevenson wilfully and by collusion caused him to be detained in the London hospital from Feb. 17 until Sept. 20, 1938. He alleges he was deprived of his liberty during that period and was obliged to labor with work gangs in the hospital.

The statement of claim also alleges that his intended marriage was hindered, although it was authorized by the issuer of marriage licences at London on Feb. 8, 1938.

Damages are also sought because, it is alleged, he was forced to remain with some 1,700 mental patients in the hospital "and for maltreatment of the plaintiff while a patient in said hospital and unjust punishments by the defendant, Stevenson."

Dr. Stevenson, named with Sir Herbert Marler as a defendant, was the central figure in a Royal Commission inquiry into administration of the London hospital that concluded last week. Immediately following the inquiry Dr. Stevenson was reinstated as superintendent after being under suspension during the course of the hearings.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

So there was Knarf, the shadow-boy with the turned-about name, marching along in the long line of ants carrying a crumb of bread.

The shadow boy didn't know exactly where the ants were going. As a matter of fact, there were two lines of them, one right next to the other. One line was going in one direction and the other line was going in just the opposite direction. Most of the ants in Knarf's line were carrying things, such as bits of leaf, seeds, the wing of a fly which one of them had found somewhere, and tiny grains of sugar.

None of the ants in the other line were carrying anything.

"I guess we must be going to the ant-house, aren't we?" he said aloud to the ant in front, whom he was helping with the crumb of bread.

The ant couldn't see him very well because the crumb was in the way. But it stopped for a moment, set the crumb down and turned to look at Knarf.

"Just as I thought!" the ant exclaimed. "You're not one of us at all! What are you doing in this line?"

"I'm helping you carry this crumb."

"But you're not an ant—you're some other kind of insect. I knew that the minute I heard you say ant-house. Ants don't live in houses."

"Don't they?"

"Certainly not! They live in ant-hills. Now go away before something happens to you. The queen doesn't like strangers."

Have a Queen.

"The queen!" Knarf exclaimed. "Have you ants got a queen?"

"You're not one of us at all."

"Yes, and princesses. Now I must get back in the line and hurry along. This crumb is for the queen's dinner. Good-bye."

But Knarf didn't want to go away. He begged the ant to let him go inside the ant-hill, too. "I promise to behave myself. I'm sure the queen won't mind if I come along. Queens often like to see strangers and talk to them. Please let me come."

"Well," said the ant finally, "I don't know what kind of insect you are exactly. And I don't know whether the soldiers on guard at the entrance to the queen's chambers will let you in. But if you want to take a chance, I'm sure I don't mind."

So Knarf, feeling very happy, helped the ant pick up the crumb again and started marching in the line once more.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

ALL HER life long Judy had given orders. Now, as the Boland heiress, engaged to marry Count Phillippe Alexis von Gunderfield, suggested that Judy go to her own room, her cheeks flamed. She bit her tongue, choking back her hurt pride. Then she paused. She was afraid to enter that room.

The thought was so unexpected that it staggered her.

"The butler will look under the bed, if you wish, Miss Rogers," Abbey said, her voice rich with unconcealed amusement.

Judy had flown through a bad fog in Italy. She had been in a car that had upset, and she had climbed a mountain once.

These dangers had not scare her much, but the menace that might lurk on the other side of that door took away her breath. Then anger asserted itself. If there was a gunman there, it would prove her story.

Down the hall sounded Ronald's voice: "Hi, folks. Having a town assembly?"

Abbey answered: "A safety meeting. Judy is seeing armed ghosts." Judy noted that Abbey used her first name. Even in her fright she was glad. It made the other girl more human, a little closer.

"I'm good at banishing ghosts," Ronald was saying, coming down the hall. "What's it all about?"

Judy was closing her door. She heard him call her name, then repeat it. She pretended not to hear. Might as well learn now that whatever refuge he gave was proffered through kindness or pity. She had read the signs wrong. He wanted Abbey. The count did, too. Let Abbey manage the situation.

The room was quiet and comfortable. The fire was nearly out, and only the bed lamp cast a pool of lambent light over the polished floor, where the green hand-woven rugs did not cover it. The wind was blowing. Blowing heavily. Strange that only one curtain moved. Very strange .....

The armed intruder stepped from behind the draperies.

"Welcome back. Get the warning sounded?"

Judy did not scream. She was taken too aghast at the man's impudence to be as scared as she had expected.

"Never mind, I know that you rapped on the old boy's door. I don't blame you. He thinks you are cock-eyed about him, doesn't he? So does the dollar sign he's marrying. I'll show them. I'm going down the hall."

He moved to the door.

"But they're out there," Judy said, forgetting that this time she was warning the maniac.

He laughed. "Whose side are you on, honey? His or mine? Better decide."

"They'll catch you if you shoot. You'd better put down the gun."

Suddenly the man sat down. His face paled and his mouth twisted.

"Sorry," he murmured. I'm sick. About to cash in so thought I'd finish — the — count — before — I — do. Got a bullet for myself...."

Judy put her hand on the button but his eyes saw the gesture and he regained strength. "Never mind. I always say if you plan something, see it through. See — it — through."

He examined his gun. He opened it. He looked up at Judy with a face so bewildered, so disappointed that she felt a stabbing instant of pity for him.

"What is it?" she asked.

"The gun. Empty.. I forgot. No — more — bullets." He slumped down on the floor in a final surrender.

Judy turned again to the door, but it had opened. The sound had been heard.

"Judy!" There was the vibrant tenderness, the love, the warm protectiveness that flooded Ronald's voice—of which she had dared to dream. Why, he must care! Or was her mind betraying her, and she simply imagined it? Then for the second time in her life strong arms had seized her and a heart was thudding so near her own that its beating filled the room. "Judy, are you all right?"

The mad, sweet moment was over He relinquished her. It was he who turned to the man who had collapsed, suggested a doctor, and an ambulance.

"But he was going to shoot Phillippe," Abbey said slowly.

"Poor galoot. He couldn't shoot anyone. He's harmless. That's a broken gun, with no cartridges. Do you place him, count?"

Phillippe nodded. "I think so. His father held a grudge and this boy vowed to get even some day." His eyes held a strange light. "So he came across the sea to settle the score—to settle the score with a broken gun." He turned away, and his lips twitched.

Servants carried the man to another room, to wait for the coming of the doctor and the ambulance. Abbey, white and shaken, stood by. Only once she asked if the police should be called. It was the count who spoke sharply then.

"No! I'll look after the man. It's a rotten system, one family living off the rest. I don't blame him." Then his dry, humorless mirth returned. "Too bad I was born in the castle. Think how well I could have stormed the gates with a sword and banner."

He went away quickly.

Ronald crossed to Judy. "Better go to bed, too. I'll supervise everything."

"And I'll help," Abbey supplemented.

Back in her room again, Judy did not sleep. She no longer was afraid. But she was unnerved, moved trembling. She felt cold. She poked the fire higher, piled fluffy blankets on the bed, at last climbed between the silken sheets. Half asleep, half awake, she wondered if she had dreamed that moment when Ronald had held her so closely. If he didn't mean it, why had he pretended to be so moved?

In the morning she lay for a long moment trying to recall the events of the night. She was hot. She pushed the blankets away. Why were there so many of them? And why were the windows closed? Memory came swiftly. She sprang out of bed, took a quick shower, ran a comb through her bright curls, dusted her nose with powder, briefly touched her lips with rouge, pulled a soft green woolen frock over her head and stepped into gray pumps. Then she hurried to the dining room.

The snow was falling steadily as though it had vowed to put in eight hours of white work. The mail table was heaped with Christmas packages that had come in the early post. Mr. Boland, whom she had met only once, was leaving. He smiled at her, said something about the weather, and went out to his car.

Judy turned to the dining room. Dinner she might be asked to take on a tray in her room, and lunch might follow the same precept, but breakfast was a meal which she always had in the dining room. The long sideboard held hot dishes, coffee and hot chocolate and milk, cooked and uncooked cereals, fruits juices, toast and hot breads. Two maids officiated. People were served whenever they came.

Judy decided that she must be earlier than she had thought. Otherwise, Mr. Boland would not be leaving. To her surprise she heard voices in the dining room. She paused at the door, out of sight, trying to place them before entering.

Ronald was saying: "Abbey, you can't do it. You'll be sorry all of your life. Don't you see, it's the very thing he wants you to do You'll be caught! Break it now, today! Let me face him for you."

Abbey voice, tried and old, answered: "Ronald, you're sweet, but I can't. I want to! Oh you know how I want to! But I'm afraid, so desperately afraid!'"

Mary Donnelly Is Acquitted

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—(CP).—Trial of blond Mary Donnelly ended abruptly yesterday when the 28-year-old Toronto woman was acquitted by a County Judge of being an accessory to the $12,000 holdup of the Richmond, Ont., branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia last July 19.

Oscar Campbell, 41, of Toronto, was convicted here two months ago of the robbery and was sentenced to 12 years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Judge E. J. Daly, after hearing evidence at the one-day trial of Miss Donnelly, dismissed the charge. "While I might have some suspicion I cannot convict her on the evidence adduced at this trial," he said. The Crown had to prove beyond a doubt that Miss Donnelly was guilty. Supposition and suspicion were not enough.

The Crown, he said had not proved the Toronto woman harbored or assisted Oscar Campbell.

Crown witnesses testified Miss Donnelly and Campbell occupied a cottage at Selwyn, Ont., prior to the Richmond robbery. It was also testified the woman attempted to pass bills, allegedly taken in the holdup, at a bank at Lakefield. Bank employees identified her as the woman who attempted to pass the bills.

Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for Miss Donnelly, contended there was no evidence that his client knew Campbell was implicated in the holdup. Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier held the evidence indicated she must have known of the crime and that Campbell was implicated in it.

Fiery Exchange Features Board Of Health

A brief and fiery exchange featured the Board of Health regular meeting Tuesday when the salary of the sanitary inspector came up for discussion, and Alderman Walter Stocker complained that the inspector Ronald McPherson actually worked only three hours a day, and described the routine from the time the inspector arrived in the morning.

Alderman Dutton queried, "How do you know what time he starts in the morning."

Ald. Stocker—I know alright, I have just told you.

Ald. Dutton—In other words there is some one carrying information to you. There must be someone in the office spying and then relaying the information along to you.

Ald. Stocker—I am not talking about spying, I am talking about service. Ask Dr. Fraser if what I say is not correct.

Dr. Fraser—It certainly is not correct at all.

Ald. Dutton—I'll be no party to such a state of affairs. I wouldn't tolerate it in my business and neither would any of you.

Ald. McCannan—I've never heard any complaint about Mr. McPherson's work.

Ald. Stocker—I'm not complaining about his work. I feel he could do more than he is doing now.

Ald. Dutton—Just let the doctor tell us how he spends the day.

Average Day's Work

Dr. Fraser outlined an average day for the sanitary inspector in which he showed and referred to the inspector's reports as proof that McPherson often worked long after six o'clock in the evening, and starts at nine o'clock in the morning often two hours earlier when he wishes to inspect herds in the country. "He has a grasp of his position that is remarkable in view of his short term. To say he only works three hours a day is not true. I feel his work is satisfactory and have always felt that way.

Mayor Hamilton then remarked that he felt the man was doing very satisfactory work.

Ald. Dutton—Yes, but it is not fair for the chairman to make such sweeping statements.

Switchboard At City Hall

The fact that the Sanitary Inspector had to be in the office for an hour at noon to answer the telephone while other members of the department were to lunch, prompted Alderman Dutton to state that it is time the City Hall had a switchboard instead of the existing setup.

"That will come up for discussion at the next meeting of the property committee," Alderman McCannan stated.

"I will be greatly surprised if the results are not all in favor of a switchboard," added Alderman Dutton.

Alderman Dutton, then moved that the salary of the inspector be raised from $1200 to $1350, and the $300 car allowance be left as is. His motion was that the position merited a maximum salary of $1800 with car allowance and that the inspector received a raise of $150 a year until the maximum is reached. Mayor Hamilton seconded the motion and it carried.

The question of a matron for Queen Mary Hospital was laid over until next month and the Board found the local Medical Association had shown no particular hurry to confer with them on the question of continuing the Well Babies' Clinic. It was moved that another letter be sent urging that immediate attention be given the question.

SURPRISE and adventure mark the forecast for this day, judging by the interesting planetary configurations. Sudden and probably unforeseen adventures may arise with breathless precipitancy, changing the plans and prospects with radical force, and drastically reshaping the destiny. Changes and decisions should be made with much keen attention and analysis as secret influence seem to figure. There may be peculiar correspondence in which the personal relations have significance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of sudden events and probably radical upheavals of far-reaching effect on the future career. These may be precipitated with great surprise and may come from a hidden or strange source. But they may bring a chain of new adventures.

A child born on this day may be gifted with many outstanding talents which may gain for it recognition from those in high places and a conspicuous career, possibly in a place far from its birth.

Over 3,000 Attend Marmora Fair In Perfect Weather To Wind Up Fall Exhibitions

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 19. — Officers and members of Marmora Agricultural Society had occasion for deep rejoicing as well over three thousand patronized the annual Fair on Tuesday.

Though again relegated to the end of the rural fairs, weather conditions could not have been more favorable. The midway was the largest seen in years and here the bulk of the attendance seemed to find the amusement or souvenirs that they were in quest of. Side shows and guessing contests proved most alluring and as much gusto was displayed as if it were the opening fair rather than the closing fair of the season.

The fair is regarded as Marmora's annual re-union and the old and young were proportionately mixed in the large concourse on the grounds. Numbers were given on a new band stand by the clown band and vaudeville artistes of "Paris by Night" Revue Company which put on an entertainment in the Town Hall at night.

Two horse races produced excellent competition. In the free-for-all, E. W. Jones of Hastings took first money with his Ginger Direct. Oliver Harvester, owned by J. Sutherland, Peterborough, came second, while Richard Hall, entered by Harry Ingles of Campbellford, took third money.

In the classified race the horses finished in the following order:

Lord Gratton, George Caldwell, Port Hope 1 1 1
Infringer Gratton, Harry Ingles, Campbellford 2 2 2
Orphan Annie, Sam Palmer, Port Hope 3 3 3

Other races held later in the afternoon, resulted as follows:

Running Race—1 T. Thompson, 2 and 3 L. E. Neal.

Slow Race — 1, L. E. Neal, 2 B. Doyle, 3 A. McComb.

Potato Race—1 T. Thompson. 2 A. Neal, 3 L. E. Neal.

Green Race—1 B. Lummiss.

5 Fine Stock Showing.

Regarding entries which were good in each section, stock and poultry classes were larger than in recent years, but vegetables and flowers showed a slight falling off. The children's exhibits occasioned most favourable comment. President W. A. Sanderson and Secretary-Treasurer H. W. Sabine with their co-workers, evidenced their pleasure at the general success of the undertakings.

Included in the refreshment booths on the grounds were those operated by the Marmora Women's Institute and the Marmora branch of the Canadian Legion. The former also supervised a tag day on behalf of the funds of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, for which fair young taggers obtained good results. In addition to the entertainment in the Town Hall at night, round and square dancing with Jack Grant's Aces furnishing the music was featured in the Exhibition building with a good patronage.

workmanship that would give Medd a close win over Collins. That is the way it turned out, but everybody had highly complimentary words for the McGowan and Hooton lots, too.

Conditions Perfect

Howard A. Quinn, president, and other officers of the Association described Tuesday's match as the most successful in their memory.

The 54 entries, 47 with horses and 7 with tractors, was the largest in many years, and the crowd set a new record. The Miller farm was ideally laid out for the match, and the weather seemed a delightful afterglow of summer. The plowing was completed at four o'clock and by that time Clark Young had completed the judging of the work in the summer fallow. There was probably enough work for two judges Tuesday afternoon, but Mr. Young wound up the tractor field, last to be decided, shortly after sundown.

The J. H. Burnham Cup to be presented to the Peterborough county plowman who plowed the highest scoring land in any class was awarded to Harold Collins, second to John Medd in the open contest in sod.

The Royal Bank Cup for the boy under 21 years plowing the highest scoring land in any class went to Joseph Watts of Warsaw whose score was 73½ points.

John Birkett of Port Perry, sixty-seven years of age, was the oldest plowman, and Francis J. Crowley of Otonabee, fourteen, was the youngest. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crowley. He is a clever student at the Collegiate Institute, and although he did not win a prize in the match he displayed skill as a young competing plowman.

Trevor Watts of Warsaw, chairman of the teams committee, and with his associates rounded up twenty-one teams and four three-horse outfits. They had everything ready when the match began about 9.30 a.m. As soon as the judging was completed Frank C. Paterson, secretary, indicated the winners on the tickets identifying them on their lots. Every detail went along smoothly.

Among the contestants were three Indians from the Deseronto reserve.

The components of the possible score of 100 were, crown, 20; straight furrow, 15; covering grass or stubble, 15; evenness, uniformity and finish of furrows, 20; shape of land, 10; finish, 20.

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Edward Warner

Investigating the death of Wheeler Patterson, 72-year-old retired farmer who died in St. Joseph's Hospital on October 14 from injuries received when he was struck by a C.P.R. "jigger" at a North Monaghan crossing on August 31, a coroner's jury sitting in the Police Court on Tuesday night, under Dr. Herbert Young, found that no blame should be attached to the driver of the "jigger," Edward Warner of Toronto.

The complete verdict was:

"Wheeler Patterson died on the 14th of October, 1938, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, from inanition, due to severe traumatism, accompanied by secondary shock as the result of an accident, and this injury was caused by the said Wheeler Patterson being struck by a Sheffield motor car, property of the C.P. Railway, operated by Edward Warner ,employee of that company, on August 31, 1938, at about 4.45 p.m. D.S.T., at a railway crossing adjacent to A. Patterson's gravel pit in the Township of North Monaghan."

"We are of the opinion, from the evidence adduced, that no blame should be attached to E. Warner, the operator of the vehicle."

Warner's evidence was the principal feature of the inquiry, as he was the only eye-witness of the accident. He said that he was a pump repair man with the C.P.R., and on the day of the accident was on his way from Agincourt to Peterborough, operating a "jigger," the official name of which he explained was a 41 Sheffield motor car. The vehicle he said was driven by a two-cylinder motor of about 3½ horsepower, and the highest speed it would make was 25 miles an hour. It was equipped with four-wheel brakes and friction brakes.

Just "Drifting In."

Warner, who said he had been driving such vehicles for 28 years, said that they always slowed up coming to a crossing, just "drifting in." On this occasion, he said, he saw Patterson when the latter was about 20 feet away from the crossing, and the jigger was 100 feet away. He had sounded his horn and slowed down his vehicle, and when he got close to the crossing he said that Patterson stopped and looked at him and then turned away and started to walk alongside of the track. Warner said that he thought the man was going to continue to walk alongside and he had just started to accelerate again when Patterson stepped sideways across the track and was struckby the handle of the jigger and knocked down. The witness stated that he had sounded his horn at Patterson and had shouted to him and that he was taken by surprise when the man suddenly stepped on to the track.

"My first impression," he said, "was that someone was trying to commit suicide."

He thought the jigger was going about three to five or possibly eight miles an hour when the man was struck as he had immediately thrown the switch.

Faster Than He Thought.

Archie Patterson, brother of the victim, had previously testified that his brother had left to cross the tracks to let the cattle out of the field on the other side. He said that his brother, who was in his 73rd year, was a "little hard of hearing" and was short-sighted, having to wear glasses. After the accident his brother had said to him that he saw the "jigger" coming, but that it had been moving faster than he had thought it was.

Walter Hargraves and William Lee, who were working in Archie Patterson's gravel pit at the time of the accident, testified to hearing Warner shout that he had struck a man at the crossing and of hurrying to the scene and seeing Patterson in a sitting position near the crossing. Both swore that Patterson was dazed and unable to say anything to them at the time, and Lee said he had not heard the horn on the jigger before the accident.

P. B. Scott, telegraph operator at the C.P.R. Station, told of Warner's arrival there in the "jigger" on the day of the accident, and said that Warner had made a report which witness telegraphed to headquarters.

"Have you that report here?" asked Crown Attorney McElderry.

"I have," replied the witness.

"Will you please produce it, then," said the Crown Attorney, and Scott was about to do so when he was stopped by J. F. Clark, who was present in the interest of the C.P.R. Mr. Clark explained that the report was marked "For the information of the company's solicitors," and therefore was privileged.

Mr. McElderry agreed that if it were so marked it would have to be regarded as privileged.

Report Withheld.

Coroner Dr. Young, reading the document, said that it was headed "For the information of the company's solicitors and their advice thereon." He said there was little in the report that had not already been brought out in evidence.

The report was not admitted, and Scott was excused from the witness box.

Provincial Constable David Silvester described the crossing at which the accident took place, and said there was good visibility. The operator of the jigger would have a clear view of the crossing from at least 100 yards away, and a man standing at the crossing could see up or down the tracks for half a mile.

Dr. C. M. Scott, who attended Patterson after the accident and helped to perform the post-mortem, stated that the man had suffered a fracture of the right leg and cuts and lacerations on the head. He said there had been a gradual wasting away after the accident as the result of the shock of the injuries, and that this inanition had finally caused death. The post-mortem had disclosed that Patterson's organs had been in a healthy condition.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, who assisted in the post-mortem, corroborated the evidence of the previous witness, and added that in the case of injury to elderly persons, there was a secondary shock that had a serious effect, and he thought that had been so in the case under investigation.

Archie Patterson and Walter Hargraves were recalled by Crown Attorney McElderry, and both of them said that they had not heard the horn of the "jigger" before the accident. Hargraves stated that he had heard horns blowing on previous occasions.

"Do you think it possible that it might have been blown on this occasion and that you did not hear it?" asked the coroner.

"No, I do not think so," replied the witness.

The foreman of the jury was L. L. Maguire. The witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney McElderry, and J. F. Clark was present on behalf of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Testing High School Students As Part Of Program To Prevent T.B. Is Suggested

A long range program directed at the control and prevention of tuberculosis, received the approval of the local Board of Health at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday when submitted by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health.

Dr. Fraser recommended that every pupil in the Collegiate and in St. Peter's High school be tuberculin tested to determine if the germ of tuberculosis has entered their body. On motion the secretary was asked to write to the chairman of both school boards seeking their approval in such a campaign, and pointing out that no testing will be done without the approval of the parents.

The tuberculin test or Natoux test as it is called is an injection into the skin. It is painless and there is no unpleasant reaction. If the test is positive it means the person at some time has become infected with the germ of T. B. It does not mean that the person has T.B. but the germ has entered the body and good health therefore must be maintained to avoid disease. Positive reactors would then be subjected to further examination including an X-ray of the chest to determine if the disease has gained a foothold.

The test would be administered by the M.O.H. after which individuals showing indications of infection would be examined by their own physician or by the travelling chest clinic with which it is believed arrangements can be made. The finding of infected cases among the pupils might also serve to detect undiagnosed cases of tuberculosis in the home.

May Affect All Ages.

According to the M.O.H., tuberculosis may affect all ages but it takes its heaviest toll of those between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five. High school students would fall into this category.

This testing of High school students has been carried on in other centres and has met with marked success. The numbers of infected cases have not been large but the work has served a very useful purpose in detecting early cases.

Since January 1st fifteen cases of T.B. have been reported. An interesting feature of the reporting of T.B. is that prior to 1934, the number of deaths from the disease exceeded the number of reported cases. Since 1934 the opposite condition prevails, indicating that the cooperation of local doctors is very satisfactory. One reason for this cooperation wa sably expressed by a local physician who said it is now worth while to report a case because "something is done about it." Dr. Fraser pointed out that progress can only be made by segregataion of active cases in sanatoria, examination and re-examination of contacts to discover early cases and constant supervision of arested cases.

Dr. Fraser reported also that now all milk entering the city for domestic use is pasteurized. Information from the Ontario Department of Health indicates the local Board of Health and M. O. H. are responsible for the enforcement of the milk regulations which are now part of the Public Health Act of Ontario.

There are two cases of scarlet fever in Queen Mary Hospital at the present time.

The Board was unanimous that if at all possible the Travelling Chest Clinic should be brought to the city again this Fall.

WON CUP TEN YEARS

Harold Collins, of Otonabee, won the J. H. Burnham Cup for the tenth time at the county plowing match on the farm of David Miller, near Warsaw, Tuesday. This trophy is given to the plowmen whose work is judged best of all the Peterborough County contestants. Mr. Collins won it in 1925-26-29 and in 1930-1-2-3-5-6, and now in 1938. James McGowan, of Lakefield, who finished in the money Tuesday, was the cup-winner last year.—T.

Reckless Driver Is Fined $15

Pleading guilty to reckless driving on the Lakefield road, before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in traffic court this morning, J. Z. Bennett was fined $15 and $2.50 costs and his driving license was suspended for a month.

It was explained that the accused had driven on the wrong side of the road and as a result there had been an accident.

Bennett said that he had been driving a car for 22 years and this was his first accident.

However Magistrate Langley declared that it was not a case for the minimum penalty.

Frank J. Leach of Bridgenorth pleaded guilty to driving a car with inadequate brakes and was fined $10 and 75 cents costs.

Leach was driving up George street on Tuesday and almost collided with a cyclist at Hunter and George streets. Constable John Stevenson saw the incident and took charge of the car. When the brakes were tried out their condition was so bad that the police ordered the machine off the road and laid a charge against Leach.

He told the magistrate that he had been out of work for some time and that he needed the car now to drive in an out from Bridgenorth but the court told him that these circumstances did not justify him in driving an automobile that was in a condition dangerous to the public.

Harvey Cases

Provincial Constable David Silvester was in Harvey recently investigating a case and as a result of what he saw on the Lakehurst-Buckhorn road, two charges were laid under the Highway Traffic Act. James Irwin, R.R. 1, Lakefield, pleaded guilty to using a trailer on which there were no license markers and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs. He told the magistrate that he had been merely using the trailer to draw some wood. "We have the shrewdest police in the world," said Magistrate Langley. "They always seem to come along just when a man is doing some thing wrong for the first time."

Harry Coons, R.R. 1, Lakefield, pleaded guilty to using a truck that had no license markers and he too said that he only used the machine around his own place. He was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

Among the city traffic cases disposed of most of them on written pleas of guilty there were two speeding charges in which Harry Woodbeck of Cordova Mines and Dominic Maize were fined $5 and $2.50 costs for exceeding the speed limit on city streets while Frank Clancy, Jack Donaghue, Ira D. Ferguson and Fred Milliken were fined $2 and 75 cents costs each for failing to stop before entering a through street.

James Boyd was fined $5 and $2.50 costs for not stopping before entering a highway and on a similar charge E. M. Goddard was fined $3.50 and $3 90 costs. John Calvert of Lakefield paid $5 and $2.50 costs for speeding in Otonabee and A. S. Spooner contributed a similar sum for doing likewise in Smith township. A. V. German also exceeded the speed limit and was fined $5 and $3.50 costs.

Crown Attorney McElderry stated that he had received word that Percy Shackleton of Toronto charged with reckless driving was too ill to appear and the case was adjourned for a week.

LIFE FORCE

The brain is the source of life energy within the body. This energy is transmitted from the brain to all parts of the body by the spinal cord and the nerves. Everybody knows that if the nerves leading to the arm are cut the arm is paralyzed. It cannot move. Its muscles shrink. It is useles. Why? Because its supply of energy is interfered with.

JUST

as this is true of the arm, it is also true of every other part of the body. For every tissue cell receives its energy or motive power from the brain. If cutting the nerves of the arm paralyzes it, how would heavy constriction upon nerves affect the arm? It would cause weakness or partial paralysis, and the degree of uselessness of the arm would depend upon the degree of constriction of the nerve fibers.

NERVES

which supply practically all parts of the body emit from the spinal column through openings between the vertebrae. Constriction of any of these nerves may result from tightened spinal muscles or derangement of vertebrae. When either of these conditions exists correction can be accomplished by Spinal Manipulation, and then the nerves are capable of carrying proper life currents to the weakened tissues.

40 Barrels Of Apples Sold By Scouts On Annual Apple Day

RETURNS from Boy Scout Apple Day held last Saturday reveal that a new record has been set up. The boys disposed of 40 barrels of McIntosh Reds, and figuring the average barrel at 330 apples, the total number sold would be close to 14,000.

Last year the net profit on the venture was $285.00 but this year the net profit totals $333.77, an increase of almost $50.

This year the committee set $500 as the gross receipts and exceeded this amount by 23 cents. The expenses in connection with the venture including price of the apples, advertising, tags, etc., totalled $166.44.

Those in charge wish to extend their hearty appreciation to the citizens and all those who assisted in making the annual Apple Day such a marked success.

Blind Musician Travelled 90,000 Miles

Blazing a trail of goodwill and happiness, Frederick E. Carter, totally blind musician from St. John, New Brunswick, arrived in the city today, and until Saturday the notes of his piano accordion will be heard on the city streets. Officially he is a goodwill messenger from the Maritimes, ready at all times to describe the scenic beauty and attractions of New Brunswick, but at the same time he earns his living from playing on the streets.

An injury when he was four years of age, caused blindness when he was two months short of being fifty years of age. Instead of throwing up his hands and lamenting his misfortune the man learned to play the accordion and since 1929 has covered 90,00 miles, never once having to ask for charity.

Is Very Happy

"I believe I am happier than ninety per cent. of the people who have their sight," he said. I have confidence in mankind, and it has never been displaced. People with whom I come in contact don't cheat men, and the railway crews treat me like a king, even to wiring ahead to the next station to tell them I am coming. When I neeed assistance on the city streets I enquire for a Boy Scout and always manage to find one."

"My purpose is to not only earn a living but to bring a little ray of sunshine into the lives of those who think that life is dark and dreary," he said.

In 1894 he was apprenticed as a gardner in Kew Gardens, London, owned by the Royal Family. At age 25 he was head gardener. He came to Canada in 1910, and for years worked at gardening. During the war when the sight of one eye had gone, he supervised war gardens which produced the vegetables to feed the aviators and soldiers at Camp Borden. Then worked at Brantford gardening until total blindness set in in 1929. He knows the Maritimes intimately, and is certain the salmon fishing in the Restigouche River in New Brunswick cannot be surpassed anywhere. He recalls one trip in 1913 when a 17-pound salmon jumped into the flat bottomed boat which he was rowing on the river.

He is bringing a 42-inch sword fish back to the Lions Club at Brantford as a souvenir and in appreciation of the treatment afforded him when he was there some years ago. The Lions Club gave him the piano accordion and a beautiful gold watch eight years ago.

"I don't want people to feel sorry for me. I am perfectly happy and intend to continue my travels.

"If you visit a city you see the beautiful buildings and landscape, but I see into the hearts of the people and carry what I learn from one place to another. My experiences in Ontario will be heard in the Maritimes and vice-versa." He is staying at the Grand Hotel and carries a letter of introduction from the Mayor of St. John, N.B.

Farmer Shot

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 19 (C.P.).—Mac Emmerson, Haliburton County farmer, was shot in the leg yesterday while plowing in his field. The bullet is believed to have come from a rifle being tested by Fred McElwain, Donald and Jack Robertson, Haliburton, in the nearby bush. The two men assisted him to Dr. J. T Speck at Haliburton. The bullet was removed.

Monday Is Wash Day Hence Bonfires Are Not Allowed By Fire Department

Now that the bonfire season has rolled around again, Fire Chief George Gimblett finds violation of city ordinances is rife.

Every time a citizen burns rubbage of any kind within the city limits without first receiving permission from the fire department he is breaking the law. Such permission is not difficult to secure if conditions are right, Chief Gimblett said today. The law was not established as just another "piece of red tape," but for the protection of citizens in general. For example, the fire department will not permit fires to be started on Mondays until after six o'clock at night. That is for the protection of housewives who may have the week's washing on the line. Then again, the department frowns on fires of any kind on city pavement because the heat breaks up the paving, adds to cost of repair and to the city's tax rate.

So when a person wants to burn rubbish or leaves or any other thing in connection with his fall clean-up, he should telephone "24—no fire" before striking the match. He will find permission forthcoming unless there is a very good reason why the fire should not take place.

SLEEPING BETTER

A family that is probably sleeping more peacefuly at night now that Mel Campbell, alleged bank bandit, has been captured is that of John Preston, near Selwyn. It was in a cottage near his home that Campbell and his companions are said to have made their hide-out for some time, and there was always a strong possibility they would return.

POWER DEMAND DROPS.

Amount of electricity sold in the Commercial Power class during the month of September dropped 12.9 per cent below the same month last year, from 1,020,112 kilowatt hours to 888,299 kilowatt hours, it was reported to the Public Utilities Commission yesterday. Reason for the decrease was largely attributed to the withdrawal of the Auburn Mill. In the Commercial class an increase of 10.4 per cent was listed.

GEESE FLYING SOUTH

Hundreds of wild geese passed over the city early this morning and yesterday morning southward bound on the long trek to their winter homes. This move will undoubtedly be taken by many to indicate that cold weather is close by, but veteran woodsmen commenting on the flight of the geese yesterday incline to the belief that the birds fly at a stated time, regardless of weather conditions.

OUT OF DANGER

Roland Ferguson, 53-year-old house painter who was run over by a Peterborough bus on September 29, is now out of danger, Nicholls Hospital authorities said this morning. "His condition is greatly improved," it was stated. Ferguson, who lives at 543 Park street, was riding a bicycle and collided with the bus at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets. He suffered head, shoulder and abdominal injuries and was in a critical condition for some time.

"WHY WOMEN WEEP."

NOT THIS ONE.

The Joseph O'Toole whose name has appeared in police court reports recently was not Joseph O'Toole of 283½ Park Street.

BENCH WARRANT ISSUED.

When a local man failed to appear on a drunk charge this morning Magistrate Langley issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

A young man who had pleaded guilty several weeks ago to the theft of $62 from a service station, was allowed to go on suspended sentence for two years when his case was disposed of by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning. A second charge of the theft of a car was dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence. Complete restitution is being made.

38 "D" LICENSES.

If one must have an accident that requires medical attention, the vicinity of the Kawartha club would be a good place to pick to-day. By count there were 38 cars bearing "D" licenses parked outside the club house door at noon as the district scientific meeting of the Ontario Medical Association got under way.

Water, Electric Departments Report Increased Revenue

The electric department of the Public Utilities Commission has operated at a net profi tnof $8,671.73 during the first nine months of this year, it was reported at a commission meeting yesterday afternoon.

The increase was more than $6,000 in advance of the net profit for the same nine months in 1937, and that despite the fact that included in this year's operation charges was an item for $5,761.00 for depreciation charges on water heaters. No such expenditure was in last year's statement because the heaters were not then the property of the local commission, but of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

In every branch of revenue, assets for the nine-month period were in advance of last year, the report revealed.

Revenue

	1937	1938
Domestic lighting ...	$105,846.58	$111,139.64
Commercial lighting ...	55,652.07	58,055.40
Street lighting	16,639.69	16,679.59
Miscellaneous	1,287.02	1,821.88
Total	$257,976.22	$269,927.89

Water Department

In the waterworks department there was al so an increase in the nine months' profit over last year, although the gain was not so spectacular. Net operating profit for this year has been $3,097.26 to date as compared to $2,759.25 in the same months of 1937.

The increased profit this year was made on a lower total revenue than was taken in until the end of September in 1937. Last year the total stood at $87,064.49, while this year it has dropped to $85,788.80. The increased net operating profit this year has been made possible by a drop of nearly $3,000 in the operation and maintenance costs and close to $2,000 in lowered sinking fund charges. Other costs this year that were not included last year were $3,545.64 for depreciation on plant.

Gas Department

Gas department figures were not compiled for the nine-month period, showed a bank balance of $7,632.54, but gave no comparative figures for other periods, nor any net operating profit or loss.

Total amount of gas sold this September past was down from the same month last year. Colder weather this September was given as the reason—people lit their furnaces this year, when last year they were still depending on gas. Total gas sold during the nine months ending the end of September was down to 32,273,100 cubic feet from last year's figure for the same period of 33,616,900 cubic feet.

3 Youths Are Given Terms In Reformatory

Arthur Woodcock, 23, who had previously pleaded guilty to eleven charges of car theft, breaking and entering and theft, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to 22 months determinate and 18 months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on the major charges and to three months determinate and three months indeterminate in the minor cases, all sentences to run concurrently.

Magistrate Langley stated that he would recommend that Woodcock's imprisonment should be at Burwash, rather than at Guelph.

Victor Caban, 16, who pleaded guilty to ten of the charges in which Woodcock was implicated, was given 18 months determinate and 12 months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on the more serious charges and three months determinate and three months indeterminate on the minor charges, sentences to run concurrently.

James Woodcock, 17, younger brother of Arthur, who had entered pleas of guilty on four charges, two of them involving car thefts was sentenced to 15 months determinate and two months indeterminate on the three more serious charges and to three months determinate and three months indeterminate on the other charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

Little Thought of Reforming

In sentencing the elder Woodcock Magistrate Langley said that the accused youth apparently hadn't much thought of reforming.

"It may appeal to you as something heroic to stand before me as you did the other day and say you were sorry you did not get more when you broke into some of those places," he told Woodcock. "It is not heroic to me or to any person of sound judgment. It is not clever to steal. The village fool could have made as good a job of it as you did. There is nothing brave about it, either. You would not have done those things if you had known some one was watching you, ready to draw a bead on you with a loaded rifle or even if you had known there was a Great Dane dog there ready to seize you by the seat of the trousers."

Addressing Caban, he repeated that there had been nothing smart about what he and his companions had done.

"You realize that now, don't you" he asked the youthful prisoner.

"Yes, sir," replied Caban.

"And you and Woodcock are the goats," the court said as sentence was passed.

Jacob Low was present on behalf of James Woodcock and pleaded for clemency but Magistrate Langley pointed out that the boy had already served a term in the Reformatory and it had apparently done him no good.

I.O.O.F. Officers Are Installed

MILLBROOK, Oct. 19.—(Special).—Annual installation of officers in Millbrook Lodge No. 308 I.O.O.F. was an event of the week in the village and a team from Peterborough Lodges under the direction of Alex Sage, D.D.G.M., performed the near century old ceremony.

Supper was served by the Rebekahs of Millbrook and the social part of the evening's program consisted of community singing, carpetball, cards and music by visiting brethren.

Three Are Arrested In Raid On Jungle

A police raid was made on the "jungle" at Burnham's Point Tuesday night in time to quell a disturbance among the temporary visitors who were spending the night as uninvited guests of the community and as a result three transients found themselves lined up before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning charged with being drunk.

The trio, Michael Currie, Thomas McDuff and Joseph McAleer had been in the same predicament before, according to Chief Newhall who selected Currie for the role of the worst offender.

"It is Currie's wine that causes the trouble," he told the court.

Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $10 and $4.50 costs on each of the three but he "staggered" the jail sentences that were the alternative to paying the fines. As a result McAleer will get out in seven days, McDuff in eight and Currie two days later.

Curlers Approve Election Of Walter Reesor

Peterborough curlers are highly pleased by the election of Walter Reesor of Lindsay as president of the Ontario Curling Association. Several of them mentioned to the Examiner this morning the preference that has come to Mr. Reesor, and at the same time they expressed regret in the death of Fred Nugent, one of the outstanding members of the Lindsay Club.

Mr. Reesor is a fine sportsman in the tradition of the late J. D. Flavelle and Judge "Larry" O'Connor, and has so many friends among Peterborough curlers that he is always at home here.

Since the organization of the O.C.A. in 1875 he is the fifth president from the Central Ontario district, and the third from Lindsay. J. D. Flavelle was the presiding officer in 1886 and 1887; Dr. R. P. Boucher of Peterborough in 1890-01; E. B. Edwards, K.C., of Peterborough in 1901 and 1902; and Judge L. V. O'Connor, formerly of Lindsay and of Cobourg in 1926-27. Lindsay won the Ontario Tankard in 1897-8, 1902, 1905, 1908, 1923 and 1929. For twenty years or thereabouts Walter Reesor has been regarded as one of the ace skips of the Lindsay Club. Albert E. Bottum of Bobcaygeon is a life member of the Ontario Curling Association.

Chandos Is Found Liable For Share

Judge Smoke delivered judgment today in a division court action tried at Apsley in which union school section five of Anstruther, Burleigh and Chandos sued the three townships for proportionate payments for the maintenance of the school, chargeable to the respective townships and based on their total assessment as provided for in the Public Schools Act. The question was whether an equalization had been struck by the assessors of the townships based on their comparative assessments.

His Honor found as a fact that the equalization had taken place and that Chandos township was therefore liable for its share under the new equalization. Judgment was entered against Chandos for the increased amount of their share, and the action was dismissed against the townships of Anstruther and Burleigh, and a rebate was allowed them of the amount they overpaid to the school section. This action might be considered a test case in respect to these townships and different school sections involving an appreciable amount of money W. B. Gordon represent the townships of Burleigh and Anstruther.

Given Two Months For Injuring Woman

Wilbert Butcher was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to a month's imprisonment in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty in police court this morning to assaulting a female occasioning actual bodily harm.

"I could send you to Kingston Penitentiary for fourteen years for that," remarked the Magistrate when Butcher said he would enter a plea of guilty to the charge.

In spite of that Butcher said that he would stick to his plea.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., told the court that there had been a quarrel and that a woman had had her hand injured by a blow from Butcher. "My first information was that her hand was broken," he stated.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT COMES ABOUT that we feel a poem sneaking up on us. This is fair warning to one and all—our inherent fairness compelling us, like the rattlesnake, to give off a warning note before striking! Since we were knee-high to a doctor's bill, we have heard a lot about one Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, Sarnia's great football back. Ace kicker, star passer, perfect plunger—in fact Canada's No. 1 footballer. He has become our favorite gridder, and we wonder if a $15-a-week job with a future would interest him in locating here next summer. Anyway, we are overcome with poetry:

* * * * * *

O show us the zone where Stirling doth roam
When ye Imps and ye Orfuns do play;
His punts grow so tall you can't see the ball,
As the pigskin he salts away—awayyyy!

Home, home on the gridiron
As Imps and Orfuns do play;
His punts hit the sky, they're lost to the eye—
But we hope not on this Saturday-ay-ay!

* * * * * *

He Kicks Like a Taxpayer

WE SINCERELY hope not. Ya can't think of the perennial champs, Sarnia Imperials, without thinking of Stirling. Orm Beach was great, too, but he died recently—and Stirling is now half the squad. He scored all 12 points for the Imps in their 12-12 tie last Saturday against Montreal, so you know the veteran isn't slipping any. Since joining the Sarnia team back in '29, the Bummer has kicked no less than 353 points, 70 of them last season. The big boy shines in every capacity and is really dynamite Of course, the clever Sarnia coach, Art Massucci, has a good gang of gridders lined up and they play a nifty open game—but Stirling is Stirling.

* * * * * *

OUR EXPERIENCE with the grid game is not enough to force us to decline coaching jobs year after year. We learned a little playing with some junior P.C.I. lads at the Oval some seasons back and picked up the rest witnessing mostly games around this town, with a few Big Four jousts in Toronto, and a couple of pro football frays. Saw the great Jim Thorpe finish up in pro company, too—and he is still the all-time All-American. Nevertheless, we will predict this, that if (and that IF is as big as a coal bill come spring) the Orfuns can stop, or partially stop Stirling, the home fans at the Exhibition Grounds this Saturday will see a sweet scrap. And tighter than a fat gent's belt after dinner. Yeah, we'll climb out on the limb and predict a closer score than was the case last week-end—the senior O.R.F.U. champs notwithstanding.

* * * * * *

Names Won't Beat Them

ORFUNS ARE SHOWING 'em all, though a green bunch of youngsters, dotted here and there with good seniors, that big names alone won't beat Peterborough. The classy Nats had to play their best—and they got a big jump in the first quarter—to knock off Orfuns, and the Beaches found they couldn't sit their stars on the bench and use subs to beat our gang. Orfuns are coming along okay, getting better—like oysters—as the season progresses. They'll hustle the gees with the three stars on their sweaters Saturday like the gals rush the boys on Sadie Hawkins' Day. Ted Reeve remarks in the Tely: "A further heartening note for the Overlooked R.F.U. came from Peterborough where the young men of those parts handed Beaches a much stiffer struggle than the score indicates. Only the booting of Box gave the Beaches a really decided margin in the play." Yaas, indeedy.

* * * * * *

TRAINING his high-powered adjectives toward the sector occupied by Oshawa senior school rugby officials—the ref in particular—the Scugog scribe states the Lindsay team got a bum deal in their loss last Saturday in the Motor City. He adds: "These Oshawa officials have always had a soft spot in their hearts for their opponents and we send along this warning to P.C.I. They not only intend to win their game against the Petes next Saturday but, as one official put it: 'We intend to kill them!'" Nice boys, aren't they? Or maybe we're getting soft. The fact remains, however, that the Lindsay squad have to win their remaining games, while it is necessary that Peterborough lose to Oshawa if they are to have a chance of a playoff spot." Both our P.C.I. teams play in Oshawa this week-end.

* * * * * *

Fare Thee Well, Fellows

THREE OF THE PETES' PUCKISTS who were knocked off by Niagara Falls last spring in O.H.A. senior "B" semi-finals have asked for and received their releases this fall. Secretary Jim Dorris of the Peterborough Hockey Club has written out releases for Barney Barnes, Bill Calladine and Ned Vitarelli. The latter two are expected to still play for Coach Pick Hines, but this winter with Baltimore in the tough U.S. amachoor loop. Barnes returned some time ago to Western Canada. All three players will be missed muchly here. Dunno if there will be any other local losses or not.

* * * * * *

BEFORE FANDOM—fickle where failure is concerned—forgets the ball-playing Petes for this year, we'd like to mention one of the players. Several turned in a fine game all season, Manager Eddie Murphy, Chuck Kearns, a couple of the pitchers and others. But we'd like to mitt Cliff Cadd for doing a pretty fair chore at first base the past several months. Cadd didn't hit anything like .400 nor did he look like the best first-sacker seen here this season, but he did handle the initial sack in good style. He was not given much of a chance to get the spot in the spring but when Fred Ash retired the position was open and Cliff courageously fought for it and was handed the job. He improved right along and was playing a whole lot of first base at the finish. With a good summer in baseball behind him, he can now turn to hockey in two more months.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Against Sarnia here Sat'day, Eddie Murphy may be quarterback and allow Bill Irwin back on the line.... Beaches entertain the Nats this week-end, and the Ponton players are worried....Only one more home game for the P.C.I.-ers before the schedules end....Lot of local rumors about new pucksters in twon, but nothing you can tie a tale onto yet....The O.R.F.U. recently said ixnay to a Peterborough query about using a U.S. kicker with Orfuns this semester....Wonder if there isn't a good hoofer anywhere north of us, clean to the Arctic, as such a gee would be eligible....Knotty Lee thinks Kingston will join a new pro setup next year, a St. Lawrence section of the Can.-Am. league; Ponies are invited to the C.O.B.L. meeting here Saturday. There was some talk of a benefit lacrosse game between the Petes and a Sarnia-Wallaceburg gang....Trenton Fliers may discover a new player or two come hockey time....Java Joe says: "Even a good griddle team like Sarnia Interiors can be deleted if the Orfuls will throw four-word passes and use rabble-dabble plays; they got too much average poise for our griddlers"....Vocally Joe is a mixed master, but mentally he is no dwarf!

Walter Reesor Is New Head Ontario Curlers

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Walter Reesor of Lindsay was elevated to the presidency of the Ontario Curling Association yesterday at the annual meeting held in the Victoria Club. He succeeds J. F. Van Lane, popular and hard-working member of the Toronto Strathcona Club, the retiring prexy.

Retiring-President Van Lane stated that the British Consul Single Rink Competition, inaugurated last year, proved a decided success. The winning rink in this competition represented the asscociation in the MacDonald Brier Tankard playdowns.

The retiring president was presented with a past president's medal by Walter Reesor and given a life membership in the organization. He also was the recipient of a memento from Walter Cowan for his work in connection with the visit of the Scottish curlers.

Secretary G. S. Pearcy disclosed an increase in membership of 188, there being 4,411 now enrolled compared to 4,223 last year. Ten new clubs were admitted to membership. The financial report showed a credit balance of $306.21 in the bank. Income last year totalled $2,817.73 and expenditures $2,511.52.

Walter Cowan outlined the tour of the Scottish curlers and he drew the plaudits of all concerned for his work as secretary of the visitor's tour. He was presented with a floor lamp as a token of appreciation.

Tribute to Secretary.

Rev. Dr. R. M. Burns, the oldest living past president in attendance, paid tribute to the untiring work of G. S. (Sandy) Pearcy who has been secretary for the O.C.A. for twenty-six years. Pearcy was presented with a medal in recognition of his service and made an honorary vice-president.

Past president Thomas Rennie presented the Ontario Tankard banner to the Hamilton Thistle Club. Gordon Campbell responded, in the absence of Harry Weller, who was unable to be in attendance because of illness. The S. J. Russel Loving Cup, for the greatest number of friendly games played, was awarded to Kitchener Granites, who took part in thirty-two.

The date for the Seniors Competition at Hamilton Victoria Club was changed, and instead of being held on the first Tuesday in December it will be held on the first Wednesday in December this year, with a limit of thirty-two rinks.

It was decided to hold the next annual at the Toronto Granite Club on Oct. 17, 1939.

Official plan of grouping for Ontario silver tankard, district cup and junior tankard competition:

Group 3—Bobcaygeon, Dunsford, Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Lindsay, Norwood, Peterborough. Tankard at Peterborough; W. G. Morrow, umpire. District cup at Lindsay; W. E. Reesor, umpire.

Official plan of divisions for British Consols single rink competition:

Division 5— Beaverton, Bobcaygeon, Cannington, Cobourg, Dunsford, Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Lindsay, Norwood, Oshawa, Scarboro', Peterborough, Woodville. Play at Oshawa; C. R. Balles, umpire.

New Champ

In a fight that drew as many laughs as it did cheers, Joey Archibald, ABOVE, who calls Pawtucket, Rhode Island, home, won the world's featherweight championship by gaining a 15-round decision over Mike Belloise, of New York. The New York Athletic Commission staged the bout to establish a champion in that division to succeed Henry Armstrong who relinquished the crown to concentrate on his other two titles.

Conacher's Work Tickles Adams

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—(CP).—Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings said to-day he was delighted with Charlie Conacher's work during the first two training days for the former Toronto Maple Leaf right winger who was bought this year for the Detroit entry in the National Hockey League.

"I've never seen Conacher in such good health or condition in years," Adams declared. "He looked great in that Red Wing uniform. I'm sure we've made a good buy."

Adams denied reports Conacher might play defence this year. Conacher likely will line up as a right winger with Marty Barry as centre and Herbie Lewis on left wing.

King Edward Will Meet Central School

King Edward Public School won the top position in the league on Tuesday afternoon when they defeated the King George eleven by the count of eight to nothing and the right to meet Central in the play-offs.

The standing is as follows:

	P	W	L	D	F	A	P.
King Edward	5	5	0	0	24	1	10
Central	5	4	1	0	25	4	8
Prince of Wales...	5	2	2	1	8	9	5
Queen Mary	5	2	2	1	6	8	5
King George	5	1	4	0	2	22	2
Queen Alexandra .	5	0	5	0	0	21	0

Two points for a win; one for draw.

King George travelled into the King Edward territory to be repulsed by the full backs. The half backs retaliated with clever combination to feed the South-enders' forwards who made inroads on their opponents to open the scoring through Downer after the King George goalie had made a good stop. Then Reil added the next counter. Charlie Murduff dribble his way from his opposition to send a rocket drive in below the cross-bar. Downer added the fourth. Half-time: King Edward 4, King George 0.

On resuming, the winners concentrated on combination in anticipation of the play-offs that start on Wednesday afternoon against the Central aggregation. Their success culminated in Palmer scoring a beautiful goal. Langton and Murduff added two more. K. Lee saved a rocket penalty kick from the foot of Murduff. King Edward 8, King George 0.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Charging Of Line Is Your Best Bet As A Defensive Method

By LEW HAYMAN

Just as the proverbial chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so no rugby team is stronger than the weakest link in its offensive system. Defensive play along the line of scrimmage is one of the most important of these, so today we'll go into the fine points of this department of play.

With but few exceptions, most successful coaches use a charging line on the defensive. Occasionally there may be one man on the line who is designated to pile up or delay the play, but as a unit, they charge. A defensive line that is out-charging the offensive line will throw the ball-carriers for losses or will hurry the play so that effective offensive timing will be lost, particularly on pass plays and kicks. A hard-charging defence employs many individual tactics and manoeuvres depending on how the offence is playing. Here are a few simple ones:

1. Side-stepping one, playing another.

When two opponents are trying to take you out of the play don't try to overcome both. Dodge one and concentrate your power on the other.

2. Submarine.

Feint a high charge, then throw your head and shoulders on the ground beneath the knees of your opponent. Once under him draw your feet together and raise up with your shoulder, causing your opponent, who has charged, to slide over your back.

3. Power Charge.

This is a matter of straight power, used particularly against one man if you are stronger or bigger than he is. Charge directly into the man, jolting him with terrific hand drive against his shoulders. If charging him from either side use one hand on his neck and the other on his ribs. USE THAT DRIVE WITH YOUR HANDS. Too many players forget all about it and merely use their bodies.

There are numerous other stunts a players can create and use himself. However no system can be effective if your opponent knows what you are going to do. Out-guess him. This, plus ability and agility make ordinary players great linemen.

There are four basic principles of a charging defensive line. Here they are in order, the four things that must be done to get you anywhere.

CROSS THE LINE OF SCRIMMAGE. Regardless of the type of stunts used, your first job is to get across that line. Don't delay. Don't drift (that is get off your straight, charging path.) There is no need for conversation or discussion. Your first objective is to get past the opposing line.

PROTECT TERRITORY. Each man is responsible for the ground he occupies and the path ahead of him. If you are beaten to the charge try and retreat over the ground on which you advanced. Every man has a particular area to look after and he is personally responsible for that area.

FOLLOW THE BALL. Once by the line of scrimmage, with your area protected, follow the ball. Too many linemen start to follow the ball BEFORE protecting their territory or passing the opposing line. This allows the opposition to pull off spinners, reverses and cut-backs, that usually are good for long gains.

MAKE THE TACKLE. This is the object of all defence. The other movements are preliminaries so as to get in position for the tackle. Too often one man depends on another to make the tackle, and that other man may be depending on someone else. EVERY MAN IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TACKLE.

So, in closing today's talk, I say: Get acros sthat line of scrimmage, protect the territory immediately ahead of you, follow the ball, and make the tackle. All those items follow each other in the order mentioned. If you attempt one out of turn, you'll find that something will go wrong.

How to play the outside wing position correctly will be TOMORROW'S topic.

Amerks With An Average Age Of 30 Head For 'Peg Series To Tangle With Bearding Rangers

(By The Canadian Press.)

Oldest player with New York Rangers and a National Hockey League veteran at the ripe old age of 30, Cecil Dillon would be just a young fellow coming along if he played with New York Americans. The Americans' average age is 30, and six of their number won't see that milestone again.

Manager Red Dutton's veteran brigade moves into Winnipeg to-day or to-morrow's opening of a series of six exhibition games with the Rangers, who think the nicest way to treat age is to step on its beard. Dutton can watch out, too, because Manager Lester Patrick of the Blueshirts is hopping mad at the league in general for the way the schedule starts.

The Rangers don't open until November 13, just 10 days after the season begins. Patrick was burning up the wires without success last night trying to arrange exhibitions to fill in the time.

Lynn, the elder of Patrick's two playing sons, was taking things a little easier, reading a sports magazine in which a hockey story appears under Lynn's by-line. "Say, that's interesting," he said when he'd finished. "Honest, fellows, I didn't know I had it in me."

Patrick announced on Tuesday all Rangers have signed their season's contracts, and at the same time Coach Herb. Gardiner of Philadelphia's International-American League Ramblers, Ranger farm, said all his players are signed.

Shore in Camp.

Eddie Shore, who was voted most valuable player in the league last winter for the fourth time, arrived at Boston Bruins' training camp in Hershey, Pa., in prime condition. The veteran defenceman said he had been harvesting on his grain ranch from dawn to dusk for two months. They say Eddie found a new outlet for his barley crop this year through Eastern distillers.

A struggle for positions means a lot on any hockey club and Montreal Canadiens are bound to be at a peak when Manager Cecil Hart finally picks his starting team. The six players he got from the defunct Montreal Maroons are making last year's regulars step to hold their places, and now Hart is looking with an approving eye on three recruits, Wilf Hooh of Kitchener, and New Haven, Alexander Smart of Winnipeg, and Hugh O'Leary of Port Arthur.

"I've never seen Conacher in such good health or condition for years," Jack Adams declared after Charlie Conacher's first workout with Detroit Red Wings. Adams denied he could convert Charlie, always a right winger with Toronto, into a defenceman. He likely will line up on an experienced attacking formation with Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis.

Adams is likely to retain Bob Whitelaw of Winnipeg and Syd Abel, who played last winter with Flin Flon Bombers. They're the pick of the amateurs trying out at Detroit.

Pete Langelle, a star with Winnipeg's Dominion junior champions two winters ago and with Syracuse of the International-American League last season, gets his big chance to-day. He will be tried out at centre between Pep Kelly and George Parsons of Toronto Maple Leafs in their ice workout at Galt, Ontario.

Foot-Wide Blue Lines Are Expected To Cut Down Penalties

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(CP).—That thrill disturber of the hockey wars, the referee's whistle, will be heard a little less often this season if all the new rules in the book do what they're supposed to do.

The National League code changes, a worried little group paced by Art Ross of Boston, and Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs, keep popping up every fall with as many innovations as the automobile manufacturers. Their apparent purpose is to keep the game as stream-lined and speedy as this year's car.

Ross came to the recent semi-annual meeting with a batch of ideas. Most of them went through, along with suggestions from other managers, and were accepted for both professional and amateur hockey everywhere.

Because the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association agreed on the alterations, every rink in the country will have to make its blue lines one foot wide and paint the goal-posts and all lines except zone lines red.

Fewer Offsides

The wider blue lines and one other item are designed to cut down offside plays. A player will not be considered offside unless his skates are over the blue-line edge nearest the goal. That means he may reach over the lines with his stick for the puck so long as his skates don't cross before he touches the rubber.

A minor penalty will be imposed on any player except the goaltender who holds the puck against the boards unless he is being checked by another player. A penalty shot will be awarded if the goalie holds the puck more than three seconds, drops it into his pads or tosses it into the crowd. These things formerly called for a painful whistle blast and a face-off. Now they come under the head of "stalling" and should occur less often.

An offside will be called when the defending team ices the puck from its area and the rubber crosses the penalty-shot line in the other team's area; formerly the puck had only to cross the far blue line to be called "iced." The referee, however, will not call the play until he is sure a goal cannot be scored on an iced shot.

U. of T. Called To Win Montreal Meet

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—(CP).—The chances are good that University of Toronto, despite the loss of key men from its 1937 championship team, will defend the intercollegiate track and field crown successfully at Montreal, Friday. A 19-man team will represent Toronto at the meet.

The hurdling and sprinting ace of last season's team, Larry O'Connor has graduated and while there is no one outstanding star such as the Olympic ace this year, the team is well balanced and possessed of first-rank runners and jumpers.

The famous Brown twins of Meaford, Ont., Wallace and Harold, are two of the team's outstanding members. The Browns, who represented Canada at the Australian British Empire Games, are entered in six events and with sprinter Gord McHenry and Bill Hogg, a middle-distance star, they carry the bulk of Toronto's hopes.

West's Sensational Junior Starting Career With Leafs

WALTER STANOWSKY . . . Winnipeg's erstwhile sensational junior hockey star, on his way to carving out a big name in the pro game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19. — Walter Stanowsky, western Canada's Goalmouth Express, carries his growing fame to Toronto within the next few days. Stamped by western hockey observers as the greatest prospect for bigtime hockey to come out of the west in the past decade, Stanowsky will report to Conny Smythe, Toronto Maple Leaf major-domo, for preliminaries to what promises to be one of the greatest professional hockey careers of all time.

Stanowsky electrified eastern hockey fans in the spring as the main cog in a great St. Boniface Seal junior hockey machine, champions of Canada, after a terrific series with Oshawa Generals—a series that saw Canadian single game attendance records, professional and amateur, smashed.

Spied By Irvin

It was at a time when Toronto Maple Leafs were struggling with Chicago Blackhawks in a disappointing series. Dick Irvin, deep in the troubles of the Leafs, saw Stanowsky for the first time, and brightened, "There's the solution," he said, "have you got any more Stanowskys out west?"

Stanowsky's spectacular rushes from his left defence position sent Toronto fandom wild. Every time he picked up the puck, the crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens knew plenty of action would follow. In addition to his scoring potency, Stanowsky was dishing out body checks with the best of them, and was a definite standout on his defensive play.

This rising star set an all time scoring record for junior defencemen in his second year with the Seals, their championship year. In that league season of 16 games, Stanowsky scored eight goals and assisted in another 13 for a total of 21 scoring points. That in a league branded later by Seals as containing two teams as tough as any they faced along the trail to the Dominion finals. In his first year of junior hockey Stanowsky, then only 17 years of age, scored seven goals and assisted in six. In 21 play-off games this spring he was specially instructed to concentrate on defence. He did, but still found time to register 10 goals and 13 assists.

Still Eligible for Junior

Stanowsky, 19 years old, could play another season of junior hockey if he wished. He will be 20 on April 28 of next year. Conny Smythe wants to use him as a forward with Syracuse Stars for one season, possibly on right wing. According to the youthful star, Smythe has mentioned a possibility of using him with Oshawa's Billy Taylor and Pete Langelle, another Winnipeg boy, who played with Stars last season.

Stanowsky weighs 178 pounds stripped, and is in the best of condition. He was a plunging star with Winnipeg Y.M.H.A. juniors, runners-up to the Western Football championship last season. This season he has been a backfield sensation with the same team, unbeaten in 1938 in five games, potential Western and Canadian junior titlists. They will miss Stanowsky when he goes east.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP). — Good for Pie Traynor....If anyone ever deserved a new contract it was Pie, one of the hardest workers and nicest fellows in baseball... Anybody heard what Frankie Frisch is going to do next summer....Any one of six or seven big league clubs could use him....

Henry Armstrong looks well. He'll have his hands full with Garcia, though....Ceferino was working out at Stillman's yesterday and we thought he looked great. . . "Eef I connect, I knock heem out," he said. . . . He will weigh about 146, which should give him nearly 10 pounds on the hammerer....They're already talking about the Pitt-Fordham game on the 29th....

Here's the best football story we've heard yet....When Maryland went up to play Syracuse, a third string tackle named Krause was sent up to the press box in "civvies" to "spot" the Maryland plays for the scribes....Syracuse had about half its 53-0 final score piled up at the end of the half and between periods a Maryland assistant coach came running up the stadium steps . . . "Hey" he bellowed to the spotter, "come on down and put on a suit. We've been looking all over for you."

It may seen early but there's a lot of Rose Bowl talk around here already....Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian centre, is so fast he snaps the ball, pulls out of line and leads the interference.

Indianapolis—Tom Sawyer, 215, Hollywood, Calif., downed Ralph Garibaldi, 211, New York.

Indianapolis—Tom Marvin, 220, Oklahoma, beat John Grandovich, 235, of Poland (Grandovich disqualified for roughness.)

Armstrong Back, Lip-Cutting Tooth Yanked

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 — (AP). — Henry Armstrong stuck an index finger in his mouth and caressed the jagged scar left by the 14 stitches embroidered in his upper lip the night he won the lightweight title from Lou Ambers.

"The doc did a wonderful job sewing me up," said the calm little Negro yesterday. "It's pretty well healed now and it won't get out again. You see, I've had the tooth pulled out that did it."

There are not many fighters who would be far-seeing enough to part with a good tooth, and there is, of course, only one Henry Armstrong. His entire preparation for his welterweight championship fight with Ceferino Garcia at Madison Square Garden two weeks from to-night has been equally studied.

For six weeks after he beat Ambers and won his third world crown Armstrong took a complete rest. For the past two weeks he has been taking the waters at Hot Springs, Ark., and gradually limbering up again.

Canny Conny Looks Over His Leafs And Finds Them Good-And Young

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP). —You can take Manager Conny Smythe's word for it. Or Coach Irvin's or that of Eddie Powers. The Toronto Maple Leafs look good in their pre-season workouts.

Canny Conny looked over a squad of 39 in the first official practice of the training season yesterday, conferred with Irvin and Powers and announced all were agreed: "The whole squad looks good and very, very young. The yonger lads have come along fine."

That was as far as the three hockey mentors would go in expressing opinions. The players, for the initial work-out, showed "plenty of speed." Their style was all that could be desired. But none of the "brain trust" would prognosticate on the outcome once the National Hockey League season gets under way Nov. 3.

The Leafs are training with Syracuse Stars, Toronto's farm team of the International - American League. With eight amateurs who seek to jump to the professional ranks, the players skated through two stiff games, half the squad playing in one and the others in the second game. The "Blues" won both contests, 4-2 and 6-3.

But little more than half-an-hour after the practice began Bob Davidson became a casualty. The big left winger fell over Gord Thoms and suffered a gashed leg above the knee. To-day he hobbled about with six stitches in the wound.

Davidson won't play again for a week.

Gordie Drillon was the only player to perform in both games. And the leading scorer of the N.H.L. last season showed he had lost none of his timing by scoring four goals —one in the first match and three in the second—in lightning rushes down right wing.

Exhibitions between Toronto and Syracuse are scheduled for Galt, Owen Sound, Midland, Toronto and Syracuse.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Cards of Thanks Deaths

BORN

PEARSON.—At Nicholls Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Pearson (nee Muriel Rooke), Lakefield, Saturday, October 15, a son.

IN MEMORIAM

DOYLE.—In sad and loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Doyle, who departed October 19, 1931.

When days are dark and friends are few,
Oh, Mother dear, I think of you.
Friends are friends if they are true,
I lost my best when I lost you.
Friends may think I have forgotten
When at times they see me smile,
But they little know the heart break
That is hidden all the while.

—Always remembered by Margaret, Edward Sutton and children, of Buffalo, N.Y.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. J. H. Moore take this opportunity of expressing their sincere thanks to the attending doctors who were so kind during Mrs. Moore's illness, and to their many kind friends, relatives and neighbors for their messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes.

Looking Back On This Date

Fifty years ago today (October 19, 1888) Winnipeg saw the end of a bloodless war. The "battle of Fort Whyte", ended, and rival railroad gangs drank beakers of beer as proof that hostilities were over.

It was a strange "war." It arose out of a clause in the original charter of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company which gave the railway a monopoly in Manitoba and the West for a term of years. When the Greenway ministry took office it began a campaign against this monopoly and there were "wigs on the green" for a long period. Eventually Tom Greenway persuaded Sir John Macdonald that it would be good policy to cancel the monopoly clause, and this was done, the company in return receiving a government guarantee of $15,000,000 bonds at 3½ per cent.

The Manitoba government however had made an agreement with the Northern Pacific for the construction of a railway from the border to Winnipeg. The time came when it was necessary that this N.P. and M. railway should cross a C.P.R. track. The general Railway Act of Canada provided that no crossing should be permitted without the consent of the railway committee of the Canadian Privy Council. The N.P. and M. did not wait for this permission, but attempted to cross the C.P.R. at three points. Then Van Horne (we are told by Murray Gibbon) "who was essentially a poker player, prepared to bluff on the cards that had been dealt him. It was a game where bluff was needed, as he himself had set a precedent for the Northern Pacific's action by running what was termed a trick line across a provincial railway some time before. When Attorney General Martin who was also vice- president of the N.P. & M., swore in special constables to protect the invaders, who were ordered to proceed without waiting for decision by the Supreme Court of Canada, William Whyte, C.P.R. general superintendent of western lines, accompanied by two magistrates and another batch of special constables, ditched a locomotive at the chief crossing point and directed the defence from a private car, supported by 350 employees, housed in six colonist cars. A diamond inserted into the C.P. tracks by a N.P. crew was promptly torn up and removed and for nearly a fortnight a Canadian Pacific locomotive was driven slowly to and fro over the crossing. On the intervening Sunday a religious service was held along the tracks for the opposing forces. Meanwhile the local newspapers screamed in headlines until the company decided that the farce had lasted long enough and withdrew its men from Fort Whyte to their regular work."

And so Manitoba obtained railway competition but at a price which weighed heavily in later years when the N.P. lines became a burden and had to be unloaded.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

SAVING THE BACON

IF YOUR PARTNER has redoubled and your own hand tells you the side is sure to be disastrously defeated, it is better to stop and ponder the question of raising the bid to a higher level. Maybe you will lose less by going down one more only doubled than by being beaten one less redoubled. Of course, if your partner sees fit to redouble again, your sole recourse is to find a new partner, since the bridge laws do not legalize manslaughter.

	♠ A J 5 3 ♥ A 8 2 ♦ 10 7 4 3 ♣ 9 6
♠ K 9 7 ♥ J 9 3 ♦ A Q ♣ Q 8 7 5 2		♠ None ♥ K Q 10 6 4 ♦ K J 9 6 ♣ A K J 10
	♠ Q 10 8 6 4 2 ♥ 7 5 ♦ 8 5 2 ♣ 4 3

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

After North passed here and East opened with 1-Heart, South decided upon desperate measures to try to prevent the strong opponents from getting together. He made a psychic overcall of 1-Spade. West bid 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, East 3-Hearts and South, pleased at finding a nice sacrifice fit, called 3-Spades. West undaunted, went to 4-Hearts and North to 4-Spades.

East decided to pass this—almost an absolutely forcing pass, obligating West to take some action, since East had opened the bidding. West, preferring not to go on with a higher heart call, doubled the 4-Spades. North, with his well-placed spade honors over whatever West held, was tickled with this and redoubled. East left it in.

South figured a bit. He knew he was surely due to be set several. Two-down would cost 600 points redoubled, three-down only 500 doubled. Three-down would be 1,000 redoubled, four down only 700 doubled. So he bid 5-Spades, which West doubled. North now had sense enough not to redouble. The laugh was that the side got a good score in the duplicate, with only 700 minus, whereas 6-Hearts were bid by East-West at other tables for 980 points.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 9 ♥ A Q 10 6 ♦ A 8 3 ♣ A K Q 8 7

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West had made a dealer opening bid of 3-Diamonds here, and your side nevertheless reached 7-Clubs, how would you play it against a lead of the heart 2?

Powerful African Interests Stir Move In England Against Return Of Colonies

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — An organized movement, supported by powerful interests in South Africa, has been launchd in England to fight against return of colonies lost by Germany in the Great War.

Leaders of the movement have drawn attention to Chancellor Hitler's statement during his historic conference with Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg: "There is still the question of colonies, but that can be settled without war."

South African spokesmen, however, insist there can be no negotiations with Germany on this issue without prior knowledge and consent of those most vitally concerned.

A lead in the anti-restoration campaign was given by the Tanganyika Mandates Committee in a cable sent through the Joint East African Board in London to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Purporting to represent the popular viewpoint of residents in the former German colony, the message said:

"All British, European, Indians, and natives, loyal subjects of His Majesty in Tanganyika, are seriously perturbed by the prospects of the early development of German colonial claims. In view of the repeated pledges that Tanganyika is essentially part of the Empire, we request you to approach the Secretary of State to obtain an immediate assurance."

Fear Commitment.

Meanwhile despatches from South Africa stress growing anxiety lest Britain should commit herself to a colonial settlement with Germany.

On this point the Standard of Nairobi is quoted editorially as follows: "Will East Africa public opinion be consulted, or will this territory be presented with a fait accomplias in the case of Czechoslovakia?

"Mr. Chamberlain is gravely mistaken if he assumes that the views of the majority of the people in Britain regarding the future of Tanganyika coincide with the views of British people not only in that territory, but in Kenya and South Africa."

Reports from Southwest Africa also declare British subjects are demanding a plebiscite forthwith irrevocably to decide whether Southwest Africa should be annexed to the Union of South Africa as a fifth province, or returned to Germany.

No Return.

DURBAN, NATAL, South Africa, Oct. 18.—(AP).—A mass meeting of 2,000 persons headed by Mayor Fleming Johnston of Durban today pledged strenuous resistance to any effort to return to Germany war lost Tanganyika territory.

Colony Upset.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Oct. 18.—(CP-Reuters)— Question of Germany's former colonies had been brought to the forefront of political discussions in South Africa as a result of settlement of the Sudeten problem.

It seems likely that Oswald Pirow, Minister of Defence, in his current visit to England, will discuss the matter with the British ministers before going to Germany.

According to reports from Windhoek, capital of Southwest Africa, the Sudeten settlement has shaken confidence in the future of the union element in Southwest Africa.

Present European population in Southwest Africa is 30,000, including 21,000 South Africans, 6,000 Germans who are naturalized (mainly automatically) British subjects, and 3,000 unnaturalized Germans.

Germany's occupation of Sudetenland has resulted in the unnaturalized Germans openly declaring Germany will regain Southwest Africa. The Union section in Southwest Africa, on the other hand, points to the Union Government's repeated declarations that the future of Southwest Africa is bound up with the Union of South Africa.

The German's boast to regain the colonies has, however, led to a demand by the Union section which is at the moment sweeping the country that their leaders should attempt to secure closer association with the Union. As far as the natives of Southwest Africa are concerned, it is believed the vast majority would view the return of the colonies to Germany with the gravest misgivings.

Sarnia Is Opposing Tolls Charged On Blue Water Bridge

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 19.

SUPPORTING the stand taken by Mayor Fred Pelling two weeks ago, city council today was on record as opposed to the tolls charged on the new blue water international bridge. The protest will go to the board of transport commissioners and Ross W. Gray, K.C., M.P.%, for Lambton West.

Star 30 Years Ago Costello Gets Role

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19—(AP).—Sixty-one-year-old Maurice Costello, a headline stage name 30 years ago, went to work today—playing his first featured role in a talking picture.

"I'm trying to get in the back door," Costello said. "I simply had to have a job and told my friends so. I don't want to be dependent on others.

"A couple of years ago they used a flash of me in 'Hollywood Boulevard.' Just wanted the use of my name. A week or two ago, I got a guild card (Screen Actors Guild) and was listed at Central Casting. (All movie extras are hired through central.)

"Whether I get anywhere or not, this is better than sitting around my room all day."

Last may, Costello sued his actress-daughter, Dolores Barrymore, for non-support. He demanded $200 a month, declaring he was "sick, broke and jobless." In answering the action, Dolores said she was no longer able to support her father because of her obligations to her children (a son and a daughter, born when she was married to John Barrymore) and her sister, Helene, who is ill.

Craigavon Cries No Surrender

BELFAST, Oct. 19—(CP-Havas)—"I can only reiterate the old battle cry of Northern Ireland — no surrender!" Prime Minister Viscount Craigavon declared last night in answer to Eire's newest demands for incorporation of the six Ulster counties within a United Ireland.

"We realize," Viscount Craigavon said, "that Mr. (Prime Minister) Chamberlain's statement that the future of Northern Ireland remains in her own hands, means that the voice of the people should be expressed in our parliament in the ordinary democratic manner.

"During the years I have been in office, I have seen no signs of a change in sentiment in Northern Ireland.

"I wish to point out first that the Nationalists have never had any reason to complain of the treatment meted out to them. There has been nothing in the way of differentiation in the treatment of all creeds and classes in Northern Ireland.

"There is of course the usual opposition of the nationalist minority and that is chiefly directed against education. Our education system is more generous to Roman Catholics than is the case in Great Britain and the permanent secretary of our department of education is a Roman Catholic.

"At my particular request, the permanent secretary specially remained on after his term of office would have ordinarily expired.

"In the second place, Mr. DeValera evidently forgets that as recently as 1920 the then British government conferred on Northern Ireland their own federal parliament, giving Northern Ireland such powers as did not in any way lessen the ties between them and their kith and kin acros sthe channel."

Chicago Varsity Call Accepted By Benes

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(AP).—Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned as president of Czechoslovakia after the republic's Sudeten area was ceded to Germany, has accepted an invitation to become a visiting professor at University of Chicago.

President Robert Hutchins announced yesterday he had received a cablegram of acceptance from Dr. Benes and that the Czech leader would deliver a series of lectures on democratic institutions.

"I know of no one better qualified to expound the significance of democracy in world affairs today, and to arouse interest in democracy," the university president said.

Dr. Benes' lectures will be under the sponsorship of the Charles Walgreen foundation. He was expected to arrive as soon as he disposed of problems arising from his resignation. His predecessor and first president of Czechoslovakia, the late Thomas Masaryk, was a lecturer at the university from 1901 to 1903.

Suggests Force To Stop Bombings

LONDON, Oct. 19 (CP-Havas). — Use of force to stop the bombing of British vessels in Spanish government ports was advocated in a statement made public last night by ship owners trading with Spain, who will send a delegation to discuss the situation with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax on Thursday.

Pointing out that 11 British vessels have been attacked in Spanish waters since the four-power Munich accord, the ship owners said they did not desire the British government to adopt a policy which would endanger world peace.

They added, however, that since good relations exist between London and Rome, and since Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler signed a statement emphasizing the desire of their peoples never to fight each other, the use of force to end the bombings should not bring objections from either Italy or Germany.

Jumps Short, Drowns

CEDARS, Que., Oct. 19—(CP). — Verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the drowning of Alex. Simpson, 32-year-old sailor of Leamington, Ont., who lost his life Saturday in the Soulanges Canal when his attempt to jump from the lakeboat Kenora to shore failed by inches.

Bedlam Heard Blocks Gets Negro Tabernacle Closed

Columbia, S.C., Oct. 19 (AP)

BECAUSE, among other things, "the practice of their religion produced a bedlam that could be heard for many city blocks," Judge G. Duncan Bellinger ordered closed today a Negro tabernacle here known as the House of Prayer.

Judge Bellinger said evidence showed "there is dancing carried on in the church, weird noises and music, shouting, unearthly sounds, use of drums, trombones, horns, and scrubbing boards; that the services were carried on from the early hours of the evening until early hours of the moring, night after night, day after day."

War Supplies Buyer Sir E. Smith Dies

DABERNON, England, Oct. 19.—(CP).—Sir Edmund Smith, 61, director of the international commission for the purchase of supplies for the allies during the great war, died today.

Sir Edmund had a long career of public service, beginning in the consular division of the foreign office. After the war he was British representative on the inter-allied commission to consider the reconstruction of Belgium.

On his retirement from government service he became a director of the Suez Canal Company, chairman of Thomas Cook and Son, Limited, and vice president of the international Sleeping Car Company.

Three Quit O.A.C. After Hazing

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(CP).—Hazing as it is carried out at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was described today by James Bell of Toronto as one reason why at least three students left the college this fall. Bell was one of them.

Bell said in an interview that "a large number of fellows had to go to the nurse and infirmary following the morning 'exercises' which continued for two weeks."

Worst punishment inflicted on freshmen, Bell said, was "morning exercises."

"We freshmen were awakened at 5:30 a.m. by the rolling of garbage cans down the corridor, and sophomores next appeared in the freshmen's rooms ordering us out of bed. We had just time to pull on a shirt and a pair of pants.

"We were paraded out on the campus and ordered to lie down on our backs in the wet grass. It was quite chilly. The grass was soaking wet and we had nothing to eat or drink. Then we were put through exercises I never went through anything so strenuous in my life."

Before it was all over Bell said the freshmen had to run a half-mile and later circle the campus five or six times. Bell said he was nauseated after the running.

"Quite a few had to go to the infirmary the first day and I know everybody felt pretty sick, though not enough to go to bed," he said.

Bell declared he quit the college because he didn't like the courses.

No War Mongers Here, Eden Answers Hitler

LONDON, October 19 — (AP). — Anthony Eden today replied to Chancellor Hitler's oratorical attacks with the declaration that "there are no war-mongers among us."

Speaking at the 122nd annual meeting of the international peace society Mr. Eden, who resigned as foreign secretary Feb. 20 in protest against Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy towards the dictators, at the same time presented the case for an all-party government to replace Mr. Chamberlain's ministry.

He declared Great Britain must organize for defence or "our authority will continue to decline in a world which is rearming to the teeth and organized for war."

If this can be done more efficiently and speedily by "a government in which all parties are represented, then the case for such a government is purely unanswerable," he declared.

The former foreign secretary's reference to "war-mongers" was in reply to Hitler's Saarland speech Oct. 10 when he said "there are those abroad who do not want peace. Supposing after Chamberlain there came Copper or Eden or Churchill? They are the men who would like to make war."

The Opposition

These three—Mr. Eden, Alfred Duff Cooper, and Winston Churchill—have been the leaders of opposition within the Conservative party to Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy.

Mr. Eden in his speech today urged that Great Britain use her strength "not just to impose our will as to the fate of this territory or that, but to uphold certain standards in the conduct of foreign affairs.

"If the sanctity of contract between nations is no longer respected, if we are to turn a blind eye to even the grossest breach of international faith, if all the nations are to break all their promises all the time, the world will be degenerate until it will resemble a zoological garden in which all the animals have been loosed at once."

Troops Clean Jerusalem Up In 24 Hrs.

Calm Reigns In City After 30 Months Of Terrorist Rule

By James A. Mills
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

JERUSALEM, Oct. 20 (A.P.). — Comparative calm reigned over this Holy City to-day after 30 months of continuous Arab-Jewish turmoil as British soldiers completed clean-up operations by restoring order to the old section.

This operation ended 24 hours of steady military efforts to eliminate nests of rebellious Arabs who had held the old city for four days and was a prelude to the larger task of stopping acts of terrorism throughout Palestine.

The campaign caused nine Arab deaths and injuries to 18 others. Two British constables and one soldier were wounded. Forty Arabs were taken prisoner.

Soldiers—members of the 20,000 troops sent here to restore order—continued searching the warrens of the old city for rebels and their arms caches.

Arabs Disarmed.

Small groups of Arab prisoners were disarmed and sent to a concentration camp in an excavation on the site of the 2,000-year-old palace of King Herod.

For the first time since Saladin the Great vanquished Crusaders nearly 800 years ago, Moslem priests failed to call the faithful to prayer from the pinnacles of slender minarets within the shadow of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The usual cry, "Allah is great, Allah is our only prophet," was replaced by prayers of Christian monks for the deliverance of the Holy City from the terrorism that has claimed nearly 2,000 casualties in the last three months.

Scattered Arabs gave a few final gasps in spasmodic firing from concealed hideouts before their guns were silenced.

A Warning to the Troops

As the new day dawned, British troops read this order from Major General Robert H. Haining, commander of the British forces in Palestine and Trans-Jordan:

"Soldiers! On the threshold of your sacred mission in retaking the birthplace of three great monotheistic religions of the world, remember one single misdeed or misstep by a single soldier will stain the proud escutcheon of the British Empire.

"I am sure you will all do your duty in the tradition of England's reverence for Holy places and her respect for all religions."

Authorities expressed surprise at what they called the feeble resistance of Arabs in the old city. Several bombs were thrown as the troops approached. The only real resistance occurred at the Damascus gate, which the British troops promptly

Japs Offer To Supply Hong Kong Food Without Profit

Tokyo, Oct. 20 (CP-Havas)

THE Mitsui and Mitsubishi firms, largest industrial and financial interests in Japan, are ready to supply provisions for Hong Kong without profit to themselves if the British authorities there are willing, it was announced today.

The Japanese are awaiting Hong Kong's reply to an offer made on Monday through the Japanese consul general there. The proposal was that foodstuffs should be taken over from neighboring Formosa in the event that hostilities subject Hong Kong to a meat and vegetable shortage.

Observers said this display of good will reflect Japanese relief over the failure of Great Britain to "react" to the invasion of its "sphere of influence" in south China.

Five Detectives Convicted In Bribery Trial

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 20—(AP).—A weary jury closed another chapter in an 11-months-old city trial early today by convicting five present and former detectives of conspiring to obstruct administration of the gambling laws.

One of the five, former assistant chief of detectives Frank (Camera eye) McCarthy, also was convicted of bribery and acceptance of illegal fees. The supreme court jury acquitted the remaining four on the bribery and illegal fee counts.

All of the defendents were indicted by an extraordinary grand jury which charged them with conspiring to protect the operation of crooked gambling wheels at a carnival in a downtown park during a national veterans of foreign wars convention.

Since the city affairs investigation started almost a year ago, 32 persons have been indicted, 14 have been convicted or have entered guilty pleas and one has been acquitted. Many of those indicted were high city officials.

McCarthy faced possible maximum sentences totalling 21 years or fines totalling $9,500 or both as the result of his conviction on all three counts.

McCarthy achieved a high position in police work through his unfailing memory of faces.

The other defendants, acting assistant chief of detectives Frank J. Eigh, detective sergt. William Muckler, former detective sergt. Simon (Spot) Kearns and detective John Neville, faced sentences of not more than a year or a $500 fine or both. Justice George Larkin set Saturday, Oct. 22, for sentencing.

Japs Slow Up In Drive On Canton

Meet 120,000 Chinese Manning Strong Trench System

HONG KONG, Oct. 20 (A.P.). — Japanese troops drove forward today in their hurried effort to reach Canton, but there were mounting indications the Chinese defence at last was asserting itself.

A Japanese "mosquito" fleet of armed motorboats was reported skirting the South China coast to add a river assault to the overland drive. The invaders were seeking to advance from Sheklung, 50 miles east of Canton, and Tsengshin, a few miles north of Sheklung.

From these points, however, the Japanese faced what were regarded as the main lines of defence protecting the city. These fortifications, prepared over a period of three years, include well-placed machine-gun nests and an interlaced trench system.

Fully 120,000 Kwangsi and Kwangtung (Canton) Province troops manned this defence line, which Japanese must crack or outflank in their drive to reach Canton by November 3, 22nd anniversary of the proclamation of Emperor Hirohito as Crown Prince of Japan.

Chinese military authorities at Canton expressed confidence in the city's defences. It was disclosed, however, that government officials were evacuating the city in launches. Workmen began planting high explosives in factories to be set off if Chinese are forced to give up the city.

Military reports filtering in through crippled communication systems listed 300 killed and wounded in three Japanese air raids yesterday at Changsha. Casualties in bombardments of Waichow, Poklo, Sheklung, and Tsengshin were reported to be "in the thousands."

Robber Fancies Steeds So He Loots A Merry-Go-Round

St. Catharines, Oct. 20 (CP)

THE merry - go - round once known as "the Riding Academy" at Grimsby beach has been stolen.

An auction sale was to have been held Friday by Jacob Walters in whose barn the machinery had been stored for the past 11 years.

But early in the morning, under cover of darkness and with the noise of construction of the new highway going on a few yards away, thieves tore several boards from the rear of the barn and removed the gay colored horses, now covered with dust. With them went an electric motor and two transformers.

Matthew Young Pioneer Dies In His 96th Year

One of the oldest residents of this city died at St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday evening, ten days after he had fallen and broken his hip He was Matthew Young, 95 years old and a life-long resident of this district.

He was an active man in his day and was fond of recalling the Peterborough he knew as a youngster. "Peterborough was a great town about seventy years ago," he once told an Examiner reporter. "Every second door was a saloon and there were almost as many hotels in the town as private homes. You could buy a quart of milk for about three cents in those days, but I'm afraid not many drank milk with good whiskey selling at 25 cents a gallon.

Born in Smith.

He was born in Smith township near present-day Selwyn, son of the late William Young and Hanora Gleason, both natives of Ireland. His father had come to Canada with his grandfather, who settled at Young's Point and gave the point its name

When he was fifteen years old he went to the United States and worked as a lumberman for five years on the rivers in Michigan. Returning to Canada he worked with the Dickson Lumber Company here, tending the logs as they came to the old sawmill. When the property was bought by the American Cereal Company, now the Quaker Oats Company, around 1900, the sawmill wa storn down to make way for the new London Street power house and dam. Mr. Young then started to work for the new company. He worked on the dam continuously after the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company built the new power house, until he retired on pension in 1925.

Mr. Young often told of the city's growth during the time he has lived here. He recalled the time when only a few rough-cast houses along Hunter street and Charlotte, with a couple as far away from the river as the present line of Aylmer street, made up the town. The Chambers' brick house near the present market square was the only brick house in the town and was something to point out to visitors, he said.

He died at the same age his father reached — 95 years — and that without any plan for longevity. "I've smoked all my life and done almost everything else I pleased," he once said.

Surviving is one son, Percy Young, in Pennsylvania.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning at 8.45 o'clock from the Lane and Eano Funeral Home to St. Peter's Cathedral for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Trailing Mile Bluenose Quits Race

Third Race Is Called With No Hope Of Finish In Time

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 20 (A P)—The third scheduled race of the three-out-of-five series for the International Fishermen's Trophy between the Canadian defender Bluenose and the Gloucester challenger Gertrude L. Thebaud was called off at 1:48 p.m. EST today because of lack of wind. The vessels had covered approximately 22 miles of the 36-mile course.

Thebaud had held the lead since near the start and was about a mile ahead of Bluenose when the latter dropped out of the race at 1.24 p.m. The 36-mile course had to be completed within six hours and there was no chance of accomplishing it in the very light air.

It took Thebaud about three hours and 25 minutes to negotiate the 18 miles. Thebaud reached the 18 mile mark at 12:29:06, while Bluenose came up to it at 12:39:26.

Each vessel has won a race in the best of five series for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic.

Captain Cecil Moulton, who often has taken her to the fishing banks, was at Thebaud's wheel, replacing her regular master, Captain Ben Pine, under treatment in a Boston hospital for sinus trouble.

Hint Campbell Kidnapped Girl

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—While Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41, of Windsor, protested that he was innocent of the Mount Brydges bank holdup a week ago, Inspector E. D. L. Hammond of the Criminal Investigation Department today investigated a charge that Melville Campbell, also charged with the hold-up, virtually kidnapped Kathleen Byrne, 22-year-old Hull girl who was arrested with Campbell and held as material witness.

Inspector Hammond visited the girl in her cell in the county jail and spent nearly two hours in conversation with her in an effort to get to the bottom of the allegations of the girl's mother.

The allegation that the comely brunette who is held with John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor as matrial witness in the crown's case against Campbell may have been kidnapped by him was made by her mother, Mrs. William Byrne in Ottawa.

When he learned of this allegation that the girl was made to accompany Campbell by force, Inspector Hammond declared he would investigate.

"This may throw a new light on the case. I will have to talk to the girl and learn her version," inspector Hammond stated.

He was present in the court room when Quinton appeared and was remanded. He then went to the county jail where he interviewed the girl for more than two hours.

3 Bombers To Try Egypt-Australia Dash To Bring Britain Non-Stop Record

London, Oct. 20 (CP-Havas)

THREE of Great Britain's latest-type bombers will make an attempt within the next few days to better the world's non-stop distance record established by the Russian fliers in their 1937 hop across the top of the world from Moscow to California, it was reported here today.

The three planes will take off from the Royal Air Force base at upper Heyford, Oxfordshire, at the end of this week for Egypt to prepare for a non-stop flight to Australia, it was said. A flight from Egypt to Australia would be several hundred miles longer than the record - breaking Russian flight.

"Tapped" Widow With Axe Youth's Statement Reveals In Cobourg Trial

- Claims He Had Weapon For Protection But Meant No Harm; Set Couch Afire To Smoke Them Out

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP). — A statement, allegedly written by Harold Oliver, that he "tapped" Mrs. Edith Parker "lightly on the head with the flat side of the axe," was admitted as evidence today at the attempted murder trial of the 20-year-old farmhand.

Oliver is being tried before Mr. Justice Ainslee Breone. He faces also a serious morals charge and an arson count, both arising from the alleged attempt to murder the Hamilton Township widow for whom he worked two years.

The statement was produced by Provincial Constable A. L. Mennie, who said he found a notebook in Oliver's automobile after his arrest. He allegedly admitted entering the Parker home by a ladder to an upstairs window. Mrs. Parker testified yesterday he threatened her and her daughter, Josie, because she was keeping company with another youth.

Constable Mennie said the statement read:

"I took the axe for protection but meant no harm. When I saw Mrs. Parker at the bedroom I tapped her lightly on the head with the flat side of the axe and she fell down and lay there about 15 seconds. I had to cut the teleplone wires and before I left I placed a cigarette on the couch to smoke them out."

Looked Like Axe Wound.

Dr. Edgar Frankish, medico-legal expert, testified that the nature of the wound on Mrs. Parker's head was consistent with that which might be caused by an axe. Shown the axe which is one of the Crown exhibits, Dr. Frankish expressed the opinion that it could have been caused by a blow from the head of the axe.

Under cross examination, Dr. Frankish stated that a fall against an iron bed post might have caused a wound such as Mrs. Parker's, but not directly from a blow by a fist.

I Have An Alibi Says Quinton Of Bank Charge

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP)—Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41-year-old Windsor man, fourth suspect arrested in last week's holdup of the Royal Bank at Mount Brydges, pleaded not guilty in county police court today to a charge of armed robbery. Magistrate Hawkshaw remanded Quinton to jail and set his bail at $15,000.

Others held in the same case are Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, charged with armed robbery; John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor and Kathleen Byrne, 22, of Hull, Que., held as material witnesses.

Brought into the county police court where Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw read the armed robbery charge to him, Quinton was so vigorous in protesting his innocence that both the magistrate and crown attorney Newton found it difficult to get a word in for a moment or so.

"I am entirely innocent, I have an alibi. I can bring prominent men from Windsor who will tell you I was in Windsor in both the morning and afternoon of that day," Quinton blurted out as soon as the charge had been read.

"We had a prisoner here before, a man by the name of Bannon (Labatt kidnapping) who also had an alibi but he was found guilty," Crown Attorney Newton replied.

"It's very unreasonable that I should be held on this charge without bail," Quinton continued.

As Crown Attorney Newton stated that he would oppose any move for granting of bail, Quinton continued.

"In the meantime I expect Officer Hammond to investigate my alibi in Windsor."

Then turning to the magistrate he again asked for bail.

"Bail will be set at $15,000," Magistrate Hawshaw stated.

"You dont want much," Quinton growled in reply as he turned toward the door and officer Les Shipley snapped the handcuffs on him to take him back to the county jail cells.

Hunt Rustler Chief In 4 Counties

4 Youths Sentenced In Barrie Court Said Only "Tools"

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP)—Police in four counties today sought the "mastermind" of a cattle rustling ring. Four youths—described as "tools"—were sentenced to reformatory terms in Barrie court yesterday.

Many instances of cattle theft have been reported during the past few months in the Georgian Bay area. Reports of losses have come from Tiny Township between Midland and Penetanguishene; from South Gwillimbury Township; from near Collingwood in Grey County; from Alliston; and from Shelbourne in Dufferin County.

It didn't follow that all were "master-minded" by the same leader, but Crown Attorney H. A. Hammond, Barrie, says concerning the four young men sentenced yesterday: They were the tools. The higher ups are still out. We are still working it in hopes of getting some of the bigger fish."

Those sentenced were: Edmond Desjardin, Midland, six months; Cena Desjardin, Gerard Legault and Alber Landrigan, Penetanguishene, each three months. A charge against Joseph Cadeau, Concession 12, Tiny Township, was withdrawn.

Lafleche Kicks At Insults

OTTAWA, Oct. 20—(CP).—Major General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of National Defesce, said to-day he did not propose to be insulted by Lieut.-Col. George Drew, author of the article in Maclean's Magazine which gave rise to the Bren gun inquiry.

"I did not come here to be insulted," said General LaFleche. "I may have to be insulted but I do not propose to take insults from you."

The General had just offered to produce another cost-plus contract similar to the one under which the John Inglis Company is to make 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the National Defence Department after Colonel Drew asked whether there were others, and challenged him to bring one.

Hon. J. L. Ralston, government counsel, said another contract might be produced if the name of the company involved were struck out.

"I will accept it," said Col. Drew, "if Col. Ralston gives me his assur-

Favor Selling Surplus Foodstuffs To Needy At Bargain Prices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—(AP).—Administration farm leaders believe Agriculture Secretary Wallace's scheme to sell surplus foodstuffs to the needy at bargain rates would go far toward solving the United States problem of low farm prices and income.

The unmarketable surpluses, now occupying costly storage space or going to waste while serving to depress prices, would be distributed among millions of relief and low-income families now ill-nourished and poorly clad.

The distribution would be done by what Wallace describes as a "two-price" system. While the underprivileged were buying their food at cut rates, other consumers would pay the regular marekt price.

The Government would act as an intermediary between producers on the one hand and relief consumers on the other.

Some of the products may be bought by the Government from the farmer and sold to the needy, either through regular retail stores or government distribution agencies, or both. In the case of other commodities, the government may merely guide the producer and processor in doing the distributing. Any losses incurred by the reduced prices would be borne by the government.

The products which would be sold at the two prices would include cotton goods, milk, butter, cheese, fruits, vegetables and meat products of which they were surpluses. Agriculture Department officials said there were at least 6,000,000 families in the United States who need larger quantities of these commodities.

Weatherman Thinks Nip Of Fall Just About Here

Toronto, Oct. 20.

YESTERDAY'S raincoat will be replaced today by the fall overcoat, for the weatherman predicts "northwest winds, partly cloudy and cooler."

After a day or two of fairly cool weather, it's expected that the warming-up process will get to work again. Not that the weatherman anticipates a return of the unseasonably warm weather of the past two weeks.

"I think we'll be getting actual fall weather pretty soon," he said.

Canada With Gasoline 16-25 Cents Shows Montreal Low Spot

TORONTO, Oct. 20 (CP)—A motorist setting out to cross Canada from Vancouver to Halifax, with side trips to northern centres in the various provinces, would find varying gasoline prices as well as diversified scenery and climatic conditions. He also would learn provincial taxes on the motor fuel range from six to 10 cents a gallon.

A survey showed today prices for standard grades of gasoline in the Dominion's largest cities vary from 16½ to 25.3 cents an imperial gallon. Added to these prices are provincial taxes. A one-cent-a-gallon price reduction was put into force throughout eastern Canada this week.

During his trip from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic—some 4,000 miles in a direct line—the motorist would find the four western provinces are agreed on the rate of taxation ;seven cents a gallon. Ontario and Quebec charge six cents but in the Maritimes taxes jump sharply. Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick charge 10 cents a gallon.

In Vancouver, standard grades of gasoline sell for 20 cents a gallon, plus the seven-cent tax, with better

Unemployment In U.S. Down Million Since June Check

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)

A LEADING government economist estimated today that business improvement since June has reduced unemployment by 1,000,000 men and women in the United States.

The economist, who declined to be quoted by name but whose figures are relied on by several agencies, estimated there were 10,250,000 persons out of work in June and about 9,250,000 now.

On that basis, about one-quarter of the persons who lost jobs in the recession have been re-employed. After reaching a peak of more than 14,000,000 in the spring of 1933, federal statistics show, unemployment gradually dwindled to 6,000,000 in the summer of 1937.

Quiet German Philippine Invasion In War For Trade Supremacy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP). — Guarded German inquiries on commercial prospects in the Philippines produced official speculation today whether the Reich was eyeing the Far East as well as South America as a trade outlet.

The most recent inquiry, made by a business man described as influential in Nazi trade counsels, caused government officials concerned with Far Eastern affairs to scant late commercial reports. They learned:

Germany, along with Japan and Italy, shared last year in increased sales to the Philippines, despite the islands' free trade ties with the United States.

Germany is building a second new ship for the Philippine Government. Italy is constructing two commercial vessels for inter-island trade.

Germany has increased materially its shipping links with the islands and the Far East generally, adding three of the fastest liners connecting the Orient and Europe. Italy last year made Manila a port of call for its liners.

A German Bloc.

Efforts have been made to organize the Germans living in the Philippines into a bloc, as in other foreign lands.

Regardless of immediate intentions, some officials believe Germany hopes to make future heavy trade gains in the islands and the Far East generally, by capitalizing on political friendship with Tokyo.

The 16,000,000 or more Filipinos enjoyed prosperity last year, rivalling that of 1929. Exports totalled $176,445,688 and imports $109,000,000, a record favorable balance of trade for the islands.

Because of the free trade ties, the United States continued to dominate. But imports from Japan mounted more than 21 per cent. Tokyo supplied nearly 15 per cent. of all imports.

Germany increased her sales to $4,144,218, but took only $1,811,487 of Philippine goods. Italy's trade was much smaller.

Crick-In-Neck Reporter Runs Even Stephen With Weather Bureau

New York, Oct. 20 (CP)

THE ache-in-the-joint, see-it-with-the-naked-eye weather forecaster of the Brooklyn Eagle was running neck and neck with the weather bureau today.

In five days of unofficial competition the score was even with four times right for each and one wrong prediction.

The newspaper, it seems, became a little weary of hearing the weather bureau maligned and in order to determine what there is in this business of forecasting weather by means of a crick in the joint or a pain in the right foot, picked one of its reporters, Victor Weingarten, to do some forecasting.

He said it would rain yesterday; the weather bureau foresaw cloudy skies. The day was fair, though there was a trace of early morning mist, but the Eagle called it a wrong guess and a tie.

'Use the Axe Moriarty' Chief Orders Raider Hesitating In Ladies' Betting Dive

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—(AP).—A handbook operated exclusively by and for women was added to the list of betting establishments chopped up by the Illinois state's attorney's axe squads.

The lady bettors were sipping soft drinks and coffee and nibbling jelly rolls between the races when the officers broke in the Lake Park avenue handbook yesterday.

Detective Daniel Moriarty looked at the cheery drapes over the windows and other evidences of feminine hand and, by his own admission, was undecided on the course to pursue. A ca llto headquarters brought instructions to proceed in the customary manner.

Moriarty and his fellow officers thereupon went to work with axes, demolishing furniture, fixtures, racing sheets and equipment. The dainty handbook suffered the same fate as 444 other gambling parlors ordered wrecked by prosecutor Thomas Courtney.

Bernice sheppard, 25, taken into custody, said the handbook had been operated for women for eight or 10 years.

Germans Shoot Six As Czechs Protest Grabbing Of One Village Too Many

PRAGUE, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The general staff reported today six persons were killed during disorders provoked yesterday by Sudeten Germans in two separated districts.

It said four persons were killed during rifle attacks by Sudeten German Free Corps members on a Czech military patrol at Zelechovice in Northern Bohemia. A communique said the mayor of Zelechovice became the fifth victim when he was killed after the clash was over.

The sixth person reported killed was a farmer in the Commune of Vazacka. The general staff announced he was working in his fields when a German soldier fired on him.

It said the trouble at Zelechovice began when the Czech patrol, protesting against occupation of the village, visited the German commander and urged him to withdraw his troops. The Czechs said the Germans had overstepped the new frontier line in taking the place.

During the military conference residents of the village began taking down swastika banners, hung in windows prior to the entrance of the German troops. Members of the Free Corps, the general staff said, hurried to the neighboring village of Cizokvice and returned with a detachment of Sudeten customs guards and opened fire on the Czechs.

One Czech soldier and three Czech policemen fell with the first volley. The mayor was killed later, it charged, because he was accused of carrying firearms.

Election of a successor to Eduard Benes as president of Czechoslovakia meanwhile was postponed indefinitely today pending the conclusion of negotiations on the minority problem and establishment of the new frontiers.

William Sidley Called For Questioning

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 20 (AP) — William Horlick Sidley, 26, said last night he had been served by a deputy sheriff with a notice to appear before a Racine court commissioner Monday for an adverse examination in connection with objections he has filed against the will of his mother, Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, late malted milk heiress.

Mrs. Sidley died July 6 in Toronto at the home of W. Perkins Bull, barrister and financier. Her will, disposing of an estate estimated at $4,000,000, left equal bequests of $250,000 and one-third shares in her residuary estate to Bull and to her son.

Sidley, one of the executors of the will, said he believed that under Wisconsin law the other four executors who are seeking to have the will probated would be entitled to question him Monday once on each of his objections that: his mother was of unsound mind at the time the wil lwas drawn, and that she was unduly influenced; that her signature was obtained by the exercise of fraud and duress, and that the will was not executed in a manner provided by law.

Fight Starts Nov. 28

The will fight is scheduled to begin in court here Nov. 28.

The Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel said it learned Michael Bull, eldest son of the Canadian barrister, and Richard Casson, Bull's secretary, had been in Racine and had left last night for Chicago with Bernard F. Magruder, one of the executors of Mrs. Sidley's will.

At Toronto late yesterday Attorney General Conant of Ontario said he intended to introduce amendments to the coroners' act at the next legislative session to overcome technical legal points which halted a coroner's inquest there into Mrs. Sidley's death.

Scarcely had the British occupied most of the old city when Arabs in other parts of Palestine severed telegraph lines.

Two Arabs were killed and several others wounded after they set fire to th international oil pipeline near Tulkarm. Three Arabs were killed near the Raselain railway station when they attempted to ambush a Jewish truck.

Arab circles warmly greeted reports from London that a Royal British commission had recommended abandonment of a plan to partition Palestine into Jewish, Arab and British-corridor sections and that colonial secretary, Malcolm Macdonald suggested instead a project whereby the Holy Land would remain a united Arab-Jewish state under British administration.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., Oct. 20.—(CP)—A hen pheasant showed unusually good judgment in seeking to escape hunters in this district. It landed at the busiest corner here and tied up traffic for blocks. The bird was captured and will be released after the hunting season ends.

Motorist Killed As Auto Is Ditched

LANSDOWNE, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—Allan Lakins, 35, of Lansdowne, was killed last night when the car in which he was a passenger left the road and overturned in a ditch on the highway three miles west of here. Lansdowne is 15 miles southwest of Brockville.

William Fair of Prescott, Ont., driver of the car and Lakins' brother-in-law, was injured about the arms and head. Lakins was pinned under the car. Fair said his car was forced off the road by a transport truck coming in the opposite direction.

An inquest will be opened by Coroner Kenneth C. Gray of Gananoque, Ont.

FAIRVIEW

The regular meeting of the Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Rosborough with a fair attendance. A bazaar was discussed but the ladies decided not to have one this year. Lunch was served at the close.

The young people held their opening meeting in the church last Friday evening. Mr. Gerald Harrison, the president, took charge and at the close everyone enjoyed a delightful lunch of buns, weiners and cake.

An invitation was extended to the young people by the Y.P. of Mark street church, Peterborough, to visit them for Hallowe'en. This invitation was accepted. The regular Y.P. meetings will be held on Monday evening of each week.

There will be no service in Fairview church next Sunday on account of the Bridgenorth anniversary.

Italy Welcomes 10,000 Troops Home

NAPLES, Oct. 20 (AP)—Italy proudly welcomed today 10,000 returning Italian legionnaires who joined the insurgents in the Spanish civil war in secrecy a year and a half ago. King Vittorio Emanuele, Crown Prince Umberto, Foreign Minister Count Ciano and cheering throngs greeted the veterans.

Crowds waited for hours along the avenues marked out for a parade before the king and other dignitaries.

Blackshirt militiamen and workers' battalions turned out to march with the returning legionnaires, whose presence in Spain went unmentioned by high Fascists for many weeks after they had joined insurgent forces.

Mussolini announced Oct. 8 all legionnaires with 18 months campaigning would be returned. This cleared the way for a projected settlement of Italy's differences with Great Britain and France.

As the troop ships Sardegna, Piemonte, Liguria and Calabria neared the Italian shore, General Berti, commander of the legionnaires, wirelessed to insurgent General Franco word that "the Italian volunteers feel great grief in leaving the noble country to which they are bound by unbreakable chains—ideals, blood and memories."

ance it is a true copy of a genuine contract."

"My word should be sufficient," declared General LaFleche heatedly as he protested against insults.

"Oh, I accept your word without question," said Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, Royal Commissioner conducting the inquiry.

"Thank you for your confidence," said General LaFleche.

Production of Ontario company office records of the John Inglis Company and its associate companies, Industrial Reserves and Anglo-Canadian Engineers of Toronto, was requested by Col. Drew.

Taking up the application from the Inglish company for payment of preliminary expenses totalling $25,000, Mr. Drew asked general LaFleche about a bill for $6.000 for legel services rendered by Plaxton and Company of Toronto. Under the contract the Inglis Company is entitled to preliminary expenses to a maximum of $20,000.

The Plaxton account was for consultation and advice in connection with the first proposals for the Bren gun contract and negotiations leading up to it.

The commissioner asked if this was a paid bill or one presented for payment. Col. Drew said there was nothing on the bill to indicate it had been paid.

The witness told the commissioner he did not remember whether Major Hahn had indicated any particular error in the accounts as a reason for their recall.

Col. Drew asked the witness to recall certain items in Major Hahn's expense account in England, including one item of $3,422 in which he was charging at the rate of $300 a week.

"Did you say anything to Major Hahn about that item?" Col. Drew asked.

More Details Asked

General Lafleche said he could not remember in detail. "I think," he said, "I told Major Hahn he must put in greater details."

Other items were read by Col. Drew showing Major Hahn was charging up to $50 a day for his personal expenses.

On Dec. 29, 1936, there was an account for work done in Canada preparing a proposal for manufacturing Bren guns in Canada. In this Major Hahn charged $35 a day for 12 days of his own time and $15, $15 and $5 respectively, for his three associates.

Jan. 6, 1937, Major Hahn had a bill for one day at $50 but in most of the accounts for Canadian expenses his personal rate was $35 a day.

In March, 1937, there was an account for Major Hahn for 12 weeks in England on Bren contract business, at $300 a week, this with other expenses, brought the total up to $7,191 for the three-week period and covering some of his associates.

Zoo Taking Snake Offer, Expects 3 or 4, Gets Shock in 219 Rattlers

Philadelphia, Oct. 20 (AP) A NORTH DAKOTA RANCHER wrote the zoo to send him "a couple of boxes and he'd send some rattlers back." Curator Roger Conant promptly forwarded the boxes, hoping, he said, to get "maybe three or four" snakes But when the boxes returned, they contained, not three or four, but 219. "Now," moaned Conant, "we'll be working night and day shifts chasing mice and birds to feed them."

Durham County Is Planning Match

The Durham County plowing match on October 26 will be held on the farm of Isaac Hardy, two miles west of the Village of Hampton. The directors of the association which has developed from the old Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association are trying to generate county interest, and for that reason they have swung over to the west side, into Darlington Township. The neighborhood contests Lou Winslow and his helpers used to carry on in Cavan and South Monaghan, have taken on more territory and more importance, and their open classes are an invitation to other plowmen from all over the country. Stanley Tyndell of Richmond Hill will be the judge of the match.

A powing school was held on the farm of Howard Allen near Newcastle last Tuesday, with an attendance that suggested a big turnout for the county match.

To Retain Services Of Two Policemen

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 20.—The local council will retain the services of two policemen at least until the end of the year it was decided at a special meeting held on Wednesday.

Freedom of accidents during the busy summer months was felt due in large to the general efficiency of the force. In making his recommendation to the council that both men be retained, Councillor McColl urged that each of the men should have every Sunday free from duty. This was incorporatd in a motion and passed.

The Boys' Club of St. John's United Church was granted permission to hold an Apple Day on Saturday, October 22nd.

Was Visiting Jail.

It was learned that Quinton's alibi is that he visited friends at the Windsor jail last Thursday, the day two armed bandits walked into the village bank and got away with $4,000 loot.

While Quinton was not immediately taken to the office of Walter Harpur, identification officer of the city force, fingerprinting, it is expected that this will be done soon.

Inspector Hammond also asked that he be placed in a police line up for identification by J. W. Flatt, the bank manager; R. A. Norman, the teller; the village storekeeper, or others who may have seen the bandits about the village as they made their careful survey for the robbery.

It was intimated that Campbell may also be placed in the line-up again with Quinton.

Quinton was out on $10,000 bail in Windsor on a housebreaking charge when arrested on Tuesday night. He was given his 17th remand in Windsor last Friday on a charge of breaking into the premises of G. H. Wilkinson in Windsor last June and his eighth remand on a charge of entering a Windsor department store.

LAKEFIELD
Church Marks Anniversary; Hot Supper Held

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 20.—The annual anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lakefield, were held on Sunday last, when Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings, was the special speaker. Mr. Perrie presented inspiring addresses particularly suitable to this Thanksgiving season, when he addressed both the morning and evening service. On both occasions special music was rendered by the choir. At the morning service, Mrs. T. W. Chaplin sang as a solo the selecton, "Grateful O Lord Am I," and the choir rendered the anthem, "I Rest My Soul in Thee."

At the evening service, Mr. Adam Hawley of Peterborough, was guest soloist. He sang two numbers, "Ninety and Nine" and "Evening Prayer." The anthem, "Whosoever Will" was given by the full choir.

Decorations in bronze coloured oak leaves were most effective against the background of cream walls, with autumn flowers and scarlet bittersweet adding a distinctive note of colour.

On Tuesday evening the ladies held their annual anniversary supper in the basement of the church. A large crowd attended, and at the concert following the supper, the church was filled to capacity.

A delicious hot dinner was served in the basement, which was decorated in autumn colorings to form a suitable setting for the party. The tables were attractively arranged with autumn flowers, and were loaded with good things.

At the concert which followed, Rev. J. M. Young, pastor, gave the opening address of welcome. He then called on Adam Hawley, who sang as a bass solo, "Friend of Mine." Rev. Kelly, pastor of the United church, gave an address. A. H. Clark sang the selection, "Euphium," after which Miss Jean Millar, attired in comic costume, recited "Levinski at the Wedding." Mr. Hawley then delighted the audience with a second number, "Yeome nof England."

Br. Carlton, of England, who is at present photographing Lakefield, was then introduced by Mr. Young. Dr. Carleton explained that he was taking pictures of Canada's smaller towns to make into a movie to take back to England in order to convince his countrymen that Canada in 1938 is more than an expanse of rolling wheat fields with an occasional Indian leaping into the scene from an ambush somewhere. Last year Dr. Carlton made pictures of Canada's larger cities and he said they were well received in England. This year he is taking views of the smaller towns.

Dr. Carlton then showed the movie of Havelock, which he has just completed.

Are you one of the 200,000?

THAT'S the approximate number of men and women who come of age every year in Canada.

Some start work at fourteen, sixteen or twenty; some go to college; some graduate from the school of hard knocks, and some never graduate from it.

But there is one common ground on which all can meet, and that is the habit of saving money and putting it in the bank regularly. A good habit, from which all conditions of men and women will benefit.

8 Things to SAVE for

Regularly recurring expenses, such as life insurance premiums.
A home of your own.
A child's education.
Your wedding.
Investments in sound securities.
An automobile.
Bargains for cash.
A real holiday.

Money in the bank is far more than a reserve for "rainy" days. To each of this year's 200,000 a bank account will mean confidence, so essential to youth's success; and when opportunity comes along, a fund of ready cash to provide a means to grasp it.

Earl Wood Heads A.Y.P.A. At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 20.—Earl Wood will head the A.Y.P.A. during the 1938-1939 season as it was revealed following the annual election of officers at their meeting held in the parish hall on Monday evening. The following slate was chosen Honorary president, Rev. T. H. Floyd; president, Earl Wood; vice-president, R. C. Ramsden; secretary, Elsie Southern; treasurer, M. Higginson. During the business portion of the meeting arrangements were completed for the program on Monday eveninng next when the young people's societies of St. John's and St. Andrew's churches would be their guests at a social evening. It was arranged to have the newly elected officers take their formal oath of office as a feature of the service at Christ Church next Sunday evening. Work on a new play will commence at an early date and R. C. Ramsden was appointed chairman of the dramatic society and with his committee was authorized to make the selection of a suitable play. Addressing the gathering, Mr. Ramsden who for the past two years has been president of the organization thanked the members for their fine spirit of co-operation which had been demonstrated during this period and expressed the hope that they would continue in their loyal support to the new president and officers.

St. Andrews Y.P.S.

At their regular meeting held on Monday the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church decided to after the date for their crokinole party for the first Tuesday in November. It was announced that a ladies prize would be donated by Mrs. Edward Henson and a gentleman's prize by Mrs. H. P. MacMillan. Arrangements were also discussed for an aluminum dinner to be held early in November as a means of raising money for the general fund of the society. For the next meeting each member was asked to provide a 12-inch square of print which will be woven into a quilt latter to be disposed of in some manner not yet decided. Miss Margaret Anderson was elected as planist and Mrs. A. Collette was chosen assistant. A motion was passed accepting the invitation of the A.Y.P.A. to attend a social evening in the parish hall next Monday evening. The program which was in charge of the devotional convenor, Miss Violet Patrick, opened with a guitar duet by Misses Josephine and Doris Locke. Mrs. M. McFarlan offered a piano solo and in conclusion Miss Patrick gave an interesting account of her visit to the Ivy Lea Bridge.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

A paper on the organization in the Presbyterial of the W.M.S. was given as a feature of the meeting of the Ladies' Mission Circle held at the home of Miss Lillian Hay on Tuesday evening at which it was planned to give a birthday gift of $7 to the W.M.S. Mrs. W. Stevens read from the "Glad Tidings" an article entitled "Progress in Korea" proved to be of considerable interest to the members. Other items on the program included a vocal solo by Mrs. F. McCulloch, poems entitled Thanksgiving by Mrs. Ray McCulloch and Miss Dorothy Reynolds.

In conclusion lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. James Clark, Miss Dorothy Reynolds, Mrs. C. McCulloch and Miss Violet Patrick.

GMC To Re-employ 35,000 In 2 Weeks

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(CP).—The General Motors Corp. announced today it would reemploy 35,000 additional workers within the next two weeks.

At the same time Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman, said salary cuts made last winter would be restored.

The increase in employment, it was said, was in connection with expansion and production of 1939 models.

Sloan added "that the trend of consumer buying when retail deliveries of new cars can be made to customers in volume will be found to be substantially improved over that existing during the past few months."

"Therefore," he continued, "the Corporation feels justified in increasing its current production schedules by revising upward the plans made last summer, as well as in readjusting its general operating program to a higher level of volume."

The salary adjustments, it was explained, will take the form of restoring compensation of those receiving $300 a month or less to the level existing February 28, 1938, when the reduction became effective.

As London Tried Balloon Barrage

Interested spectators watch as one of the balloons in the London balloon barrage squadron is sent up from the moat at the Tower of London. It marked the first time that the barrage against raiding aircraft was flown over the roof-tops. The balloons, each tethered by a thin steel cable that could cut through the wing of a raiding bomber, were sent up from about 40 selected spots that form the 'inner ring' of London's defences. Although the wind was comparatively light, seven balloons broke away, some trailing more than 4,000 feet of cable, and caused damage in certain places.

Goering Decorates Col. Lindbergh

BERLIN, Oct. 20—(AP). — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh received one of Germany's highest decorations—the Order of the German Eagle—in an unceremonious presentation last night by Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

The decoration came to the American flier at a reception Hugh Wilson, United States' Ambassador, gave in honor of Lindbergh and Goering.

As Goering passed down the receiving line he paused when he came to Lindbergh telling him he had orders from Reichsfuehrer Hitler to give him this decoration as a token of Germany's esteem for what Lindbergh had done for aviation.

The American aviator replied with a simple "Thank you" and hung the decoration around his neck without any of the usual ceremonies attending bestowal of the honor.

Sick Seaman Brought By Plane 380 Miles From His Ship At Sea

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20.

A United States coast guard plane brought a sick seaman to a hospital here today from a Canadian ship at sea 380 miles east southeast of here.

The plane was from St. Petersburg station on the west coast and its non-stop mercy errand of 850 or 900 miles was the longest ever undertaken from there and probably a record for the entire service. No plane of sufficient range was available at the Miami base.

Manion Lauds Chamberlain

EDMONTON, Oct. 20 (CP).—Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, left today for Victoria, where he will continue the Western Canada speaking tour begun here with two addresses Tuesday.

In his first address Dr. Manion lauded the handling of the recent European crisis by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain. In his second, to a political rally, he declared his faith in protective tariff for Canada—for farmers as well as urban workers and industry.

What benefit had resulted to farmers from a reduction in the implement tariff made by the pre-ent Liberal government, asked Dr. Manion. The tariff was cut from 25 per cent. to 7½ per cent., but he was informed prices in some cases had increased.

The purpose of "adequate protection" was the preservation of the domestic market. A government could attend to those cases where tariffs raised price to unreasonable levels or in which a tariff was used for exploitation of consumers.

Ninety per cent. of Canada's farm products, excepting wheat, were consumed in Canada. Dr. Manion said the wheat farmer would not benefit by protection in Canada. But he did benefit by protection in Great Britain which gave to Canada six-cent preference on wheat. It was to be hoped pending trade agreements between Canada and the United States, and Great Britain and the United States would not affect this preference.

1,300 On Italian Ship Wait For Queen Mary

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP).—More than 1,300 passengers who arrived aboard the Italian liner Conte Di Savoia to-day faced a 10-hour delay in docking because of a tugboat strike.

The liner hove to off Quarantine to await the departure, scheduled for 4 p.m., of the Cunard-White Star Liner Queen Mary. The 80,000 ton Queen Mary, which docked yesterday without the aid of tugs, lies in the same slip used by the Italian line and it was considered too hazardous to attempt to dock the Conte Di Savoia alongside the British liner without tugboat help.

Approximately 2,000 tugboat workers have been on strike since Saturday as a result of a wage dispute.

NOW—See Clothes Wash up to 15% Whiter—with NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

Amazing New Ingredient not only makes new High-Test OXYDOL far whiter washing—but also makes it give up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water...

"Impossible!" said millions of women when they heard that America's outstanding laundry soap had been improved.

"Unbelievable!" said scientists when they heard that new High-Test OXYDOL has the power to wash clothes far whiter than the old.

Yet it's true—every word of it! For an amazing new ingredient now makes High-Test Oxydol as much as 15% whiter washing than old-fashioned soaps. Yet keeps it safe for washable colors and fabrics—safe for hands.

Tested against old-style soaps even in hard water, High-Test Oxydol does these amazing things:—(1) Washes white clothes as much as 15% whiter. (2) Gives up to TWICE the suds—suds that actually stand up two to three times longer, in tub or washing machine.

But that's not all. For washable colored things washed in new High-Test Oxydol keep their freshness and sparkle, wash after wash, to a degree that is a revelation. Even gay, colored prints washed as many as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test Oxydol suds showed no perceptible sign of fading—came brilliant, fresh!

Furthermore—High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without the ruinous scrubbing or boiling associated with less up to date soaps.

You will be surprised to find how economical new High-Test Oxydol is. Cup for cup, it goes up to ¼ again as far—washes up to 25% more clothes than the old-fashioned soaps you've probably used before.

Try High-Test* OXYDOL and see if you don't find an utterly new experience in easier washdays, whiter clothes. Get a package today. Procter & Gamble.

MADE IN CANADA

New High-Test OXYDOL is amazingly safe for washable colors. Even in hard water you'll find that colored things stay amazingly sparkling and fresh through an almost unbelievable number of washings.

The sketches above illustrate how sections of cotton print, washed as much as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test OXYDOL have come through without any perceptible sign of fading.

OXYDOL soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Thus ends the washboard scrubbing that shortens the life of clothes.

Picture at left shows a new sheet (highly magnified) washed 84 times by scrubbing with old-style soap. Note fraying in weave, due to hard rubbing and scrubbing . . . On the right, another new sheet washed 84 times the scrubless OXYDOL way. Note difference in "washday" wear and tear.

Makes a Difference

What is now referred to as the recent near-war will be fought all over again in seven by-elections in England. The Government has held six of these seats and the seventh was a Labor riding, but in all of them the Chamberlain policy and the Munich agreements will be the chief issue placed before the electors. Advance reports indicate that scarcely anything else will come up for discussion.

And we dare say there will be views held now which were either absent or unexpressed when the crisis was right to the front. People are apt to grow bolder after a crisis has passed, and although at the moment they were pleased enough to have it pass they soon come to the viewpoint that it never should have been allowed to pass as it did.

For that reason the speaking in the by-elections is apt to be a great deal more outspoken than was the expression when people were digging trenches in their own back yards to prepare for the air raids which they were certain were soon to begin.

Suing a Man On Relief

In Quebec city there is a provincially-financed relief job going on, and one of the workers found that he was made liable to the seizure of his pay envelope to satisfy a debt which had been outstanding.

The case was taken to court, the claim being that as the worker was on relief it would not be possible to seize the money which he was receiving, as the fact that he was on relief was the reason why he had been put to work.

Judge J. A. Prevost gave a decision saying that this particular enterprise did not involve the Federal government and for that reason the plaintiff was justified in bringing suit which resulted in the seizure of the pay envelope.

That may be a perfectly good law and there is no reason why a man on relief should not as he is able try and liquidate an indebtedness, but the practical result is that it leaves the man on relief in no better position by reason of the fact that he was given work on a relief project. He will still be out of funds for the time being and will remain eligible to draw sustenance from funds contributed by the public. The ultimate result will be that the public which contributes to relief funds through taxation will be paying the account of this one individual who brought suit to recover debt. And relief funds are not raised for that purpose.

So Much Discussion!

Ho hum! Toronto hears there will be no problem at all in providing premises for the entertainment of their Majesties during their stay in that city. There is no Government House accommodation now available, so they will merely remain for the night in their private cars.

So a good deal of talk has been simply washed out. Those who spoke of Casa Loma and advocated or denounced its use have spoken to no avail.

Even our Premier who found occasion to refer to Casa Loma and Government House as "architectural monstrosities" must have learned by now that he used those great and terrible words to no effect.

And members of the civic bodies who talked of renting whole floors in the best hotel on main street or who would have canvassed the community to find a palatial home ready to receive the guests have spent their overblown rhetoric in vain. If Government House had been in operation their Majesties would go there; otherwise they will remain in their private cars. How profound was Toronto's problem and yet how simple the solution!

Turn The Other Way

One of our major cities desires to have more revenue. There is nothing new or unusual about that, but there is something unusual about the suggestion that the added revenue shall be secured by putting a tax on meals served in restaurants or hotels. Just why people who eat meals in such places should be specially taxed is something which would be difficult enough to explain.

Eating a meal is something like getting a drink of water. It is necessary. When a man buys a meal in a hotel or a restaurant he is purchasing something which has already been taxed. Taxed probably in a good many ways. In that meal it is quite possible there would be evidence of municipal, provincial and federal taxation.

Many of the meals which are eaten in hotels and restaurants are purchased by people who do not live in the community, and we can see no reason at all why they should be singled out to pay a special tax which goes for municipal purposes. Instead of spending so much effort seeking for new sources of revenue it is high time our governors great and small spent at least an equal amount of energy seeking methods which would make additional taxation unnecessary.

Watching a Man Work

At the last meeting of the Board of Health there was an attack made by the chairman on Sanitary Inspector McPherson on the ground that he was working only a few hours per day—three being the number named.

There are plenty of records to show that the charge was entirely out of order and not according to fact. Several members raised the question as to how the chairman was getting information regarding the number of hours the inspector was working.

We doubt very much whether any man can possibly do his best work if he is made to feel that some person is watching all the time in order to find cause for making an exposure. As far as one can gather from results and territory covered we believe the present inspector is doing good work and plenty of it.

When a man is doing good work he is apt to do something even better if he is told occasionally that his services are appreciated. One certain way to discourage a good man is to cause him to believe there is some person watching his movements only for the purpose of criticism.

Hard To Understand

Two young men from Toronto who started attending the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph have returned home. One of them said he was not sick enough to see doctor, but it would take a couple of weeks before he felt right again. He had been undergoing some form of initiation as the result of which several students went to the infirmary, and it is reported that word was passed that those talking to the newspapers would not be allowed to return to the school.

Another young man is reported by his doctor as suffering from exhaustion and exposure and from too much exercise. Word from Guelph says members of the faculty and student body "dismissed the charges lightly." There had been proper supervision of all "exercises," and it is also said those dropping out and going home are doing so because they are not suited to the courses. In which case it would appear that the matter of unsuitability had made itself manifest in remarkably short time.

There are those who hold it is something like a disgrace when a young fellow starting to college "can't take it" when it comes to initiation. Just what initiation antics ever proved is something which we do not understand. Primarily young men go to the O.A.C. to get an education, and most of them are being sent by parents who have to sacrifice a good deal in order that the training may be made available.

We admit there is always the possibility of reports of initiation ceremonies being exaggerated, and perhaps that is a good enough reason for curtailing them. There is perhaps a certain exuberance in youth which seeks some channel of escape, but we can see no reason why it should find it in other youths who think differently. The argument might continue at length, but at the moment there is the dull fact that two young men who started at the O.A.C. have gone home and one of them is suffering from the belief that it would not be well for him to go back. We can't see why a person has to be hazed because they start out to secure an education.

He Talked Plainly

W. R. Reek, deputy minister of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, believes Ontario makes a mistake in seeking to export butter. He said so when speaking at a banquet terminating a plowing match in Middlesex county.

There were two reasons which Mr. Reek advanced for his belief, and one of them was that this province did not produce butter which was good enough to export. Although it is well enough known on the British market that our butter is not as highly regarded as that from New Zealand, it takes a good brand of courage for a government man to stand up and tell farmers their Ontario butter lacks quality.

Having said that Mr. Reek told them plainly they should not be exporting butter for another reason—their exports should be confined to cheese which could be sold for export and for which there was a demand.

That was plain talk but we believe it is needed to get this province away from the butter making policy which has been so persistently followed that Canada now has a surplus so great that it is bound to retard any movement toward a better price for butter fat for the farmers. Keeping the cheese factories busy from May until October would cure a good deal of our surplus butter problem.

Come to think of it, is it not a rather difficult thing to try and explain just why things have become so complicated that it is necessary to lose money on selling so necessary an article as a bushel of wheat?

There have been several reports telling of a baby being brought to life after being dead for 30 minutes. We are neither schooled nor well versed in such matters but our supply of doubt seems to increase when coming across such an item.

HOPEFUL

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra wears a frown, when he starts walking toward the town, on business so he states; he says at times he's much distressed, and feels sunk down and much depressed, I know he speculates.

¶ He's never told it to his wife, he's started rather late in life, he thinks he'll strike it rich; he says that saving was too slow, he always found his funds were low, and he'd be in the ditch.

¶ He was warmed up the other night, and figured that he'd strike it right, with panic in the air; when prices crashed he'd go and buy, then step right out when they went high, that way he'd get his share.

¶ He had a list of goodly stuff, he saw his chance and wouldn't muff, he knew just what to do; when things went bang he'd step right in, and strip his pockets of their tin, his nerve would see him through.

¶ But when the things began to crack, there was a shiver in his back, and Ezra felt quite blue; he did not buy when things went low, he ducked beneath the coming blow, he went and sold out too.

¶ And Ezra lost on everything, more than he'd saved from early spring, he sits and reads at night; he ponders stocks of this and that, and some are lean, and others fat—he knows he'll hit it right.

COST OF BORROWING.

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

IN 1930 THE SAULT issued 30-year debentures for $313 for some sewer connection work. By the time those debentures have been paid off, the city will have paid out $469.50 in interest. Even between now and the expiration of the term of the debentures the interest charges will total $344.30, or more than the face value of the issue.

In other words, by the time the issue is paid off in 1960 the Sault will have paid out $782.50, for work which in 1930 cost $313.

That, in short form, tells the story of why municipalities are coming more and more "to the pay-as-you-go" policy, for interest bills of that type run away with a great deal of municipal funds.

PLANS TO AID CUPID.

(The People, London)

TO CHECK THE declining marriage rate in his parish the Rev. Henry Edwards, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Muswell Hill, N., is to preach two sermons on the joys of married life.

Mr. Edwards has discovered that according to the marriage rate in London, 193 persons should be married in his parish every year.

"Only 34 were married last year in this church, and that is about the average for the past five years," he says in his parish magazine.

"Assuming that the same number were united in Nonconformist churches and register offices, what becomes of the other 120?

"Perhaps it is that our young people have swallowed all the cynical nonsense written about marriage. Perhaps they think it is better to be single than singed," he says.

"It is hard to believe that the young men of North London have a blind spot for the beauties and virtues of our young girls. They look a handsome lot to me."

LOG CABIN AGAIN.

(Wiarton Canadian Echo)

THE PIONEER SPIRIT is not dead. Near Orangeville, Joseph Carson, father of eight, has built a log cabin. The logs were cut and hauled to a lot purchased from the town for $10.00. The logs were peeled by hand and placed in position with interlocking corners and chinked with mud. A tar paper roof will keep out the rain and snow. After all, why not? It was good enough for our forefathers when relief was unknown and we believe that a revival of this spirit of independence will also revive the spirit of neighborliness, which was so pronounced in the time of the pioneers

OXEN AS WORKERS.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

AN UNUSUAL SIGHT on the streets of St. Marys the other day was a yoke of oxen. The oxen, a smart young pair, rising three years old, are native St. Marysites. They belong to Chris Scheuerman, Church street south. He raised them, broke them in and uses them for work on his property. According to Mr. Scheuerman, Pete and Joe work separately or yoked together and they can scuffle better than any horse. Mr. Scheuerman has always had oxen since boyhood days on his father's farm near Durham. Years ago he used oxen for drawing gravel and stone from St. Marys quarries.

• The Strike That Was A Flop

THOUSANDS of men at some of the principal railway depots in London went on strike last week because they objected to a ticket-puncher who was not a union man. It was, however, an "unauthorized" strike. The railwaymen's brotherhood took no action. The executive says the St. Thomas Times-Journal pondered for several days whether they would support the strikers or not but before they arrived at a decision the stikers decided they had better not press their demand and they went back to work. There is no doubt the union would have endorsed the walk-out and made a big thing of it if they had the least ground for doing so. But they knew the strike was illegal. Without the backing of the union the strikers were non-suited—there was no strike pay and they were in danger of losing their jobs.

The commission which President Roosevelt sent over to England to study the workings of trade union laws reported that the principle of the "open shop" was acknowledged under British law; that the matter of joining or not joining a union was a question for the individual, that no man should be under compulsion to join any union and that neither man nor employer should be penalized accordingly. That principle is so firmly established that the wonder is any body of men could be found to challenge it at this late hour. But the railwaymen and the miners are the two most powerfully organized bodies in the country and some hot-heads perhaps felt this would be a good opportunity to force an issue. If the railway companies had surrendered in this case it would have been a surrender to lawlessness which would have spread and caused serious dislocation of the amicable relations between labor and capital. Apparently the union officials recognized that, too. The result will be a confirmatory lesson to union rebels that will not be lost on the country.

• Satisfying Arabs and Jews

THE PRESENT determination of the British Government to make a conclusive effort to stop the decidedly un-holy happenings in the Holy Land, brings up immediately the question of what is to happen to the Jews.

For seventeen centuries this people had been without a national home, wandering in the wilderness of a world frequently hostile, often murderously so.

Then, with the termination of the Great War, with the Allies victorious and Turkey one of the defeated nations, the idea suggested itself of making Palestine the Jewish homeland once again, with Jerusalem as its capital.

This sounded not only romantic but logical and it met immediately favorable response from a great many Jews, although others have consistently opposed the "homeland" project, preferring to become citizens of the states in which they live.

The famous "Balfour Declaration" embodied the promise and the League of Nations assigned Palestine to Britain not as a possession but under a mandate in order that the plan might be carried out.

There are now varying accounts of what the Jews who returned "home" have accomplished, but, despite criticism, says the Brantford Expositor, and even condemnation from some sections, it would appear that under the circumstances these immigrants have made a creditable showing.

It was no easy matter for a people unused to agrarian pursuits for centuries to suddenly go back to the land, as many of them had to, and such success as has been theirs is, therefore, all the more commendable.

However, there was one main objection to the project and that was the opposition immediately set up by the Arabs. Before condemning the latter, it would be well to consider that they, who had lived in Palestine for hundreds of years, regarded it as their own. Hating the Jews with a fierce hatred, they regarded them as intruders.

So there was trouble and plenty of it. Moreover, the Arabs have been egged on by agents of Italy and other powers who saw in the situation a rate seriously impair British prestige rate seriously impar British prestige to their own advantage.

The difficulty from the outset, the difficulty now, is that due to diplomatic blundering of almost incredible obtuseness, Great Britain, while pledged to the Jewish Homeland scheme is also under obligation and promise to the Arabs!

What is to be done? The statesmen in London have been puzzling that problem for years and without much success. Of late strong rumors have been current that the Palestine project for re-establishing the Jews may be abandoned for some other arrangement.

To date other efforts to effect an adjustment satisfactory to both Jews and Arabs have failed. The situation in Palestine is not only dangerous but intolerable, a flaming torch that might at any time (given suitable guidance from Rome, say, or Berlin) light the powder keg that would set the whole Arab world in flames and perhaps precipitate another great war.

In considering the solution one thing is not generally realized, namely that even if given the entire country, the Jews would find Palestine quite inadequate as a real homeland. Why? For the simple reason that there are too many Jews and not enough of Palestine! Thus it is evident that any attempt at division of the tiny state among Jews and Arabs would make the original plan still more impossible of realization.

In the meantime the suggestion has not been lacking, in high quarters, that the pledge of providing a Homeland be carried out by making part of Britain's Kenya Colony (formerly called British East Africa) available. This is a rich and fertile land. It may hold the key to the solution.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering. And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus: whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go....

And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers. But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled. Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.—Acts iii, 11-13, 17-19.

United Church W.M.S. Rally Is Held In Havelock Church

HAVELOCK, Oct. 20.—(Special to Examiner).—Led by Mrs. Reta Pakenham, 4th vice-president of Peterborough Presbyterial, a most successful Sectional Rally, the first of the season, was held at Havelock United Church on Tuesday in an all-day session.

Quiet music greeted the large number of delegates and visitors in attendance from each of the five Auxiliary Units of the Section, Havelock, Hastings, Norwood, Westwood and Cottesloe. Each secretary responded to the roll call with a resume of their year's work. It is pleasing to know that most of the funds are raised through systematic giving. Splendid bales of supplies were sent from each Auxiliary and all raised their financial obligation. Westwood reported an "Amateur" night which netted them over $61.00 and an autograph quilt brought about $40.00. Hastings Mission Band and Circle report success in their work, as well as Norwood and Havelock Juniors.

Norwood Auxiliary members led in a beautiful service of worship. A brief business session included Miss Williams of Havelock being reappointed to the office of secretary, and accepting of an invitation from Cottesloe for the next Rally.

Presbyterial President

Bringing a note of cheer and inspiration, Mrs. W. H. Morton, Presbyterial president, brought echoes from the Conference branch meeting in April. Reports from each of the superior officers held many helpful and practical ideas, which may be successfully used and carried out by both Presbyterial and Auxiliary Officers.

A beautiful missionary message in sing "She Touched the Hem of His Garment" contributed in duet by Mrs. Thompson and Miss Scriver, with Miss C. Scriver at the organ, was much enjoyed.

The Presbyterial literature secretary, Mrs. Wm. Stevens, introduced the literature department of the W.M.S., in a fine display of worthwhile missionary books, magazines, booklets and leaflets, with quantities of free literature.

The "Quiet Half Hour" was taken by Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe of Hastings, who brought a message of encouragement based upon the story of "the travellers on the road to Emmaus," who, when they forgot their own troubles found Divine companionship.

A cordial welcome was tendered the visiting delegates at the noon hour by Mrs. (Rev.) McLaughlin of the Rally Church, while Cottesloe graciously responded through their delegate, Mrs. McDonald, and all enjoyed the bountiful repast provided.

As prelude to the afternoon session, Westwood Auxiliary led an inspiring worship service, with Mrs. F. W. Newell reading from Isaiah 40: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." She was assisted by Mrs. Ed. Sargent and Mrs. Cameron.

School for Leaders Report

Reports in general may be deemed "dry" but that given by Miss Corona Hanbidge of the Whitby School for Missionary Leaders, sparkled with bright ideas from first to last. Miss Hanbidge's experience is concrete evidence that the school is certainly paying big dividends in its educational program.

Dedicatory prayer following the reception of the offering was led by Mrs. Blakely of Cottesloe.

Norwood Evening Auxiliary contributed to the afternoon entertainment, when Mrs. McConnell and Miss Ina McConnell, sang in duet, "The Sweet Will of God," with Mrs. Campney accompanying at the organ.

The guest speaker chosen for the four Rallies, Miss Luella Rorke, home on furlough from Japan, was given a warm welcome by this group of workers. Miss Rorke's address was essentially Missionary and her plot laid in Japan. She gave an interesting bird's eye view of this war-torn country and its reaction to the Christian religion as presented by our missionaries. It would not be fair to Miss Rorke to give further details of her fine work, but will leave these to be heard at the other three rallies at first hand.

A happy feature of the afternoon was the presentation to Miss Rorke, by the Peterborough Presbyterial, of a beautiful gold watch, on behalf of the late Marion Coon.

The watch was first a gift from the Presbyterial to Miss Coon, who was suddenly called to higher service. In her last thoughts, and in her will, she instructed that her watch be given to a Missionary in Japan. Miss Rorke, just returning, seemed the logical and happy choice of the Presbyterial. In an address of loving appreciaton, Mrs. W. H. Morton expressed Miss Coon's wishes and Mrs. H. Williams, Havelock, presented the gift. Miss Rorke was entirely overcome but later thanked the Presbyterial, in gracious words, for their kindly thought in choosing her as the "Missionary in Japan."

On behalf of the Rally, Mrs. B. Tucker and Mrs. Reta Pakenham, the presiding officer for the day, thanked the guest speaker for her inspirational talk, the singers and all who contributed to the day's success, which was concluded with the benediction.

The cynics will tell you that you can't get anywhere without "pull," but the Nieuw Amsterdam is shown here as she succeeded in berthing herself at Hoboken without the aid of the customary tugs. A big crowd on the dock enjoyed the free show of the liner docking without the puffing and panting tugs.

Hitler Asks Much In French Test

PARIS, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Preliminary negotiations looking toward a "full settlement" of differences between France and Germany were reported in informed quarters to-day to have been started by both governments.

Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with Count Johannes Von Welczeck, German ambassador to France, yesterday on the latter's return from Berlin, and the envoy arranged to talk to Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet to-day.

Andre Francois-Poncet, French Ambassador to Berlin who has been named ambassador to Italy, flew in a special airplane at Chancellor Hitler's invitation to Berchtesgaden, the German Chancellor's Bavarian home.

The first draft of Hitler's terms, which informed sources said were submitted to the French leaders, was reported to include an air pact in which France would recognize Germany's right of numerical preponderance in military aircraft.

France also would promise to assure Germany a free hand in Central and Eastern Europe with the renunciation of her mutual assistance with Soviet Russia. France would promise to return Togo and the Cameroons, pre-war German colonies, to the Reich.

In return Hitler would guarantee all French frontiers against attack.

Tacoma Clamps Ban On All Police News

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 20—(AP).—Crime news was barred to-day by Tacoma's recently-elected commissioner of police Homes Eastwood.

Threatening members of his department with dismissal for giving information to newspapers and radio stations, Eastwood clamped a censorship on all police news.

A formal order posted in police headquarters specifically banned any news of murder, kidnapping "or other serious crimes," reserving the right to himself to reveal "what is correct for the newspapers and radio stations and what is not "correct."

He said newspapers would be permitted to have information concerning "robberies, burglaries, larcenies or other minor crimes."

Claims Indians Ready To Fight For Britain

TORONTO, Oct. 20 — (CP). —All classes in India who helped Great Britain in the last war would go to her air "in even larger numbers" in event of another conflict, Sir Firozkhan Noon, High Commissioner for India in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, said in a speech prepared for delivery to-day. The setting was a joint luncheon of Canadian and Empire clubs.

In 1914 India was not a self-governing country, he commented. To-day she is. The government "is by the people and for the people" and if they fight they will be fighting for preservation of their homes. Ideals of democracy were appreciated in India.

During the last war, India provided 1,400,000 men. Of this total, 500,000 came from the Punjab and 37,000 of them were killed. At that time there were differences of opinion among political parties just as now, he observed.

Skeptical Quacks Fleeing To Quebec

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Doubt Ontario's campaign against "quack" doctors and irregular medical practitioners had driven many of them to Quebec was expressed last night by Dr. J. E. Desrochers, president of Quebec's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Commenting on the statement in Toronto of Dr. R. T. Noble, registrar of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, that their campaign's strictness had brought a number of quacks and irregulars to Quebec, Dr. Desrochers estimated this province had about 1,000 charlatans.

"But I don't think this number is increasing or has increased through the intensity of an Ontario campaign," the president added. "At least there has been othing to our knowledge that would indicate this."

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Garcia To K.O. Armstrong, If He Hits Him

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP). — Ceferino Garcia, the fellow voted "most likely to succeed" in the grisly business of beating Henry Armstrong, is an affable young Filipino who makes no secret of the fact he expects to pummell the welter and light-weight champion into insensibility.

By so doing he will lift the welter crown, something he's been trying to do for two years. He missed against Barney Ross, but he is working out at Stillman's gymnasium with the express intention of doing a little better against Henry the hammerer, Ross's successor, when they meet November 2.

Someone asked Garcia if he expected to knock Henry out.

"Surely I will do it eef I hit him," said Ceferino, who added a string by explaining, "Sometimes my punches they do not land. But eef they do I will knock him out."

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT IS A SAD STATE of affairs, but the only sport locally these days —with any fan interest—is football. And that cometh only on Saturdays. Furthermore, there are only a couple of more home games in the schedule. Just two senior scraps left for Peterborough fandom to witness—Sarnia here this week-end and Montreal on Nov. 5th. So we'd advise folks who like sports to cash in on this opp. Saturday to cast the glims on the amazing Imps o' Sarnia. Amazing because they annually produce a gridiron crop of stars which cop senior O.R.F.U. honors. Great are the Imperials, but golly won't the club that trims 'em be even greater. Yeah, that's what we said. The Imps are missing the late Orm Beach this season like Mutt would miss Jeff. They still have Bummer Stirling and a good team under a smart coach, but didn't Beaches, minus Box, give 'em a tough game? And didn't Mo'real Nationals hold them to a tie in Sarnia last Saturday?

* * * * * * *

FAINT HEART NE'ER won fair salary boost, but nevertheless we hesitate to call Orfuns over Imperials this time. We will, however, come out of a huddle with the crystal ball and predict a closer score than was the case here last week-end. And this, mind ya, against the Sarnia champs! We do expect the locals to play better rugby and to make the visitors turn their sack of tricks inside out—and battle their very heads off—to gain the victory. And odd things are always happening in the sphere of sports. Look how Stratford beat the Petes when the bright lights got in the locals' eyes. Personally, we will not topple over in a dead faint if Orfuns should win! No, no, take away that strait-jacket; we're okay. We mean just that.

* * * * * * *

Not a Pink Tea Party

WITH A PAIR of borrowed binoculars we watched some of the stuff pulled off in line play here last Saturday at the Grounds ala Exhibish. It was right interesting, the telescopic lens bringing the boys right up to about 10 feet in front of us. There was a lot of decidedly dirty work pulled by the rival squads around the centre of the line. Nope, we don't mean the two centre players, but in that sector. Elas the huskies collided violently. And the jockeying—that is, kidding bows, knees and even fists flashed briefly in the scrimmage exchanges —of the rivals in the tough going and hot weather helped hustle hostilities, too. We could see the dirty work pulled better than the officials, or apparently so, as they didn't do anything about it!

* * * * * * *

VERN DEGEER of the Windsor Star writes: "After watching the Sarnia-Montreal affair Saturday and comparing it with the hard-hitting brand furnished by the Detroit Lions and pro Redskins Sunday, we are convinced that our Eastern Canada system of line play is probably the roughest to be found anywhere. It is no credit to some of our highly publicized linesmen that they choose to stop opposing plungers with a swinging fist or a swinging boot. We saw more fists flying at Sarnia than in a dozen games presented by our American cousins. Golab, Hedgewick and Moros, still kids as far as football goes, were deliberately punched on the nose during the game. The fault also belongs with our referees who allow such practices to continue. The C.R.U. rule is distinct enough. The penalty for striking an opponent with fist, heel of hand, elbow or knee, or kicking an opponent is banishment of offending player and loss of 25 yards."

* * * * * * *

They Play For Keeps

RUGBY IS A ROUGH GAME, the roughest there is, probably. More serious injuries in a season than in any other sport. Where weight is a necessity and body contact demanded on every play, tempers are bound to flare and rough stuff reigns, unless stopped by officials. The boys are well padded but would need suits of armor, and iron pants would slow a plunger up too much, we suppose!

* * * * * * *

COACH TED REEVE of Queen's tells in the Tely: "Beaches hope to have Herbie Moores and Eddie Thompson teaming up on the backfield at Montreal on Saturday. They would make a great pair running back kicks. The Balmies are still talking about the work of young Loucks, the back, and Curtin, the Petes' kid lineman. Ab Box and his educated instep would seem to be Balmy's best bet to win in Griffentown from the rapidly improving and very rugged Nationals. The Nats are very mad at the moment as they declare with much vehemence, that Stirling's last might ypunt at Sarnia to tie the score was out of touch 15 yards before it sailed over the goal line. They admit it was a wonderous kick, right from Sarnia's 45-yard line....Referee Rossiter, however, ruled that the ball sailed over."

* * * * * * *

Group Titles At Stake

COACHES BAMFORTH AND DAVID take their P.C.I. senior and junior squads to Oshawa this Saturday for C.O.S.S.A. contests. A win for the senior Garnet and Gray gang will cinch 'em group honors while a local junior loss will give the Motor City bunch the group title in that section. Looks like a sour season for the Scugog crews. Senior winner will be called upon to meet the Lakeshore group victor before looking toward the Toronto district. We sort of expect the Bamforth band of school gridders to keep the pigskin game a-rollin' a few weeks after Orfuns finish their O.R.F.U. schedule—but then one can be sure of nothing much at this time of year except a lot of headaches as Xmas shopping sneaks up on us.

* * * * * * *

COULD IT BE TRUE that we have a senior ball jinx, as the Quinte writer—where they have nothing but intermediate "B" ball—claims? Says he: "Three times Peterborough has won the C.O.B.L. and once the Liftlock City baseballers went into senior O.B.A. playdowns with a bye, in 1927 when the Central League did not function. Peterborough has yet to win its first provincial baseball flag. Belleville boasts of two such pennants. Central Ontario moguls pinned much faith on the 1938 Petes, but like their predecessors, they failed miserably. Belleville won championships when it was so cold tents were needed to house the players between innings instead of the bench, while Kingston won in 1935 when one game was interrupted by a snow storm. The Petes this year had ideal weather for baseball, but apparently they haven't got what it takes on the ball to win top-flight baseball honors in the Liftlock City."

* * * * * * *

HITHER AND YAWN: Nats are borrowing bleacher seats for Sat'day, expecting an overflow crowd when Beaches play in Montreal....Bummer Stirling played junior ball in Western Ontario for T. G. M. Jamieson, C.P.R. ticket agent here now....Orfuns are in Toronto on Oct. 29th....Lindsay gridders meet P.C.I. teams here a week from Saturday to end the locals' schedule....Hamilton fans lost dough betting on the Petes a week ago, an official from that city writes....Locals as a club batted .263 in O.B.A. semi-final and final series 'gainst the Falls and Stratford....Murphy got .438, McNally .428, Calladine .421 and Doli .353; rest were well under .300....Oshawa expects to have ice for skating in another two weeks....How is the Church Cage Loop lining up these days?....Fred Stanley rolled a 328 single last e'en down at Duffus Alleys....Not a word lately on the local boxing card which was supposed to be staged this month....Badminton season is getting into full swing again with more and more bird-batters coming out....C.O.B.L. delegates will view the Sarnia-Orfuns senior scrap here on Sat-day before holding their semi-annual meeting that eve....POME: When the frost is on the football, and the chill is on the spine, that's when transients ask for—a sentence, not a fine!

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP).—Marquette hasn't got a football captain, but it has no less than 20 high school captains on its varsity squad. . . . A fellow named Pat Boylan writes from Minneapolis that when the Gophers kicked goal and seven-to-sixed Michigan, a well-known tablet was retailing at 50 cents a single—and you can believe that or not . . . Lou Smith, who usually knows what he is talking about, writes in the Cincinnati Enquirer that Joe Medwick is almost a "sure shot" to wear a Red uniform next season . . . Mike Jacobs is due back from the coast Friday with an important announcement relative to a J. Louis-Max Baer bout in San Francisco in the spring. . . .

Apparently running doesn't run in the San Romani family . . . . Archie, who used to do his stuff on the track for Emporia (Kas.) teachers, has a brother, Egideo, who plays a cornet and mends watches, also at Emporia . . . He is not a track squad candidate and students out there wish he could run more and tinker less. . . . If Frankie Frisch catches on with the Giants, don't be surprised . . . That's what New York papers are saying . . .

On sitting down to rest at half-time, Jack Dorflinger, South Carolina tackle, landed on a burr . . . And in the next period he drove right through to a touchdown . . . Elmer Hackney, Kansas State's fine fullback, is so jittery they won't let him start a game . . . Les Bruckner of Michigan State is a fair weather football player—and admits it . . . In his six years of football he has yet to play on a rainy day.

E. G. Hardie Is Returned As Head Of Club

Unanimous endorsation of the work done last year by the executive body of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club was evinced last night when members returned the slate of officers intact for another term, after other nominations had been made from the floor and ballots distributed. E. G. Hardie, general foreman of the Switchgear Dept. and the original president of the association when it was first formed thirteen years ago was named president for the second consecutive term.

The other officers are Alfred Day, vice president; and an executive committee Ian McRae, H. A. Cranfield, William Bennett, Archie Weir, and Fred Batterson. William Swanger and W G. Shiner were re-elected auditors. W. Hurrle was secretary and N. E. Crowe treasurer last year, and these two offices according to procedure will be filled by appointment later in the year.

Sound Financially

N. E. Crowe read the financial statement for the past year and despite numerous new activities the sheet showed the association to be in sound financial condition, with a healthy cash balance and all equipment in good shape.

William Hurrle reviewed the activities of the past year and said the following had been successfully sponsored. Hockey, girls' and men's softball, football, horticulture, billiards for ex-service men, gymnasium club, dances and euchre, girls' and men's basketball, variety entertainment, and the club had also given every member a ticket admitting him to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and to the grandstand. The latter action drew hearty endorsation from the 160 members attending the meeting.

Resolutions introduced at the meeting called for continuance of the main features of the association's program, such as the Christmas tree, and picnic, but a motion was passed asking the executive to hold one out of town picnic along with the regular picnic at either Nicholls Oval or Riverside Park. All the regular sports will be supported and any others which are properly organized within the works.

Bar Outsiders

Next year all children of employees at the picnic will wear a distinguishing badge, entitling them to enter any or all of the track and field events. This motion was made to bar outsiders from competition as the feeling was general the outsiders carried off a large portion of the prizes in other years.

Considerable discussion followed a motion that the association run a hockey excursion to Toronto and the motion was carried. It was explained however that such a step brought up a constitutional point and a ruling would be necessary from the executive on the validity of the motion or whether the constitution permitted spending the money in this way. A wreath will be placed on the Cenotaph on Nov. 11.

The following won door prizes: Pair boudoir lamps, Les Calladine; toaster, Albert Sims; electric tea kettle, W. Young; electric iron, Wm. Coursey; sandwich toaster, L. Milne; hotplate, Wm. Swanger; percolator, J. Barnard; desk lamp, Jack Pilling; kitchen clock, Tom Baxter, and Trilite reading lamp was won by Arthur Church.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

OUTSIDE WING

By LEW HAYMAN

When looking around for outside wings for your team, try to find boys who are fast, clever, strong and whose reactions are quick. There is so much kicking in our Canadian game that outsides ,the men who go down after the receiver, must be good open field tacklers. With the forward pass such a common play, it is to an outside's advantage if he is tall, but lack of height is not necessarily a handicap.

Offensive Outside Play

Outsides on the offensive should vary their starting positions. Sometimes they play tight, that is, close beside their own middles; at other times they play split. that is, a yard or two away from the middles. Playing these two ways has a tendency to worry the opponent, or at least keep him guessing which would be the best way to play against this shifting about. The outside, however, but be extremely careful that his shifting does not tip off the opponent as to the direction of the play. Whether playing tight or split the STANCE IS THE SAME, eyes straight ahead, rear of body down, feet pointing forward.

An outside wing must know all the methods of blocking we have discussed in past articles. He, more than any other individual on the attack, has the most varied blocking assignments. He blocks on the line, in the open field and on place kicks, in position.

The necessity of deception and speed in an outside comes to the fore on pass plays, where the first objective is to get into the open, clear of opponents. When the break for an open space is made it must be sharp. Running in circles makes him an easy man for the opposition to cover. He must RUN AT TOP SPEED, never turning the body too far sideways. We went over that angle more thoroughly in our discussion of pass-receiving.

Going Down Under Kicks

If you are playing outside wing and a kick has been made go down the field AS QUICK AS YOU CAN, working from the outside of the inwardly. NEVER LET A CATCHING BACK GO AROUND YOU. ALWAYS DRIVE HIM TOWARDS THE CENTRE. One you hear the thud of the ball as the ball is kicked, glance quickly over your shoulder, WITHOUT SLACKENING SPEED. Judg the direction and distance of the kick and get down to within five yards of the receiver IN A HURRY. Once there, keep on your ties, time your tackle, and when the ball is caught bring down that man! DON'T STAND FLAT-FOOTED. Too many tacklers just stand there waiting to make the tackle. You can avoid this by moving on your toes in short steps, balancing your body so you can move quickly in any direction. NEVER STAND STILL.

Defensive Play By Outsides

Generally speaking an outside wing, playing defensive, should play about two and a half yards to the side of his own middle. This is particularly true if he is a charging end. If he plays a waiting game, he should start a little wider. The outside's proper stance is a half-crouch, which gives him drive but he should be sufficiently erect to be able to see what the attackers are doing.

There are two types of defensive end play, the crashing or charging end, and the waiting or drifting end. Both styles are excellent and if a player is good he will employ each, governing himself according to the play of the opposition.

The crashing outside crosses the line of scrimmage immediately the play stars, and goes after the play at once. He tries to stop wide bucks, takes the first man on end runs, and rushes all passers. When the play goes around the other end of the line, he follows it, guarding against reverses and cut-backs. HE NEVER RUNS BEHIND HIS OWN LINE.

The waiting end steps across the line of scrimmage and waits for developments. On pass plays he may take out delayed receivers.. On end runs he often takes the second man out of the play. Occasionally on passes he rushes the passer, but more often he drops back to protect territory or cover delayed receivers.

A good slogan for outside wings is "Use All Your Speed, Always."

TOMORROW we'll discuss how to play in the backfield most effectively.

Bangor Heavy Held For Manslaughter

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 20 (AP)—Roy Worcester, Bangor heavyweight, faced arraignment today on a charge of Manslaughter growing out of the death of 21-year-old Henry King, Worcester, Mass., fighter in a 10-round bout.

King, one-time New England amateur champ, collapsed and died as the bell rang ending his match with Worcester last night.

He fell just after taking a blow on the head, but state police Lieut. Edward Marks said he believed King had "started to crumple" before the blow landed.

Biscuit-Admiral Race Ballyhooed

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Maryland Jockey Club, composed of gentlemanly devotees of horse racing, is gently and dignifiedly ballyhooing an event that has a good portion of the racing world agog—the Seabiscuit-War Admiral duel at Pimlico Nov. 1.

Author of the latest plug for the $15.000 contest between two of turfdom's greatest present-day thoroughbreds is David Woods, able publicity director for the jockey club.

Woods printed an informative "press brochure" of facts and figures about the 1 3-16 mile 'Biscuit-Admiral race, to be known as "The Pimlico Special."

From it, for instance, one learns that Seabiscuit, owned by C. S. Howard, has started 83 races, won 31 and earned $331,405. War Admiral, owned by Samuel Riddle, has started 23 times, won 18 times and earned $262,050.

Joe DiMaggio Through With Holdout Tactics

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, one of Colonel Jake Ruppert's wayward Yankees at the start of the 1938 season, confided in the home folks today—"I'm through being the holdout kid."

Back in San Francisco at picturesque Fishermen's Wharf, Joe [illegible]ed with the humble fishermen who were his companions before he deserted the nets for baseball and who are among his greatest boosters.

"Yeh," said Joe, "that's right, I'm through being the holdout kid. I expect to be among the first in camp next spring and I'm gonna get myself in shape so that I can't miss having a good season." Some believe Joe already knows what Col. Ruppert will pay him next season. He got $40,000 this season.

Maj. McLaughlin Still On Same Tune "It Looks Like A Great Season" As He Watches Hawks Work Out

(By The Canadian Press.)

Nobody laughs any more when Major Frederic McLaughlin sits down at his piano. The tune is still the same: "It looks like a great season." But the Major's Chicago Black Hawks have fooled the rest of the National Hockey League once too often to raise anything but a wry smile today.

The Black Hawks won the Stanley Cup in 1934 by defeating Detroit's league champions and they came out of third place in the United States division to capture the trophy again last spring. So when their owner beamed over the club in practice yesterday at Champaign, Ill., and said he was pleased with the scoring punch shown, no one got up to say the Hawks would be lucky to live through the season.

Earl Robinson, obtained from Montreal's defunct Maroons, and Joffre (Dizzy) Desilets, from Montreal Canadiens, scored twice each in the Hawks' scrimmage yesterday. The team worked out under the eye of Coach Paul Thompson, since Manager Bill Stewart isn't expected in camp from his Massachusetts sick bed until Saturday.

Defencemen have been named to Captain Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers. Ebbie Goodfellow succeeds Doug Young as ice leader of the Wings and Art Coulter was re-elected by the Rangers. Coulter is only the second captain the Blueshirts have had, for Bill Cook held the position for 10 years until big Art was chosen last season.

Coulter leads the Patrick pack into action tonight at Winnipeg against New York Americans in the falls first exhibition. The fans will be looking for attacking action but the managers' eyes will be on the defencemen. Lester Patrick will be trying to choose a rear guardsman from between his son Murray and Larry Molyneaux, while Red Dutton of the spangled club wants to know if his rookie defencemen, Wilf Field and Pat Egan, will stand up under fire.

Two Recruits

Field, from Seattle's Pacific coast league club, and Egan, from Nelson, B.C., signed before the Americans left camp at Saskatoon. Dutton likely will stand pat on the rest of last winter's lineup unless Joe Benoit doesn't take a European tour with the Allan Cup champions from Trail, B.C. Benoit says he's going abroad if the Smoke Eaters do; otherwise he likely will turn pro.

Pit Lepine, former star with Montreal Canadiens who will coach their New Haven farm club, is itching to know what players the Canadiens will let him have. But manager Cecil Hart will not announce the Habitants' lineup until next week—the job of sifting the wheat from the chaff is that tougr.

Toronto Maple Leafs are at it hammer-and-tongs in their first week of ice drills at Galt, Ont. Yesterday young Jack Fox and Murph Chamberlain swung sticks at one another, but made up afterwards. Ken McAdam, McMaster University student who has been drilling with the Leafs as a preparation for future years, went back to school with two stitches over his left eye after the workout.

Don Deacon, former Regina boy who was with Detroit's Pittsburgh farm last season, will be with the Red Wings in the big league this year because of a bicycle. Deacon always has been overweight at the beginning of the season, so Manager Jack Adams sent him a bike this year and told him to take off weight. Deacon rode it and came into camp in first-class shape. Adams announced last night Deacon had made the grade.

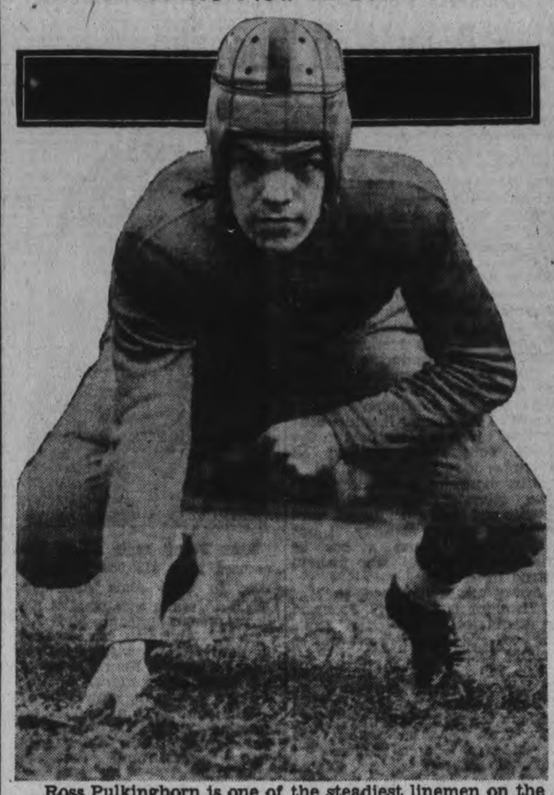
WINS MEMORIAL CUPS

LONDON—(CP).—D. O. Finlay, who retained his 120-yard hurdles event at the Amateur Athletic Association championship here in July, has been awarded the Harvey and Jackson Memorial cups. It was his seventh consecutive success in this event.

HELPED PRO RUGGER

LIVERPOOL, England—(CP). — George Taylor, 72, for 35 years secretary of the Wigan Rugby League club, died here. He had served on the Northern Union committee of which he was chairman, in 1912.

P.C.I. Graduate Now In Senior Ranks



Ross Pulkinghorn is one of the steadiest linemen on the Orfuns' squad this season. The young 170-pound inside wing was a former star with the Collegiate football team here and has played all his rugby to date in Peterborough. He will see plenty of service against Sarnia Imperials this Saturday when the Orfuns tackle the senior O.R.F.U. champions at the local Exhibition Grounds.

Gomez' Better 'af Says Wives to Play Ball —May Pick On Sports Writers

Toronto, Oct. 20.—(CP).

IT'S going to be different for the wives of the baseball players in the New York Yankees' training camp next spring. And it's the sports writers who will find it so.

June O'Dea Gomez, wife of the Yanks' great southpaw, revealed in an interview here yesterday the wives are going to organize a team. The former musical star will emulate her husband and do the pitching; Mrs. Lou Gehrig will play first and Mrs. Bill Dickey will catch.

"We don't know who we'll play," she said. "We can't play against a ball team, so I guess we'll have to challenge the sports writers. They are the only ones in a weakened condition."

Lefty and his wife stopped here last night, en route to Quebec and the Maritimes for a two-weeks' visit.

Sarnia Imps Play Orfuns

Sarina Imperials and Peterborough Orfuns tangle here this Saturday at 2.30 o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds in an O.R.F.U. senior fixture. The 1938 senior football champions, perennial group winners, will be seen here for the first time and the squad is worth seeing. Despite the loss of Orm Beach, coach Massucci's crew is still a power to be reckoned with. Sparked by the great Bummer Stirling it has such ace gridders as Hedgewick, McWatters, Burr, Trepanier, Geary, mWoodcock and Golab.

The Orfuns have been drilling hard all week. After their good showing here last Saturday against the classy Barny Beaches of Toronto, the locals feel they can give the Imperials a real battle---and with a few breaks possibly beat them. Coach Bill Irwin will shift his starting lineup arcund a bit, and now has the Petes' ball-playing gridders (who weren't available before) to work with. The Orfuns are in good shape, have no nervous fears of Sarina, and intend to battle them every inch of the way here the day after tomorrow.

Grid fans will likely flock to see this tilt. Not only will it show the game's greatest kicker in Stirling and the powerful Imperials in action, but the contest promises to be an exciting open tilt with the home crew making it a hard fight right to the finish. It is the second last senior rugby match to be seen here this fall and---with no other sport moving locally at this time of year---another crowd of 3,000 or more from the city and district (and Central Ontario) is expected. Regardless of the weather, the game should draw well and it holds promise of providing an upset that will rock rugby circles throughout the east.

North Shore Wins

VANCOUVER, Oct. 20.—(CP).—A third-quarter touchdown and a safety touch gave North Shore a 7-6 victory over Knights of Columbus in a Vancouver Big Four Canadian Rugby League fixture here last night.

Argentina expects its 1937-38 tobacco crop will weigh 16,507,900 pounds.

Varsity Tennis Experts Win Net Crown

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 (CP).—Toronto Varsity's tennis squad stepped back home today with its intercollegiate net crown not only intact but garnished as well with both the individual singles and doubles championships of a round-robin meet which concluded yesterday.

In the three-day tournament with University of Montreal, McGill and Queen's, the Varsity players lost but one of 19 matches, retaining the intercollegiate title with a point total of 18. Next best was Montreal University with 14. McGill scored eight, while Queen's, not able to win a match, went scoreless.

Though having no bearing on the team standing, the singles championship was a sure thing for Varsity, with Big Bill Piggott meeting team-mate Bruce Hall in the final. Hall and Bill Small added the doubles title to Toronto's record, beating Montreal University's Leon Derome and Andre Dussault in that final, 6-3, 6-3.

Ranked second to Hall on the five-man Toronto intercollegiate team, Piggott in top form slammed out a straight-set victory over his blond mate. Scores were 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, with Hall unable to cope with Piggott's bullet serves and sharp placements.

Eliowitz Coaching

DETROIT, Oct. 20 (CP)—Abe Eliowitz, Michigan State backfield ace who played football with Ottawa Roughriders in 1935 and Montreal in 1936 and 1937, has been appointed assistant coach of Wayne University freshman team.

SOON MADE GOOD

DERBY, England—(CP).— Irenicon, bought for $504 after winning a claiming race here, recovered the purchase money when he won the Autumn Handicap, worth $648.

Danaher a Scorer

WINNIPEG, Oct. 20 (C.P.). — Regina's Leo Danaher is making a runaway of the Western Interprovincial Football Union individual scoring race. The season ends on Saturday.

The 190-pound Danaher, who came to Regina Roughriders this season from St. Benedict's College, Kansas, has scored four touchdowns, converted two of them, and booted a pair of field goals for his 28 points. He is 12 points ahead of Frits Hanson, fleet Winnipeg half-back.

Jackson Sheds 4 Pounds In His Slimming

PRESTON, Ont, Oct. 20 (CP)—Today's big news around Toronto Maple Leafs training camp: Harvey Jackson is losing weight.

That's just what Manager Conny Smythe wants him to do. Smythe has asked Jackson to get down to 192 pounds and when the Busher reaches that mark he'll start talking contract with the boss of the National Hockey League's 1937-38 champions. Jackson says he will have no trouble getting rid of his excess poundage.

The big left winger has lost four pounds since the Leafs officially opened training here Tuesday. After a hard practice he weighted in last night at 198 pounds.

Though only about 10 of a combined squad of 32 Leafs and Syracuse Stars, Toronto's International-American League farm team, have signed contracts, team officials anticipate no difficulty in the matter of signing. One or two of the seven amateurs in camp may be offered contracts.

Of the amateurs, Don Metz, with Toronto Goodyear seniors last season, and 19-year-old Walter Stanowski, ace of the 1937-38 Dominion junior champions, St. Boniface Seals, have shown to most advantage in training-camp practices.

Sectional Rally Is Held At Stewart Hall

The Peterborough section of Peterborough Presbyterial met in Annual Fall rally yesterday, at Stewart Hall.

This section includes the six city United churches, George Street, Trinity, Mark Street, St. Andrew's, Knox and St. James'; together with the following rural centres: Keene, Bensfort and Stewart Hall, where over one hundred interested women and girls met in conference yesterday.

Mrs. Howard Clegg, first vice-president of the Presbyterial, presided throughout the day.

The opening call to worship was given by Mrs. Clegg, assisted by Mrs. W. Rose of St. James' Auxiliary, who read the scripture lesson from Acts 2, while Mrs. A. J. Throop, Mark St. Auxiliary, offered prayer.

88 Members Attend

The roll was responded to by 88 members, one from each society represented reporting their work. From these reports several main facts were gleaned besides a mere matter of figures, or dollars and cents.

First, that the W.M.S. is training up the youth of the churches in systematic giving, nearly all societies giving by the envelope system at stated times.

All Mission Band members are taught to pray, both in private and in public. All are being trained in the study of missions. The literature department, through its secretary, is being largely stressed and reading courses emphasized, with a large assortment of books and periodicals on display which covers material suitable for all ages.

Fine reports came from both afternoon and evening Auxiliaries, Mission Circles and Mission Bands, while Miss Helen Bannister, secretary of Mission Bands and Mrs. H. Alton, of Baby Bands, brought detailed accounts of these bands throughout the Presbyterial.

Representing the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch and Peterborough Presbyterial, Mrs. A. I. Brown and Mrs. W. H. Morton, brought words of greeting and encouragement to their sectional rally.

Work In Japan

Mrs. Morton then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Luella Parke, of Japan, as one of our own missionaries. Miss Rorke, in a fine account of her work in Japan, gave all those who heard her a new impetus to work, to study and to pray for this part of our W.M.S. program.

Miss Rorke will speak in Knox United Church next Sunday morning at a W.M.S. service, and at Warsaw today and Fraserville on Friday, at further rallies.

The visiting ladies were entertained by the Stewart Hall Auxiliary who provided a real banquet. Mrs. George Hanbidge, the president, in gracious words welcomed the rally to their pretty little church, while Miss Fanny Dixon, of St. Andrew's, responded for the delegates and visitors.

The training school for missionary leaders, was presented in an interesting talk by Miss Corona Hanbidge, the Presbyterial delegate.

Bensfort Auxiliary opened the afternoon session with Mesdames Edmund Dawson, Edgar Wood and Collins leading the devotional service in music, Scripture and prayer, while the beautiful sacred selection "Break Thou the Bread of Life," the contribution of Mrs. H. F. Doig of St. James' Auxiliary, was greatly appreciated.

After the offering Mrs. S. D. Carver, of Trinity, led in the offertory prayer, closing another successful Rally for the Presbyterial.

Cardinal Arrives To Preside At Congress

Nestleton And Reaboro Institutes Hold Rally With Janetville

JANETVILLE, Oct. 20.—Nestleton and Reaboro Institutes were guests of the local branch on Thursday afternoon in the United church for the annual get-together for which Mrs. M. Armstrong and Mrs. W. Hanna were hostesses.

There was an attendance of almost one hundred and the Janetville Branch broke the record with 37 present out of a total membership of 39.

Of much interest also was the fact this was the fifteenth consecutive annual visit of the Nestleton branch to Janetville. The president, Mrs. Charles Deyell, was in the chair.

The correspondence included letters of thanks for fruit received during illness and a communication in regard to the annual Institute convention, which is being held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on November 16 to 18.

After discussion it was decided to send delegates and Mrs. Bruce Heaslip and Mrs. Allan Suggitt were appointed in this capacity. It was also suggested that a bus be chartered to take all who wish to attend for one day.

Arrangements were made for Mrs. P. Hamilton and Mrs. H. Johnston to attend the short course "Fruits for Food and Flavor," which will be held in Lindsay.

The roll call of "Proverbs" was exceptionally well responded to. Current events were ably reviewed by Mrs. George Heaslip after which Rev. W. H. V. Walker, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivered a splendid address on the subject, "Something About Thanksgiving." The flower collction amounted to $3.00 and one member paid fees.

The two visiting presidents, Mrs. G. Thompson of Nestleton and Mrs. K. Thorne of Reaboro, were then given charge of the meeting, and after a few remarks proceeded with the following most enjoyable program:

The Maple Leaf and the new international anthem; reading, "A Mixed Wedding," Miss E. Thompson; vocal solo, "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling" and encore, Miss Nora Porteous, accompanied by Mrs. Sheffield; reading, "The Farmer," Mrs. Fleming of Reaboro; instrumental, Mrs. P. Edgerton; reading, "A Post Graduate Thanksgiving," Mrs. G. Proutt; paper, "The Early Life of Our Present Queen Elizabeth," Mrs. Robinson; contest, "Professor, You Tell Them," was conducted by Mrs. H. Sheffield.

The vote of thanks to the visitors and to the guest speaker, Rev. W. H. V. Johnston was extended by the president, Mrs. Deyell.

All adjourned to the Sunday School rooms were four long tables were attractively arranged and supper was served, which included hot beef stew, "fool proof dumplings; the making of the latter being most efficiently demonstrated as a special feature by Mrs. R. J. Burn.

Mrs. B. Heaslip moved a vote of thanks to the demonstrator and Mrs. R. Jackson of Nestleton and Mrs. H. Hickson of Reaboro, expressed sincere appreciation and thanks on behalf of the visitors for a most enjoyable and profitable afternoon.

Sues For $150,000

Ruth Etting, radio singer, was accused in a $150,000 balm suit filed by Mrs. Alma Alderman, ABOVE, former wife of Miss Etting's present husband, Myrl Alderman. Alderman was declared to have left his wife and their infant daughter, Norma Suzanne, due to influences exerted by Miss Etting. Alderman, central figure in the suit, is in a hospital recovering from gunshot wounds assertedly inflicted by Col. Martin "Moe" Snyder, former mate of Miss Etting.

Parking Solution

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 20 (C. P.). — Prof. J. B. Waite of University of Michigan's Law School, believes parking problems can be solved through building codes instead of traffic regulations.

Waite wrote to City Council, now drafting a new traffic by-law, urging no building permit be granted unless building plans included provision for storaging all automobiles likey to be kept in connection with the buiding. New business buildings would be required to furnish parking space for their employees' cars and to some extent for their customers.

Grace Junior W.M.S. Of Millbrook Honors Miss Agnes Johnston

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 20.—A meeting, a little out of the ordinary, was held on Monday evening, at the home of Miss Agnes Johnston leader of the Junior W. M. S. of Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook, with numerous members and visitors present. The occasion was a birthday celebration in honor of Miss Johnston.

Miss Muriel Ball, the president, occupied the chair for a short meeting and business discussion. It was decided that they change their meeting from Monday to Tuesday night, for the convenience of some of the members.

On behalf of the society, Miss Mary Eakins at that point presented their leader with a white silk scarf, the young girls singing "Happy Birthday to you" to which Miss Johnston very fittingly replied.

Numerous contests played added much to the evenings enjoyment. A dainty lunch culminated the affair. Notable visitors present were Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Williams and Mrs. S. E. Eakins, president of the senior W. M. S.

St. Thomas W. A. Meeting

Exceptionally fine weather drew many ladies to the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of St. Thomas Anglican church, held at the home of their president, Mrs. W. C. Westmacott, on Monday evening.

Following the monthly reports, one most outstanding of which was the announcement of the work started by the Dorcas secretary for the girls outfit for their next years' bale, the ladies planned to begin their sewing in the near future.

Discussion centred on the $900 legacy bequeathed them by the late Mrs. Joseph Wilkes. It was decided to buy a $1,000 Dominion Bond and use the interest each year.

The District Deanery meeting attended by 150 delegates held on September 27, at Lindsay, was closely followed by Miss R. MacNamara who gave a detailed account of the high lights. Study for the ensuing year will centre on "India" and all articles presented will be based on the topic. The introductory chapter of their new book "Harvesting the Valley" was read by Miss MacNamara. From the Living Message, Mrs. T. A. Campbell discoursed on "Home in India", which has changed considerably with Christianity, one instance being that now the father, mother and children all eat together, rather than the mother waiting on them.

At the conclusion of the meeting with the Doxology, a pleasant social time was enjoyed with Mrs. T. A. Campbell as supper hostess, serving sandwiches and coffee. For their November meeting, scheduled for the president's home, Mrs. J. E. Allen was asked to be supper hostess.

You have just as much chance of winning the grand prize of $5000 as anyone else! So enter the contest today.

As you probably know, people all over the world are using Ovaltine to help them get to sleep at night. Thousands have told us that it usually works the very first night. They say, that they feel the benefits of a good night's sleep the following morning. But Ovaltine does something vastly more vital than that. When taken night after night, users tell us that it helps to build the habit of sound, restful sleep.

Nothing is more important than this—To know that tonight, and every night, when you go to bed that you will probably get a good solid night's sleep—not the "dopey" kind of sleep you may get from the use of many habit-forming sleep drugs—But natural, restoring sleep that makes you feel rested in the morning. We know that Ovaltine helps to build this natural sleep habit.

Thousands take Ovaltine night after night for sleep insurance—Very much as they take orange juice daily for certain vitamin protection.

And so for the sake of sound sleep and good health, as well as for the prizes involved, we urge you to enter this contest. Just get a tin of Ovaltine today and take it regularly. Mix up a nightcap tonight and tomorrow night and the night after that. Take it for several weeks at least and see if it doesn't benefit you.

See if you don't sleep better. See if you don't wake up more refreshed, with lots more energy and vitality for the day's work. See if it doesn't help you build the habit of sound, restful sleep.

Then fill out the statement below describing your experience with, or opinion of, Ovaltine as a "nightcap."

Decide right now to enter the contest, whether you're an Ovaltine user at present or not. Get a tin at any grocery or drug store. Directions are on the tin. And be sure that you save the rules printed in this advertisement.

Kirkfield Barn Razed By Fire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 20 — On Sunday the barn and contents on the farm of Donald Fraser, situated near the Village of Kirkfield, was totally destroyed by fire. The blaze, which was of unknown origin, was first noticed by a member of the family. Neighbors gathered to fight the flames, but could do nothing towards saving any of the contents. Mr. Fraser had just finished threshing on the week-end and had a splendid crop, along with sixty tons of hay. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

HARROW.—Black mould disease has struck western Ontario's onion crop this year causing serious loss, Dr. R. W. Kocj, Dominion experimental station pathologist here, said today. The high moisture condition at harvest time, he said, was responsible for the heavy loss.

British Troops Have Undertaken Most Difficult Task In Driving Arabs From Jerusalem

British troops assigned to drive the Arabs from Jerusalem have undertaken a most difficult task, Sgt. Bill Gracie, veteran campaigner, and caretaker of the Canadian Legion Hall said to-day. Gracie was with the 7th Royal Scots when they drove the Turks out of Palestine in the early part of 1917 and was among the troops which occupied Jerusalem before and at the time when General Allenby made his official entry in November 1917.

"The very character of the city aside from the ability of the Arabs as fighting men adds to the difficulty of the job, he said. Like all eastern towns, the streets are narrow and winding, the houses have narrow slot-like windows that make perfect loop-holes for riflemen, and all of the public buildings have domes and minarets, where snipers might hide and snipe at troops on the streets below.

Guerilla Fighter.

"The Arab is born to guerilla fighting, he is fearless, crafty and the most treacherous type of native in the east. Besides this the Arabs are noted as marksmen, being a desert tribe, the average man has excellent eyesight and even with rifles which might not be exactly modern, a tribe of marksmen scattered throughout a city like Jerusalem would take terrific toll of troops before they could be dislodged.

He remarked on the fact that part of Jerusalem has been modernized but the trouble will in all probability be concentrated in the native section, where the houses are close together. There is no twilight in Palestine, he said. When the sun sets it is dark, but the moon usually shines early and throws a brilliant light over the city.

In illustration of how tricky the Arabs are, Gracie related how a band of them had crept down in the night on the Argyle Yeomanry, as they camped along a river, killed the sentry and stole every horse in the troop, over three hundred. Not one of the soldiers bivoucked in the camp heard a sound, but in the morning the horses were gone

He also stated the Arab would sell his soul to the highest bidder, in other words he would take money from one group then take more from the opposing side. This characteristic however in his opinion will be submerged because the Arabs are joining to fight what they regard as an aggressor.

The army in which Gracie was a soldier in the campaign of 1917 marched from Egypt against the Turk in Asia Minor. They crossed the Suez canal, encountered the enemy and defeated him on a ridge in Asia Minor then continued their march to Dier-Abela. The next stop was Gaza, and on up the Auga River to Jaffa. They fought the Turk in a decisive battle at Samuel's Tomb, and did not encounter him again except for slight skirmishes. They entered Jerusalem without any resistance and occupied the city.

He recalled that while camped near Samuel's Tomb the location was subject to artillery fire from the enemy batteries and he investigated a shell which fell on a desert strip nearby. The detonation of the shell seems muffled and peculiar and this prompted the investigation. He found the shell had either entered a tomb or a buried city as chunks of alabaster pillars five or six feet long had been hurled into the air. Four men lost their lives at this spot after being struck by shapnel fragments ricochetting of a large dome nearby.

WILL PREACH SERMON

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave of Hamilton will preach the sermon at the induction of Rev. Reginald Howden as rector of St. John's Church, Lakefield on Friday night.

The Rambling REPORTERS

NO LETTING OFF

"If you let me go I'll get right out of Peterborough," Roy Hogan of Toronto told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of having been drunk in a public place.

"How long have you lived in Ontario?" asked Magistrate Langley.

"All my life; I was born here," Hogan replied.

"Then you should know that there is no letting off allowed in these liquor cases," Magistrate Langley said.

Hogan told the court that he had come to Peterborough looking for work and had had the bad luck of getting drunk.

Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs or seven days imprisonment.

"I'm not able to pay a fine," Hogan remarked ruefully, as he was led out of court.—C.

A SWINDLE

A King street housewife bought apples grown on a tree in her own backyard this week. A small boy carrying a large basket of snow apples came to her door and she purchased the apples for a quarter feeling that in view of the quantity she was getting a bargain. Later in the day she went into the garden at the rear of the house just in time to see the same boy disappear over the back fence with another basket of apples from a tree in the garden. The tree had been stripped and those she had purchased were part of the crop from her own little orchard. — McG.

It is expected that the attendance at Keene will be at least sixty. The courses are open to young people of sixteen years and older. Campbell Sweetheart's Mother Tells Of Flight From Ambush

HULL, Oct. 20 (CP).—A story of escape from police bullets with Melville Campbell, alleged bank robber, arrested at Windsor Tuesday, was told interviewers Wednesday by Mrs. William J. Byrne, mother of Kay Byrne, pretty 22-year-old Hull girl arrested with Campbell and held as a material witness.

Mrs. Byrne told reporters she drove with her daughter and Campbell to a cottage near Manotick, Ont., last July 31 and stepped from the car to hear the blast of police guns. Melville, wounded by shotgun pellets, escaped the ambush and drove Mrs. Byrne and her daughter to Hull.

Oscar Campbell, brother of Melville, was arrested at the cottage the same day, and is serving a twelve-year sentence for the $12,000 robbery of the Richmond, Ont., branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Didn't Know of Police.

Mrs. Byrne told reporters she knew nothing of the police search for Campbell and said he explained the shots fired at him by saying the farmers in the vicinity of the cottage "don't like us."

She said that when Campbell reached Hull after the police ambush he told her to telephone from a store to a hotel for his bags. She entered the store, thought better of making the call and returned to find Campbell and her daughter had disappeared. She hadn't seen her daughter since, she said, and had received no communication from her except a birthday card.

Mrs. Byrne said Campbell was introduced to her family by a friend who was selling peanut-vending machines for him.

After several adjournments the charge against Alfred Marshall of driving a motor car on September 30 while drunk was finally dismissed this morning when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., informed Magistrate Langley that he did not propose to offer any evidence against Marshall. The announcement came after the Crown Attorney had examined a number of witnesses.

NO APPOINTMENT YET.

There is considerable speculation as to who will be named postmaster at Lakefield to succeed the late W. H. Casement. It is rumored that the appointment may become a civil service position and in that event the field of possible candidates for the position would be materially broadened. No definite information on the question is available as yet.

DRAINAGE PROBLEM.

Complaints from farmers that water lies on the north side of the concrete walk on the market square, folowing a rain and which had been made to the Sanitary Inspector has been referred to the City Engineer for attention. TO DISINFECT MARKET.

From now on the market will be thoroughly disinfected every Friday evening, as a further step in a broad program of disease prevention being pursued by the local Department of Health. The Property Committee will be asked to purchase this equipment. Two other smaller units will be sought for the rest rooms. Relief Inspector Art Metheral will be asked to assign a man to fumigate the market every Friday. This work will be supervised by the Sanitary Inspector.

CONVENTION IN TORONTO.

Rev. J. V. McAuley of Campbellford, director of the Holy Name Society in the diocese of Peterborough, informed the Examiner today that the provisional provincial committee of the Holy Name Society, meeting in Kingston, decided on a provincial convention to be held in Toronto next June, culminating in a great rally on June 18. All sections of Ontario were represented at the meeting. Judging by the enthusiasm displayed it gives promise of being the outstanding Catholic event of 1939. The directors brought with them the encouraging assurance of their respective Bishops and Archbishops of whole-hearted support in this great project of Catholic action. The provincial executive is headed by the Right Reverend Monsignor J. W. Englert, D.P., chairman of the Hamilton Separate School Board.

War Outmoded In Opinion Of Nellie McClung

"God or guns"—challenging alternatives of which the world today must make a choice, might have been the subject of the address given by Mrs. Nellie McClung, lecturer, authoress and one of the Canadian delegates at the recent sessions of the Leageu of Nations, in Trinity Church Wednesday night.

As Chesterton once asserted that Christianity could not be charged with failure for the simple reason that it had never been tried. Mrs. McClung said in the same sense the grace and power of God had never been applied by the world. A few weeks ago millions of people had joined in prayer that war in Europe might be averted. Those prayers had been answered for the time being at least. What of the future?

"Since arriving home from Geneva, I have had a new vision of my country, and a new faith," Mrs. McClung said. "We pray 'thy will be done,' but that is a call to action, not a mere aspiration. We can make Canada a great and beautiful country, but we must make our homes centres of friendliness and love. We must put meanness and pettiness out of our lives. We must seek and apply the power of God. It has never been applied yet. In that respect there is one group in our midst whom I must exonerate from that statement, and they are our ministers and preachers. We have always had better preaching in our pulpits, in this pulpit, than listening in our pews."

Thinks War Outmoded

Mrs. McClung said she felt confident the world had turned a corner when Neville Chamberlain asked Hitler for the historic conference at Berchsgaden, and she doubted that the nations would ever again resort to war in settling their disputes.

Acknowledging her appreciation of the Dominion Government in sending her to Geneva as one of the Canadian delegation to the League of Nations, Mrs. McClung briefly sketched the history of the League, its first years of promise as a new and potent agency for world peace, and its later decline in humiliation and disillusion. In spite of what she had seen and heard in the assembly of the League, heightened by her experience in Geneva, Paris and London when war clouds were lowering, Mrs. McClung's idealism is unbowed. If we didn't have a League of Nations we would be trying to organize one, she said.

Austria's Vacant Seat

In her easy style and with graphic and vivid phrasing, Mrs. McClung recalled the speech of the Spanish representative when after reciting the solemn undertakings of the League members he pointed at Austria's vacant seat in the council, and said that he had searched the literature of the League and failed to find one word about the evanishment of that signatory nation that has disappeared over night without a shot, without a ripple.

Why hadn't economic sanctions been applied to aggressor nations by nations subscribing to the League's covenant of peace? Among the answers Mrs. McClung heard were in effect, such statements as "we might get into trouble ourselves," "we had a right to use our own judgment," "we were not certain that the other nations would have joined us in exercising sanctions," and so on.

Dr. Wellington Koo, the Chinese delegate stated that Japan had been pronounced by the League to be an aggressor nation. There was no doubt about it; but Japan could buy war supplies from any members of the League.

'If the League had made a show of force at the first sign of aggression, it wouldn't have needed to exert force," Mrs. McClung suggested. If the national envies and rivalries had disrupted the will and influence of the League in the arena of politics, it had accomplished a world of good in the field of education, health, social welfare, checking the drug traffic and so on; and Mrs. McClung devoted a considerable section of her address to that phase of the League's usefulness. Incidentally she mentioned the graceful speech with which Mr Devalera had accepted its presidency.

When Fear Strikes

Mrs McClung said she had witnessed three tremendous events, the assembly of the League of Nations with its wisdom and its striving but its lack of force to maintain world peace; second, nations in the grip of fear during those momentous September days in Switzerland, France and in London; and third, the power of God uniting traditional enemies, Germans, Czechs, Japanese, Chinese and others at the world assembly of Oxford groups at Interlaken where two thousand persons mingled with each other in no show of resentment. That multitude prayed for time, for a year at least to try to apply the power of God to the difficulties in which men find themselves.

"On how we use that year depends which way our civilization is to go," Mrs. McClung stated. She was introduced by Mrs. F. C. Neal, and an appreciation of her address was expressed to Mrs. McClung by Rev. George Easton.

BABY CLOTHES NEEDED.

A Good Samaritan who is taking care of a 4-months-old baby boy whose parents are suffering a misfortune, needs clothes for the child, the Examiner learned today. She requires all the infant's clothes she can procure. Readers may leave any gifts at the Examiner office and they will be forwarded.

Richard Lees Dies At Home In 83rd Year

Death closed a chapter in the educational development of this part of the country on Wednesday in the passing of Richard Lees, M.A., for many years Public school inspector for Peterborough East.

Public school pupils of a decade ago and for many years before that time will recall Mr. Lees as a man distinguished in his profession, who made teaching and the study of teaching methods his hobby as well as his life work. He died in his 83rd year Wednesday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock at his residence at 514 Gilmour street after a long illness.

Besides his interest in education Mr. Lees had a profound attachment for his church and its work. He was a member of St. Andrew's Church when it was in the Presbyterian fold, and was the clerk of the session there for fifteen years, as well as superintendent of the Sunday school for a number of years. In 1925 he joined St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and in 1926 was appointed clerk of the session there, which post he held until the time of his death. In his earlier years he was deeply interested in the temperance cause.

A Man of Deep Convictions

Alderman James Dutton paid high tribute to Mr. Lees' qualities this morning. "We always found him very wise in his counsel and his judgment was always good," said Mr. Dutton. "He was a man who had deep convictions and he had no hesitation about expressing them.

"His wide knowledge of church law and methods of procedure were of invaluable assistance to the session in the work it had to do." On the occasion of the centenary of the foundation of the St. Paul's congregation, in 1932, Mr. Lees was asked by the session to write a history of the congregation, Mr. Dutton related.

"That history bore eloquent testimony not only to Mr. Lees' knowledge of the history of the congregation, but was also a tribute to his literary ability," he said. "It will long be regarded as one of outstanding merit.

"We feel that not only have we lost a valuable member, but a friend who will be sorely missed. We feel that in Mr. Lees we have lost a man of fine Christian character and unquestioned integrity."

Born in Waterloo

Mr. Lees was born in Waterloo County on August 27, 1856, the son of Scottish parents who had been born within a few miles of one another near Selkirk, in Scotland, but who had been married here. They were the late Andrew Lees and Mary Hislop. Mr. Lees' boyhood was spent in Huron County at Walton, where his parents moved shortly after his birth.

He received his Master of Arts degree from Queen's University and taught school at Norwood, Lindsay, Brampton and St. Thomas for varying lengths of time before coming to this city in 1905. He became public school inspector for Peterborough East and held that post until his retirement in 1930.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Emma Waters, of Norwood; three sons, Colin W. Lees, B.A., B.Paed., public school inspector at Renfrew; Dr. Harold Hislop Lees, of Windsor, and Robert Bruce Lees, a teacher on the staff of the Owen Sound Collegiate; and two daughters, Miss E. Mary Lees, R.N., at home, and Miss Margaret A. Lees, a teacher on the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

SOME PUMPKIN

Ray Fry of this city said today the largest pumpkin grown this year in Eastern Ontario was harvested in the garden of William Vansickle in Havelock. The pumpkin was so large three men exerted themselves to roll it and a good sized boy could sit on it without having his legs touch the ground. He estimated the pumpkin would weigh 200 pounds.

Flow Of Milk To Cheese Factories Declined, But Volume Still Heavy

Dairying in the district is beginning to show signs of approaching the end of the season. The flow of milk to the factories has declined this week, but the volume is still greater than at this time last year, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, said this morning. Many farmers are housing their cattle at night, pasturage is ample, but as the close of October draws near, cheese factories will generally wind up operations, although some of them may continue manufacturing into November, depending on the weather.

"At the grading station in Lindsay this morning I saw some fine cheese," Mr. Moore said. "The quality is exceptionally good, and there is still quite a lot of them being made."

Two Youths Fined Trouble At Dance

Two nineteen-year-old youths, John Murray of Peterborough and Joseph Leahy, R. R. No. 4, Lakefield, were arrested at Warsaw by Provincial Constable David Silvester on Tuesday night, during the progress of a dance in the village town hall, and brought to Peterborough.

The two appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., at Wednesday's session of the police court and were charged with creating a disturbance, both boys pleading guilty.

Constable Silvester told the court that the boys were using bad language and creating a commotion on the street outside the town hall.

"I think a suspended sentence would be the best way to deal with this case," he suggested.

Magistrate Langley, however, failed to agree and fined each of the accused $5 and $1.75 costs, giving the boys three days in which to pay the fines. The alternative was imprisonment for seven days.

Grant Adjournment In Wage Hearing

A charge against Miral Sickler of failing to pay $16.85 wages, allegedly due Roland McFarlane, was adjourned when it was called in police court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning.

Kenneth A. Devlin appeared on behalf of McFarlane while J. R. Chandler represented the defendant.

Mr. Devlin asked for an adjournment, informing the court that the complainant had not put in an appearance.

The defendant raised no objection and the case was adjourned until Monday.

"You two young men had better try and see if you cannot get together before then," remarked Magistrate Langley.

JUVENILE CASES

Several juvenile cases were scheduled for an afternoon sitting of the juvenile court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., today.

No Incidents

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—Windsor City Council is determined it will not start any arming of the 3,000 miles of Canadian-United States international border. When civic officials suggested two German cannons of Great War vintage be moved from City Hall Park to the new Riverside Park fronting the Detroit river, council members last night indignantly rejected the idea. It might create an international incident, one controller said.

Charge Amended To Second Offender

When the case of John Yates, charged with illegal possession of liquor which had been adjourned several times, was called in police court this morning it was found that the charge had been amended to treat Yates as a second offender under the Liquor Control Act.

When the amended information was read the accused asked Magistrate Langley for an adjournment.

"I am all ready to go on," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"The case was adjourned for a few minutes to give Yates a chance to get in touch with his counsel, W. J. Arthur Fair, but after the short recess, he reported that he had been unable to contact Mr. Fair.

"I really think he is entitled to an adjournment in view of the amendment," remarked Magistrate Langley.

"I think so, too," agreed the crown attorney and accordingly the case goes over until Thursday of next week, Yates' bail being renewed.

Freed, Rearrested

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP).—Robert Wetherby was held in custody here last night at request of authorities of Buffalo, N.Y., where he is wanted on a shopbreaking charge laid in connection with the robbery of a groceteria in 1936. Wetherby was said to have "jumped" bail of $10,000 at the time.

He was released from penitentiary yesterday after completing a term for shopbreaking in Canada and was taken into custody immediately.

U.S. Sentiments With Britain Against Hitler

Sentiment in the United States was more keenly in sympathy with Britain and France during the Czechoslovak crisis than mose people in Canada realize, H. B. Cowan told the Examiner this morning when asked for impressions of his extended trip through the Eastern States as far south as Alabama.

"The people were tremendously interested in the war scare," Mr. Cowan said. "At the conference I addressed in Montgomery, the delegates came from all over the country, and the feelings they expressed were sharply opposed to Hitler and the idea of dictatorships. The same spirit was manifested in Washington, New York, Philadelphia, in fact, everywhere I went.

Conceded Too Much.

"The general opinion I heard expressed was that the democracies had conceded too much, and that the settlement would simply breed more trouble. Pictures of Hitler were hissed by large audiences in the Radio City Music Hall, and those of Chamberlain were cheered. The dictators were denounced everywhere I went, and I felt as I went about that our friends across the border were lining up solidly behind England, and would do so, even if their leaders wouldn't go that far.

"Another impression was the extent of antagonism to President Roosevelt. For instance, I met quite a number of farmers, and the editors of farm papers, apart from others, and they felt the administration was squandering vast amounts of money, and that the President himself was becoming something of a dictator. I had never noticed such a pronounced attitude before."

Mr. Cowan has been invited to address the National Milk Producers' Co-operative Federation in Cincinnati next month. "They have some heavy agricultural problems and are at their wits' ends what to do about them. There are four farm groups and some of them are extremely radical. They are greatly interested in the Empire marekting plan."

Roller Skating Craze Again Sweeps Country

By Louis V. Hunter
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—(CP).— A chorus of spinning wheels sounding like giant, whirling newspaper presses is the melody of a new craze that bids fair soon to sweep the country. It's the rhythm of the roller skate.

Most popular fad in Toronto with disciples in the thousands, it is gripping the west, too, and there's the word of Eddie Penman, Winnipeg wizard of the roller rink, that the germ is spreading west from the prairies and east from Toronto.

Ontario has 10 rinks, in Toronto, Hamilton, Fort Frances and Fort William, and there are plans for development of others at Ottawa and Montreal. Barrie is considering conversion of its original town hall into a rink. That's how popular the sport is becoming.

It is easier than ice skating and requires less effort. Beginners, though, take some tough tumbles and their mid-air antics—the period of suspension before the bruising whack on the floor—make jitterbugs look like balelt dancers.

It Doesn't Take Long.

But the probationary period is short.

Penman, in Toronto performing exhibitions with his pretty 17-year-old partner, Jean McCullough, said before he left to return to Winnipeg that novices may develop into proficient skaters within three to six weeks.

Most roller rinks provide a greater variety of events than the ice skating rink. Signal bells announce the change of numbers and the floor is cleared before the skaters move out again from the boards.

Sometimes it is "all skate," or perhaps the number is for "couples only," "men only" or reverse skate."

"Get acquainted" means you "rush" the pretty girl you spotted doing the fancy figures in the centre of the rink. And it works, too.

Painful Boils
Bad Blood the Cause

When boils start to break out on different parts of the body it is an evidence that the blood is loaded up with impurities.

Just when you think you are rid of one, another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the lancing and poulticing you may do will not stop more coming.

Why not give that old, reliable, blood purifying medicine Burdock Blood Bitters a chance to banish the boils? Thousands have used it for this purpose during the past 60 years.

Take B.B.B. and get rid of the bad blood and the boils too.

Campbellford Bride Is Given Shower

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 20.—Miss Georgie Davidson, Mill street, was hostess to a pretty post nuptial shower given on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. William Nelson (nee Isabelle Bygett).

The tea table was decorated with Autumn leaves and streamers in autumn colors. Yellow tapers in silver candlesticks centred the table which bore the gifts of crystal stemware presented to the bride. Assisting Miss Davidson as hostess were Miss Grace Irwin and Mrs. S. A. Anderson. Twenty-four guests were present. Mrs. Nelson was also presented with a book arranged as a biography of her life. Among the out of town guests were Miss Mary Fowlds, Hastings; Mrs. Fred Barry, Hastings; Mrs. W. Lick, Port Hope.

Says Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, as good advice for home treatment as any friend can give, is to get a prescription known as Moone's Emerald Oil.

Simply ask McDermid & Jury or your druggist for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are no longer burdensome. So penetrating and efficient is Emerald Oil that it also helps simple swellings due to strain to disappear.—(Advt.)

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

At Duffus Alleys last night forty teams of 5-pin bowlers from the C.G.E. drafting room, Westclox office, Quaker Oats Company and Automobile League, had their weekly fling on the runways. Out of a combined total of twenty-four high class performers, A. Guerin of the Quaker Oats plant, emerged with 755 including a 311 single. The six C.G.E. drafting room teams produced the following good scores: F. Hickey, 666; D. Grant, 651; Shiner, 620; M. Metheral, 618; G. Palmer, 615. From a six team mixed Westclox office group, H. Guppy and O. Martin came out on top with 721 and 624, while good ladies' scores noticed in this league included Miss D. Ackford's 559 (233), Miss G. Packenham 544 (236), Miss M. Johnson 516, Miss M. Sisson 481, Miss F. Scott 463, and Miss V. Martin 445.

In the 8 o'clock sixteen-team Quaker League, besides Guerin's 755, W. Rankin flattened 743 (306), J. Ferguson 634, A. Barrett 621, M. Leonard 605, W. Farr 605, and D. Pearce 604.

Eleven men from 12 automobile teams rolled high, Alex Watson 730 (315), Fred Stanley 710 (328), Ken Shadgett 702, Ferguson 671, M. J. Duffus 660, K. White 632, H. Minin 630, M. O'Neil 629, W. Pinn 614, W. Naish 613. Stanley's 328 rubbed Ken Shadgett's 298 off the board for the season's best single.

The results of last night's Motor League go, leaves Auto No. 1 still up with 22 points, with Nash, Hudson and Buick all tied for second place with 18 each. Chrysler is next with 14; Ford and Pontiac 12 each; Olds and Auto No. 2, 10 each; Chevrolet 6, and Dodge and Graham 2 each.

Another Invasion

TOKYO, Oct. 20 (AP).—A Domei News Agency despatch from Harbin, Manchoukuo, said to-day Soviet troops had crossed the Amur River into Manchoukuo near Heiho, opposite Blagoveshchensk, Siberia, and started construction of a blockhouse. Manchoukuo was said to have registered a protest.

Partitioning Czechoslovakia

LINDSAY

Farmer's Turkeys Shot By Hunters

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 20— The fourteen-year-old Bowmanville youth, who was picked up on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway by two Peterborough police officers, and taken back to Lindsay to answer the charge of theft at a garage near Oakwood, will be taken under supervision by the Lion's Club of Bowmanville. An official of that organization as well as the boy's father were in court yesterday. The latter testified that he was unable to do anything with his son. Magistrate Gee advised the father to cooperate with the club in trying to get the lad on the right path. An officer of the Bowmanville C.A.S. testified that the father had taken no part in keeping discipline in the home.

In a motor accident at St. Zotique, Quebec, a few days ago, in which a car driven by Mrs. George Shipman of Valhalla, Kushog Lake, Haliburton, was crashed into, Mrs. W. G. Owens, mother of Mrs. Shipman, was fatally injured. Mrs. Owens spent the summer with her daughter in Haliburton.

Mr. J. Coffee, who resides at the White Lake settlement in Galways township, suffered the loss of nine white turkeys a few days ago. The birds were killed by hunters. The parties climbed the fence at the farm, picked up the turkeys and carried them to a waiting auto. Mr. Coffee heard the shots, but was unable to identify the car number.

Boiled Kettle With Old Crutches

Once Used Them Because of Rheumatism

He was not wrong, either—this man who concluded that he would not need his crutches again. Writing of his experience, he says:—

"For five years I suffered terribly from rehumatic pains, and I began to think my case hopeless. I also had a bad stomach, and I rarely had a meal without my food repeating on me. One day an old friend told me to try Kruschen Salts. So I bought a bottle and gave it a trial.

"After some time I was able to enjoy a good meal and to walk more freely. One morning I got up and lit the fire, and my mother thought I was crazy, because I sawed my old crutches up and boiled the kettle for coffee with them. That was six years ago, and I am now back at my old job as a chef."—H.A.B.

Do you realize what causes a good deal of rehumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system.—Advt.

Too Many Deer

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 20.—(CP).—Deer in Michigan's upper peninsula are increasing faster than hunters can shoot them, and starvation annually takes nearly 10,000 a year. A Conservation Department survey recently showed more than 18 deer to the square mile. Winter feeding grounds are so over-grazed, many of the 112,000 fawns each year die.

CHAPTER 26

JUDY WOULD not have entered the dining room, after hearing the remark which Ronald Birrell had made to Abbey Boland, and Abbey's answer, but another guest, also an early riser, came along and addressed her in a cheerful voice which carried to the two at the table.

"Good morning, Miss Rogers! Some snow storm, isn't it?"

Judy had not known that the wind was blowing white sheets of snow arownd the house. Now she glanced out of the window and nodded.

Her mind tried to focus on snow, breakfast, light chatter. She must not think now of Ronald telling Abbey she would be sorry all her life if she did not "break" something. Of course, he must refer to Abbey's engagement to the count.

Ronald and Abbey greeted Judy and the guests with strained, polite faces. Their breakfast was nearly done.

Judy tried to drink some orange juice, gave up, and took a cup of hot, black coffee.

Ronald was saying to Abbey, in a low voice:

"Think it over and call me when you decide, won't you? Better not do anything until you consult me."

Abbey nodded. Judy turned her head away coldly. When she said goodby to Ronald, her voice was frosty. She knew he did not notice. He had a favor of his own to ask.

"Judy, Abbey is worried. I don't think she should be annoyed with details for the party. Can you take them from her, do you think?"

The party to which Ronald referred was a Christmas Eve extravaganza which was scheduled for the next night. A sum of money was being spent which would have endowed a small college, or built a row of houses in a model town, it seemed to Judy. None of her friends ever had indulged in such an orgy of elaborate part in it.

The guest list was long and names appeared on it which were written neatly in the Social Register. Even Craig and Mary had been invited. Probably because Mary knew the count, Judy guessed. That was the reason Marjorie was included, too, she surmised.

"There is nothing for Abbey to do. Everything is being attended to," Judy answered as quietly as any disinterested secretary might have done.

"Good. I knew she could count on you." He lowered his voice. "Judy, Abbey's upset. Try to understand, won't you?"

And so are you upset, Ronald. Judy commented silently. Don't try to hide. I know. You want her. You—want—her!

They were as far apart as the two mythical poles—Abbey and this tall young man with the brave eyes, red hair, and stubborn chin. He came from the hills where a man was free, where his brawn and his muscle marked him. He had fought his way to the top, not minding hardship, with no apology for his humble beginnings. And Abbey—she was a hot house flower, whose father had come from some humble world, as Ronald had done. But Abbey did not talk of that. She had reached for glamor, prayed for a count. And now....

Abbey sought Judy a little later. Her face was so white, her eyes so circled that Judy relented. Maybe the girl did love Ronald. Maybe her heart had thrown off its silver and gold binding ribbons and she wanted to be honest. If this girl were sincere in her love, that was different. The count could be managed. Judy wished she might say that she understood and offer to help. Help — this — girl — win — Ronald! The thought made her a little ill.

Abbey came to the point.

"One of the maids is sicks. Appendicitis, I think. Anyway, we are having her taken to the hospital for observation and care. We'll need someone else, at least until she's better. Somebody to look after the guests tomorrow night in the powder room, and be useful here and there. Could you call an agency and have a maid sent out?"

Such a trivial thing—a new maid—when your heart is breaking up—a new maid for the powder room. almost as though she had read Judy's words, Abbey started to laugh. She couldn't stop. It was a frightening, hysterical sound. Judy ran to the bathroom for a glass of water from the ice water tap, but Abbey waved it away.

"I'm better now. It's the strain of everything. Oh, I wish I could run away and marry Phillippe tonight!"

"Phillippe?" The name slipped out.

"Of course, whom else would I marry?"

"Why don't you?"

"He likes the panoply and fanfare. Oh, I'll see it through. If there are any outside calls for me, will you say I'm not in, please, Miss Rogers?"

Judy telephoned to an employment office only to learn that due to the holiday rush no girls who qualified as maids were available.

She recalled the long rows of girls who had waited for jobs so recently and spoke more earnestly. "Why couldn't a secretary, a seamstress, somebody else come for a few weeks?"

"Sorry, we can't do that," came the answer, and the woman hung up.

The second agency could not help her, either. Judy's next idea was born from the emergency of the situation. She put in a call for the offices of Danceland. She would get the janitor again, at the morning hour. When she did, she said;

"I want the manager. It's imperative. May I have his number?"

"Say, lady, he'll hang up on you at this time of day."

"Never mind that. It's important."

"You won't say I told you?"

"I won't say anything."

He gave her the number and presently Judy had the man on the telephone. She asked him briskly for the name and telephone number of the hostees who had been photographed for newspaper use in the recent story which involved Judy Rogers.

"More publicity?" the man asked eagerly. "The files are at the office. I'll telephone the janitor to look it up for you. Call back in half an hour. Her name's Myers, I think. Coralee, I guess it is."

Thus on an early evening train, Coralee Myers came to the great estate. It had taken no coaxing to persuade her to give up her artificial glamor under the colored spotlight of the pleasure emporium for a Christmas in a millionaire's home. Her thin, eager face was shining when she arrived.

Judy explained the work to her, took her to her clean white room with its comfortable bed and private bath, gave her a printed schedule of meals and other activities.

"I wish I knew how to thank you for everything you've done for me," the girl said. "I don't, though. Maybe some day I can be kind to you."

"Is your home in New York, Coralee?" Judy asked.

"In New Jersey. You'd like my family." Her face shone.

"You all live together?"

"All but me. I have to stay in town and I send home most of my salary. My father's leg was broken last summer and it won't heal the way it should. That's why—that's why I danced for a living."

It was nearly Christmas. Almost time for families who lived, worked, sacrificed and laughed together to hang stockings and sing carols. At boarding school every year Judy and Marjorie had helped the gardener's wife prepare the simple gifts for her family. They had slipped away from the long gray school buildings, during their little girl years, and popped corn, trimmed trees, made fudge, heard the story of a star that shone over Bethlehem and the shepherds who were sore afraid.

Talking to Coralee Myers, the scenes came back to Judy. She and Marjorie had made a solemn oath that when they grew up they would never, never marry because people in their world didn't have homes and families that stayed together forever and forever. Not unless they were poor enough so they couldn't get divorces would they ever marry!

Judy smiled. Well, she was poor enough now. But there wasn't anyone to marry. She mustn't reminisce. She must help Abbey — get — her count. Abbey who didn't want a count at all....

But not now! She has a piece of angel cake (100 calories). She doesn't deny herself coffee but takes it with one lump of sugar and two tablespoons of hot skim milk (36 calories)—only 136 calories altogether. She's had a delicious snack and saved 254 calories.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 21

A DAY of much initiative and high tension may be expected, with corresponding returns in progress and prosperity. New projects may be enthusiastically put over, with some friendly assistance. But it would be well to be particularly cautious with strangers or those not thoroughly dependable. The former might cause friction or loss. Personal matters are well aspected for satisfaction and happiness.

Those whose brithday it is may encounter a year in which new enterprises may be safely promoted, with definite progress and lucrative returns. But be careful with strangers or intruders, as friction, loss or regret might result from overconfidence or trusting in wrong directions. There are auspicious signs for all personal or social enjoyments.

A child born on this day may be enterprising and have fine constructive ability, with much courage and initiative. Its personal life should be happy and prosperous.

NEW SWIM RECORD

THE HAGUE—(CP).—Miss Doris Storey, British Olympic swimmer, lowered the European championship 200-metre breast-stroke record when she splashed the distance in three minutes, 8-10 seconds. Previous record was 3:5 4-10 seconds held by Miss Inge Sorensen.

DOROTHY DIX

Too Many "Friends" Can Ruin a Family's Happiness Quicker Than Having a Few Especially Chosen Ones Who Will Be Worth While When Emergencies Come

DEAR MISS DIX—My wife and I have been married for seven months and are very happy. The only rift between us has been about her friends. She has the faculty for attracting people to her and I think they take up too much of her time and attention. I have never believed in close friends and have none of my own. My wife is very liberal about my attitude toward her friends. Never says anything when I object to them, but I am beginning to think that she secretly resents it, though she never gives expression to her feelings. I do not like this because I believe concealment has a strange and sickening effect on real love. When I object to anything she does I spit it out. We have a nice home, but not much chance to enjoy it because either the friends pop in or we have to go somewhere with them, when we are both tired and would prefer to rest and be alone. Should I subdue my own feelings about my wife's friends. I don't think she cares a thing about them, but it is just her disposition to make them welcome.

A. B. C.

ANSWER:

Friends, like many other things in life, are best when done in moderation. They can be either a blessing or a curse. None are so poor as those who have no friends, and none more unfortunate than those who have so many friends that they become pests.

The question of friends is a very important one for every young married couple to consider. They should make friends because it is not good for a husband and wife to shut themselves up like hermits in their own house and have no other society than each other. They need other contacts, other people will bring in fresh ideas, different topics of conversation, a thousand new interests.

Besides, friends are a tangible asset. People do things for us because they like us that they would not do for us because it was our due to save our lives. We all have the impulse to throw a good thing to our friends if we can, and to lend them a helping hand. We are literally "advertised by our loving friends," as the poet says.

But, on the other hand, it is not a good thing for either the husband or wife to have a too-devoted friend upon whom he or she depends for companionship and understanding more than he or she does upon his wife or her husband. An intimate friend who has the run of the house and who knows all of its secrets is always a potential source of danger.

The horde of friends who make of one's house a free bar and lunch-room, who descend upon one in season and out of season and never leave one a minute's privacy or peace, are nothing but pests and should be treated as such.

So your problem, as I take it, is to try and get your wife to weed out her friends and keep a few that are worth while and of whom she is really fond and to give the cold shoulder to the remainder. They are nothing but parasites who will eat you out of house and home and take up all of your time, and the sooner you are rid of them the better.

But you make a great mistake in thinking that the way to preserve your wife's love is to let yourself go whenever you are irritated and mad and say all the harsh and bitter things for her that are in your mind. Long after you have forgotten them she will be remembering them and every time she turns them over in her memory a little of her affection for you will go. A woman likes to think that her husband thinks she is just about perfect and it hurts both her heart and her vanity when he blurts out his real opinion of her in a rage.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — The Bible tells us that God created man in His own image, but does not tell us what pattern or image He used in creating woman. I see so many types and styles of women that it makes me think that He must have had a dozen different images to draw from when He made women. Maybe that rib from Adam was an infected rib. Anyway, it looks like something was wrong with it when we see the bean pole, the flour barrel, the sugar hogshead and elephant types in women. Sure something went haywire in the process when woman was being made. What do you think about it?

INQUISITIVE.

ANSWER:

I have never been one of those who presumed to know the mind of the Almighty and why He did things the way He did. But if I were hazarding a guess on the subject I would say that the reason He made woman the way she is was because He knew how fickle and inconstant men are and that it would take every possible type of woman, and then some, to please them.

That's why we have little women and big women, fat women and thin women, blondes and brunettes, Marlene Dietrichs and knock-kneed Sadies. As they all, more or less, get married, we may conclude that each suits some man's particular fancy.

As for the rib business, my lasting regret is that the Creator did not see fit to make woman out of Adam's funny-bone instead of his breastworks, so to speak. What women most lack and what they need more than anything else in the world is a sense of humor that will enable them to laugh off men's faults and peculiarities, instead of weeping over them.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Examiner Fashion Service

For flattery and charm you'll want this adorable two-piece outfit. A dainty beruffled feminine blouse of white mousseline, tops the black velveteen skirt with bright lacquerred lustrous satin sash. The slim waisted gored skirt, falls into a youthful flared hemline. It will answer for daytime and "date" time. In the formal length, swishy taffeta in royal blue or royal red for the entire outfit, will make you the envy of all the younger set. The easy to follow pattern may also be used for separate blouses and separate skirts. A sew-simple picture chart is included.

Style No. 2808 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material for skirt; and 2¼ yards of 39-inch material for blouse.

Looking Back On This Date

On this date (Oct. 20, 1849) it was officially announced that the ministry of the province of Canada (LaFontaine-Baldwin) had decided that the seat of government should be transferred from Montreal (where the Parliament House had been burned down the previous April) to Toronto. Lord Elgin's comments upon the decision are interesting.

"LaFontaine is much against the plan, but except a sort of vague idea that by means of a great fight we might subdue the faction and restore order in Montreal, he seems to me to have nothing to offer to justify remaining there. My own conviction is that our return to Montreal at present would give a great impulse to the annexation movement in Upper Canada and that the members would not pass a session there (Montreal) in the present temper of men's minds without being themselves to a great extent corrupted. At the same time I am quite aware that the removal will do some mischief among the French.

"In order to meet this difficulty as we best may we have determined to act on the suggestion of the assembly itself and to adopt the principle of alternate parliaments. A plan of leaving Montreal for one session with the view of obtaining additional powers did not obtain much support. We all feel that the evil is of a moral and chronic character, that it is intensely aggravated by the presence of the seat of government, and that it cannot be eradicated by force. When I say "all" I mean the English councillors for perhaps some of the French think differently."

Toronto took the news with acclaim of course, and, as Lord Elgin pointed out, it was a good transaction from a financial point of view, for the old Parliament House of Upper Canada was there, needing only to be cleaned, and provide a home for the parliament of the province of Canada until 1852, when the capital was removed to Quebec, to be returned to Toronto 1856 and remain until 1860, when a new transfer was made to Quebec. There the government remained until 1866 when the new capital, Ottawa, was inaugurated.

Right Girl's Body

PORT CREDIT, Ont., Oct. 20 (C. P.). — A body, believed to be that of Gertrude Ferguson of Toronto, who drowned on September 4, was stirred to the surface of Lake Ontario yesterday by the propellor of the tug Ajax. Attempts to find it later were fruitless.

The girl set out in a dinghy with Alexander Wheelan of Toronto on September 4. The boat was found floating on its side the next day and Wheelan's body was recovered.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Finally they reached the entrance to the royal palace. Knarf, the shadew-boy, stopped and looked at it.

"Why, it's not a royal palace at all! It's just a little hill!" he said to his friend.

"Nonsense. It is a royal palace. It's where the queen of the ants lives. It's the royal ant-hill," his friend answered.

The friend to whom Knarf was talking was a tiny ant, not much bigger than the tip of a pencil. But the ant didn't seem that small to Knarf at that moment; Knarf had made himself very small (which shadows can easily do, you know), so that the ant appeared to him to be about the size of a large dog.

"Well, let's go in."

Provisions for Queen.

Knarf had got in the long line of ants which were busily marching into the royal ant-hill, carrying provisions to the queen. Some carried clover seeds, some bits of leaves, some were dragging dead insects which they had found in the fields. Knarf's friend was carrying a huge bread crumb (it seemed to be as big as a table top though it really wasn't any bigger than a bread crumb should be).

"Well, let's go in," Knarf said to the ant. "I'll help you carry the crumb. I'd like to look at the queen."

"No—you can't do that," the ant replied.

"But anybody can look at a queen. I once read about a cat that looked at a queen. The queen didn't mind at all."

"Was it an ant queen or an ordinary queen?"

"It was an ordinary queen."

"Well, that's the difference. Ant queens don't like strangers come in and look at them. They don't like it."

"But couldn't I, anyway? I'll just look at her. I'll hide so that she doesn't even see me. I'm sure she won't mind."

"Well, here's what I'll do. I'll go inside with this bread crumb. I'll go to the queen and say to her: 'Your Majesty, this bread crumb came from the house at the other end of the garden where the people live. One of the shadows of one of the children who live in that house would like very much to see you for a minute or two. Please let him in.'"

"You can tell her," Knarf broke in, "that I'll do my best to see that the ants get more bread crumbs from now on."

The ant thought about this for a moment or two. Then it said, "Yes, that's a very good idea. I'll go tell Her Majesty at once what you promised. I'm sure now she'll want to see you right away."

"Can't I go with you?"

"No, you better wait here. I'll be back in a few minutes."

And off it went, into the royal ant-hill.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By R. J. Scott

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

When Main Dinner Dish Is Not Made With Meat

It can't be a coincidence that two certain dictators (names unmentioned) in Europe are vegetarians and both are reported to have boundless energy, limitless ability. George Bernard Shaw is one too—and I have often thought that the fun he has from life is worth saying farewell to meat forever. (Strange too, that these three gentlemen have a subtle way of getting what they ask for.)

We had Marianne's tonsils removed last week and what with being by her bedside and cutting out paper dolls and playing school and squeezing orange juice and trying to listen to the world series while she had her nap, and doing my writing stint in the evenings—I vowed I would turn into a puritanic spartan—sleep only 6 hours a day, so I could work 18—but that resolve quickly evaporated over the holiday weekend (thank goodness).

Nevertheless we do have a maximum number of vegetable and fruit meals in our menus—they do seem like more esthetic food for humans, than meat, don't they? It evidently is a well established fact that a vegetable and fruit and grain and nut diet (milk too of course) makes a more efficient human machine.

The following recipe for Cheese Timbales I have skimmed over for years in one of my pet recipe books—something must have bumped me out of my daze, for when we tried them last night they were mighty good. Don't you take as long as I did to try them.

Cheese Timbales With Tomato Sauce

Three whole eggs, 1 cup milk, 1-3 cup bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ¾ cup grated old cheese, 2 cups hot tomato sauce. Beat the eggs with rotary beater and add the milk, crumbs, seasonings, onion and grated cheese. Pour into small greased custard cups (or one large mould) and stand in larger pan containing warm water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. (slow oven) for 40 minutes—50 minutes if large mould is used. Test as you would for a custard by inserting silver knife—if it comes out clean timbales are done. Turn each mould out onto a slice of buttered toast and pour around hot tomato sauce.

Hot Tomato Sauce: To two cups cut up fresh tomatoes, or canned tomatoes add 1 cup water, 1 bay leaf, 2 whole cloves, 2 slices onion, shake of papper, 1 teaspoon salt and boil 15 minutes, then stir in 4 tablespoons flour which has been made into a paste with 1-3 cup cold water, and stir until thick. Strain and keep hot until needed.

Casserole Of Vegetables

One cup each: diced potatoes, celry, gren peas, lima or green beans; 1 medium sized onion chopped fine, ¼ cup raw rice, 1 cup tomato (canned, raw or juice), 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 bouillon cubes, 2 cups boiling water. Dissolve the bouillon cubes in boiling water, arrange vegetables in layers in large buttered casserole, add salt and pepper to water, and pour all over vegetables. Cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 2 hours. Five minutes before serving top may be and browned under broiler.

Creamed Mushrooms

This is not a new recipe on this page but we have recently added a little celery and pimiento to it, to extend the flavor and amount and think you might like the improvement.

One pound mushrooms (⅛ lb. will serve three people generously), 5 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 2½ tablespoons flour, 1½ cups rich milk, ½ cup finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon finely chopped pimiento or green green pepper. Clean the mushrooms by scrubing them only, then cut into lengthwise slices, stems and all (it is silly to cut of fthe stems as they are as tender in a fresh mushroom as the cap). Saute the mushrooms and celery and pimiento, just until they wilt in the butter, then sprinkle over the salt, pepper and flour and stir until the butter soaks in the flour, then stil lin rich milk (some cream added to make up the 1½ cups makes the dish richer) and stir until it thickens. Serve on toast or in patty shells garnished with parsley sprigs.

If a generous salad and substantial dessert such as pie or pudding or dumplings are served with this it makes a complete meal.

Fried Celery

Cut large tender outer stalks of celery in 3-inch lengths and parboil for 12 to 15 minutes to nearly soften them. Then drain and dip in

Batter (For Fritters)

One and one-third cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup milk, 1 egg. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk gradually, and egg well beaten.

Tomato Fritters

One 2½ can tomatoes (2½ cups), 6 whole cloves, ⅛ cups sugar, 3 slices onion, 1 teaspoon salt, frew grains cayenne, ¼ cup butter, ½ cup cornstarch, 1 egg. Cook first four ingredients 20 minutes, rub all through a sieve except seeds, and season with salt and pepper. Melt butter, and when bubbling add cornstarch and tomato gradually which have been mixed together while tomato mixture is cool from straining. Cook 2 minutes, then add egg slightly beaten. Pour onto platter and cool. Turn out on board covered with fine crumbs and press to about ½ inch thick and cut into squares, diamonds or strips, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat and drain on unglazed paper in warming oven until all are done. Serve very hot. These are a fine main item on a vegetable plate.

The fritter batter used for celery may be used for cauliflower, or egg plant.

Lima Bean Loaf

Two cups dried lima beans (about 3 cups soaked or fresh), 1 cup dry crumbs, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1 tablespoon finely chopped celery, and if you have them on hand 1 teaspoon dried crumbled sweet basil leaves, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons peanut butter, 1 cup liquid from rice or potato or milk, 1 tablespoon butter or bacon drippings.

Wash and soak beans overnight. Cook until soft (about 45 minutes). Drain, and when cool, chop coarsely, add crumbs mixed with seasonings and peanut butter, then the liquids and fat. Pack into buttered casserole and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes standing in large pan of hot water. Serve with creamed spinach and casserole of tomatoes and onions.

Use Cream To Protect Your Skin

Crisp autumn breezes, invigorating though they are—and a wonderful tonic for the spirits—can and will play havoc with the complexion which doesn't receive special attention. Indeed, those with excessively oily skin are the only ones who can afford to ignore the importance of night creams and protective preparations for the fall season.

By the trial and error method, flawless skinned individuals have found the cleansing cream base most suitable at this time of year. Which means that it's an excellent idea to cleanse your face and threat with your favorite cleansing cream, then, instead of wiping away every trace and patting on tonic, simply wipe it off a little half-heartedly, allowing a fine film to remain. Now smooth on rouge. After you have blended it, apply quantities of face powder, let this set for a moment or two, then whisk off the excess.

The cleansing cream makes the powder stay on for an unusually long time, meanwhile keeping the skin smooth and soft, protecting it from wind and cold.

The football addict ought to carry, in addition to supplies of regular makeup, a tiny jar of cleansing pads and a stick of colorless pomade for her lips. It's a mistake to wash your face with soap and water or cleanse with a drying lotion during or immediately after the game. Use cream or olly lotion, by all means, thus eliminating that dry, scaly look the skin often has after several hours of exposure to cold wind. And don't be tempted to put layers of fresh makeup on over stale.

Colorless pomade, used as a base for lipstick and applied again on top of the color will keep lips from chapping and peeling or cracking Also, from now on through the winter, remember to massage a soothing salve or your regular night cream into your lips every night.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question—So many thanks for your very kind and quick reply to my request for Peach Brandy recipe. I see by today's paper you are requesting Mystery Cake. I have it, so am forwarding it by return, also my very good and cheap recipe for Chocolate Cake.

Again Thanks for your kindness in helping we busy wives and mothers—M. V. S. M.

Answer—Thank you, and I am sure our reader who wanted Mystery Cake does too.

Mystery Cake—(Sent in by M.V.M.)

One can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon soda (stir this into the soup), ½ cup melted butter—mix these well together; 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup flour, 1 cup nutmeats, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg — mix these last 7 ingredients together. Then add 1 cup flour again sifted with 2 teaspoons baking powder. Bake 30 minutes.

Icing for Mystery Cake.

One package cheam cheese, 1 tablespoon pulverized sugar — cream these well together and add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mrs. M. V. M.'s Chocolate Cake.

One cup brown sugar, ½ cup fat, ½ cup sour milk, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 squares melted chocolate, 2 tablespoons boiling water, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cream the shortening and brown sugar, and add the well beaten eggs, then the melted chocolate, mixed with the boiling water. Add the sour milk alternately with the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Bake in square tin for 15 minues or until done. Ice with seven minute frosting. Please try it yourself.

Many thanks to M. V. M. for these—and do write again when we can help you.

Question—Your cookery page is the one reason why I must have the paper every week. However most of the recipes are away too deep for me. They leave me floundering helplessly.

Tonight as I gaze wistfully at your delicious sounding pie ideas I feel I cannot bear it any longer and I am driven to asking your aid.

I try to keep house for my Dad and three brothers. We lost our dear Mother in May and I really scarcely knew how to boil water when housekeeping was more or less thrust on me.

Having to work for a living makes it more complicated because I have not much time for practice—besides which it is rather expensive. I have not had many failures so far however—being sensible enough to try only plain fare—but oh! my pies are a horror—no less. My first attempt would not hold together at all, while the second time my poor dad and brothers almost strained their arms trying to dig through them. As one of them remarked I was wasting my time when I'd make such a good cement mixer. I am enclosing the recipe I use—maybe you can tell me what I do that is wrong and why they should be so awfully tough.

Next—what does one do to turn out the kind of tender roast meat one is served in a restaurant? I cook a 6-lb. roast for about 2½ hours—maybe three and still it is hard to take. I am sure the meat is not to blame because it always looks good before I go to work on it.

There are a hundred and one questions I should like to ask you, but I must not annoy you any further. Please forgive me for holding forth so much about my own personal affairs, but I feel you must be a kind sort of person who would not mind or I should not have had the courage to write at all.

I do hope you will let me ask you more questions later on. Christmas looms large in the distance and I do not know how to tackle a turkey. Maybe I'd better give it all up and stick to my can-opener. Hoping to hear from you soon.

"DISCOURAGED."

Short Paste (Sweet)
Sent in for Inspection

Three cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup butter or ½ lard and ½ butter (I use the latter mixture), 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup ice cold water (more or less), ½ teaspoon baking powder. Rub shortening into flour, make a well in mixture, put in sugar, egg and cold water in which baking powder has been stirred. Mix thoroughly and make smooth dough, put away to chill and it is ready for use. (How long should it be chilled?)

Answer—Your letter is so refreshing—but it makes me doubt that I have been doing my duty by inexperienced cooks.

Simple Quality Pie Pastry.

Using soft wheat flour such as good cake or pastry flour, sift it once then measure out 2 cups; add ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder (the baking powder you mention is good), and sift these three together. Measure out 2-3 cup shortening (butter and lard mixed or all good shortening) and work this into the flour mixture with a pastry blender. We recommend a pastry blender because it keeps the hands clean and pastry cool. Then add about 6 tablespoons ice water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until the pastry barely holds together — too much water tends to toughen the pastry. Now wrap the pastry in wax paper and chill through —about 3 hours if it is flattened to about 1 inch in thickness. When ready to bake have pie filling ready and oven temperature at 500 deg. Fahr. Roll out each half of the pastry, fit one over a 9-inch pie plate, trim edges, put in fruit filling and sugar, put on second half, moistening edges to make them cling, pressing edges together with fork. Bake at 500 for 12 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr, for about 30 minutes—upper oven must never be so hot it will burn upper crust before pie is done.

Roast Beef.

The best cuts of beef for roasting are: top or middle of cirloin, rump (square end) or first three ribs (standing or rolled). The square end of the rump is the most economical of the three for a large family like you describe.

To Roast Beef — Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, and rub a mixture of 1 tablespoon salt and 1 teaspoon paprika into the cut surfaces. Have oven temperature at 550 deg. Fahr. Place meat on trivet in roasting pan skin side down, and put in extremely hot oven without cover, to sear all surfaces quickly, thus preventing escape of juices. If meat is lean it is good to place a piece of suet on top to baste it automatically. After 12 minutes, reduce heat to 350, coverpan and roast in all about 20 minutes to the pound. A 10-lb. rump roast requires about 2½ hours to be well done.

When meat is half done it should be turned over so that skin side is up when roast is done—at this point about ½ cup boiling water may be added to the pan if it is needed to give you enough liquid to baste the meat at this time. If not do not add it.

Watch the cookery page for further detailed directions for preparing basic food items—I will include detailed directions for preparing and roasting a turkey near Christmas time. In the meantime write to me whenever you want to, letting me know your needs and I will be glad to help.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Affection can withstand very severe storms of rigour, but not a long polar frost of indifference. Love will subsist on wonderfully little hope, but not altogether without it." — Sir Walter Scott.

Dear Friends:

Yes, not alone affection, but courage, can stand severe storms of rigour, but if there is nothing in sight, if prayers seem unanswered, and God Himself seems to have shut Himself away from you what is there left.

If all you valued has been taken from you, and you have tried to fight back through anguish and despair to a different way of living, and still the little you have left seems to be slipping away too, how can one hope?

Living on the edge of things, never enough to do anything with, hoping against hope that the tide will turn, yet seeing it relentlessly creep nearer and nearer to engulf us, only brings black despair.

For, we need something to buoy us up, some return for our labor, some sign from God that He hears and answers. How else can we live?

And, the one thing our friends will not forgive in us is poverty. They seem to think we could do something about these things that dog us, that by some superhuman effort on our part we could throw these troubles off and emerge into the sunshine of better times.

It matters not that we have been able to help others to better themselves, nor does it matter that each of them comes to us for a solution of their troubles.

We are expected to be helpful, sympathetic, comforting, but when we look for these things to be done to us, we are either met by a blank wall of indifference, or told that "You'll manage."

Our Lord had a dose of that. He was told: "He saved others, Himself He cannot save." And it is so with us so many times, we can help others, but cannot help ourselves.

Life seems often like a brick wall against which we dash ourselves. We cannot surmount it, we cannot break through, we look for a chink in this wall, or some jutting out bit that will help us scale it, but nothing shows.

And despair grips our vitals, lays its clammy hand on our spirits, and this polar frost of indifference from God and man is too much for us to bear, so that hope which we have tried to keep alive dies a lingering death.

And, there is no platitude to fit a case like this, no quotation no advice. You are up against it, so what can you do? It is a problem that has baffled wiser heads than mine.

So this poem of Grace Noll Crowell is all I can give you and myself to comfort and sustain us.

"If but one message I may leave behind,
One single word of courage for my kind,
It would be this: Oh, brother, sister,
friend,
Whatever life may bring—what God may send—
No matter whether clouds lift soon or late—
Take heart and wait.
Despair may tangle darkly at your feet,
Your faith be dimmed, and hope,
once cool and sweet,
Be lost—but suddenly, above a hill,
A heavenly lamp set on a heavenly sill
Will shine for you and point the way to go.
How well I know!
For I have waited through the dark,
and I
Have seen a star rise in the blackest sky,
Repeatedly—it has not failed me
yet,
And I have learned God never will forget
To light His lamp. If we but wait for it,
It will be lit."

Nothing is so hard as waiting when we are in extremity, but let us wait on God, shall we, looking for Him to light His lamp for us and get us out of this darkness of despair.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Four Generations in Smith Township

Four generations in Smith Township are shown in this picture. Oldest in the group, and one of Selwyn's oldest residents, is Isaac Eliott with his dog "Teddy." With him is his daughter, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald; his grandson, Clayton Fitzgerald, and his great-granddaughter, Pauline Fitzgerald. (Examiner Correspondent's Photo).

Monagrams Add To Linen Beauty

A distinctive monogram beautifully done individualizes the household linens you choose. Just as it's good form right now to be unaffectedly natural, it's right to keep monograms simple and conservative and above all, readable. The size of the letters and their style should be governed by the size and use of the piece to be monogrammed. Bathroom and kitchen furnishings, especially for winter months, definitely run toward lots of color, particularly the warm shades. For table and bed linen, white on white is always good, but smart shops are showing pale shades worked in darker tones of the same color.

THREE EASY GRAPE PRESERVES
GRAPE BUTTER.

Equal amounts of tart apples and grapes, or use all grapes if you have plenty. Cook with little or no water. When tender force through strong sieve. Measure and add half as much sugar as you have pulp. cook slowly over low heat with asbestos pad if gas is the fuel used, until thick. For a spiced conserve add 1 cup vinegar and cup mixed ground spices to 6 lbs. pulp and 3 lbs. sugar.

GRAPE CONSERVE.

Three pints grapes—skins and seeded pulp (seed pulp by slipping it from skins, bringing to boiling point and straining); 3 pints sugar, 2 oranges; grate the rind of half an orange coarsely, ½ lb. clean raisins, 1 cup English walnuts. Mix all ingredients and boil until thick. Pour into sterile jam jars and seal with paraffin.

PEAR AND GRAPE MARMALADE.

Take equal weights of Bartlett pears and Concord grapes. Wash and stem grapes, let them simmer until soft in just enough water to keep them from burning. Press through sieve. This gives the grape pulp. Add this to the pears which have been pared, cored and sliced thinly. Simmer, cooking until pear slices are tender. Measure the mixture, add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit. Cook until mixture is thick like marmalade. Pour into sterile jam jars and seal.

Royal Visitor Paints in Kenya

During her holiday in Kenya the Duchess of Gloucester is spending a good many hours with her easel. This Roya lartist took out her sketching materials and paints from England and is adding to the number of studies she made before her marriage of Kenya beauty spots.

The Duchess is full of admiration for the enterprise of her two girl cousins, the elder of whom, Miss Pamela Scott, is now her hostess at Deloraine.

Both girls intend to carve out careers for themselves, one as an East African farmer, and the other on the London stage.

The Duchess is impressed with the efficiency with which the 22-year-old elder sister, Miss Pamela Scott, is running the farm, chiefly given up to dairying, for her father, Lord Francis Scott.

In addition to her whole time job Miss Scott is catering for the Royal visitors. She and the Duchess are old friends and she is delighted that her Royal visitors are enjoying their stay so much. Although too busy to accompany them on many of their expeditions, she took part in one safari.

Miss Scott's younger sister, Moyra, has just started her second year at a Kensington school of theatre. The Wuchess's bridesmaid hopes to make a career in straight acting on the West End stage when her training is over. Her mother, the late Lady Francis Scott, was a clever amateur actress.

ONLY THE BEST

IS GOOD ENOUGH

This outstanding triumph is proof of quality. Twelve first prizes in twelve classes, in this year's Baby Shows at the Toronto and Ottawa Exhibitions, were won by babies fed on 'Crown Brand' Corn Syrup.

What better evidence can there be of the confidence which Canadian mothers and their physicians have in the purity and quality of 'Crown Brand.'

A delicious table syrup, 'Crown Brand' is a treat for the whole family.

Tell the boys that pictures of famous hockey stars can still be obtained for 'Crown Brand' Corn Syrup labels.

Keene—MacKellican

MADOC, Oct. 19. — A very pretty house wedding was solemnized on Monday at 2 p.m., in the presence of relatives and friends, when Rev. E. D. Snelgrove, B.A., united in marriage, Ethel Isabelle, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank MacKellican of Madoc Twnship, and Delbert William, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Keene of Queensboro. The ceremony took place at the bride's home, which was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. Snelgrove, the wedding party took their places under an arch of evergreens and maple leaves.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in princess gown of ivory satin with lace bolero, her shoulder length veil held in place by a coronet of pearls. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses. She was attended by little Miss Doris Parnell of Eldorado, who acted as flower girl, wearing a floor-length frock of ice-blue taffeta trimmed with pink. During the signing of the register Mrs. Snelgrove sang "O Perfect Love," accompanied by Mrs. John Trotter.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, the bride's mother wearing a navy blue triple sheer gown, and the groom's mother in black crepe trimmed with white satin, received with the happy couple. A buffet luncheon was served by six girl friends of the bride, Misses Frances Harris, Margaret Craig, Hazel Keene, Gladys Keene, Verna Woods and Alma Morcroft.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Keene left on a motor trip to Ottawa and places east amid showers of confetti. For travelling, the bride wore a Persian wool blue teal dress, black Chadsworth boucle coat with silver fox collar, and wine-berry accessories. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Queensboro.

Smart Tips For The Modish Woman

It's smart to—

Wear Jewels in your evening coiffure.

Have one of your new evening gowns straples sand the other high-necked, long-sleeved, extremely modest. The more luxurious the material of the latter is, the better the effect.

Wear, with a black dress, orchid-red lipstick and a velours or velvet hat in matching orchid-red.

Carry a muff.

Take all of last summer's pastel dresses, cut them into rather large, irregular-shaped pieces and make a fragile, feminine-looking afghan to throw over you while a mask is drying or you are taking a short nap. (Such a tiny note of luxury can make any beauty treatment more effective).

Spend some time and thought on the corsages you wear for evening and the fresh nosegays you pin on daytime coats. More often than not, a single bloom in the right shade can change the entire effect of a dress of which you are pretty tired.

Achieve, with makeup, a porcelain china look. Try cleansing your face with cream, removing the cream with tissues and ignoring tonic or anything else that will eliminate every single trace of oily film. Then apply cream rouge lightly and press quantities of powder into the rouge and the remaining faint film of cream. After a moment or two, whisk off the excess powder. The result should be a dull matt finish with delicately gleaming lights shining through.

An Egg Shampoo Beautifies Hair

Here's how: Use the yolks only, beat them lightly, add a cup of warm water (not too hot as you don't want a scrambled egg shampoo!) and massage well into the scalp. Add the juice of half a lemon to the last lukewarm rinse, to preserve the fair tones in your hair. And here's a tip for softness: While the hair is still wet, and before your setting lotion, smooth on a few spots of almond oil or brilliantine. It makes the hair set like silk.

Langridge-Payne Bridal Party

Kendall, became the bride of Herbert Edward Langridge of Port Hope. The bride and groom are shown ABOVE in (FRONT) while at (THE REAR) are Miss E. A. Caine of Cobourg, who attended the bride, and R. 'Upswept' Coiffure Suits Stout Women

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP)—Short, stoutish women who perhaps don't fare as well as their tall, svelte sisters when it comes to wearing clothes can allow themselves a smirk in respect to the "upswept" coiffure, latest in hairdressing styles.

According to experts attending the National Ladies' Hairdressers' Association, the stylish stouts respond well to the glamorous "upswept" whereas the tall types require some hairdressing at the neckline.

However, the consensus was that every woman requires an individual coiffure designed to suit her hair; the shape of her head and neckline.

A Room For Young Sailors

Growing boys like a lusty, seagoing atmosphere. If you are refurnishing the boys' room this fall, why not consider patterning it after ship's quarters—built-in lockers, a couple of sturdy canvas-covered chairs, sleeping bunks, one above the other, and a real rope ladder to mount to the upper one, boatish-looking lomps, clock, compass and weather glass, and a marine blue linoleum on the floor with a nautical emblem inset. The boys will want to choose ships' flags themselves. And if they are proper little tars, they'll always keep their cabin ship-shape.

Separate Bridal Train Comes Back

Autumn brides are giving lead to wedding fashions for months ahead. The custom of having the train carried is favored once again, and many brides are bringing back the separate train attached to the waistline of the gown.

This fashion is being followed by Miss Margot Graham Brown, daughter of Mr. L. Graham Brown and the late Mrs. Graham Brown, whose marriage to Mr. Bertram Aykroyd, son of Sir Frederick and Lady Aykroyd, took place on October 5 at St. Mark's, North Audley street, London, England.

Two trainbearers, a boy and girl, carried the four-foot train of her gown, which had been designed by a great-great-great-granddaughter of Jane Austen. The gown is made of an old-world fabric—mother of pearl brocade—and is fashioned on simple lines with long mitten sleeves and a square neck.

The train fell in redingote style from the waistline and was trimmed with flounces of net edged with silver. The bridal headdress was of mixed white flowers to match the bouquet.

Turquoise blue brocade gowns with shirred bodies and sleeves and full skirts were worn by the bridesmaids and little girl. Miss Graham Brown chose this clor as a perfect background for the autumnal flowers in shades of yellow, peach and flame, which they carried. Their headdresses were of the same fresh flowers.

Frances Clark Describes The New Canadian

At the meeting of the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's church, held Tuesday evening with speaker was Miss Frances Clark, who dealt with chapter one of the Study Book, "The World in Canada," by the Rev. J. I. MacKay, B.A., B.D., Superintendent of the Church of All Nations in Toronto.

Miss Clark described the restless continent of Europe with its age-old prejudices, and showed that the new Canadian cannot divest himself of these qualities in a brief period. She quoted figures to show that almost half of the population of Canada is of European origin, and stated that there are thirty-five foreign language newspapers in the city of Winnipeg.

Miss Corine McArthur spoke on the contribution that the new Canadian is making to Canadian life. In agricultural, mastery of languages, craftsmanship, music and music appreciation, independence and honesty of character.

Gossamer Time Is Here Again

Gossamer time is here once more, writes "Lucie" in the Manchester Guardian. For gossamer is "goose summer," the time at which the geese are on the stubbles, fattening for Michaelmas. It was eight days before Michaelmas—on September 21—that Gilbert White observed the wonderful descent of gossamer which he described minutely in a letter written some thirty-four years later. It is now generally known that gossamer is not, as Spenser suggested, "scorched dew," but rather the kites or balloons thrown up by young spiders who wish to float away—away from mothers who have probably eaten their husbands already and may well be finding that the crisp autumn air is putting an edge on their appetites!

Few people know a dozen of the five hundred-odd species of spiders which have been distinguished in this country. Spiders are no longer eaten — as a cure for whooping cough or various fevers — but in country districts the webs are still applied to cut fingers to staunch the flow of blood. Englishmen who fought at Agincourt and Crecy are known to have carried pouches of cobwebs for application to wounds.) And some countrymen claim to foretell the weather from spiders' webs; if the spiders spin wide on long strands, the weather is supposed to be fine, but if they spin close and hang their webs low on short strands then rain or winds may be expected.

Do You Know?

That an old-fashioned method of stopping bureau drawers from sticking in damp weather is to rub the track or the runner the drawer slides on with laundry soap? Drawers that stick continually should be planed down a little, but this should be done with much care and only when the wood is thoroughly dried out.

To prevent bathroom odors the drains should be kept absolutely clear and clean? Use a little commercial drain cleanser frequently, at least once a week. If possible, let stand twelve hours, then flush well with hot water. A strong solution of hot salt water, used often, is an expensive and effective aid for clear drains.

An open electric coil on your stove should never be washed with soap and water? If food spills on the open coils, burn until the food is charred and crisp. Cool, and then clean with a soft brush.

Hallowe'en Tea Successful Affair

Under the auspices of the Confederation Home and School Association, a successful Hallowe'en Tea and home-cooking sale was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Milby, Park street. Decorations in Hallowe'en colors were used in the rooms and on the tables.

Guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. Milby, and by the president, Mrs. T. Monk.

Mrs. W. Carter, Mrs. J. Seger and Mrs. Briscoe presided at the tea table, which was attractively arranged with a lace cloth centred by a silver bowl of red carnations. Tea assistants were Mrs. E. McIlwain and Mrs. C. Wilson.

During the afternoon two delightful solos by Mrs. G. A. Spicer were enjoyed. She was accompanied by Miss Frances Wells and by Mrs. L. Monk.

The sale of home-made cooking and candies was under the direction of Mrs. Roy Pilling, and tea cup reading was in charge of Mrs. Bugg and Mrs. A. McKinley. Mrs. L. Johnston was general convenor of the affair.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

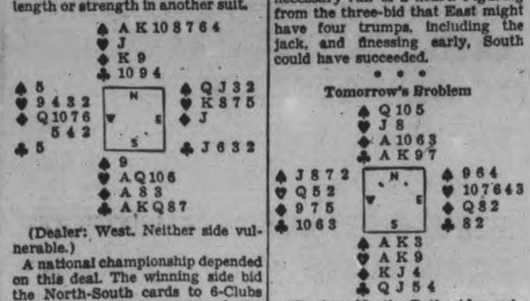
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

GO THE LIMIT

IT WILL ORDINARILY pay to make extreme plans when the opponents have done extreme bidding. if one of them has opened with three or more of a suit, which you know to be a showing of length without strength in order to crowd your own side, consider that he has told you a good deal about his partner's hand. Count on that partner for length in every other suit, and also for every outstanding honor card except in the suit with which the pre-empt or shutout try was made. Sometimes this will work out badly, but usually it will pay, as good players seldom make high original bids on hands with any length or strength in another suit.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

A national championship depended on this deal. The winning side bid the North-South cards to 6-Clubs at one table and of course made the contract easily. At the other table, North and South got into 7-Clubs. If they had made the contract they would have won the title, but they didn't.

West had opened the bidding with a shutout effort of 3-Diamonds, in spite of which, or perhaps partly because of which their opponents went all the way eventually to a grand slam in clubs. West led the heart 2. The J from dummy drew the K and A.

Now South had to plan. A 4-1 division of five cards is ordinarily quite unlikely, she figured, so tried two rounds of trumps. When West showed out on the second round, the beans were spilled. Only one trump remained in dummy. If it was used for the marked finesse against the J, it could not also be used for the necessary ruff of a heart. Figuring from the three-bid that East might have four trumps, including the jack, and finessing early, South could have succeeded.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the best bidding of this deal?

Two Moonshine Suspects Are Arrested

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 20.—Matthew Stone and George Baumhour, Monk Road, residents near Bancroft, were arrested on charges of violations of the Excise Act, to wit, the manufacture of illicit liquor. Stone and Baumhour were apprehended by R. C.M.P. officiers after a still, suitable for the manufacture of "moonshine" had been confiscated by the Federal authorities. The pair were arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody to appear in County Police Court at Bancroft this week.

Nelson Broughy is recovering from a duck shooting expedition near Massassaga on Monday afternoon, which not only resulted in the loosening of two front teeth, but was responsible for a thorough dousing in the cold water of the bay.

Hunting alone in a small duck boat borrowed for the occasion, he had lain in a hastily built blind until nearly dusk when he sighted the first flock of ducks approaching. Anxious to get a better view, he arose in the boat, lost his balance and fell. As he fell, he discharged both barrels of the gun, the recoil of which struck him in the face, loosening his teeth. He recovered the gun and himself in about four feet of water.

Leonard Maracle, 17 year old Tyendinaga Reserve youth, appeared in police court facing three charges preferred under the H.T. A., all a sequel to a motor accident over the week-end on Highway No. 2, three miles east of Marysville. Two women sustained injury, considerable damage resulted and Maracle disappeared from the scene of the accident. Maracle was arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine and arraigned before the magistrate. As the accused refused to plead when charged, he was remanded in custody for one week.

U.S. Speeds Up Arms In 19 Million Order

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—(AP).—War Department orders for munitions totalling $19,187,050 in six weeks provided a hint to-day that the United States army is speeding up re-armament in anticipation of President Roosevelt's new defence proposals.

Ordnance officers have worked day and night to close contracts with manufacturers without delay. Forces at some manufacturing arsenals have been doubled.

The latest orders, announced yesterday, totalled more than $9,000,000. They accounted for the bulk of nearly $61,000,000 which Congress voted this year for anti-aircraft guns, tanks, powder and bombs.

The largest was a $2,317,291 order for smokeless powder to E. I. Dupont De Nemours and Company, Wilmington, Del. Browning machine guns costing $2,093,680 were ordered from Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn.

Earlier contracts were for searchlights, direction finders and other apparatus connected with 240-odd three-inch anti-aircraft guns already being made in government arsenals.

Spies Shifted Off Military Jobs To Industrial In '37 Says Deserter

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP). — The United States government's star spy case witness—Guenther Gustav Rumrich, army deserter who turned secret agent—told Judge John C. Knox and a federal court jury yesterday that Nazi Germany's interests shifted from American military secrets late in 1937 to industrial information.

He was so informed by two of the agents with whom he had contact, Rumrich testified.

One of those, he said, he knew only as "Wiegand"; the other was "Schmidt."

"Wiegand," he said, apparently was important for he showed him a photograph of himself allegedly taken at the German embassy in Washington purportedly in company with ambassador Hans Dieckhoff and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, adjutant to Chancellor Hitler.

"Wiegand," he said, first apprised him of Germany's shifting interest from military to industrial information, particularly that kind which had to do with American rearmament.

"Schmidt" later asked him if he knew of the new orders, he said.

A New Agreement

"He said this change of orders was due to an agreement between someone in Washington and someone in Berlin," explained Rumrich, who pleaded guilty to the espionage charges, leaving three co-defendants, Erich Glaser, Otto Vass and Johanna Hoffmann to face trial.

"He did not say who these parties were, but said it was a shame the order had been put in effect.

"Schmidt asked me if I knew anyone employed in either the Bethlehem Steel plant or the Dupont plant. I said, 'no,' but I would do my best to get in contact with someone.

"He said some of the letters in his possession were for someone in Brooklyn and that this party in Brooklyn was getting $2,000 for certain plans he or she had provided."

Rumrich said he was skeptical since he had been receiving only $40 or $50.

"Schmidt" showed him the money in one letter.

"It was two $1,000 bills,' Rumrich said.

"The party in Brooklyn," as Rumrich referred to the operator there, had discovered some information about a kind of gyroscope, and "the plans" allegedly had been sent to the naval ministry in Berlin.

Critical Sanders

Rumrich told federal judge John Knox and a jury today the mysterious "Sanders" to whom he was supposed to turn over United States army and naval information was "very critical" of his progress. Rumrich told how he exchanged letters with Sanders, reputed to be an assistant to the chief of the naval intelligence office at Bremen, Germany.

Sanders, he testified, asked him to send him two catalogues of the United States government printing office with a list of all army and aviation publications. Rumrich supplied the catalogues.

"Sanders replied that I wasn't prompt enough in complying with his request," he said, "particularly in regard to booklets he requested."

The booklets, Rumrich explained, were confidential military publications.

The first letter he received from Sanders, he said, was postmarked Hamburg, Germany. The others were postmarked from the New York metropolitan area and were presumably mailed after being carried here by someone other than Sanders.

Rumrich said he moved from Brooklyn to the Bronx and received a letter from Sanders sometime later asking why he had not written.

"He said he was very anxious to contact me," the witness said.

Asks for Cash.

He wrote Sanders that he was "in straitened circumstances and would have to have financial support," he testified. Sanders replied he would have to take up the matter with the "war ministry."

Sanders, according to Rumrich, told him "to send him anything I had."

"I had a couple of old booklets and photographs. I sent him those. One of the booklets was a training manual. The other booklet dealt with military salutations. The photographs were shots of troops on parade I made in the canal zone.

"Next he asked me for the names of commanding officers in the metropolitan area.

"I recall once I sent Sanders a package. He said he was forwarding it to Berlin for examination and approval to see if I should receive compensation."

Rumrich said he could not recall whether it was the package containing the picture of the troops.

Hungarian Students Howl For Arms

BUDAPEST, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Thousands of university students demonstrated on Budapest boulevards today demanding arms to enforce Hungary's territorial demands on Czechoslovakia. The demonstrators asked "everything back" from the Republic created out of the pre-war Austro-Hungarian Europe.

Renewal of conversations between Czechoslovakia and Hungary—broken off last Thursday when the negotiators were unable to reach agreement—was expected today because of pressure Hungarian sources indicated had been exerted by Rome and Berlin on Czechoslovakia.

Dry-Eyed Japs Honor 10,344 War Dead

TOKYO, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Dry-eyed families of 10,344 war dead viewed in sacred Yasukuni shrine today the ancient rites consigning to immortality the souls of the slain.

The annual festival reached a climax when Emperor Hirohito visited the shrine to add his prayers to those of the nation. At that instant sirens and whistles wailed in Tokyo and its environs, calling the people to a moment of silent devotion.

Thousands of relatives and friends of this group of war dead and patriotic pilgrims from the provinces had arrived in the capital for the ceremonies.

Yasukuni shrine is Japan's valhalla, and it is believed that the soul of a soldier killed in action needs only the proper rites to enter. Thus when soldiers leave for the front or go into battle their saying is: "If you wish to see me again come to Yasukuni shrine."

Fake F.D.R. Hand Spy's Plot For Ship Plans

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP). — A scheme to forge President Roosevelt's signature to White House stationery in order to procure information about the United States Navy was described in Federal Court Wednesday by Guenther Rumrich, 32, army deserter and confessed German spy. Rumrich told Judge John Knox and a jury he had expected to get a lot of money if the plan was carried through.

It was his third day on the witness stand testifying against Erich Glaser, former United States soldier; Johanna Hofmann, hairdresser on the German liner Europa, and Otto Hermann Voss, airplane mechanic. Rumrich was indicted with them and 14 others, but pleaded guilty.

The ex-dishwasher, who became a $40 a week "mail order" spy told of a night when Karl Schlueter, an alleged messenger for the spy ring, came to his home in the Bronx with Fraulein Hofmann.

Schlueter asked him what he knew of the aircraft carriers Enterprise and Yorktown.

Very Useful Plans.

"He said the German navy was now going to build some aircraft carriers and that it would be very useful for his superiors to obtain plans of these carriers' construction," Rumrich testified.

"He suggested that I write to Hamburg and suggest that I be furnished with some stationery that would show that it was official White House stationery."

"He said something about forwarding a letter to the construction chief of the United States Navy Department, the letter bearing the forged signature of the President of the United States. But he did not elaborate on this plan.

"I told him I would try to get the stationery. He said there would be a lot of money in it if I could get the plans of the aircraft carriers, but he did not say how much."

Unions Ordered To Defy Daladier

PARIS, Oct. 20 — (AP). — The powerful Paris labor union central organization to-day ordered its workers to defy Premier Daladier's government and hold mass demonstrations Saturday despite a Cabinet ban.

The executive committee adopted a resolution declaring workers should show "violent" opposition to the government which it said was trying to break "democratic liberties one by one."

Mass street gatherings were planned for Saturday by the union central as "the beginning of action" to enforce workers demands for the 40-hour week the Cabinet is trying to replace in national defence industries.

Opposition was apparent among Rightists and Leftists because of the failure to make use of decree powers granted by Parliament two weeks ago on Daladiers urgent demand. Semi-official sources said political reasons were causing the Premier's hesitancy.

Nicaragua may increase the salaries of government employees.

Dragooning Is Under Fire Of British Labor Leader

LONDON, Oct. 20.—While the cabinet delibrated today in a 2½-hour session, Clement Attlee, leader of the (Labor) opposition in the House of Commons, sounded a warning against "dragooning and ordering people about."

Addressing the national trades union club, Mr. Attlee said: "It is nonsense to think Mr. Chamberlain brought back from Munich peace for a generation, for a day or even for five minutes.

"The economic consequences of the Prime Minister's peace are going to be felt in a very few months.

"In industry and in the political field attacks will be made on our liberties. I believe that is folly. National effort cannot be achieved by dragooning and ordering people about.

"What is neeeded is the willing co-operation of the people. What primarily is needed today is reconstruction in Britain to make her strong enough to lead other countries. The real difficulty is that the present government is not prepared to give a lead to the people of this country."

Wrong Breed

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 20 (C. P.). — One partridge hunter here was beginning to feel rather downcast when he could not find any partridge. At last he spied a bird hiding in the bushes. He lost no time in shooting it, but then didn't wait to take it with him. He just started to run, with a farmer at his heels. The bird turned out to be a young turkey gobbler.

No Particular Regime To Blame For The Neglect

OTTAWA, Oct. 21—(CP).—The Canadian defence forces have been "crucified by neglect for several years but no government in particular is to blame," Defence Minister Mackenzie told the Bren Gun inquiry yesterday.

He said the adoption of the Bren gun for the Canadian forces was decided upon in connection with general re-organization.

There was a sharp difference of opinion as to the merits of government and private manufacture of armaments among officers of the national defence department, Mr. Mackenzie said.

The minister, who continues his testimony today, said Major General E. C. Ashton, chief of the general staff, headed the government ownership school of thought and Major General L. R. Lafleche, deputy minister headed the other school. He had the utmost respect for both officers.

In coming to a decision, however, he had to obtain an estimate on the cost of equipping a government factory for the production of machine guns and other small arms as well as the other equipment and supplies which were required and found it would be upwards of $35,000,000.

With the total defence department estimates amounting only to about $34,000,000 to $35,000,000 a year there appeared little prospect of obtaining enough money to embark on manufacturing establishments.

Quizzed by Ralston.

The minister was examined by Hon. J. L. Ralston, chief Commission council, on events leading up to the award of a contract to the John Inglis Company of Toronto for production of 7,000 Bren light machine guns. Criticism of this contract in an article by Lieut.-Colonel George Drew in Maclean's Magazine led to the inquiry.

Mr. Mackenzie said his first recollection of meeting Major James E. Hahn, president of the John Inglis Company, was in May of this year, although he understood they had been introduced in 1936.

He said he had written a letter of introduction for Major Hahn to Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, in October, 1936, on the recommendation of Hugh Plaxton, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto-Trinity, and on the strength of information given him by Major-General Lafleche. It was his practice to write such letters for any industrialist vouched for by a member of Parliament, and he had done it at the suggestion of members on both sides of the House.

Hospital Sweep Smiles Upon 55 Canadians

DUBLIN, Oct. 21—(CP).—The whirling drum that deals out fortunes for lucky Irish hospital sweepstake ticket holders today sent out prizes for 55 Canadians.

One Canadian ticket holder, using the nome de plume "Triplets," drew a ticket on Dubonnet, 10 to 1 favorite, which would bring him as much as $150,000 if the horse won the Cesarewitch at Newmarket next Wednesday.

There were chances that other Canadians yet might draw tickets on the favorite as the spinning drum continued to deal out the lucky tickets.

A Canadian using the name "We Two," drew a ticket on Snipewood, a 100-to-7 shot.

Three Canadians drew tickets on Snake Lightning, a 15 to 1 chance. The ticket holders used the nome-de-plumes "Dishwater," "Peggy "Shea" and "Butch."

The prize fund was announced as £1,405,300 ($7,026,000). Total receipts were put at £2,446,481. The prize fund was divided into 14 units of £100,000 each and 14 persons holding tickets on the winning horse will receive £30,000 ($150,000) each, 14 with tickets on the second horse £15,000 each and 14 with tickets on the third horse £10,000 each.

Drawers of tickets on each one of 83 horses originally accepted for the race will receive about £437 ($2,187) each. Of those originally accepted, 34 horses were officially listed as probable starters. In addition there are 50 cash residuary prizes of £1,006 ($5,030) each which are not dependent on the outcome of the race, and 1,400 consolation prizes of £100 ($500) each.

An Informal Call

GALT, Ont., Oct. 21.— (CP). — Lloyd Smith wondered what visitor could make all that noise on the front porch but it was just a truck paying an informal call. Lionel Akien, the truck driver, applied his brakes to avoid hitting a car and his truck skidded on to the porch. Smith wasn't too surprised. A similar accident occurred there a few years ago.

Border Bars Let Down For Mother

Croll's Intercession Unites Family On 30-Day Parole

DETROIT, Oct. 21 (CP). — Mrs. Mary McKinnon, native of Nova Scotia, joined her four children here today after she was readmitted to the United States on parole through intercession of David A. Croll, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Windsor-Walkerville, and former Provincial Welfare Minister.

Mrs. McKinnon was half-crying and trembling so she could barely speak as she rushed up the stairs to her children. Mrs. McKinnon, born in Sydney, N.S., entered the United States on a visit in 1930 She married her brother-in-law, a United States citizen, in 1932.

He died last year and she immediately sought United States citizenship papers, which had not been granted her this week when she crossed the international border here to comfort her sister-in-law at the death of her husband, Blowers Brewer, of Windsor.

After the funeral, she was refused re-admittance to the United States pending a board hearing. The board reported against admitting her, but forwarded the widow's appeal for a reversal of the ruling to Washington.

Prayers Answered.

"I'll never set foot in Canada again until this immigration tangle is settled," Mrs. McKinnon said. "I prayed so much this would happen," she continued as she kissed her children. "This is the grandest feeling in the world. My prayers have been answered."

Croll read of the woman's plight in a Windsor newspaper and immediately communicated with United States immigration officials. He told officials he had known the McKinnon and Brewer families for years and was sure Mrs. McKinnon should be admitted on parole pending disposition of her case by Washington.

John L. Zurbrick, district immigration official, announced today Mrs. McKinnon had 30 days to get a Canadian visa and prove she is self-supporting.

"I am going to get a good job," Mrs. McKinnon said, "and I am not going to be dependent on Welfare any more. It was nice of them to let me return and I am going to prove that I am a good citizen."

Toronto To Let Prisoners Use Telephone

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (CP).—Prisoners of a "non-criminal" type are to be allowed "reasonable use of telephones" in Toronto police stations when they are arrested. Board of police commissioners made the decision last night after a debate in which Mayor Ralph Day said citizens frequently were refused permission to use the telephone to call friends or lawyers.

"The police department recognizes the right of a prisoner to his defence and that right is supported," replied Chief Constable D. C. Draper. "Prisoners are allowed to use telephones but we have to use discretion."

"The low criminal type spread false stories and make untrue accusations. My inspectors and sergeants are instructed to exercise their own judgment when the use of a telephone is requested."

"The rule doesn't seem to be carried out," the Mayor retorted. "I have received reports from time to time."

The discussion followed criticism voiced recently by Judge Macdonell of York County when he learned a prisoner had been denied use of a telephone while held in a police station.

Stray Night Shots Hit Car And Truck

AURORA, Ont., Oct. 21—(CP).—Bullets from hunters shooting pheasants out of season were reported today to have grazed one King County farmer and struck a dairy truck.

Oliver Sturdee, 75, said a bullet grazed his chest after shattering a window in his car as he drove home Monday night. He did not report the incident to police until he learned a Tottenham dairy truck also had been hit.

"I was driving home at 9.30 p.m. when this bullet came right through the car and took my breath away," Sturdee said. "If I hadn't been sitting well back in the driver's seat I would have got it right through the body. There was just one shot as I drove by and I don't know who did it."

50 Girl Police Candidates Whoop It Up But Not All Prove Fence Jumpers

New York, Oct. 21 (CP)

A BUNCH of the girls whooped it up yesterday in New York's municipal building in such manner as to make even the toughest burglar stop and consider. The girls—50 of them—want to join the police department.

While police athletic supervisors and examining doctors made notes on the whole performance, the girls jumped in the air and clicked their heels together. Some of the girls were willowy. Some were not so willowy. And most of them were awkward in pacing through the calisthenics.

The girls, aged 21 to 29 and a segment of the 315 who want to join the police force, held 60-pound barrels behind their neck and did 10 "deep-knee bends" in succession. After that they were shown a high-jump standard with its bar at 39 inches. Some jumped it. Some didn't and it looked as though clearing back yard fences might prove a handicap to them.

Whiphand In Balkan Trade Plum Given Hitler At Munich Britain, France Find To Their Cost

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

WARSAW, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The political set-up of Central and Southeastern Europe has been changed overnight to the advantage of Germany by the decisions of the four-power Munich conference which finished slicing Czechoslovakia up like a birthday cake and gave Chancellor Hitler the pieces with the plums in them.

You really have to be on the ground in this part of the world and travel from the north down into the Balkans to realize the magnitude of the upheaval.

Those attending the Munich conference undoubtedly realized that French and British influence in this section would suffer through the offering of Czechoslovakia as a sacrifice on the altar of peace. I was there and I heard that opinion in conference circles. Probably not even the most pessimistic, however, visualized the extent and avalanche speed of the change.

Real Nice Gift

Go where you will and approach whom you will among those qualified to speak and you will get the same blunt story.

The vast influence which was exercised by France has been transferred to Hitler's knapsack like the proverbial marshal's baton; and he marched off with it to establish economic and political domination over Central Europe and the Balkans if he can.

Most say that French influence is all but dead at this moment, and that British prestige has sustained a mighty jolt. Some will dispute such a sweeping statement, but all agree that the damage is great.

The powerful political machine which France built after the Great War with so much care and at such great expense, as a bulwark against

Pope Rebukes Nazi Attitude

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Oct. 21.—(AP).—A new rebuke was added today to the list of pronouncements from Vatican quarters reflecting Pope Pius' irritation with the Nazi attitude toward the church.

It was reported by the Vatican News Service to have been delivered by the Pontiff yesterday in a discourse to several hundred delegates to the Christian Archeological Congress.

Pending publication of the authorized text of the Pope's words, expected early to-day, authoritative sources declined to quote him but said he made "very grave references" to events in Germany and Austria, including a Nazi attack on Theodor Cardinal Innitzer's Palace in Vienna Oct. 8-9.

Previously, the Vatican organ L'Osservatore Romano and the Pope in speeches and remarks to pilgrims have kept up virtually a running fire of criticism on Nazi doctrines and actions for months.

L'Osservatore Romano repeatedly has scored the Nazis for the attack on Cardinal Innitzer which the newspaper's director called an example of "brute force."

The organ declared German authorities in that case had added "to brutal aggression the lying denunciation of its victims" by blaming Roman Catholics for the trouble.

Japs Sweep Into Canton As Fleeing Chinese Dynamite All Factories

Hundreds Of Thousands Of The Inhabitants Race Northward In Terror As Great Key Supply Centre Falls

CANTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—A Japanese tank corps rumbled into Canton this afternoon, scoring one of the most astounding victories of the Chinese-Japanese war.

The tanks were followed by detachments of the South China expeditionary force which just 10 days ago landed on the shores of Bias Bay, 125 miles southeast of the South China metropolis.

An official source reported that "utter confusion" reigned in Canton, vital supply centre for Chinese troops in Central China as the invaders pierced the city's first defences.

Government officials fled to Yungyun, 92 miles north of Canton.

The Chinese dynamited a cement plant, a power plant and other major utilities before the Japanese entrance, according to the defenders' "scorched earth" policy of leaving nothing behind for the invaders' use.

As the invaders approached, the Cantonese had furiously tried to dig trenches and make machine-gun emplacements at strategic centres, while hundreds of thousands of inhabitants fled in all directions, leaving a small fraction of the population behind.

A Japanese spokesman said aerial observation showed the Chinese were retreating in a long line north of Canton.

(Reuters News Agency reported from Shanghai that General Chiang Kai-Shek, according to reliable reports, was preparing to leave Hankow, the other main Japanese objective about 550 miles north of Canton and Chiang's provisional capital. A large part of the Hankow population had fled as the Japanese advanced to within 35 miles of Hankow).

City Almost Deserted.

In Canton, only one house in 10 was found tenanted. Most shops were closed. Streets were empty. Roads from the city were crowded by a strange procession of carts, bicycles, jinrikshas, and trucks piled high with refugees' belongings.

The International Settlement, Shameen Island, resembled a small fortress with sandbags everywhere.

Japanese tanks were said here to have penetrated Canton past the Canton hospital to a point opposite Shameen.

Official reports said parts of Canton were burning as the result of the dynamiting of factories by the fleeing officials.

The Japanese unit which entered the city encountered little resistance in the 10 days fighting overland from Bias Bay. The Japanese said they lost only 40 killed and 100 wounded at Waichow, where the heaviest fighting occurred, while Chinese casualties were estimated at 1,400 at Waichow.

$300,000 Needed To Fit Out Lindsay Arsenal

OTTAWA, Oct. 21 (CP).—Lieut.-Col. George Drew of Toronto, author of the article in Macleans Magazine, which brought on the Bren gun probe, obtained permission at the opening of today's session of the inquiry to explain the set-up of the conference of defence associations.

He said it represented all officers in the various branches of the service and its resolutions reflected the views of all the troops of Canada. Yesterday he had read resolutions of the conference favoring government manufacture of small arms. The present inquiry is investigating the government's contract with the John Inglis Company of Toronto, a private concern, for 7,000 Bren light machine guns.

Resuming the witness stand, Defence Minister Mackenzie said the conference was entirely voluntary and while he and the department valued its recommendations highly and gave the utmost consideration to them, the determination of policy was solely a matter for the government.

Group Partly Completed.

Questioned by Hon. J. L. Ralston, commission counsel, Mr. Mackenzie said the "ammunition group" of plants for the supply of ammunition had been partly completed. At present cartridge casing and bullets were being manufactured in the Dominion Arsenal at Quebec and the cartridges were filled in new buildings at Valcartier, Que.

Col. Ralston clashed with Col. Drew when the former attempted to examine the witness on reports in the department on plans for developing ammunition plants at Quebec, Valcartier and Lindsay, Ont. Col. Drew said details of plans and studies of arsenal and munitions had no bearing on the Bren gun contract.

Col. Ralston said he was bringing in these plans only because Col. Drew had introduced them in his

Chinese Flood Yangtse With Mines To Hold Jap Ships Off Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 21 (A.P.). — Chinese sent a flood of floating mines down the Yangtse River today in an attempt to hold off Japanese gunboats pushing rapidly toward Hankow, provisional capital and objective of the Central China campaign.

Japanese said that, despite the oncoming mines, increasing numbers of gunboats were continuing the thrust toward Hankow. Their guns, in support of land forces, swept the shorelines some 35 miles downstream from the city.

Japanese military authorities said the river advance and gains by columns flanking the stream made Hankow's eventual capitulation a certainty.

Units of the gunboat fleet were said to have passed Ocheng, 35 miles from Hankow.

The southern overland column was said to have captured Tayeh, 40 miles south-east of Hankow, and pushed on to the iron mining district to the north. Japanese said Chinese in that area were on the verge of rout.

The northern column was reported by Japanese to have captured Kishui, strategic Chinese outpost 55 miles from the Hankow goal.

Thousands in Flight.

In Hankow itself tens of thousands of persons were seizing steadily dwindling opportunities to evacuate. Steamers bound upstream from the city were overcrowded.

British bluejackets were ordered to guard gangways to prevent a stampede of refugees. In the French Concession, 450 sailors and colonial infantrymen manned machine-guns, tanks and mortars in a demonstration of defence forces guarding the only completely foreign area.

There was intense military activity at Kiukiang, the Japanese Yangtse base 120 miles south-east of Hankow. Naval and cargo ships crowded the stream, bearing reinforcements and munitions.

One of the floating mines, released by Chinese in the Yangtse, lodged near the United States gunboat Monocacy, stationed near Kiukiang. The craft shifted its position hurriedly.

Mama Bear Claws Trapper Fiddling With Cubs

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)

ROBERT THOMPSON, Dickey Lake trapper and resident 50 miles north of here, was clawed and narrowly escaped serious injury when he was attacked by a bear, while he and his brother William were attempting to capture a pair of cubs frisking about in a thicket.

William wielded an axe when brother Robert was on the ground after an attack from the bear. His leg was badly bitten and he suffered lacerations about the face from the bear's claws. The brothers, however, captured their quarry after killing the mother bear. A fine pelt from a 350-pound animal is the token of the chase.

Hepburn Announces Ontario Bond Issue Of 15 Million For Northern Roads

TORONTO, Oct. 21.— (CP).—Premier Hepburn of Ontario today announced a new Ontario $15,000,000 issue of three-per-cent bonds, maturing in 1950, would be offered immediately by a large syndicate of investment dealers and banks. The money will be used for Provincial highways purposes.

The new bonds will be dated Nov. 1, 1938 and will mature Nov. 1, 1950.

The Premier said that during the current fiscal year, which ends next March 31, accrued ordinary receipts and ordinary expenditures have been within his budget estimates which called for a balanced budget in the fiscal period.

The new bond issue includes a "callable" feature which permits the government to call them in three years before maturity. Two days ago the Government renewed $10,000,000 of treasury bills for two years with the Bank of Montreal at an interest rate of 1.6 per cent.

Highways Minister McQuesten said purpose of the loan was to continue the extensive road-construction program in Northern Ontario.

The roads on which work will continue: North Bay to Sault Ste. Marie; North Bay to Timmins; Seven Bridge to North Bay; Nipigon to Long Lac.

The Minister said some work had been done already but it would require several years to complete.

4 Daughters Of Brigham Young's 31 Outlive Last Of Mormon's 25 Sons

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 21.—(AP). —Time has whittled down Brigham Young's family of 56 children borne him by 19 wives until to-day only four aristocratic, elderly women survive.

The last of the Latter Day Saints Church Patriarch's 25 sons—Joseph Don Carlos Young, 83—died Wednesday. Only four of the Mormon leader's 31 daughters remain.

Three of them are highly active. Each is white-haired, blue-eyed, proud. All are residents of Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Clara Young, 78, eldest living daughter of the church's second president and the first governor of the territory of Deseret is the most spry. The others are Mrs. Ruth Healy, 77; Mrs. Mabel Sanborn, 75 and Mrs. Annie Clayton, 68.

Congress passed the anti-polygamy bill in 1822. Plural marriage was ruled out by the L.D.S. church in 1890. Young died in 1877 at the age of 76.

Snipers Cornered In Mosque Of Omar

JERUSALEM, Oct. 21.—(AP). — British military authorities prepared to-day to restore order in other parts of Palestine in continuation of the campaign against rebellious Arabs.

The next scene of operations of the steel-helmeted soldiers put down disorders in the old quarter of Jerusalem war not disclosed, but the rebel-infested Bethlehem area was considered a likely objective.

Sporadic sniping continued in Jerusalem last night, and troops still surrounded the Mosque of Omar, where many Arabs were believed to be safely entrenched.

Welfare workers handed out food to hungry residents of the old city, still suffering from a provision shortage. Shops were closed, and authorities started to remove refuse from shuttered bazaars as a precaution against epidemics.

Two Jewish workers were killed and two were wounded in an ambush near Tel Aviv, but no major incidents were reported elsewhere in the Holy Land.

Saskatchewan Girl Came 1,770 Miles To Namesake Vessel

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—(CP).—A 24-year-old Saskatchewan farm girl pinched pennies until she had enough for train fare to Montreal and back, slipped quietly away from her home at Chamberlin and came here to visit the liner Alaunia—namesake of the ship on which she was born.

The story of her lonely 1,770-mile journey came out when Alanuia Deible stepped aboard the vessel in port here and met a steward who remembered her birth on the original Alaunia, later torpedoed during the Great War.

It was in 1914, a few months before the outbreak of hostilities, that Michael Deibele and his wife, Germans living in Russia, packed their belongings and set out for Canada. On the voyage a daughter was born. "I remember that family," said Steward Eden Thomas Cue of the Alaunia. "I remember when the little girl was born."

On board ship the "little girl" now grown up, who considered Montreal "old-fashioned," explained, "I want to try everything while I am here." "Everything" included seeing a movie and getting lost before she boarded a train back to Chamberlin, where her mother "is probably grey-headed from worry now."

Close Struggle Expected In Waterloo

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 21—(CP).—A close battle between the Liberal and Conservative candidates is anticipated when Waterloo South electors select a successor to the late A. M. Edwards, Conservative member of Parliament, in the forthcoming November 14 Federal by-election.

The ridings Liberal Association last night nominated Mayor R. K. Serviss of Galt, President of the Ontario Mayors Association and long prominent in civic politics, as its candidate. Opposing him will be Karl K. Homuth, who represented the constituency in the Ontario Legislature far 12 years, as the Conservative nominee. Mr. Homuth was nominated October 11.

Past Governmental policies in dealing with Canadas railway problem were criticized by Mr. Serviss in his address of acceptance before the nominating convention. He suggested Premier Hepburn of Ontario as a man who could solve it. The problem never would be solved "until you get a man in Ottawa like Premier Hepburn who will do it."

Mayor Serviss was nominated by acclamation. Three other candidates withdrew.

Spark Is Blamed For Mine Tragedy

LONDON, Oct. 21—(CP Cable).—Ignition of coal dust by an electric arc caused the Markham colliery disaster last May in which 79 miners were killed, according to the findings of commissioner P. E. Sandlands, appointed to investigate the explosion.

He concluded the explosion was caused by sparks after an electric joint box had been broken by runaway tubs when a cloud of coal dust from some of the tubs was still in the air.

The disaster, one of the worst in British mining history, took a life from almost every home in the little Derbyshire village. It took several days to recover the bodies from the workings and almost an equal number of miners were injured in the disaster. Survivors accounts of the explosion told of a flash of flame, terrific concussion and clouds of coal dust blowing about the workings like a storm.

Double Show

MARMORA, Ont., Oct. 21—(CP)—A sideshow spectator stole the show at Marmora's fall fair but was his face red? Main attraction at the show was a glass-blowing, snake swallowing act. Somehow his clothing came apart, and, followed by howls of laughter, he had to seek the safety of a nearby tree to repair the damage.

Reading, Escape From Everyday Worries, Neglected Says Lady Tweedsmuir

Smith's Falls, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)

READING is the most neglected accomplishment in modern civilization, Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir, told a church meeting here Thursday.

"Real readers," who derive benefit and pleasure from books, should choose their own books in preference to accepting ready-made choices, she said.

Prague Cancels 20th Birthday Celebration

PRAGUE, Oct. 21.—(AP).— The Czechoslovak government to-day decreed cancellation of Czechoslovakia's 20th birthday celebration planned for next Friday. The Cabinet advised the people to "spend the day in the work of rebuilding the republic," instead of celebrating as in previous years.

The War Ministry in the meantime ordered immediate relief to three groups of Jewish refugees living in the fields near Breclav.

The War Ministry acted with the Czechoslovak Red Cross in ordering relief for Jewish refugees.

The 204 refugees, Czechoslovaks said, were forced to leave their homes when the German army of occupation took over Breclav, now the German city of Lundenberg, more than 10 days ago. Since then they have been without shelter in No Man's Land between German and Czechoslovak territory.

A woman Red Cross representative said the refugees were suffering pitifully and that German troops had forbidden trucks loaded with food to go to their encampments.

New Proposals

BUDAPEST, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Czechoslovak government today submitted a new proposal to Hungary for settlement of their issue over Hungarian minorities in Czechoslovakia. Official circles said the offer was considerably better than the last made by Czechoslovakia but still was inadequate and would be refused.

This was the fourth Czechoslovak plan. It was reported to offer cession of about 7,300 sq. kilometres (2,818.5 square miles) but not to include a large number of towns Hungary demands, including Bratislava. The Hungarian demand is for almost 12,000 square kilometres (5,091.3 square miles) with a population of about 1,100,000, and a plebiscite in the rest of Slovakia.

Donohue To Defend Dolly Quinton

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, who is charged with armed robbery of the Mount Brydges Royal Bank branch last week has engaged J. M. Donohue, prominent local criminal lawyer as his legal counsel it was learned today.

Quinton, picked out in a police identification lineup as a man who had been seen in Mount Brydges the day before the bank robbery, was visited in his cell by Mr. Donohue today.

A. S. Ferguson, engaged as counsel for Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, also facing an armed robbery charge, and for Kathleen Byrne, 22-year-old Hull girl who is held as a material witness in the case, also visited his clients today.

Following this the two lawyers had a brief interview with Crown Attorney Newton but no statement was issued.

Mr. Ferguson said, however, that Miss Byrne had denied her mother's story that she was kidnapped by Campbell in Ottawa July 31.

Germany, has been smashed.

The French-sponsored Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—which was to fight with France in the event of German aggression is cold ashes. The keystone of this structure was Czechoslovakia, small but stout. The other members of the Entente both are now making gestures of friendship towards Germany.

No More Trust in Britain, France.

The explanations, which are given with perfect freedom everywhere, are couched in almost identical language. I have heard this over and over:

"Czechoslovakia put her faith in her French alliance. When the showdown came the alliance didn't save her. It is patent that the small countries of Eastern Europe cannot look for assistance of this sort from France and Great Britain. We must take care of ourselves."

This doesn't mean that these nations are prepared to pawn their political birthrights to Germany even though it seems advisable to work economically with Hitler. Poland, for example, although very friendly to Berlin is maintaining a highly independent attitude as she always has. As a matter of fact Poland saw the writing on the wall long ago as regards the influence of France in Eastern Europe. It was the late Marshal Pilsudski, Poland's grand old man, who called the turn in 1933.

I understand that he then advised France to wage a preventive war against Germany as he figured it would have to be fought eventually. France turned down the idea and Pilsudski altered his policy forthwith. He said the alternative to affiliation with France was to come to terms with Germany and he did. There have been ups and downs in the friendship but it has been firm during the past year.

It is also interesting to note that Pilsudski in 1934 predicted France's alliance with Russia would result in breaking up of French influence in Central Europe in four or five years. Many Polish people credit the Marshal with having been psychic and point to this prediction as an example of his extraordinary foresight.

Col. Drew replied that his only purpose had been to show there had been plans in the department for building munitions in government arsenals, and he had wanted to know when and why those plans had been abandoned.

Favors Lindsay Arsenal

Mr. Mackenzie said Lindsay arsenal could not have been used for small arms manufacture until the shell making plant at Quebec and filling plants at Valcartier had been completed. Lowest estimate for completing that work was $5,500,000. "I have always pressed for development of Lindsay and I still do," the minister said.

Col. Ralston then produced a report of the Dominion arsenal building sub-committee showing the estimated cost of machinery for the proposed arsenal at upwards of $3,000,000.

Col. Ralston also produced minutes of meetings of the defence council consisting of senior officers of the department with the Minister as chairman.

On Oct. 28, 1936, the Council discussed supplies of small arms and ammunition and Major General E. C. Ashton, chief of the general staff, Commander P. W. Nelles, chief of the naval staff, Air Commodore G. M. Croil, senior air officer; Col. R. D. Orde, judge advocate general, and Major General T. V. Anderson, quarter-master general, believed the government should operate its own arsenals for small arms and other supplies, including airplane engines. They agreed it would be necessary to use civil service factories to meet present requirements and in case of emergency.

Need $300,000 At Lindsay.

On the other hand the Deputy Minister, General Lafleche, and the Master General of the Ordnance, General A. C. Caldwell, did not favor government factories beyond those already in operation because of the cost and delay involved: They said it would cost $6,000,00 at Valcartier and $300,000 at Lindsay to provide for the manufacture of shells at Valcartier and small arms at Lindsay.

The Master General of the Ordnance said at the conference that from two to two and a half years would be required to complete the ammunition plant at Valcartier.

Electric Air Gun

DETROIT, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The United States is developing an electric antiaircraft gun that will shoot down raiding airplanes as readily as a good hunter kills a duck, George M. Miller, engineer, disclosed today at the convention here of the iron and steel division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

The gun would shoot 6,000 feet a second and pour out an endless stream of bullets, eliminating any difficulty in allowing for the airplane's speed. The gun's inventor is Dr. Edwin F. Northup, formerly of Princeton University.

International Brigade Disbanded

Commissar Johnny Gate, a Britisher, is pictured here as he addressed volunteers of the 15th or International Brigade of the Spanish government army, when that body of international fighters was disbanded. The brigade, credited with much effective work against General Francisco Franco's Nationalist forces, was disbanded when Juan Negrin, government premier, agreed to do so following Premier Mussolini's withdrawal of his volunteer troops who had been fighting with the Nationalists.

Hoare Answers Hitler By Adopting His Motto, "Peace, Preparation"

CLACTON - ON - SEA, England, Oct. 21 (CP)—Great Britain's answer to German critics of her war preparedness program made "in a way that should carry conviction" was given last night by Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary.

He declared "I must be prepared for some successor who may not hold his (Hitler's) view," as he appealed for Anglo-German co-operation but reaffirmed Britain's determination to speed its rearmament to make the United Kingdom impregnable against a knockout blow from the air.

Sir Samuel, member of the "inner cabinet" which advised Prime Minister Chamberlain on the pre-Munich crisis over Czechoslovakia and, as home secretary, director of air raid precautions, said measures to tighten up such defence would be announced shortly.

He said he believed Hitler's peace pledge just as Hitler said he believed those of Mr. Chamberlain and Premier Daladier of France.

"But, like Hitler, I must be prepared for some successor who may not hold his views."

Sir Samuel borrowed what he said was Hitler's own motto to express British policy of being "always willing for peace and at any hour for defence." He said it was

Spectator Goes Mad In Sikora Trial

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—(AP).—Portrayed by his defenders as the "perfect husband" who slew his love rival during a fit of insanity, Rudolph Sikora faced cross examination today by prosecutors intent on proving him a stealthy, deliberate killer.

The 31-year-old defendant described yesterday how his three years of marital bliss came to an unexpected end after his young wife, Margaret, fell in love with Edward Solomon.

Solomon, 35 years old, urbane, university educated, was shot to death on a street corner last Aug. 22.

The defendant went to the witness stand after hearing his mother-in-law staunchly defend him and his wife testify for the state. He told of Margaret's waning love for him, how he pleaded with her for an explanation, and her sudden suggestion that they "call it quits."

"I asked her what I had done, if I had been mean or cruel to her," Sikora said. "She said no—that she was well satisfied and that I had been the perfect husband to her."

The defendant said he told Solomon to "quit going with my wife," and that the latter promised to break off the romance. He soon discovered that the pledge had been broken and his wife then left their home.

Midway during yesterday's court session a male spectator in the corridor screamed, "that's what marriage does to you," and began divesting himself of his clothing. Court attendants seized him, clad only in underwear, and hustled him away to a psychopathic hospital.

Unwanted Goat

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Ost. 21—(CP).—The humane society here got somebody's goat yesterday and wouldn't mind returning it. Police found a brown-and-white nanny wanderin garound the city early in the morning. She was quickly captured and turned over to the humane society.

Saving a 1912 Film

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—(AP).—The work of a cluster of early film stars has been placed in the national archives.

Mary Pickford presented a copy of the 1912 film, "The New York Hat," to the government yesterday. She was the leading lady.

Walters and Pine Both Protest

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP).—While race officials fretted today over a protest by the Canadian defender of the International Fisherman's Trophy, Captain Angus Walters, and a counter protest against the big salt banker Bluenose by the skipper of the challenging Gloucesterman Gertrude L. Thebaud, Walters ordered the title holder out on a marine railway to inspect her underbody.

Walters said he feared Bluenose might have been damaged when she struck a submerged obstruction while towing back to port after yesterday's unfinished race.

A failing breeze caused postponement after the American challenger had taken a lead of approximately a mile, virtually insuring her victory had there been wind enough to finish within a six-hour time limit. Thebaud had negotiated only about 22 miles of a 36-mile course and with only an hour and a quarter remaining there was no chance of her finishing.

The protest against Bluenose was based upon shifting of ballast, which Capt. Walters freely admitted. Under the rules, ballast must not be increased or decreased once a series opens.

The charge brought by Captain Walters was that Thebaud has been sailing with more canvas than the deed of gift of the trophy permits.

A race scheduled for today was postponed till Saturday at Walters' request. He displayed a piece of splintered timber about two feet long which he said a diver plucked from Bluenose's keel at Boston a few days ago.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures traded narrowly in a quiet session to-day influenced by firmness of outside markets. At the close values were ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher, October 62½, November 62, December 61 ¼ to ⅜, and May 64⅝.

Canadian export wheat sales were estimated at 250,000 bushels, and traders reported more interest for top grades of Northern wheat in the cash market.

Wheat averaged a little higher for the third straight session on fair seaboard buying which offset light offerings. Speculative interest was slow.

Shy $50,000 Bail Snyder Back In Cell

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21—(AP).—Martin Snyder again occupied a jail cell in lieu of $50,000 bail today, while the state moved to try him on charges he kidnapped and attempted to murder Myril Alderman, his successor to Singer Ruth Etting's love.

The original charges against Snyder were superseded last night by a grand jury indictment—voted after Miss Etting testified that he shot Alderman in the music room of her Hollywood hills home last Saturday night. The indictment permits the case to go to trial without a preliminary hearing.

Miss Etting, 42, flaxen-haired and visibly nervous, spoke to the jury in trembling voice of the shooting scrape.

She said Alderman drove up to the house with Snyder holding a pistol against his back. Once inside, she said, Snyder told her, Alderman and Edith Snyder, his step-daughter, that "I'm going to kill all of you."

One bullet from Snyder's pistol went wild, she continued, but the second struck Alderman in the abdomen as the lights in the room went out.

Fired at Her Father.

She told of running into the bedroom to get her own revolver, a struggle with Snyder for its possession, and of Edith, her secretary, retrieving the weapon from the floor and firing at her father's retreating back.

Miss Snyder, who emerged from the jury room in tears, said she "just shot in the darkness" because Snyder "was chasing Ruthie and Ruthie has been kinder to me than anyone in the world."

Snyder, before going off to jail, emptied his pockets of cash and took a gold watch inscribed "From Ruth to Moe" from his wrist.

"Well, the little lady hung another one on me," he said, "but I can take it now because I guess all the old fires are dead."

Euchre Party Held By Hastings W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 21. — The beautiful autumn afternoon of Monday and the lovely motor drive to The Maples, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston of Asphodel, and one of the most successful euchre parties sponsored by the Hastings Women's Institute held in their country home will long be remembered by the forty ladies who enjoyed this delightful social event. Upon arrival, the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Preston and her daughters, Misses Rhea and Ferne. The large sunroom—made attractive with potted plants and ferns—and the cheery living-room proved ideal places for the euchre. Nine tables were played, and after a series of ten games the prizes were awarded: First prize, a tablecloth donated by K. Tedford of Norwood, won by Mrs. H. Stephenson; lucky chair prize, a cup and saucer donated by Miss Rhea Preston, won by Mrs. Alexander White; lone-hand prize, a cut-glass bon-bon dish donated by Mrs. C. Baker, won by Mrs. J. A. Brown; consolation prize, won by Mrs. J. A. MacDonald.

Mrs. C. Dodd supervised the marking of the score cards, and following the game lunch was served by the members, assisted by the hostesses and a social hour was enjoyed. A freeze-out proved exciting as twenty ladies played. Mrs. H. Stephenson again proved to be the best player and won a chicken as prize donated by Mrs. Preston.

Before departing for their homes the president, Mrs. J. A. Brown, moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Preston and her daughters. Mrs. Preston responded and all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

Among those present were: Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. A. V. German, Mrs. J. Cruikshank, Mrs. R. Matthews, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. W. Faux, Mrs. J. A. Walsh, Mrs. Agnes Dunlay, Mrs. C. Satisfying Trio Ticklish Task For Nazis

BERLIN, Oct. 21—(AP).—Nazi officials were placed in the delicate position to-day of trying to mediate the claims of three of Germany's friends to part of Czechoslovakia.

Poland and Hungary, old allies of Germany, want a joint frontier formed by Hungary's annexation of sections of Ruthenia and Slovakia, newly granted autonomy by the Prague government.

Czechoslovakia, the newest friend, already shrunken by grants to Germany, Poland and Hungary, want to keep what she has left. Representatives were sent to Germany or each other's capitals to plead their respective cases.

Chancellor Hitler left the dispute in the hands of his Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, and went to Linz en route to Sudentenland to complete a tour of areas German troops occupied October 1 to 10.

Despite the delicacy of the situation, Foreign Office circles expressed optimism that joint German-Italian activity would solve the tangled questions of Czechoslovak minorities.

Czechs Appeal Anew.

Informed quarters said the arrival of four Czech minister was awaited this week-end in an effort to facilitate normalization of German-Czech relations. Three diplomats—Prime Minister Joseph Tiso of Slovakia, his Minister of Education, Dr. Ferdinand Durciansky and Ruthenian Minister Edmund Bacinsky—presented their side of the case of Ribbentrop yesterday at Munich.

Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland talked—vainly, it was said—with King Carol of Rumania about dismembering Ruthenia, the eastern end of Czechslovakia. Carol Sidor, a special Slovak delegate, went to Warsaw to learn Poland's attitude regarding Slovakia and said the Slovaks would not oppose a joint Hungarian-Polish frontier if the Ruthenians wanted to join Hungary.

Manitoba Shy On Moisture For 1939 Crop

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 — (CP). — Autumn sub-soil moisture conditions on which the farmer usually pins his hopes for next year's crop, range from poor to excellent over the three Prairie Provinces, a survey today showed. Saskatchewan and Alberta reported conditions fairly promising, but Manitoba farmers generally considered the outlook unfavorable at the moment.

However, advent of soaking rains before frost strikes and plenty of moisture next spring and in the growing season will alter the Manitoba picture.

Weather Bureau officials said the records of precipitation by inches from Sept. 1 showed Saskatchewan so far with 1.90, Alberta 1.72, but Manitoba with a reading of .36, far below normal.

Grain firms also reported Manitoba wheat lands suffering from a late-summer and fall dry spell. The Searle Grain Company, Limited, in a review of August and September, described the Manitoba situation as 57 per cent. of normal, Saskatchewan 98 and Alberta 93.

Saskatchewan Government officials said the situation ran from good to excellent with one poor spot in the extreme south-eastern part of the province where few rains have occurred since the harvest. Alberta authorities, preparing a sub-soil moisture survey for release on Nov. 1, described conditions as fair to favorable.

Manitoba farmers in areas just south of Winnipeg said the soil was so dry they were unable to accomplish fall ploughing properly. For more than a foot beneath the surface at some points the earth held no moisture.

"There is a distance below-normal moisture condition in Manitoba this fall," Hon. D. L. Campbell, Manitoba Minister of Agriculture, said. "I consider that one of the biggest single factors in the next year's crop is moisture we get the fall before."

BUT CAR STARTING IS ONLY ONE OF EXIDE'S MANY DAILY SERVICES TO YOU!

If you asked Bill Smith, an average business man, how often he used an Exide Storage Battery, he might answer—"Once to start my car in the morning and once again at night, about twice a day." But, let us follow Bill Smith and see. He drives to work and parks his car.

That evening at home, Bill Smith turns on his radio. The broadcasting station uses *storage batteries to help keep its programmes on the air.

He takes an elevator to his office—operated by a dependable supply of electric current that *storage batteries help to ensure.

Later at a motion picture theatre, he hears the voices of the actors with startling realism—because the steady power of *storage batteries was used in making the film.

In one morning he makes a dozen telephone calls—without knowing that *storage batteries help to carry his voice over the wires.

Asleep at night, Bill Smith and millions like him relax because of the protection offered by municipal fire-alarm systems, for which *storage batteries are the source of unfailing power.

If his firm receives a shipment from abroad, *storage batteries helped to ensure its safer passage because batteries are used aboard ship to safeguard the operation of wireless and modern protective apparatus—while most of the trucks that handle the cargo on the docks are electric trucks powered by *storage batteries.

Like Bill Smith, all of us can take these services for granted largely because Exide Batteries perform their functions with such complete dependability. It is facts like these that can help to guide you in selecting the battery for your car. Is there any other battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence? Income Will Decrease

Making speeches about and attacks upon big estates is a popular enough habit, but people who indulge in this pastime seldom go on to explain the manner in which governments of the day are making inroads on these same estates.

When Horace E. Dodge, car maker, died, it was found he had left a trust fund of $12,000,000 for Horace Dodge, Jr. There was something else found the other day, and the finding was done by the revenue department at Washington. There had been no tax paid, so they took $647,185.

Horace Dodge died in 1920 and the estate paid to the government in taxes $753.193, and an additional amount of $75,000 by way of interest.

So the government has already taken from this estate apart from taxes which come as income derived from it by the present holders:

Additional estate tax	$647,185
First tax on estate	753,193
Interest	75,000
Total	$1,475,378

It is difficult to believe that this form of taxation can continue at top speed in any country and do so indefinitely. In the first place the known tendency of governments to claim a large part of an estate by way of inheritance tax will cause people to get rid of a fair share of their holdings during their living years. That will come because the incentive has been removed which formerly allowed large fortunes to be piled up and left pretty much undisturbed by governments. Then too the tax placed upon a large income is causing people to seek a way of escape even to the point of taking much of the money out of the country. We quite agree with the system of governments taking their full share of large estates and there is no fault to be found with taxing income, but we believe governments will find in the course of years this form of revenue will decrease as the size of the estates decrease through the amount which governments take from them.

Needs Some Thought

One can generally rely on a letter writer to have the solution for almost anything. It was suggested a few days ago in British cables that there was a scheme on to take a number of refugees who had fled from Austria and Germany to Czechoslovakia and find homes for them. It was suggested at the time that probably the British Dominions would come in under the scheme.

The Examiner has a letter which says in part:

"The least we can do is tell these people to come into our friendly land and find the opportunity which has been denied them elsewhere. We have plenty of land in this country and some of these refugees would probably be skilled workers who could go into our factories. If there is any love of freedom in us we should act at once and send forth word that the door is wide open to these poor people who so need a home such as we can give them. We should not hesitate for a moment."

There is no reason to doubt the sincerity of the person who wrote that letter, but there is some reason to question the practical application of the things which are advocated. It is true enough that we have a great deal of land in this country, and it is also true that in certain sections we have many farmers depending on relief, and for years they have been depending on the governments for the seed which they need. And we have a great many farmers who find they are bound by rules of world commerce and also by world prices to such an extent that their cash returns are small. Also there is the fact that it requires a fairly generous cash outlay for the person who intends to start farming in this country. True enough we have the land and we have abandoned farms which our own people hesitate to occupy.

Then we have cities and we have factories, and we also have a number of our own people—the number is too large—who find they cannot secure the employment for which they seek. The result is that the section of our population which is working makes its contribution for their support. And this form of assistance will have to be continued until such time as the supply of work overtakes the demand for it.

If there is any plan by which we can make room for some of these refugees, having consideration at the same time for our home obligations, then we might well consider it. But the fine gesture of throwing the door wide open and then trying to figure out afterward what we would do with these people is one which would probably have in none of these ingredients of successful solution.

Our Friendly Border

Once more some innocent people have become tangled in what we often enough refer to as the friendly international border line which separates Canada from United States. Of course in a way it is friendly. No person will shoot you there but there are other things which are done.

This way: Mrs. Mary MacKinnon, 31 years of age, a widow and the mother of four children, has been living in Detroit. She was married in United States although born in Nova Scotia and she took it for granted her marriage made her a United States citizen. It appears she was wrong in that belief. After her husband died she made application for citizenship papers and was advised her case was under advisement.

A few days ago she crossed the river from Detroit to Windsor to see her sister whose husband had died. When the short visit was over she started for her home in Detroit but has not yet reached there because the authorities say she entered United States illegally in the first place and cannot come back.

So there you have a fair sample of what can take place at this friendly international border. The mother is on the Canadian side and cannot go to the four children in Detroit. The children must remain in Detroit because they are not eligible to come into Canada. One of the functions of good government is to help people and not to worry them to the point of distraction. There would be plenty said if this mother had walked out and left her four children, but apparently it is all right for officialdom to produce a situation the effect of which is exactly the same.

The Late Richard Lees

Richard Lees, M. A., for many years school inspector of Peterborough East, is dead in his 83rd year. He was inspector for 25 years and before that he had been a teacher. It is correct to say that Mr. Lees was more than just a teacher, nor would he look upon his work as an inspector as merely an occupation. He deserved wider recognition in that larger word—he was an educationist. He believed thoroughly and without reservation in the work to which he had set his hand.

If one were seeking for words of tribute it would be entirely right to compress much which might be said into the brief statement that Richard Lees was a Christian gentleman. His preference for such things as were fundamentally sound and that kindly manner of his address as well as the charitable view he was moved to take of human frailties marked him as one who had learned as he progressed and whose judgment had become mellow without suffering from weak compromise.

Many things interested this fine gentleman; his ability to remember incidents and people of other years was accurate and keen. To have known such a man can be counted by many people as high privilege.

A Novel Sort of Worry

If all the people who had something about which they worried were to tell their troubles to the newspapers we suppose many columns would be filled each and every day in the week.

James Trussler of Kitchener had something new to worry about the other day. Along with his wife he was driving toward Doon (pretty spot) and he ran into a guard-rail, after which it was found that Mrs. Trussler had suffered a fractured shoulder.

Mr. Trussler is 75 years of age and has been driving a car for 22 years and never had a mishap before, but that was not what bothered him at all.

Mr. and Mrs. Trussler were on the way to visit Mr. Trussler's father, who is 100 years old, and the son was worrying a bit about what father might have to say to him.

It is not unusual for fathers in general to have a series of conversations with sons who take the family car out and bump it about with varying degrees of injury, but it is very unusual for a son of 75 to be wondering what a father of 100 is going to say when he hears that the son wrecked his car and injured his wife.

A Sound Decision

The Presbyterian Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, meeting in Montreal, considered a strongly-worded resolution which denounced the padlock law of the province of Quebec. That law was put into effect to fight communism, and under it the officers have power to enter premises and padlock them if they find evidence of communist literature being handled therein. For our own part we do not like the law and doubt very much if it will serve the purpose which prompted its creation.

But the Synod in Montreal decided not to pass the resolution, although there was plenty of forthright debating on the subject. Dr. Malcolm Campbell of Montreal seemed to state the view which determined the course taken in refusing to pass the resolution. He said the Synod derived half its members from Ontario and should therefore not tell the government of Quebec what to do. Continuing he contended:

"I do not know that this is a good law, but let us as a church not interfere in politics which would be dabbling in something which is not our affair as a synod."

And right there the gentleman from Montreal was on pretty solid ground. He recognized the line between church and state. The synod would doubtless resent the government of the province of Quebec passing a resolution telling it what it should do or should not do. The average church gathering of today will find it has tremendous problems of its own which call for all available strength and resource which the church can muster without looking into the field of political enactment for extended fields of action.

These Weather Men

Sir Frederic Stupart was for 34 years head of the Meteorological Service of Canada. He retired some years ago but has never ceased to keep alive a keen interest in forecasting weather. Possibly all Weather Men get that way in time. On his 81st birthday he was moved to admit there was a great deal about weather which he did not know, but after making that mild admission he was minded to poke fun at a good many things which people believe.

Sir Frederic says the groundhog and his shadow mean nothing at all. Squirrels being active in the fall and a heavy crop of nuts he places in the same class. They mean nothing. Sir Frederic said "The squirrels don't know anything more about it than I do. Nor do the Indians."

Now that is taking in quite a good deal of territory and knocking over a good many finger posts on the weather road. It may be Sir Frederic has made the error of arriving at too many conclusions in Toronto. Possibly he never met Chief Dan Whetung of Curve Lake Reserve who two or three weeks ago said the ducks were not moving and therefore we'd have a spell of warm weather in October. Which we had. And like as not he never met Wilford Jacobs, the happy Indian guide whose snug log cabin is on the shore of Lovesick Lake just above Burleigh Falls. During a wet spell in the early part of the year Wilford told us one day there would be at least five days ahead without any rain. And the rain came at the close of the fifth day. Possibly Sir Frederic, surrounded by charts and instruments, has never heard of the natural simplicity of Wilford's method—he says he can "feel" when it is going to rain and if he does not "feel" the rain then it is not coming.

And does Sir Frederic take no stock at all in those super-men who turn out a calendar telling the weather for a whole year in advance? It takes brains to sit down a year ahead and tell that between July 1 and 10 there will be some warm weather and perhaps a thunderstorm. Surely he cannot toss such a man out on his ear and say he knows nothing about weather. And Jim Curran who publishes the Star in Sault Ste. Marie tells weather by looking at a cedar post. If it's wet he knows it has been raining. Pshaw—there are so many ways of telling the weather.

IT MAY COME

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The time and season matters not, perhaps it's cool or rather hot, perhaps the cold wind blows; no special spot does she require, when lady feels the strong desire, to powder up her nose.

¶ I saw her in the corner store, stand placed like inside the door, and she produced her kit; she worked before her little glass, while others hastened by to pass, she didn't mind a bit.

¶ I saw her on the corner too, about the time day's work was through, she tilted up her head; she had the tools to ply her trade, and worked quite cool and unafraid, to add a little red.

¶ I saw her on the crowded street, where folk might step upon her feet, the crowd might come and go; from out her bag she brought a tin, to operate upon her chin, and fix it so-and-so.

¶ I saw her enter in the kirk, she did a bit of speedy work, her technique knew no flaw; for as the worshippers filed past, she found a little spot at last, and daubed upon her jaw.

¶ Perhaps some clever mind will find, a system that will be more kind, where color schemes will stay; so lady can go forth with ease, and do whatever things she'll please — and know 'twill last all day.

Found London Not Too Critical

THE REAL VIEW of the thinking British people is that a great victory has been won, not by Germany, not by England, not by dictatorship and not by democracy, but by the peace-loving people of the world. Peace itself is the victory. Peace provides an opportunity for the solution of many problems. Even peace-at-any price is always less costly than war.

True one hears many conflicting opinions expressed, even by the average folks one meets in the course of a day's travel around London, says Floyd Chalmers, writing to the Financial Post from London.

For instance, a manufacturer said to me: "None of us feel very happy about this. We do not like to admit it but we know, deep down in our hearts, that we bowed to force."

The next day a man in the street remarked: "We have to feel a little bit ashamed of the settlement. We are glad we did not have to fight a war but it is not pleasant to think that we achieved peace at the cost of deserting a helpless country in her hour of need."

But I think the real view of England was best expressed to me by a world-famous figure who was never far from Mr. Chamberlain's right hand throughout the crisis. He said:

"I do not feel unhappy nor do I feel ashamed. We have met the supreme threat of the dictatorship states and have come out without a war. We have had to compromise but Hitler, too, has had to compromise and that is important. Every nation in Europe now knows better where it stands than it knew six months ago. And every government head in Europe realizes today—some of them for the first time—that in no country of the world are the people willing to fight a war. The supreme desire of the peoples of the world, whether in the democratic states or in the totalitarian states, for a peaceful settlement of all possible causes of disputes has been demonstrated in a way that must influence the policy of every statesman and every tyrant."

I cannot say what Mr. Chamberlain's immediate moves may be in Europe. But I believe I know what his general policy will be. It is clear in the events of the moment.

It is, first, to achieve the settlement of European controversies while the dictators are still in a mood to talk.

It is, second, to proceed with redoubled vigor to prepare Britain for war if his peace moves fail.

Out of the crisis, Britain has gained a profound distrust of certain phases of post-war policy in Europe, particularly that of France whose eastern alliances have always threatened Britain with the prospect of being drawn into a war not of her own choosing. The guarantee to Czechoslovakia—which cannot be of genuine consequence unless Germany and Italy also join in it—has indeed thrown Britain into Europe again. But Britons are inclined to feel that it is better for Britain to assume fixed responsibilities in Europe than to assume unknown responsibilities as a result of permitting her foreign policy to be an appendage of French foreign policy.

QUEEN'S ENGLISH.

(Manchester Guardian)

IT WAS NOTICEABLE in the broadcast of the launching of the "Queen Elizabeth" that Queen Elizabeth pronounced "launch" with the vowels sound almost as in "alms", whereas in the evening news bulletin the BBC announcer pronounced it as in "walk". Both pronunciations are permissible, of course, but the Queen used the one that seems general among seafaring people. The Oxford English Dictionary prefers the "aw" sound, but in older dictionaries the "ah" sound is usually given first place.

There is a record of the word being written "lawnche" about the beginning of the fifteenth century, and as "lanch" a century and a half later. Marlowe wrote of "the face that launch'd a thousand ships", and the "launch" spelling seems to have become general after the seventeenth century.

The word is an adaptation of the Old French "lancher" or "lancier", to hurl or throw, coming from the Latin "lancea", a lance or spear. It might be noted that the word launch used to describe a type of ship's boat has a different derivation, coming by way of the Spanish "lancha" from the Malay word meaning "speedy."

GETTING FED UP.

(Windsor Star)

WE ARE just a little tired of reading how this or that bright youth has set out to join the hitch-hikers, see the world and perhaps earn enough money to put himself through college.

Hitch-hikers are a nuisance and a menace to public safety. Everyone, by this time, must be familiar with what has happened to literally dozens of good-natured, big-hearted motorists who have picked up likely-looking young men on the road only to find the experiment a costly one—a gun in the ribs, robbery, etc. You can hardly read a newspaper these days without running into a report of some incident of this kind.

Picking up strangers is a risky business and should be avoided. In more than one case it will be found that the thumber has more money in his pocket than the man who helps him. He is simply conserving his cash and cheating legitimate transportation companies by thumbing rides. And the most innocent-looking hitch-hiker may turn out to be a very dangerous character. That is usually revealed, however, when it is too late to do anything about it.

• Their Wages Are Much Too Low

CIVIL SERVANTS OF many classes get the attention of their department chiefs now and again with a request for better consideration in the matter of wages.

Rural mail carriers have for many years been making pleas for consideration that will place them more nearly on a par with other branches of the service, but with little success.

The lot of the rural mail carrier says the Chatham News, is much different from that prevailing in any other department, but somewhat improved from conditions existing a few years ago, when complaints of discrimination were first presented to the heads of the postal system.

They work under contract, yet there are provisions in those contracts that work a hardship, and these ought to be remedied. They are parties to the contracts, but the claim is made that they do not adequately understand the legal verbiage in which they are framed.

They have low wages compared with the city letter carriers; they have automobiles to maintain, or horses to keep, the cost of which is said to leave little or nothing for the manual service rendered, and whether they make or lose, the contract must be gone through with.

One of the difficulties is that there is still competition on the part of rural residents for the job of delivering His Majesty's mail, and while this continues there will be difficulty in improving the lot of the worker on the rural routes. The contracts could be made more liberal, so that no citizen should be required to work for less than a reasonable wage in so important a work of distributing throughout the country, in all kinds of weather, with few holidays, the letters and papers that make life in the rural districts more tolerable than used to be the case years ago.

• How To Succeed in Medicine

SOME YEARS AGO a "quack doctor" residing in Paris had to appear before a judge on a charge of practicing medicine without a license. To the astonishment of all present he calmly took out some papers from his pocket, handed them to the judge, and said, "I have the right to practice medicine and sell prescriptions. There is my doctor's diploma!"

"Then why do you hide your real profession?" asked the judge when he had assured himself of the authenticity of the documents.

"It's very simple," replied the accused man. "At the age of 27 I became a doctor and soon had a large practice. There was only one drawback—my patients didn't pay. I had to emigrate to America to look for work. There I managed to save some money, enough to enable me to return home and set up a little store.

"Through occasional prescriptions and cures among friends and acquaintances I won the reputation of a 'miracle-healer,' so that people took my advice on blind faith. They began to pour into my shop. And since they all believed I wasn't a real doctor, they paid me regularly and generously.

"I beg you, your honor, do not betray me!"

• When Canadians Go Abroad

LONDON NEWSPAPERS are wondering how many supermen we breed and develop in Canada. Captain John Edward Phillips, former Canadian army boxing champion, stormed into the police court of Brighton, England, the other morning and demanded the arrest of George Bastable, George Lambert and an unknown man for felonious assault. "Why don't you go to the police?" inquired Judge B. J. Saunders. "I put the case in their hands, but did not find them very helpful." "How was that?"

"Last evening, melud, I went to a restaurant. There were 3 men there and the manageress told me she was worried because they refused to pay their bill and had refused to leave. I told her to call the police. Apparently the men had heard me, for one of them asked me for a cigarette. As I was offering him my case he struck me with a bottle. Naturally, I hit him. Then another picked up a chair and threw it at me, another came at me with a bread knife. From these assaults, I defended myself. Then the police came and I told them to arrest my assailants. The police looked around and said it was a case for the ambulance. They advised me to see you. So here I am."

"I can only issue summonses", said the judge. "Where are they to be found?" "In the Brighton Hospital, melud," volunteered the constable who had accompanied Captain Phillips.

• Hard Choices Made In War

(From the Detroit Free Press)

THE CHINESE FORCES at Hankow are reported to be prepared to destroy the Wuhan cities—Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang—if they cannot hold them against the Japanese, who have been gradually closing in on them.

The object of this "scorched earth" answer to the Japanese invasion is to destroy with dynamite and fire everything that might be of profit or service to the invaders.

Around Shanghai, and again in Shantung, this policy was carried to the point of destroying many millions of dollars' worth of property, a good deal of which belonged to Japanese firms but much more of which was owned by Chinese.

Cruel as such destruction of mills and factories and other means of employment for thousands of people appears at the moment to be, there are many precendents for it in the history of war.

And who can blame the Chinese authorities if, after putting up a heroic resistance, they are forced to choose between burning their industrial centers or leaving them to be exploited by the invader?

That is one of the hard choices which war frequently compels countries to make.

• Admits That She Is Selfish

ANSWERING IN Chicago Daily News the question: "Suppose You Had To Do It Over Again, Would You Marry or Remain Single?

"I am a single woman. If I had it to do over I would choose that over the wedded bliss which it has been my experience to observe and which probably, would have been mine had I married. I would have even less chance of happiness than most because if I had chosen marriage it would have been to a man I did not love, since the man I cared for did not happen to feel that way about me. I am still firmly of the opinion that there must be mutual love to make a happy marriage. Upon this marriage is based. If you have it, adjustments come easy.

Most marriages I know about are mere habit, and it is not always a good habit. All idea of deep soul-satisfying happiness has long been lost in labored domesticity, resulting in a restless discontent and a desire to escape, which desire usually is muffled because of accumulated responsibilities, such as children, properties, etc.

The difference between the home I have and the home I might have had is this: My day's work ends at 5 p.m. At that time I go home to my apartment, a soothing, restful place, which is taken care of by a maid who also cooks for me. When I get home, I leisurely bathe, rest a few minutes, then eat dinner. Dinner for one? Yes, unless I care to have guests, and I very often go out to dinner with an interesting companion, sometimes male, sometimes female.

I am not unattractive. I have been in the business world long enough to take an interest in men's affairs, and have them interested in me to the extent that I do not lack masculine attention. Lonely? Yes, sometimes, but you can find loneliness in marriage.

If I made a home for a husband, here would be the business of feeding him and the three children which we probably would have, the business of keeping them clean and clothed; keeping a house furnished and in nice order. It is a job that does not end at 5 p.m. and is many times harder than my job, with few compensatory rewards.

Yes, I am selfish, but so is everyone else. Does anyone ever seek marriage with any other but a selfish desire for personal happiness? Therefore, if I choose to remain single, am I more selfish?"

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

FOR THE LAW HAVING a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto perfect. . . . For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me. . . .

Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will, O God. Above when he said, Sacrifice and offering and burnt offerings and offering for sin thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein; which are offered by the law; then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second. By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.—Heb. x, 1, 4, 5, 7-10.

GERMAN OIL PROBLEM.

(Manchester Guardian)

IN 1936 Germany consumed 5,420,000 tons of oil. It is reckoned that in war-time she would require not less than 12,000,000 tons. Where are they to come from? Germany's own wells produce only 450,000 tons of crude oil a year. Another 750,000 tons might come from coke ovens, gas works, and alcohol distilled from potatoes, but that is all. The rest (apart frm reserves) must be provided by the huge hydrogenation plants which have been set up to make synthetic oil from coal. It is just possible that by the end of this year or the beginning of next, Germany will be able to produce sufficient petrol for her peace-time consumption; but what of heavier oils? And, still more to the point, what of war-time consumption? It is incredible that Germany can produce more than half her necessary requirements of oil; the rest must come from reserves—or the oil-fields of Rumania. This might seem to be another reason for seeing that Czechoslovakia does not disappear from the map of Europe.

SPOON-FED FARMING.

(Farmer's Advocate)

THE FARM PROBLEM is universal and nations have attempted to solve it each in their own way. For us in Canada a government bonus is not the solution, neither is price fixing, state control nor a wishy-washy policy of government paternalism. The remedy must be based on the recognition of agriculture as an industry and the right of farm people to enjoy the same opportunities and economic advantages that are within the reach of other social and industrial groups. If agriculture cannot survive on that basis it will have to decline. It cannot prosper on any other basis, for the financial resources of Canada are not sufficient to support agriculture as a bonused industry.

U.S. Asks Wider Concessions On Car Exports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (CP) — Great Britain was understood to have under consideration today a United States request for further concessions on certain American products before negotiations leading to a trade agreement can be continued.

Reliable quarters in Washington stated United States negotiators felt further talks would serve no useful purpose unless London saw its way clear to lower its tariff barriers against these products.

It was reported the state department here had sent London a communication stating that as things stand at present there was nothing to warrant the United States government signing the proposed treaty. The communication is declared to have summarized the concessions Britain has offered so far.

Products causing the trouble were said to be automobiles, hams lard and bacon. The automobile discussion centred on application to cars of 20 horsepower or more than 10 per cent tariff reduction the British were willing to make on cars of 25 horsepower or more.

Negotiations leading to trade agreement between the United States and the United Kingdom, Newfoundland and certain of the colonies, have been underway for six months. They have been carried on simultaneously with talks looking to a new reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

May Delay Canada's Pact

(In Ottawa it was felt difficulties encountered in the Anglo-American negotiations might delay signing of the Canada-United States pact because the two treaties are complementary in many respects.)

The proposed Anglo-American treaty is the most ambitious part of State Secretary Hull's general program of lowering world trade barriers by bargaining and yesterday's report that negotiators had reached a stalemate was the first public intimation here that the pact might not materialize.

Negotiators for both sides, it was reported, felt they had gone as far as they could in concessions. United States negotiators were reported to have declared the minimum of concessions for British products entering the United States had been raised several times and that further concessions now must come from the United Kingdom.

It was said United States negotiators felt concessions already made by Great Britain on the higher horsepower cars would not assist American exports inasmuch as such cars could not compete with low horsepower automobiles.

Club For Jewish Girls

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas)—Queen Mary yesterday opened a new club house for Jewish girls at Stepney, in London's populous east end.

The Queen Mother was visibly moved when Mrs. James de Rothschild, a member of the club committee, quoted from a speech by the late King George V at Westminster Hall during the silver jubilee: "Under this flag of freedom so many millions eat their daily bread with none to make them afraid."

Navy Mobilization Stands The Test

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP). — In the midst of charges the German-Czechoslovak crisis had revealed "glaring deficiencies" in Great Britain's defensive armor, the nation's first line of defence—the Royal Navy—emerged with enhanced reputation.

Of all the services, the navy has been singled out for generous praise for the way in which it met the challenge of the emergency.

When orders were issued to mobilize the navy during the early hours of Sept. 28, there were some misgivings among admiralty officials as to how the machinery of organization would function under urgent pressure. There were fears complicated mechanism which had not been tested since the general mobilization of 1914, might disclose some weaknesses.

But the machine, according to admiralty spokesmen ran smoothly and efficiently throughout "beyond highest expectations."

Although the fleet was never completely mobilized, 30,000 men were at their posts three days from the time the proclamation was signed by the King. The formality of signing took place at 11 a.m. Sept. 28, but morning papers of the same day brought the call to early readers several hours before the proclamation was officially signed.

A number of reservists who read about the order in early editions had reported by 6 a.m. Two hundred had arrived at one depot by 8 a.m. At two other depots 8,500 men were examined, passed and equipped within 24 hours.

Majority of the men were drafted to ships without delay, some being on their way within three hours of arrival.

Lifford Holds Presentation Party For Staples Newlyweds

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Oct. 21.—The Lifford community hall was the scene of gay activity on Monday evening when approximately seventy-five members of the neighboring community gathered to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Staples whose marriage took place at the bride's home near Bowmanville in September. The bride before her marriage was Miss Vera Trimble, a former teacher at Lifford and recently taught at Stewart Hall, Otonabee.

The early part of the evening was pleasantly spent in playing cards and in social conversation.

Later on Mr. George Tims called the gathering to order and asked the guests of honor to occupy a prominent position at the front of the hall. He then read an appropriate address expressing the appreciation and best wishes of the friends assembled and a beautiful clock was presented. The groom responded in a few well chosen words.

A bounteous lunch was then served. The floor was cleared, music for round and square dancing being provided by a number of local musicians including: Mrs. Herb Neals, Misses Marjorie Page, Vera Strachan, Robert Sisson, George Tims and others. Messs. A. B. Sisson and Albert Scott provided the calls for square dancing.

Inspector Falls In His Own Espionage Net

PARIS, Oct. 21—(AP).—A French police drive against a spy ring allegedly serving Italy today brought the arrest of one of its own inspectors.

Following the arrest last night of Adrian Grosso, Italian consular agent at Moutiers, by order of a military court, Police Inspector Jean Rakowsky was arrested in his own office at the Paris police headquarters.

An announcement said Rakowsky, 52, had confessed to furnishing confidential information to an Italian secret agent over a period of 18 months. Officials said the inspector, who was decorated for war service, had spent almost 30 years in the police department.

The drive against the supposed espionage ring coincided with a government order forbidding foreigners to settle in the Paris region in the future without special authorization. Frontier guards also have been reinforced in the campaign against spies.

Ballyduff Couple Injured in Crash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BALLYDUFF, Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. George Chapman, who are regular attenders at the Peterborough market on Saturdays, were involved in an unfortunate motor accident while returning home on Saturday evening after dark.

For business reasons they were leaving Peterborough by the River road and missed turning at their proper corner. The route they used took them along an unknown street and at a curve plunged into a deep ditch.

Mrs. Chapman received a nasty cut from the windshield, on her forehead. She was taken into a nearby home and Dr. Clarke closed the wound with seven stitches. Mr. Chapman and his helper received severe bruises and all three passengers were badly shaken up.

The car was badly damaged and was not in condition to travel. Another car was engaged to bring the unfortunate travellers to their home near Ballyduff.

SHOCK FOR POLICEMAN

LONDON—(CP).—Summoned to investigate an accident, Police Constable J. Tidy made inquiries and found that his 15-year-old son was killed.

Czar Of Russia?

Grand Duke Vladimir, son and heir of the late Grand Duke Cyril, of Russia, shown leaving the American hospital in Paris, following the death of his father, who was pretender to the vanished throne of the Romanoffs in Russia. With the death of Cyril, the mantle falls to Vladimir, who is now hailed as "czar" by the expatriate Russians now residing in Paris.

Teeth At 3 Months

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21—(AP).—Subway Motorman George Jackson can say without boasting that his three-months-old son is "one in a thousand." The baby already has two teeth, with two more coming in. The family physician, Dr. Lewis Karl Hoberman, says this happens only once in about 10,000 cases.

Society people of Dublin, Ireland, are again playing chess, and it may become a craze.

Machine Guns, 200 Guards Circle Plant After Strikers Smash Windows

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 21 (AP)

MACHINE GUNS bristled in all directions from the Swift and Company packing plant here today as United States National Guardsmen kept a lookout to avoid further violence in the strike which began three weeks ago.

Two hundred guardsmen were on duty in and around the plant and 300 more were mobilized in buildings within a mile of the strike scene, where 1,000 strikers and sympathizers hurled bricks through plant windows and upset a police car Tuesday in protest against a back-to-work movement.

Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel, in ordering out the troops after the outbreak, said he was sending the guardsmen to assist local officers in maintaining order.

Order From Bishop Ends Pastor's Fast

PALMERTON, Pa., Oct. 21—(AP).—Rev. Lazar Kirichenkoff, complying with an order from his archbishop, ate solid food today for the first time since he began a fast 18 days ago which he hoped would bring more young people to his Russian Orthodox church.

Archbishop Theophilus of San Francisco and Metropolitan American, commended the 46-year-old priest in a letter yesterday for his "faithful strength," but directed him to break his fast "for the benefit of yourself and your health."

At the same time, the Rev. Kirichenkoff was notified of his transfer, effective next Sunday, to Berlin, N.H., where he previously served for about a year. The Archbishop pointed out, however, that the transfer was not a disciplinary measure.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IN THE LAST FEW DAYS we've scratched the fur right off the old think-tank but can't figure out the Sarnia-Orfuns' scrap here on the morrow. No use going into a huddle with Java Joe ("the Orfuls might submerge victors"), Catawba Slim ("it is worth maybe a piece of five-two odds"), Madame Mollee LaMurphy ("ze signs say ze Sarnia hommes"), Chief Spit-in-the-Wind ("ugh, big wind cry for firewater") or even the crystal ball, which is as foggy as London in the rainy spell. Nope, can't make yards nohow—so we decline to predict the outcome. Except to say it should be a close score in Sarnia's favor after a furious fight, with an upset just possible. We know this expert opinion will be a big load off local folks' minds and they can now go down to the Exhibition Grounds and enjoy a dandy grid game between the imperious Imps o' Sarnia and the scrappy Orfuns, knowing that it will be a close score for Sarnia after a furious fight, with an upset just possible. You're welcome—we aim to please.

* * * *

AT THE TENDER AGE of eight, we were told a delightful tale of a big, bruising backfielder by the name of Goliath. He was a tough baby to stop in the games they played those days—though some of the grid rules have undergone alterations since that time. Scribes raved about big Goliath. Well, it seems the Phillistines were playing the Israelites this day and the latter squad were having a tough time trying to stop Goliath. So they trots out a light, fast half by the name of David. This litle guy tackles Goliath all right and he stops him right in his tracks. Not only that, but David up and slings a forward pass that won the contest. Won it in most decisive fashion, as the Phillistines were put to rout the rest of the route. We dunno the final score but it was a decided win for the Israelites—who also had some men of Judah in their ranks.

* * * * * *

The Scribes And Pharisees

TO ABBREVIATE this article, David copped all the headlines from the Scribes—and also from the Pharisees, who were the broadcasters of that day. And he was quite a hero amongthe Israelites and the men of Judah for his fine work in stopping Goliath cold. There has been a certain amount of argument among the scribes and parasites of today as to where and when the forward pass originated. We humbly submit that David was the first to sling a forward pass which clicked, in the days of Goliath; we could refer to the Bible but some of our readers would immediately raise the pertinent question: "When did you read the Bible; how do you know?" So we won't do it.

* * * * * *

THIS ENTRANCING TALE always struck us as a robust yarn of bygone years. We know for a fact that David and his forward toss preceded Knute Rockne by some years and that many a bucket of water has flown with the Nile past the pyramids since that memorable melee. And many a grid game has been forgotten since then, too. But we maintain that history repeats and that the only reason lightning never strikes twice in the same place is because that place has been blotted out by the first stroke. So it stands to reason that big gees like Goliath or Sarnia Imperials may be defeated by lesser babies like David or our Orfuns. Yep, it is a possibility that Orfuns might do a David with a forward pass and beat the Goliathan Imps.

* * * * * *

Goliath vs. The Orfuns

ERE LEAVING this intriguing subject—we also know a story about a tough gee named Sampson who got a bad haircut, but that'll hold till another time—we fairly fall over ourself to say we will not wager our gold filling, which isn't paid for yet at the dentist's, on the Orfuns to beat the smart Sarnia squad. But we also add—and we can subtract in a pinch—that dope buckets have been kicked before, seven ways for Sunday, and that there is certainly an outside chance the Imps will get the start of their impish grid lives right here tomorrow. So don't pass it up, folks!

* * * * * *

THIS FROM THE SARNIA SHEET: "Montreal sports writers who accompanied the Nationals to Sarnia last Saturday threw out warnings against taking Bill Irwin's Peterborough Orfuns too lightly. The Petes, the experts said, have lost too much early ground to get anywhere in the O.R.F.U. race this year. But the rapid improvement they have shown already may ultimately provide upsets that could eliminate any one of the Big Three of the league should they tackle the Liftlockers on a day when some of their cylinders are missing. Art Massucci, coach of the Imperials, is pessimistic enough to refuse to under-rate anyone. He even refused to take the Montreal Westmounts lightly last year, which set a new high for unnecessary viewing with alarm. He has, according to those who should know, much more reason to fear Peterborough on Saturday than most of the underdogs his team has encountered in the past."

* * * * * *

He Has Lost His Memory

JUMPING from the gridiron to the griddle, we note the Quinte columnist is still panning the Petes in ball playdowns. He criticizes the locals for having a number of imports this season. But neglects to mention former Belleville diamond stars who learned the game elsewhere before showing up in a Quinte uniform. Surely passing time hath not dulled his memory to the extent he forgets the importing of Jack Williams, or Johnnny Oulette, or Hoot Gibson, or Ernie Holmes, or Shiner Johnston, or Speedy St. Louis, or Red McIvor, or Art Calhoun, or that Toronto catcher, or the others. Surely not! As for Belleville hockey—but let's give 'em a break and forget it. The importation of athletes is general and has been going on since that famour unpopular ditty: "Fathaw, Deah Fathaw, Come Home With Me Now!" was rendered with pathos on the wrong side of so many swinging saloon doors.

ENTRIES for the juvenile and bantam sections of the Church Cage Loop close next Tuesday, junior division being left open for another month. With last year's two winning squads, George St. Bantams and St. John's Juveniles, being mostly over age, these sections are left wide open. The reduced entry fee should prove an attraction, also. The secretary has sent entry forms to all possible teams and some action should result shortly. At least, three entries must be received in each section to carry on the league. Phone Secretary Don Charlton at 441 for any info. 'Tis high time the bounce-'em-boys were organized and battling around the gym floor.

Pessimist Haynes Waves Red Flag Lest Canadiens Rated Too High

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, Oct. 21 (CP) — Stocky Paul Haynes hoisted a red flag today, warning he didn't like it a bit the way the paying customer is expecting so much this season of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League race.

Now, the centre ice star is far from a pessimist and really thinks the Flying Frenchmen have a good team. But he'd feel a lot safer if word wasn't out that Canadiens are going to be "hot." Haynes considers that anything less than third place "will almost be taken as a bad season for us by the fans."

"When something happens that is expected the fans won't be so liable to rally around the team," thinks Haynes. "I'd a lot rather everyone wouldn't concede us a top place in the league and then if we did come through it would be a lot better."

Haynes called on the great comeback two years ago with Canadiens of the glamorous Howie Morenz as an example. Morenz, a long-time star with the French team, was sold and played with New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks before being repurchased by Canadiens.

The Morenz Example

"Everybody thought Howie was through when he came back to us and his great comeback captured the imagination the more because it wasn't expected generally. It lent inspiration to the team too....even after he died."

On paper and in practice Haynes grants that Canadiens look first rate.

"Of course I may be mistaken, and I hope I am, when I refuse to go overboard. Because the team really looks good and certainly should be stronger with the six players we picked up from Maroons. It certainly has to be admitted that the team looks stronger than last year when we finished second in our section."

Southend Boys Defeated By Score 2 to 0

Central won the first game of the play-offs in the Public School soccer championship on King Edward Park on Thursday afternoon, when they defeated the league winners by the score of 2 to 0 for possession of the Alex. Kay trophy, emblematic of the school championship. Murduff, King Edward, failed to convert from two penalty kicks; while Kiff converted for Central and Millen got rebound off Lee's long drive into goal.

The second game of the series will be played on Monday night; and a game has been arranged by two Y.M. C.A. teams for Friday night.

Well-Taken Goal

Central won the toss and Murduff, King Edward, kicked off to make tracks for the opponets' goal where Palmer missed by inches. Kiff's goal kick fell at the foot of Millen, who dribbled past three men in a row and finished wide of the mark. Then south-enders bombarded the Central goal from all angles but only obtained two fruitless corner kicks. Langton rattling shot after shot across the goal mouth and let Palmer have a great opening as he shot from one yard out to miss his objective. Burns, Central, robbed Palmer of a shot at goal and punted out to Lee who made a straight line for King Edward's goal to be held in check by Lawson in the nick of time to give away an unsuccessful corner kick. Again King Edward forced the issue to Central's discomfort as they did everything but score which no doubt wa sto Kiff's and Meiklejohn's credit in repulsing the attacks. They were backed up by Burns and Parson who watched their wing men to offset their effectiveness in front of goal. Quickly Parsons viewed his outside left unmarked and placed him in possession on the wing. Lee travelled down the line to centre a perfect shot into goal, Curtis, King Edward goalie, saved nicely but Millen ran in quickly to open the scoring. The losers went right back to witness Langton rattle shot after shot at Drummond, Central goalie, who was unbeatable. Murduff was allotted a penalty kick but shot well over the cross-bar. Just before the interval, Curtis made brilliant saves from Millen and Batten at close range. Half time—Central 1, King Edward 0.

Kiff Converted Penalty

On resuming, Curtis was kept busy holding his charge intact after a succession of corner kicks but he had no chance to save the penalty shot that Kiff rattled inside the upright. Thereafter, King Edward boys endeavored to settle down to their general run of play but lacked the usual effectiveness around the goal, in fact, they seemed to be too anxious to get into the scoring column through individuality instead of their smart combination that had been productive of goals throughout the league schedule. At one point Central were confined to their own territory for a while holding back the steady attack of King Edward forward line. Langton, Murduff and Palmer sending in all kinds of shots to find Drummond grasping them at the opportune moment although he was assisted by Burns when the latter run back in time to kick out Langton's effort from a scrimmage after the custodian was well beaten. Play run from end to end at a rapid pace with the losers being held scoreless. Central 2, King Edward 0.

Goal scorers—Millen and Kiff, Central.

King Edward—W. Curtis, goal; F. Lawson and A. Lowes, full backs; D. McGregor, K. Anderson and W. Ellis, halves; K. Langton, G. Reil, C. Murduff, C. Downer and C. Palmer, forwards; sub—J. Brown.

Central—F. Drummond, goal; F. Kiff and F. Meiklejohn, full backs; G. Burns, G. Hanes and J. Parsons, halves; B. Millen, W. Smith, S. Clarke, L. Batten and G. Lee, forwards.

Referee—D. Buchan; linesmen—D. Leether and S. Self.

Suggest Yards Settle Rugby Ties

DETROIT, Oct. 21 (AP).—Charles (Gus) Dorais, veteran head coach at the University of Detroit, advocates settling the argument over football's point after touchdown by abolishing it and counting a touchdown seven points.

Dorais would settle tie scores by ruling the team which makes the most yards from scrimmage the victor.

The Detroit coach has made tentative arrangements to try out the theory November 27 when his team meets Santa Clara at Sacramento, Calif. Buck Shaw, Santa Clara coach, is willing to co-operate, it was understood here.

The plan provides for an official scorer who would keep a record of yardage gained.

If such a change were eventually made in intercollegiate football rules in the United States it would no longer be possible for one team to lose a game by a single point after outplaying an opponent.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

PLAYING THE BACKFIELD

By LEW HAYMAN

The CROUCH STANCE described in to-day's article.

To-day's it's play in the backfield. Obviously one of the prime points is the way you stand to start the play. So we'll first discuss the stance.

Regardless of the type of stance used the following points MUST BE OBSERVED by backs who are in a position to receive the ball directly from a snap.

1. Weights should be balanced on the balls of the feet.
2. Feet should be comfortably spread so you can move in any direction without loss of speed.
3. Body and toes should be pointed straight ahead (unless playing the wing back position, which we will discuss).
4. Eyes should be on the ball.
5. Arms and hands should be relaxed so the ball can be handled easily without fumbling it.

Wing Back.

Wing back is the term applied to a back who plays just outside his own outside wing and a yard or two behind him. He uses the crouch stance (we'll come to that in a couple of paragraphs), with body, head, and eyes always turned in, facing his own outside wing.

There are three main stances used by backfielders, the semi-crouch, the crouch, and the squat stances, which we'll go over one at a time.

Semi-Crouch Stance.

In the semi-crouch stance, both feet are comfortably spread, knees are bent, and the weight is evenly distributed on the balls of the feet. The arms may rest across the thighs with hands and fingers relaxed; or, if the player happens to prefer it, the hands may rest on the knees. This stance is used by backs who take direct snaps or work on reverses, take reverses, cut-backs and passes.

Crouch tSance.

The crouch stance is used mainly by the wing backs or any backs that do a lot of blocking. Both knees are bent. One hand rests on the ground, the other forearm across the thigh. Body is low with one leg slightly back, if that suits the particular player. Weight is evenly distributed on the balls of the feet.

Squat Stance.

The squat stance, or quarterback stance, is, as the aternative name implies, the stance used by quarterbacks, where the system the team uses calls for him to play behind the snap. He can either squat with one hand placed on the rear of the snap or facing his own backs. If he does the latter he must make sure he is well-balanced so that he can reach over to get the snap-out and, at the same time, keep his fingers and hands very low, to lessen chances of fumbling.

Must Look Alike.

ALL BACKS SHOULD ADOPT THE SAME STANCE EXCEPT THE WING BACK OR THE QUARTER IF HE IS PLAYING BEHIND THE SNAP. This gives the backfielders a uniform appearance, suggesting strength and deceiving the opposition. If the stances of the various backs are changed according to the play or formation, the opposition will spot it immediately, and be on the alert. They might often be able to tell just what play is coming.

Don't point your feet or glance in the direction the play is coming. Keep your eyes on the ball until it is in your hand or one of your team-mates has it. If you are receiving the ball DON'T hitch your trousers. DON'T spit on your hands. DON'T tense your body. DON'T lean towards the play. In other words, DON'T do anything that will give the oppsition any idea of the play that is coming.

How to Fail.

Here are the outstanding reasons for bad play in the backfield:

1—Starting the body in motion before the legs.

2—Being off balance.

3—Taking the eyes off the ball.

4—Stiffening the body, thus giving less freedom of action.

Just start doing any of those things and you'll find you're getting nowhere very rapidly.

No matter what type of stance you use, TIMING is of the greatest importance. I can't stress that point too much, neither can I explain it in writing. TIMING IS ACQUIRED ONLY BY CONSTANT PRACTICE.

To-morrow we'll wind up these talks with a bit of a summary and a talk on the point that's probably won more football games than any other.

St. Andrew's Squad Beaten 24-0 In Lively Tilt At Grove

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 21. — Playing aggressive football, the Lakefield Preparatory School team defeated St. Andrew's College Thirds on Wednesday by the score of 24-0. The Grove boys outclassed their opponents throughout the game, scoring a touchdown in each quarter. Dobbin's plunging was spectacular.

First quarter—By a series of well-timed plunges, the Grove forced S. A.C. into their own zone. Dobbin went the remaining ten yards for a try. Crickmore converted. The Lakefield line was opening big holes in the opposite front. Roscoe made several nice gains for S.A.C.

Second quarter — A long kick by Rose put S.A.C. on the defensive. Rose intercepted a forward pass and ran 25 yards for a touch which was converted by Crickmore. Dobbin's plunge through the left wing placed the ball on St. Andrew's five-yard line as the whistle blew for half-time.

Third quarter — Frewer took a catch on the run and made twenty yards. Rose kicked, and Crickmore and Tilley nailed the S.A.C. back for a rouge. Rose kicked to the deadline for another single. Maclaren fell on a fumble, giving the Grove possession. Pease and Dobbin gained twenty-two yards. Pease plunged for a touch, which was not converted. Maclaren plunged through the left for yards. Frewer took a forward pass from Dobbin for thirty yards.

Fourth quarter — Dobbin moved the yardsticks twice in succession. St. Andrew's could make little headway against the tackling of the Grove line. Dobbin intercepted a St. Andrew's forward pass, and ran for a touchdown. The teams:

The Grove — Pease, Crickmore, Harris, R. Dobbin, B. Dobbin, Frewer, Langmuir, Rose, Carson, McGinnis, Tilley; subs., Roberts, Morris, Wilkes, LaNauze, Gunn, McDonald.

St. Andrew's — Hampson, Diver, Gurton, Dean, Roscoe, Tisdall, McIntosh, Sabiston, Brickenden, Kilpatrick, Johnston, Higgs.

Macdonald House Wins.

St. Andrew's College, Macdonald House, defeated the Lakefield Preparatory School Juniors 15-5. St. Andrew's boys showed greater ability on the offensive. Aguayo and Chipman scored touchdowns for the visitors. Chipman also scored a field goal. D. Wilkes was the most outstanding player on the Lakefield team, scoring their only points. In spite of the heavy rain, both teams played good football, the tackling being particularly fine.

SARNIA vs. ORFUNS TO-MORROW - 2.30

Pipe Dream No. 1 "Bummer Stirling to Have All His Kicks Blocked."

DICK RAINE'S FRIENDLY STORES

Mike Jacobs Laughs At $400 Loss Nightly On Jai Alai -He's Cutting His Excess Profits

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP).—Mike Jacobs, known as a man with a keen eye for a dollar, has discovered the perfect scheme for reducing his excess profits from the prize fight industry and, in a round-about way, giving the income tax collector a licking.

Mike, along with Lee Shubert, the theatrical man, is putting up the money for those dazzling exhibitions of jai alai (pronounced hi-hi) seen nightly and Saturday matinees at the Hippodrome. It's been going on for a couple of months now, and the nightly loss is a satisfying $400 or better.

The nightly "nut," including salaries of the swarthy men who bang the ball about, advertising and hire of the hall, is $1,200, and the receipts have averaged around $800. At this rate it will, of course, take some time for the proprietors to get back their original investment of $50,000.

So pleased are Jacobs and Shubert with the reception given the favorite Latin sport by the thrill seekers of Sixth Avenue that they plan to keep it going at least for another year. By that time they should be getting a whale of a laugh at the government's expense.

If you are not familiar with jai alai, it is something like handball, only the players attach a basket-like contraption to their arms that has the general effect of a slingshot, sending the old goatskin against the wall at the approximate speed of light.

Hawks Expect To Repeat; New Forward

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 21—(CP).—Chicago Black Hawks, who surprised last season by winning the Stanley Cup, abound with confidence that they can repeat as world champions this year with the help of the newly acquired forward line of Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco and Earl Robinson.

The heavy scoring combination that came to Chicago from the defunct Montreal Maroons already is bidding for recognition as the Hawks' number one attack line and keen rivalry is developing in training between it and the Hawks' star lines of Doc Romnes, Mush March and Paul Thompson.

Led by Romnes, who shows no effect of the leg injury that kept him out of 28 games last season, the latter line is setting a dizzy pace in training but Northcott and company are flashing more speed and cunning than they did most of last season.

A line on the Hawks forward strength can be guaged by the fact the veteran Johnny Gottselig, leading scorer in the playoffs, is relegated to the third line. One certain mate of Johnny is Cully Dahlstrom, winner of last year's best rookie award.

"The new forward line is bound to give us added scoring punch," he reasons. "You have to remember we did alright last winter with the 'guns' we had. Add the new ones to that and what have you?"

14 Rinks Played In Mixed Doubles

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 20. — A mixed doubles tournament in which bowlers from Stirling and Havelock were guests of the Campbellford club was held here on Wednesday afternoon. Fourteen rinks were entered in what will probably be the last tournament of the season and which was won by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wiggins of Campbellford, who were awarded a beautiful table lamp and walnut end table as first prize for three wins. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown of Campbellford won a card table as first prize for two wins, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Patterson of Stirling took the high score for one win.

Revenue of railways in France so far this year greatly exceed those of 1937.

Wet, Dry Laws

MACON, Ga., Oct. 21—(AP). — "Wet and dry" speed laws — they have nothing to do with prohibition —have been suggested by traffic experts here as a means of reducing accidents. They proposed a new ordinance fixing downtown speed at 20 miles an hour in dry weather and 15 miles when it is raining.

ACE OF GRIDDERS COMING HERE WITH FAMED SARNIA IMPS

Big Hugh (Bummer) Stirling Game's Mightiest Kicker And Multiple-Threat Star

Peterborough football fans this Saturday will have the opportunity of seeing probably the greatest gridder of modern times in action when the local Orfuns tangle in a senior rugby fixture in the Exhibition Grounds. The following facts about this football ace is gleaned from a Central Press article:

One certain way to start a controversy is to call somebody the greatest this or the greatest that. Any number of people will immediately arise with their own nomination for the honor mentioned.

In the sphere of the greatest, however, there are a few whose mention meet with more approval than angry mutterings, and in that class comes Hugh (Bummer) Stirling who has more than once been referred to as Canada's greatest football player.

The Bummer is playing his tenth season of senior rugby with Sarnia Imperials in the O.R.F.U., and during that time has been a standout in passing, kicking, plunging and generally leading the Oilers to seven consecutive league titles and two Canadian crowns.

Better Than Ever

And the end is not yet. Great as he has been in past seasons the Bummer appears to be headed for an even better one this year. In the season opener in Toronto against Balmy Beach on Thanksgiving day he was the standout player on the field, as his team downed their perennial rivals, 8-6 The second game of the season found the Imperials meeting Montreal Nationals, one of the two new teams in the O.R.F.U. this year. Again the Bummer was a one-man show. The game ended in a 12-12 tie as the Nats. showed surprising strength to lead the favored Imps until four minutes from the end of the game, when from 70 yards out the peer of Canadian kickers hoofed a single to tie up the score. In that game he personally scored every Sarnia point, by means of a touchdown, a convert, a field goal and a rouge.

Stirling comes from St. Thomas, Ont., where he made his debut as a gridder with his schools' teams. With them he played in the "Wossa," as the Western Ontario Secondary Schools association is known to the natives, later graduating to the city's junior O.R.F.U. team. He cut a wide swath in junior ranks and brought interest in the game to a peak in St. Thomas.

In 1929 he joined the Imperials and the rest is still being written in the pages of rugby history.

King of Kickers.

Undoubtedly Stirling's greatest asset is his sturdy right leg. When it comes to sending the pigskin for long rides through the air he is unsurpassed. There are few things in the game more thrilling to watch than the Sarnia standout standing back of the line of scrimmage, receiving the ball from the snap and then getting away a long spiral that may travel, 50, 60 or 70 yards.

There are a few players who can match punts with the Bummer, but when he starts passing, plunging and backing up the line in defence, it is easy to realize why his name stands at the top.

The tragic death of Ormond Beach just before the start of this year's grid campaign was a severe blow to the Imperials' plans, but the loss, if anything, has made Stirling stand out even more strongly. With Beach, acclaimed one of the Dominion's greatest plungers, passers and secondaries, Stirling was still one of the most important cogs in the machine, but with the former Kansan no longer taking his place in the line-up, he has taken over many of his former teammate's responsibilities, and with outstandingly successful results.

A durable giant, the Bummer carries his 213 pounds through 60 minutes per game and it's easy to understand why Sarnia teams keep rolling up victories when you watch him making a kick, going through the line for 10 or 15 yards, taking out opponents on the secondary and moving down the field to make a tackle

Rolling In Records

In the matter of records the 31-year-old star has them clinging all over him....especially to that right toe. In his career with the Imps has scored just 348 points! And by all possible methods. He has crossed the line for 25 major scores, been responsible for 44 converts, banged the ball between the uprights for 12 field goals and registered 143 singles. He is far ahead of any of his teammates, past or present, in scoring, and six times has been top man, a mark he shares with Cutie McPhedran of a decade ago.

With all his individual prowess, Bummer Stirling is a great team player, recognized by his own team, his opponents and Mr. and Mrs. Fan. He issued a few "retirement statements" at the beginning of this season, but the weather was very warm and Mr. Stirling was somewhat overweight, so it is hoped he'll go rolling along for a good many years yet, thrilling the fans and giving the opposition headaches as they try to figure out how to stop the best in the country.

Leafs Feel Lack Of Winger Like Conacher

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP).—There's only one thing lacking to make year's edition of the Toronto Maple Leafs a Stanley Cup team, Red Horner and Busher Jackson are agreed. That's a good right winger of the calibre of the famed Charlie Conacher at his peak.

Not that the Leafs won't win the world's professional hockey championship and the cup this season, Red and the Busher hastened to add last night as they discussed the team's prospects in the 1938-39 National Hockey League wars which open Nov. 3. It's just that there is a wee bit of doubt about it without the big bomber patrolling right wing.

Jackson, 27-year-old left wing stalwart, and Horner, 29, should know what is needed to win the Stanley Cup. They are the only surviving members of the Maple Leafs that won the Stanley Cup in 1931-32, the last time Toronto has won Lord Stanley's rather worn piece of silverware.

Horner summed it up: "Our team looks pretty good right now, but I think we need a right winger. If we had a right winger like Conacher at his peak, no doubt we'd win the Stanley Cup this season. At this point Jackson interjected: "I've never seen our team work as hard in the training camp as they have this season."

Conacher was forced to retire from the game last season owing to ill-health. He is attempting a comeback this year with Detroit Red Wings. His sale to Detroit was announced shortly before last year's N.H.L. champions went into camp.

St. Kitts Macs Prep For Senior Debut

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Under the watchful eye of Alvin (Speedy) Groh, one-time professional star, St Catharines Macs are prepping for their debut to Senior "A" hockey ranks this season. B ythe year's end, the Macs will have St. Catharines' new $80,000 rink as their home arena.

While finishing touches are being put to the new building, first covered rink in the city's history, the team will play home games at Niagara Falls.

The team is being built around the best of last season's Senior "B" team.

Many New Faces Will Appear In The 1939 Pittsburgh Line-up

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, Oct.. 20.—Out of the wreck of the Pirate machine that foundered on the rocks of the National league campaign in the stretch duel with the Chicago Cubs, will rise a more compact and spirited ball club in 1939, if Pittsburgh officials have their way.

Recovered from the supreme disappointment of watching their club drop from the leadership of the senior loop at the final moment of the pennant race, the Pittsburg front office is moving ahead with plans to bolster the Pirate club.

First step in the building-up process occurred at the annual minor league draft meeting when the Pirates selected Fern Bell, a fine outfielder from Louisville, and Jack Jeulich, Rochester Red Wings first baseman.

From Top to Bottom

But the axe is expected to swing through the Pirate roster, especially at those positions which split at the seams under the hectic pennant race.

The snappy Pirate infielders — third baseman Lee "Jeep" Handley, shortstop "Arky" Vaughan and second sacker Floyd "Pep" Young—are due to remain, but first baseman Gus Suhr may be traded.

In the 1939 Pittsburgh outfield, Lloyd Waner, younger of the veteran brothers, again will find himself playing alongside Johnny Rizzo, the lad who came up from Columbus of the American Association to break the all-time Pittsburgh home run record by smashing out 23 four sackers. Whether Paul Waner will be back in right field is problematical. Paul, a fixture in the Pittsburgh outfield since 1926 has fallen into disfavor by his drop from the ranks of the .300 hitters and his reported flaunting of training regulations.

Among others said to be ready for the open market, are: catcher Al Todd, utility outfielder Woody Jensen, infielder Tom Thevenow and Red Lucas, Ed Brandt and possibly Darrell "Cy" Blanton, all of the pitching staff.

New Blood Wanted

Prime purpose of the Pirates' manoeuvre is to instil new blood into the Bucs lineup. Traynor and Benswanger, deprived of the pennant after leading the league since mid-July, are determined to have the Pirates in the flag picture next season for keeps.

Brandt Lucas and Blanton won only 22 games among them, the latter getting half that number himself, Thevenow and Jensen have been up with the Pirates for many years and will be traded, if possible, to make room for fleeter and nimbler players.

Paul Waner's slump this season has been the thorn in the side of the club. Depended upon for much of the Bucs' punch, the elder Waner bogged down miserably, winding up with a .279.

When the Bucs take the field next spring, look for new faces and—they hope—new spirit and fresh drive sufficient to carry the Pirate machine to the top.

Cleaning House

Bill Benswanger, president of Pittsburgh Pirates, will trade old faces for new in an attempt to assemble a Pittsburgh team that will hold together for a complete pennant race, instead of just the first part of one, as has been the custom with his teams for a number of years.

Training Camp Notes

(By the Canadian Press.)

There's no need for New York's National League entries, Rangers and Americans, to give Western Canada fans blood-and-thunder hockey in their exhibition tour —the customers will come anyway. But evidently the league's last intra-city rivals mean to battle as if the Stanley Cup were at stake.

Five thousand watched the Rangers defeat the Americans 2-1 at Winnipeg last night as they opened the "Wheat League" campaign, and others were turned away at the box office. It was certain then that the trek would be a financial success, but the teams put on a fiery show anyway with a free-for-all fight thrown in.

Tommy Anderson of Americans and young Dutch Hiller of the Blueshirts started a general melee that earned them major penalities.

Detroit Red Wings' three lines for their exhibition with Cleveland Barons of the International-American League at Cleveland to-night have been drawn up by Manager Jack Adams. The lineup from left to right: No. 1, Herbie Lewis, Marty Barry, Charlie Conacher; No. 2, Syd Howe, Don Deacon, Modere Bruneteau; No. 3, Eddie Wares, Alex. Motter, Carl Liscombe.

Montreal Canadiens signed their 18th man yesterday when Jimmy Ward put it down as "James." It is believed all those who will be regulars have put their names to contracts. Manager Cecil Hart will have to dispose of some if his amateur candidates among teams of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, since Canadiens and their pro and amateur farms, New Haven and Verdun, can't absorb them all.

Two kids who have roomed together while teammates at Sudbury are battling for the 16th position with Boston Bruins. Pat McReavy and Glen Sutherland have been told that they're the ones for the job. Both are centres.

COACHING POTENTATE

ADELAIDE — (CP). — Clarrie Grimmett, South Australian and test cricket bowler, has been offered a job as private cricketing coach to an Indian potentate. He is one of the cleverest slow bowlers in the game to-day.

Plans were made to organize a badminton club with games to be played in the C.O.F. Hall. Horace McDowell was left in charge.

Big Grid Tilt Here Saturday

The liveliest dish of sports entertainment to be offered local fans during the football season is the senior O R. F. U. fixture here this Saturday between Sarnia Imperials and Peterborough Orfuns. It will be played at 2.30 o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds, regardless of weather, and should pack in a huge crowd of local, district and Central Ontario sports followers. Sarnia Imps are perennial senior champions and have twice in recent years taken the Dominion title. They have another good team this season, under Coach Art Massucci, former Michigan gridder, but the loss of Orm Beach has weakened the squad considerably. Bummer Stirling, ace kicker, passer and plunger, is the big Sarnia threat to the Orfuns

Coach Bill Irwin has been drilling the local rugbyists hard all week. Following their tough games against Montreal and Balmy Beach, the locals have learned a lot. They have a good line and a fast backfield. While the kicking will not compare with that of Stirling, the locals are confident of giving the Imperials a tough tussle, holding the score close and—with any breaks—possibly even upsetting the dope and defeating the visitors here tomorrow. It should be a fine football fray, full of hot action and with a close score. It rates a record crowd of grid fans.

RESOURCEFUL BUT—

LONDON—(CP). — When Pam Barton, favorite for the English Women's Golf championship, reached the first green in one of her matches she was minus her putter and holed out with a No. 2 iron. She was eliminated in the fifth round.

ROCHDALE, England—(CP).—O W. Herman, Hampshire fast bowler, will play for Rochdale Cricket Club in the Central Lancashire League next year. He has been with Hampshire since 1929.

20,000 Fans Expected Out Saturday To See Riders and Argos Try Near Murder On Each Other

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The first big blow of the provincial Rugby Football Union's 1938 season, which has gone two weeks in the calmest manner, comes up Saturday with those old-time rivals, Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts, prepared to commit a slight case of murder on one another in the east's feature game.

From where it sprang no one really knows, but through the years a deep, thorough hatred has developed between the teams. Put an Argo and a Rider opposite each other on a football field and anything is liable to happen. Last year they carried Harry Sonshine out of one game with a broken jaw and Ed McFall suffered a broken leg.

The prospects of viewing such ferocity apparently delights the fans and the early ticket sale indicates 20,000 will jam Toronto's Varsity stadium to watch the Big Four's classiest squads, who must battle all over again in the playoffs. They did just that last season when Argos staggered through for the union championship, and eventually the national title.

The set-up is just right for tomorrow. Both clubs have breezed past Montreal Cubs and Hamilton Tigers, who will be settling the cellar position at Hamilton, and both are close to top strength.

Two Different Systems

As usual, it will be a clash between different systems with Argos relying on speed and kicking to offset Ottawa's acknowledged superiority along the ground. The Rider tanks—Dave Sprague, Wank Ussher, Bunny Wadsworth, Tony McCarthy and Murray Griffin—have been rolling stronger than ever and the attack has become more versatile with Griffin to aid Orville Burke at passing.

Elimination faces at least one team in each of the three senior unions as the schedule moves to the half-way mark. Losers of two straight, Peterborough Orfuns and Queen's University, the college champions of 1937, face stern opposition.

An Imperial Win?

Orfuns make a home stand against Sarnia Imperials, who are rated to win almost as they please over the youthful and inexperienced Peterborough squad. Bernie Moroz will not play for the O.R.F.U. champions, a leg injury shelving him for 10 days. Queen's, weakened by injuries, must beat the powerful, undefeated McGill Redmen to retain serious hopes in the college race. They will play on McGill's home grounds.

Next to the feature game, the best football of the day should come from Montreal, with the O.R.F.U. Nationals and Toronto Balmy Beach meeting for the first time, and London, where University of Toronto fight it out with University of Western Ontario for second place in the college circuit.

Price Of Cattle Slips 25 On All Grades

TORONTO, Oct. 21—(CP).—Cattle prices were down 26 to 50 cents on all grades of killers on Toronto livestock market this week the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves held steady while hogs were down 60 to 75 cents. Lambs were 25 cents lower on the bulk of sales with sheep steady to a shade lower.

The heavy run of cattle included 1,400 Westerns. Trade was dull from the opening and the Monday holdover of 3,000 head was reduced to 1,000 or so by the close only at price reductions. Many butcher cattle and weighty steers were included in the holdover.

A few loads of medium to good weighty and heavy steers and heifers opened at $5.50 for tops but closed with none over $5 and with common downward to $3.50.

Butcher cows dropped 25 cents towards the close, selling from $2.75 to $3.75 with tops at $4. Canners and cutters were from $2.25 to $2.50. Fed calves sold up to $9.50 for choice on Monday but the closing price range was from $5.50 to $8.50 with few above $8.

Store cattle were also down 25 cents in spots. Stockers ranged from $3.50 for common up to $5 for good quality with some stocker calves at $5.25 to $5.75. A few loads of good feeders sold at $5.25. Millers and springers held steady at $75 for tested tops.

The local beef trade, as well as that for most of Ontario has been overloaded with dressed beef from Western Canada. With cattle runs heavy in the west this week, the same condition is likely to prevail next week.

Calves Hold at $10.

Calves were at a general $9 to $9.50 for choice vealers, with occasional tops at $10. Several hundred heavy, fat calves sold between $5 and $6 cwt. Grassers were mostly at $4.50, with some down to $4 and a few up to $4.75.

Hogs continued the downward trend. The close was mostly at $7.65 off trucks for bacons, with some as low as $7.50. Sows closed at $5.50 to $6.25 off trucks. Several hundred light pigs were sold at around $5 each.

Sheep and lamb receipts were fairly heavy. Lamb prices were $7.50 for good ewes and wethers received by rail with some at $7.75. Truck lambs ranged from $7.25 to $7.50. Bucks and heavies sold at $1 discount, and culls were mostly at $6 cwt.

Show lambs from St. Joseph Island sold at $8 for tops, with other grades downward to $6. Lambs from the Middleville Fair were sold at $8 cwt., with only a few culls out.

Sheep were weak on bottom grades at $1.50 to $2 for culls, while good light ewes were steady at $4 to $4.50. A few good breeding ewes sold at around $7 each.

Snow White, Prince Suing Walt Disney

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP). — Snow White and Prince Charming have gone to court in an attempt to collect $300,000 from Walt Disney.

Adriana Caselotti, the voice of the heroine in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and Harry Stockwell, who sang and spoke for the Prince, filed separate suits against Disney Productions, Limited, and the R.C.A. Manufacturing Company.

They charged the defendants had violated their contracts by making records from the film's sound track without their consent. Disney's representatives claimed their contracts covered all rights.

Stockwell, who said he had been paid $500, asked $100,000. "Snow White," whose soft soprano netted her $1,000, sued for $200,000.

SPRINGVILLE

Young People Hold Pot Luck Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 21. — The Springville Young People's Society commenced the fall term on Friday evening by having a pot luck supper. About fifty young people were present, and the supper was served cafeteria style. This was in charge of Opal Johnston, the social convenor.

The supper was followed by a devotional period, conducted by Irvin McIntosh. Mina Dunford read the Scripture lesson, and this was followed by a reading, "What Happens When You Worship?" by Harold Davis.

Dorothy Cathcart had charge of a miscellaneous program. This consisted of musical numbers, readings and "stunts."

Assisting the society in the program was Miss Mary Robson, whose generosity in helping at Springville is so much appreciated. Miss Robson rendered two very delightful solos, "My Alice Blue Gown" and "Smilin' Through."

Also, Eleanor Bowles, one of the church's own little girls, gave a reading, "Dolly's Sewing Lesson," which was much enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the program, Rev. C. L. Brown pronounced the benediction.

Anniversary Services.

On Sunday, October 16, very successful anniversary services were enjoyed in the Springville United Church. Many friends from neighboring churches joined in worship with the local congregation.

In the morning, Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, was guest speaker, and in the evening Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity Church, Peterborough. Both morning and evening services were well attended, and much enjoyed. Both messages gave those who heard them many thoughts to take away with them.

There was special music by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. B. Preston. Those assisting with the music for the day were Mr. H. Batten of Peterborough and Mr. C. Hanbidge of Fairmount. Mr. Batten sang a solo in the morning and Mr. Batten and Mr. Preston, a duet, in the evening. Mr. C. Morgan was organist for both services.

Fowl Supper.

In connection with this anniversary occasion a fowl dinner was held in the basement of the church on Monday evening. This also was very well attended. About four hundred and fifty were present to enjoy the sumptuous meal that had been prepared.

The program which followed consisted of a play given by the Young People of Janetville Presbyterian Church, entitled "His Uncle's Niece." Rev. C. L. Brown introduced the directress, Mrs. Johnston, who gave the cast of characters.

This play is exciting and humorous throughout the entire three acts, and was much enjoyed by the audience, as could be judged by the peals of laughter and the applause which it received.

Lindsay Legion Wants Arsenal Action

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 21.—At a session of the County Court on Wednesday, His Honor Judge McGibbon presiding, a civil action brought by Noel Rivers against Henry Butts, both of Kinmount, was heard. The defendant is alleged to have cut down a number of trees on the property of the plaintiff, purchased at a tax sale. The property was formerly owned by the defendant's mother, and the defendant claimed it belonged to the estate. When faced with the deed, however, defendant agreed to pay $30 for the trees which had been removed. Rivers, however, sued for $300, claiming the property would have made a suitable tourist camp if the trees had not been removed. Judgment was reserved. The solicitors for plaintiff and defendant are to prepare written arguments for submission to the court.

The Lindsay Branch of the Canadian Legion at a meeting Wednesday night passed a resolution asking the Department of National Defence to bring the government's attention to the facilities of the Dominion Arsenal at Lindsay for the manufacture of armaments. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Minister of Defence and also to Bruce McNevin, M.P., Victoria and Halliburton.

Petitions are being circulated among Lindsay merchants to consider the advisability of closing their places of business on Wednesday afternoons for eleven months of the year. All but three grocers have signed the petition.

A checker tournament was held in Lindsay Wednesday night with players from Peterborough, Lakefield, Cannington, Pefferlaw and Lindsay. The feature of a round-robin affair was the excellent playing of Verne Russell, of Peterborough, who broke even with Dr. Annis of Lindsay, and defeated all other players.

Sees Press Freedom In Grave Danger

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP). — Fears that the freedom of the press "may be snatched away without a 'by your leave'" have been expressed by A. J. Cummings, political writer on the London News-Chronicle (Liberal).

"Unless the leaders of the British press are quick enough in the uptake, I very much fear that the freedom which the press still retains, and which has been of inestimable value in the past few weeks, may be snatched away without a 'by your leave,'" he told the institue of journalists.

"The newspaper proprietors' association might be regarded as a kind of collective security for the national press," he added. "At the same time it may be well for all of us to bear in mind that there is nothing much to be said for the collective security of a flock of sheep being driven to the slaughter house."

A Change of Heart?

He said Hitler's past actions "inevitably give us cause for anxiety" but added he was sure now that friendly relations with Britain constituted a cardinal point of Hitler's policy.

The working of the Anglo-German naval agreement, he said, had convinced him of that.

(Before Mr. Chamberlain left Munich Oct. 1 after the four-power conference the dismembered Czechoslovakia, the Prime Minister disclosed he and Hitler had agreed that the Munich accord and 1935 naval pact were "symbolic of the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

(This treaty limited German naval tonnage to 35 per cent of that of Britain.)

Sir Samuel acknowledged that the German-Czechoslovak crisis had disclosed deficiencies of air raid precautions but said a tightening up would be announced soon.

This, he said, would deal with the distribution and supply of gas masks, a more fully developed shelter policy against gas and incendiary bombs and high explosives and the billeting of children.

The spech was regarded as the government's answer to Hitler's speech at Saarbruecken, Oct. 9, in which he said Germany wanted only peace but at the same time was preparing herself defensively more than ever, and to German press criticism of Britain's defensive measures.

Sir Samuel called for Anglo-German cooperation to "fill up the trenches which have been dividing Europe," and declared his conviction that "without friendly relations between England and Germany there can be no stable peace in the world."

Damage Action Over Building House Resumed

Adjourned from last February, trial of an action by A. E. Taylor, Toronto contractor, against D. V. Ketcheson for certain claims relating to the construction of a swank house at the west end of Weller Street, was resumed here on Thursday in a special sitting of the Supreme Court with Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay presiding.

This case occupied three days of the court last winter, and was proceeding in its second day this afternoon.

Taylor sought $2,000 under the terms of his contract with the defendant, $294 for extras, $1,500 damages and costs. A. L. Elliott, K.C., was counsel for Mr. Taylor and G. N. Gordon, K.C., for Mr. Ketcheson.

Own Architect.

From an experience of two years in the building and eight months in college studying architecture, Mr. Ketcheson decided not to engage an architect for his new house, but to draw the plans himself. Thursday he acknowledged that he was sorry now he didn't employ an architect.

It was stated that counter claims by the defendant amounted to $8,150 expended by Mr. Ketcheson to complete the work, cost of labor and materials. He alleged he paid $4,750 to Mr. Taylor to buy materials and pay wages, "but the plaintiff had failed to pay these wages and for materials, with the result that mechanics' liens have been registered against the property." It was intimated that three or four of these claims are pending.

Original Bid $10,400.

Mr. Ketcheson said Taylor's original bid was $10,400 without plumbing and heating. It exceeded the amount he had contemplated paying for a house, so the specifications were altered and Taylor's price was reduced to $9,500; and the type of construction was changed from solid brick to brick veneer.

Part of the defective work was in the brick walls. Taylor alleged that the best work could not be done under adverse conditions of wintry weather; and Mr. Ketcheson contended that he had not demanded winter work, but allowed for completion at a reasonable time in the spring.

Chimneys Rebuilt.

Both chimneys had to be torn down and rebuilt. Charles R. Tucker, bricklayer, said he was employed six weeks on relaying brick in walls and in other places where the original work had been torn down.

Referring to a picture shown him by Mr. Elliott, and submitted by the defence to indicate undulations in the original wall, witness said: "It looks like a very good job."

Mr. Ketcheson declared that building paper had not been put in the wall, nor was rock wool insulation put in. He said the wall had to be torn down to put in the "wool."

Defendant said he had lost the full benefit of his plans for insulation. Heating last winter cost around $200, and the General Electric estimate had been $125, including air conditioning. He said the company would not stand behind their guarantee because they considered the conditions were not their fault.

Charles R. Tucker, bricklayer, and Peter Wallace, plumber, were witnesses this morning.

"Peterborough and vicinity pheasant hunters have to do a little travelling to get their birds this year," said Inspector I. J. Lyons today. "The season is open today and Saturday, and takes in some 50 acres but misses us by quite a margin. The nearest shoots are in York County and at Amherst Island down east. Northumberland and Durham counties council will meet at Cobourg for their concluding sessions on November 14, and Peterborough county council will likely convene during the last week of next month.

PLANTING 10,000 TULIPS

Alderman Stocker spent considerable time in the chill of Thursday visiting parks and other public flower beds in which the city is planting 10,000 tulips for blooming next May. One of the varieties noticed by a reporter was "Electra" a beautiful double.

POSSIBLY THE MARKERS

After his car had recently stood three hours on a street in Reading, Pa., a Peterborough motorist noticed a sign restricting parking to half an hour. He concluded that either the police were lenient to a visitor from Ontario or they couldn't see the figures on his license markers.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Charged wit hassault occasioning actual bodily harm a young man was remanded until Wednesday when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning. Crown Attorney McElderry asked for the remand, stating that it had not yet been possible to make an X-ray examination of the man who was charging assault.

FLORAL NOTE

Apparently the early frosts are lighter on the hill-tops than on the flat lands of the city. Down near the level of little Lake morning glories were blighted several weeks ago, but they are still blooming along the fence outside Judge Smoke's chambers at the Court House; and in the rock garden on either side of the steps at St. John's Church petunias, marigolds and other flowers are still thriving.

Presentation Made Ronald MacPherson

On the eve of his marriage the officials and staff of the city buildings made a presentation Thursday to Ronald MacPherson, sanitary inspector, whose wedding takes place in Toronto on Saturday, of a gate-leg walnut table and a crystal table lamp. City Clerk S. R. Armstrong made the presentation address and words of congratulation were also added by Dr. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health.

County Council Locks Up Council Chamber

"If the county is going to lock up its council chamber we can switch their police court cases from the city police court to the county council chamber where they should be held," Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., remarked to the Examiner today. "That will require them to keep the chamhber heated and lighted, and involves an expense they don't have to pay at present."

An order was posted on the doors of the county council chamber today directing on the authority of Warden E. N. McDonald that they be kept locked. This action shuts off a customary short cut to the barrister's room adjoining the high court room. It is situated between the county council chamber and the high court room, and obviates the necessity of going around through the high court room to reach the barristers' room, and avoids distraction of the court while a judge was sitting.

Main Door Locked

For the first time in ages the main front door of the county building was locked Thursday night by the caretaker, James Brownlee. Theft of the old clock in the county council chamber was explained by Mr. Brownlee as the reason for the barring of doors that have long been unlocked, day and night.

"If there happens to be a court sitting during the sessions of the county council, the only way the lawyers would have of reaching their room is up the main stairway," Mr. Gordon said. "There certainly wouldn't be any objection to locking the council chamber at night. No doubt it is the proper thing to do, but why lock it up all day? Just because somebody stole their clock at night, probably some tramp that wandered in there, is no reason why they should take it out on us who find it convenient to use those rooms during the day. The Warden must know that a great many cases from the county are tried in the city police court. The county police court should sit in the county council chamber, and while they are using the city court room the county is saved considerable expense in keeping the big room heated and lighted. I think one good turn deserves another, and that the convenience to the county should be met by convenience to those of us who use the lawyers' room."

It was mooted that the county might even shut out the council chamber, the councils of Smith and North Monaghan who hold their meetingsc there, and transfer them to the grand jury room, but that drastic action has not yet been taken.

Plans To Attend Station Opening

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the local Utilities Commission and president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association will attend the formal opening of the Ragged Rapids generating station on the Moon River, near Bala, next Wednesday when Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn will throw the switch that will immediately turn 10,000 horsepower of the projected plant development of some 30,000 into the Georgian Bay system of the Ontario Hydro setup.

The station has taken upward of two years to complete from the time its site was first surveyed.

The Rambling REPORTERS

READY FOR WINTER

Winter would seem to be just around the corner if signs are to be believed. A Hastings resident was seen on Front street on Thursday with a heavy cap and the earflaps down. His trousers were the heavy mackinaw type, and he wore at least three sweaters under a bulky windbreaker.—C.

Young People Giving World Something New

"The twentieth century might be called a century of youth movements," declared Reg Towne, past president of the Dominion Council of the Anglican Young People's Association in a brilliant address delivered to lunching Kiwanians today.

"We have heard a great deal of the youth movements in the so-called totalitarian states of Europe, and we look with a good deal of foreboding at the regimentation of youth in those lands," he said. He found in great contrast the youth movements in Canada. "I believe that the young people of this generation are giving to the people of the world something they have never before been given." The movements of the young people of Canada are not centred around pagan ideals, but are bound up with the church and their strength has developed tremendously within the past ten years, he related. He cited the movement within the Roman Catholic Church as the "most amazing" in this age, claiming that that church had not previously taken a great deal of interest in youth programs.

Started in Paris

The Anglican Young People's movement started at the opening of this century at Paris, he said. One Canon Brown first saw its possibilities and suggested its formation in 1902 before the Synod of Huron. For a number of years progress was slow and "it wasn't until 1911 that any co-ordination of the various societies came into effect." With the war the young people's work received a severe set-back and the organization almost died, he said.

"In the period of flaming youth after the world war, the church found it very difficult to make any progress in the work. It wasn't until about 1924 that any definite progress was accomplished. In 1927, the last time this organization met in Peterborough, it was a provincial organization because the movement was centred in this province still. We began to see a gleam in the west at that conference and from then until 1931 branches began to spring up all over the country." In that year the first Dominion meeting was held "and the Anglican Young People's movement had begun its forward stride from which it has not yet halted."

Progress Made

The association has made progress not only in organization but in development of ideals, Mr. Towne declared. "We have as our motto: For Christ and the Church. We try to develop within young people the ideal of a Christ-centered life. We try to develop four-square men and women. I want to tell you that this organization is a potent influence in the lives of thousands of young people all over the Dominion of Canada.

Home Life on High Plane

He cited Beverley Baxter as saying that home life in Canada is on a higher plane than in any other country in the world. "I believe that one of the reasons for that is that we have had organizations such as the young people's within the church life of our people," he asserted.

"I think we represent the normal young people of the Dominion of Canada. They are a mighty fine group of citizens. I'm getting to the stage where they call me the old fogey, I've been in this work for so long. I know that this organization has meant a great deal to me and I'm quite sure that same influence is being felt in the lives of those 40,000 young people we have in our entire organization.

The Anglican Young People's Association is strictly a young people's movement, he said. The young people have organized it themselves and there have been no paid organizers or leaders. It is for the greater part self-supporting. The only grant the association receives is one of $900 from the church. The rest is raised by the young people themselves from the various enterprises they and the association sponsor.

"You hear a great deal about the young people of our country," the speaker continued. "Many of them make a great deal of noise and want to tear down the foundations our fathers so carefully built." These were the minority, he claimed, and "the youth of today are just as sound as they could be," he said.

Study groups are bein gorganized and young people, who have suffered a great deal during the past ten years of depression, are demanding spiritual programs of a higher order, the speaker said. "I think it is a healthy sign. I think it points to a fairer future for the Dominion of Canada."

Manion Claims Bigger Population Would Fortify Confederation

VICTORIA, Oct. 21—(CP).—Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Dominion Conservative leader, contends a bigger population in Canada would do much to ensure the permancy of Confederation.

The sense of remoteness created by the fact 11,000,000 persons are spread over an area so large might thus be overcome, Dr. Manion told 300 persons who attended a reception arranged in his honor last night by Junior Conservatives. The reception was held in the Victoria Conservative Association rooms in a downtown office building.

Antagonisms between the provinces have increased in the last two or three years, Dr. Manion said, and a mutual understanding of problems of each is essential to remove them. Compromise, toleration and moderation were needed.

"Ninety per cent. of our people not only want to maintain the confederation, but they want to maintain it as part of the British Empire."

It was the duty of public men to think of the necessity of preserving unity. Their hardset job in this respect was to make men of extreme views understand that leaders can't adopt the extremist viewpoint of anything. In this way leaders could preserve unity.

"Our great leader, Mr. Benentt, used to prophesy this country was in danger of smashing up. I don't think it is."

Tourists Mean Gold

The tourist industry was worthy of more encouragement than it was getting. British Columbia had all the natural advantages to attract tourists as had most of the other provinces. Good hotels, good roads and courtesy would build tourist traffic.

"I think we should attempt to remain distinctively Canadian as far as we can," said Mr. Manion. "We should be distinctively British too."

To Canada as a debtor country a favorable balance of the tourist trade, especially on the travel from the United States, was of the utmost importance. Unfavorable balances might be settled by gold export or by selling more than we buy but the tourist industry was a major factor also.

Under Liberal governments it was unfortunate that Canada always has an unfavorable trade balance with the United States, said Dr. Manion. It was part of wisdom to promote empire trade. It was much more stable in volume. No part of Canada derived greater benefit from the 1932 Ottawa trade agreements than British Columbia.

Dr. Manion said he could not discuss the pending trade treaty with the United States because he knew nothing of its terms.

"But I will say that if that treaty should take away from you and the rest of Canada much of the preference you enjoy in the British market it will damage you and the rest of Canada.

"I express the hope that there will be nothing in that treaty to take away preferences we have in that market, the greatest market in the world."

The United States apparently was never satisfied to buy as much from Canada as she sells to her. The minute Canada's products begin to compete with United States-produced goods, up go tariffs.

Month In Jail For Giving Indian Liquor

It was unlucky thing for Thomas Clark that Corporal Jack Woods of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police happened to drop into town Thursday from Lindsay and to see Clark in company with an Indian headed down town. The Mountie followed the pair and was not greatly surprised to discover that the destination of the white man was the wine store on Charlotte street where he entered and made a purchase while his Indian companion waited outside. Then the pair retraced their steps to a house on Water street and a few minutes later Corp. Woods and Detective Wm. Piercy of the city police force dropped in on them.

As a result the Indian, Alex. Knott of Curve Lake was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today with being drunk in violation of the Indian Act and Clark faced a charge of illegally supplying intoxicants to an Indian, also in violation of the Indian Act.

Case Remanded

Knott entered a plea of not guilty and asked for an adjournment. Corp. Woods had no objection and the case was enlarged until Wednesday of next week.

Clark at first pleaded not guilty also and was remanded until next Wednesday, bail being fixed at $500. Later he returned to the courtroom and asked for permission to change his plea to guilty.

"You are not able to pay a fine, are you?" asked Magistrate Langley.

"No" admitted the accused.

"You would rather have me impose a straight jail sentence then," the court said and Clark answered in the affirmative whereupon he was sentenced to one month in the county jail.

Texas Governor Wins Mountain Peak From Colorado

Colorado Springs, Colo., Oct. 21.

JABBING a Texas flag into a snowdrift at the summit of Pike's Peak, Governor Allred of Texas today assumed "ownership" of the sentinel of the United States Rockies.

He "won" the peak from Governor Ammons of Colorado by wagering that Rice Institute would defeat Colorado University in a football game last New Year's Day.

After the ceremony, Governor Allred engaged in a snowball fight with Governor Ammons, who took advantage of his wrestling skill to throw the Texan and wash his face in the snow.

Religious Talkie Is Shown In City

A religious talking picture was shown at St. Andrew's United church Thursday night before a large audience. It was a British film, adopted from the story "Barabbas", written by the Rev. S. N. Sedgkick, and dealt with the life of a rebel redeemed by love.

It showed the imprisonment of Barabbas and the Jewish mob's demand for his release so that Jesus might be crucified, rose with unfaltering intensity to a profoundly moving climax.

From the lovely pastoral scene with which the picture opened to the final drama at the foot of the Cross there was no destructive falsity of emotion, no shoddy effect, no hint of insincerety. The figure of Christ never appeared, a Voice replies with strength and dignity to Pilate's questions. The makers of the picture felt that criticism of such a rendering was inevitable, yet the scene was impressive and their was no incongruity. The imagination was stirred and the episode which followed, when the excited priests demanded the crucifixion of Christ and Pilate ceremoniously washed his hands of all responsibility, took the spectator back to the Praetorium and enabled him to see and understand exactly what happened in greater detail than from any printed record.

Several other talking films were shown on the program. One of these, the Common Round, was the story of a missionary in a remote African station fighting single-handed an outbreak of plague among the natives.

Canada's Trade Leads That Of Australia

The number of sheep in Australia has leaped from 20 in 1788 to 112,100,000 at the last census, according to R. R. Ellen, acting Australian Trade Commissioner for Canada, whowas a guest at the banquet of the G. Whitaker Cricket Club at the Hotel Champlain Thursday evening.

Mr. Ellen spoke briefly at the banquet and afterwards showed and explained a series of moving pictures of the Australian wool industry and other phases of life in Australia and New Zealand. Banquetters found the pictures intensely interesting, worthy of being shown in the largest available public halls here and elsewhere in Canada.

A young man, Mr. Ellen is of Australian birth as were his father and mother. The wool industry is dominant in Australia, bringing in approximately $300,000,000 a year as a result of skillful breeding, he said. Three generations of sheep-breeders have doubled the average weight of fleece per sheep. The year 1932-1933 saw the record wool-clip to date, of 1,036,000,000 pounds, he said.

Mr. Ellen referred to the growth of the wine and raisin industries in the Murray River district, stating that the raisins now produced there are equal to the world's finest.

Referring to the social and economic structure, he said Australia was intensely pro-British and prepared to concede that British statesmen were more able to deal with affairs of state, having more intimate knowledge of affairs in Europe. Ninety-eight per cent of Australians were British-born and there was virtually no immigration from Central and other parts of Europe, stringent regulations being in force in that regard.

Balance Favors Canada

He referred to Canadian-Australian trade in his brief address, said the balance was now strongly in Canada's favor because she was much more advanced in secondary as opposed to basic industries.

The banquet featured an address by Ralph Whitaker, a director of the G. Whitaker Co., who has just landed from the Queen Mary on his fourteenth visit to the Dominion. He gave a practical resume of the history of the wool industry, the incidence of prosperity and depression. He spoke feelingly of the relief felt by all industry when war, which was deemed inevitable by the most sanguine people, was averted. He said that as far as the company was concerned, in spite of losses and of depression in the last fifteen months, the "will to succeed" turned the tides and that better times were at hand.

Mr. C. Carlton, also a passenger on the Queen Mary, a representative of the Whitaker company, who is en route to New Zealand, was a guest at the banquet.

W.P. Near Lauds City's Engineers

Peterborough's policy is appreciated, according to Dr. J. E. Middleton.

W. P. Near, an engineer of long standing on the municipal board of the province, and a man who knows conditions very thoroughly told Dr. Middleton yesterday while in his office that Peterborough has been wise in its engineering policy. Retaining as it has the services of Roy Parsons and Ross Dobbin for so many years, the city has been able to formulate policies which have resulted in good economy.

Mr. Parsons is to be congratulated upon being the dean of the resident engineering branch of the province, Dr. Middleton said. He has given the longest continuous service to one municipality of any engineer. Mr. Dobbin's policy of keeping down his debenture debt was most commendable, he quoted Mr. Near as saying.

A.Y.P.A. CONVENTION OPENS WITH SERVICE IN ALL SAINTS'

God-Given Responsibility Is To Bring Message To Youth Delegates Told In Sermon

You are responsible representatives of Jesus Christ and each of you has a God-given responsibility, of bringing a message to the youth of today, the Very Rev. H. Waterman, Dean of Niagara, told more than four hundred A.Y.P.A. delegates attending an inaugural church service at All Saints', Thursday night.

At the conclusion of the service His Grace Archbishop Owen, Primate of all Canada, led the congregation in prayer that the convention would be a complete success.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints, Rev. A. H. O'Neil, Gorrie, Ontario, Provincial Chaplain and Rev. A. E. L. Caulfeild, Dominion chaplain of the A.Y.P.A. and Rev. H. Johnson of Omemee read the lesson.

Dean Waterman in the early part of his sermon dealt with how God had called His Apostles together on the eve of His crucifixion and charged them with their duties. The Disciples had three distinct things to remember, first that they had been chosen by God for this work, second that they had not been called for friendship sake but were men who had been given a job to do, a mission to fulfill. They were to be the tenders of the grapevine of human life, and thirdly their work must be carefully done so that it will be permanent in nature. That the grapevine of human life might bear fruit worthy of the Master.

Important Conference

"Your conference here tonight is one of the most important conferences in the life of the church, he said. I hope each of you regard yourself as one who has been chosen to do a work, and that you will resolve to dedicate yourself to this task.

"To you who have been in the A.Y.P.A. work for some years, your life has been one of self dedication, but you alone know whether your heart is really in the task.

"Dignity should invest every one of your meetinbs, you are responsible representatives of the younger life of the church, and a group which the older generation has grown to respect more and more each year. Not only are you representatives of the youth of today, but responsible representatives of Christ himself.

"What ever God does for man will be done through man, and today it is your duty to give the youth of the world a message he so badly needs. There has been a great falling away from all that is wholesome and sweet in life, but quite unconsciously the youth of the world is calling to God.

"The fruit of your work must be young Christians, with vision, hope and enthusiasm for God's work.

Building For God

"You are building for God, so I would urge you to exercise vision, plan permanently. You must realize that you are not only working for the A.Y.P.A. but the glory of God, and let you deliberations be such that at the conclusion of the convention all may be offered to God, with the confident hope that He will bless your efforts."

The church was filled for the rally service and seventeen visiting clergymen were in the sanctuary during the service, with many others in the congregation.

Following the devotional part of the evening's program the delegates went into the parish hall, where refreshments were served and addresses of welcome were made. Charles W. Bellis of Toronto, Dominion President of the A.Y.P.A. was chairman and Archbishop Owen spoke briefly extending his best wishes for the success of the convention.

A Civic Welcome

Mayor James Hamilton tendered the delegates a warm and cordial welcome and expressed the hope that their visit in the city would be a delightful one. He extended the delegates an invitation to return at a later time and said the latch string would always be down. Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints Church, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's Church and Miss Clemena Long, president of the Peterborough District Council all voiced words of welcome to the delegates.

Among the clergymen who attended the rally were Archbishop Owen, Dean Waterman, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson; Rural Dean Rev. E. C. Moore, Young's Point; Rev. Walter Gilling, Trinity College; Rev. A. H. O'Neil, Gorrie; Rev. A. E. L. Caulfeild, Toronto; Rev. R. T. F. Brain; Ven. Archdeacon Simpson of Cavan; Rev. G. J. Bousfield; Rev. Fr. Serson, S S J.E., Bracebridge; Rev. T. H. Floyd, Campbellford, and Rev. T. S. Gault.

Headquarters Busy At Conference

The busiest spot in the city of Peterborough on Thursday was the A.Y.P.A. Convention Headquarters located in the basement of All Saints' Parish Hall, where over four hundred delegates from all parts of Ontario were making registrations.

The busy and competent team in charge of the general billeting is Miss Verna Lukey of Toronto, and Miss Florence Hutchinson, of Peterborough.

Five booths, attractively decorated, are directed by: Rolly Krant and Gordon Clegg. Information and Transportation: Rose Puttick and J. Marshall, Banquet Tickets; Les Cavalier and Ron Gynane, Post Office and A.Y.P.A. Monthly; Helen Gibson, Souveniers; Miss Reader, Toronto, G.B.R.E. Supplies.

Booth, billeting and registration assistants are: Eileen Gynane, Jessie Bell, Helen Roszell, Mrs. Bert Hall, Gertrude Lemmings, Mrs. H. Hutchinson, Grace Hutchinson, Mrs. Rollie Krant, Eva Patterson, and Mrs. Hilda Walmsley.

District Head

Miss Clemena Long, president of the Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. tendered a warm welcome to the delegates attending the 7th annual Provincial Convention of the A.Y.P.A. at a reception in All Saints Parish Hall last night.

Local Executive Committee Who Planned Conference

The busiest group of young people in Peterborough this week beyond all doubt are those on the executive committee of the local A.Y.P.A. Council who are attending to the many details in connection with the 7th annual Provincial Convention now in progress in the city. The personnel of the executive is shown ABOVE. Back row, LEFT to RIGHT: Miss Florence Hutchinson, Billeting; Jack Marshall, Reception; Roland Krant, Transportation; Mrs. F. Dorrell, Catering. Sidelights On Conference Of Ontario A.Y.P.A. Branches

(L. P. M.)

The Archbishop's bags have been found, and the first and only mystery so far of the Anglican Young People's Convention now in session here has been cleared up.

Rev. Walter Gilling and Rev. Father Serson of Bracebridge were carrying the bags down the steps from All Saints' Church last night when one flapped open and the contents strewn on the cement. To climax this mishap the bags were placed in the wrong car. This morning Archbishop Owen celebrated Corporate Communion in borrowed robes, and it was not until eleven o'clock that Canon Robertson discovered the bags had been placed in the luggage compartment of a car owned by Rev. Canon James of St. Catharines.

Rev. Walter Gilling, formerly curate at St. John's, and now of Trinity College, Toronto, was given a warm welcome by many of his old friends from St. John's when he appeared at All Saints' Church last night. He spent a few months touring England and Europe on a bicycle this summer and is looking very fit.

Rev. E. C. Moore, Rural Dean of Young's Point, took time out from sheeting the interior of the new parish house to attend the opening ceremonies of the convention. He dashed across All Saints' lawn a few minutes before the service started.

Rev. Father Serson, Society of St. John the Evangelist, is a husky six-footer, and his colleagues state he is an accomplished boxer and athlete. He taught many boys in the Bracebridge district during the past summer in the art of self-defence.

One delegate fainted at the Communion service at St. John's this morning and was assisted outside.

At breakfast table in St. John's Parish Hall several of the visiting contingents enlivened proceedings with group yells. Prominent in the noise-making was a delegation from St. Mary's, Windsor, all of whom were wearing plaid berets. Ottawa, Toronto and London were also heard from.

Plans call for a panoramic picture to be taken of the entire group at the Ashburnham Softball Bowl at noon Saturday. The Bowl is at the east end of the Hunter Street Bridge, about two blocks east of St. John's Church.

Archbishop Owen paid marked tribute to Tim Regan's ability as an organizer and worker when addressing the convention this morning.

Charles W. Belliss of Toronto, Dominion President, remarked on the warm welcome given the delegates by Mayor Jim Hamilton, and added that Mayor Hamilton worked in some splendid advertising for the city during the course of his welcoming speech last night.

Miss Margaret McNicholl of London has been unable to attend the opening sessions of the Convention because of work, but is expected to reach this city tonight.

Boy Scouts of St. John's, St. Luke's and All Saints' were doing valuable work acting as guides for the delegates in locating billets.

Ralph Carroll of London says the view down the Otonabee River from the Hunter Street Bridge is worth coming all the distance to see. He was amazed at the beauty of Peterborough and the winding Otonabee River.

J. M. Saull, also of London, says the hospitality of Peterborough people is certainly refreshing and this is echoed by many other delegates. Saull intends to carry home with him a picture of St. John's Church, claiming that for rugged beauty it surpasses any he has seen.

The Canadian Churchman, National Church of England Weekly, in the issue of October 20th, is a special number dedicated to the City of Peterborough and the men who built it. The cover carries a picture of Colonel Peter Robinson, and inside are lengthy articles by the Rev. Canon Robertson of St. John's Church and F. M. Delafosse, librarian in this city. Complimentary copies from the publishers were distributed in All Saints' Church last night.

Danger Of Youth Becoming Cynical Today

His Grace Archbishop Owen, Primate of all Canada for the Anglican Church expressed fear today that a section of the youth was becoming cynical and bitter in their attitude and this disillusionment was dangerous to the structure of Canadian civilization and to the spiritual welfare of youth all over the country. He charged the 400 delegates attending the 7th annual Provincial Conference of the Anglican Young People's Association at the Legion Hall this morning that they were a great factor in helping youth realize that right shall prevail and that spiritual values come first in all things.

Archbishop Owen was introduced by Tim Regan, vice-president of the Provincial Council, from Toronto. In his opening remarks His Grace voiced his pleasure at being able to attend the convention and lauded the members for the fine work being done in the organization.

Gifts Of Youth

He spoke on the "Gifts of Youth" and named them as being first. The gift of hero worship and the devotion to an ideal, secondly, the spirit of cooperation and third, the spirit of adventure ever present in youth.

"It is very bad for one to become bitter or cynical. I do not say it is excusable in any age but youth above all should be optimistic. I am afraid that there are certain sections of youth that have this outlook. The age through which we are passing is one in which ideals have been sorely wounded if not shattered, and there is grave danger of youth becoming disillusioned. I do not fear for you, but on the contrary regard your organization as a stabilizing influence in this topsy turvy world. You are a great factor in helping troubled youth to keep on an even keel, to retain their faith in spiritual values and realize that right must prevail.

In Italy and Germany I saw hundreds of thousands of blue eyed, husky youths tramping through the streets, all singing a song of praise to one man, either Hitler or Mussolini. To them one man is 'The Way, the Truth,' and one sees hero worship reaching its zenith. How much more loyal should the youth of Canada be to God. He alone is the hope of the world," His Grace added.

"The great gift of cooperation, of being able to get together in groups for a common objective is typical of youth and not so common in the older generations. It is a trait that is very desirable, and I must point out to you the strength that lies in sticking together. You must bear one another's burdens."

Spirit Of Adventure

"Every youth is imbued with the spirit of adventure and remember that God's work has in it all the elements of a crusade. If you want your life to count and you wish real adventure, then devote a good por-

CUT THIS OUT

EXCELLENT RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of someone who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.—(Advt.)

Norwood United Church Observes Ninety-ninth Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 21.—Exceptionally large congregations attended the ninety-ninth anniversary services of the Norwood United Church on Sunday. The Rev. Dr. James Semple of Belleville was the guest speaker and held the rapt attention of the large assembly with his convincing and inspiring messages.

The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Wesley Wildman, rendered special music. Two anthems, "Rejoice with Thanksgiving" and "For All the Saints," and a solo, "Just the Same," by W. J. Stares, contributed much to the morning service.

The pastor, Rev. M. I. Robinson, was present for the evening service, and on opening expressed his great pleasure in having Dr. Semple as guest speaker.

At the evening service the choir rendered the anthem, "Lord of the Harvest," and a quartette "Memories of Olivet," by Misses M. Marks, R. Packenham, J. Johnson and R. Ferguson.

On Monday evening the ladies of the congregation served a chicken dinner, and over 500 partook of the bountiful supply.

Following the dinner a program consisting of a brief address of welcome by the pastor, greetings by Rev. J. U. MacIntosh from the Norwood Baptist Church, and a letter expressing the good wishes of Christ Church from Rev. R. E. Brown. The musical numbers were: An anthem by the choir, "Lord of the Harvest"; a double quartette, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," and a quartette, "Room for Jesus." The address of the evening was given by Rev. George Easton of Trinity United Church, Peterborough.

Belmont Man Held On Serious Charge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 21.—Wesley Hart, 45, of the township of Belmont, was arrested by Provincial Constables Dymond and Danford and Chief Hayes, north of the fair grounds at Marmora. The attention of the police was directed toward the man by the screams of the girl. Hart put up a strenuous battle before being finally shackled.

King Of Chess Men Captures Princess

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—(AP). — It's unusual, in chess, for the king to take the queen, but Joe Capablanca, former world chess king, made the right moves to capture a princess.

Capablanca, a native of Havana and Cuban commercial attache in Europe, was honeymooning to-day with his bride, the former Russian Princess Olga Chagodalf, of New York, after a quick trip to Elkton, Maryland's "Gretna Green," with a bridal party of diplomats.

Mrs. Capablanca met the chess star in New York.

Percy Institute Hears A. Martin

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Oct. 21.—The October meeting of the Percy Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Laver with an attendance of twenty-seven members and nineteen visitors. Much business was discussed, their president Mrs. George Helson presided assisted by Mrs. Percy Honey as secretary.

The motto "Gratitude Sweetens life and makes many friends" was beautifully illustrated in the paper given by Mrs. Robert Bateson. The roll call 'Thanksgiving thoughts' was heartily responded to by the members.

A splendid address and synopsis of the new course of study was delivered by A. Martin, Inspector of Public Schools. The new subjects were explained in detail and while it will take some time in readjusting the methods the speaker made it very clear that it would be of great advantage to the pupils in general. With the new course the children may observe rather than be taught and had several exhibits of the work that is now being done by the pupils.

Mrs. Lorne Evans was convenor for the splendid program which was much enjoyed. Community singing of old familiar songs opened the program after which Mrs. C. Puffer contributed a very fine vocal solo entitled "Good Bye." The girls trio given by Doreen Peterson, June Hutchison and Edith Glover was much appreciated.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Martin the hostess and program committee, after which a dainty lunch was served and the singing of National Anthem brought to a close a very interesting meeting.

Bracken Proposes United Elevators

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 — (CP). — Amalgamation of United Grain Growers, Limited, and Pool Elevator Companies of the three Prairie Provinces is advocated by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba.

Canada's most difficult problem is the marketing of her surplus agricultural products, he said last night in addressing 250 persons at Manitoba Pool Elevator Company's annual banquet. It was necessary farm organizations offer a united co-operative front to speak for Western agriculture.

P. F. Bredt, president of Manitoba Pool Elevators, said discussion leading toward amalgamation with the U.G.G. was under way and "there is more harmony in the companies' association than ever before."

Mr. Bracken, who has called an international conference on marketing of Western agriculture, to be held in Winnipeg in December, remarked on present low price of wheat and said a solution was to lower world tariff barriers. He said continuation of Federally-guaranteed wheat prices as an absolute necessity until trade becomes freer.

CYCLE CAMPAIGN

HALIFAX—(CP).—Halifax police have started a campaign against bicycle riders who violate traffic regulations. Among eight who were fined in one day were five convicted of carrying persons on the handlebars of their bicycles.

Cricket Club Is Banquetted

The members of the Whitaker Cricket Club with the staff of the company were entertained at a dinner at the Hotel Champlain on Thursday evening.

Mr. Gordon Monkman presided and was supported at the head table by Mr. R. R. Ellen, the acting Australian trade commissioner in Canada. Mr. Ralph Whitaker who has just made his fourteenth trip here; Mr. C. Carlton of Bradford, England, the firm's head office, who is travelling to New Zealand via Canada to represent the company there; Mr. Mutch, Toronto and Mr. J. T. Hornsby.

Other guests were Messrs. J. Wild (Capt.), A. Hamilton (vice-capt.), A. Radford (secretary-treasurer), H. Arnold, W. Brown, B. Bailey, G. Colbran, E. Curtin, F. Dyer, G. Haig, R. Howarth, C. H. Ireson, T. Jones, D. Mackie, A. Paget F. Roberts, B. Roberts, F. Smith, D. Scott, J. Wheater and H. Willis.

After introductory remarks by the chairman and community singing led by E. Brown, the health of the J. Whitaker Co. was proposed by A. Radford and responded to by Mr. Ralph Whitaker in an impressive speech.

Mr. W. Brown then toasted the Whitaker Cricket Club and the Captain, J. Wild, briefly responded referring to the good season the club had had, the loyalty and team spirit of the players whose improving play gave great promise for the future.

Mr. Carlton spoke briefly and Messrs. J. T. Hornsby and Charles Farnham told some funny stories. Prizes for good performances on the field were presented by the chairman to A. Hamilton, G. Colbran, F. Smith, T. Jones and B. Bailey and C. A. Radford for fine work as secretary.

Mr. Ellen expressed his pleasure at being present and said that being an Australian, he was naturally interested in cricket. He said Australians had the advantage of being able to play throughout the year, but with only seven million population they were naturally proud of their players' performances. He wished the local club the best of good fortune.

Australia has shipped over 15,000 tons of dried currants to other countries this year.

Hart House Theatre Cramps Festival

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (C.P.).—Central Ontario region of the Dominion Drama Festival is now too big for small Hart House Theatre, President Hugh Eayrs said to-day. An effort is being made to find a larger theatre for the next week-long program of festival plays.

"We feel that we are isolated in Hart House," Mr. Eayrs explained. While it had been felt for some years that the little theatre productions should be made available to larger audiences, financial reasons stood in the way. Although seating only 400 persons, Hart House was available to the Regional Committee without charge.

Last winter the festival plays were given nightly for six nights. Three full-length plays and nine one-act productions weer given, but many persons who wished to attend could not be accommodated. Dates for the next festival, held during late winter, have not yet been set.

AFRAID TO MARRY

CHAPTER 27

JUDY DID not expect any Christmas gifts. Her father and mother definitely had made it clear that they were no longer interested in her. Only a few of her friends knew where she was.

Therefore, when a long envelope with her father's name on it came, she opened it in suprise. A check fell out. It was not for a few dollars. It was for an amount that astounded her. He must be making a comeback. Probably he was sorry for his harshness. Well, she would mail the crisp green piece of paper back to him. She didn't ask for help.

The radio was bringing an old carol across the miles. Large snowflakes were falling gently against the window. It was nearly Christmas ....

Judy replaced the check in the envelope, placed it in her desk, locked the compartment where she stuck it. If her father had sent her a couple of handkerchiefs, a box of candy, a pair of stockings, that would have been a present. Money wasn't. It was a duty, a way of settling an obligation. Yet, maybe it was the only way of bestowing a gift which he knew She would accept it and some day he would understand that she had not wished to hurt anyone.

In the hall she passed Coralee, her arms filled with a large box from which small parcels were spilling.

"My brother drove all the way over to bring me my Christmas things since I won't be home," she explained. "Here's something for you please, Miss Rogers. My mother sent it."

It was a box of home-made butterscotch but to Judy it was ambrosia and myrrh and frankincense. Someone appreciated her. Someone was thanking her for a kindness! She turned away because her pansy eyes were bright with tears.

Ronald called soon. He asked for her instead of Abbey. She realized that it was absurd to be glad about such a triviality. He chatted for a moment, then added:

"The style contest has been postponed. You won't get an answer, or verdict, until the end of the month. It's in the morning papers, Judy, I want you to win a place."

"Thank you, Ronald. That's the nicest Christmas present anyone could give me." Then, because her voice might quiver a little if she did not change the personal trend of the conversation, she began to talk of the gaiety of the mansion.

Somewhere, hours later, a clock chimed 7, with the mellow intonations of Big Ben in its tower in London. Judy was ready for the party. She wore a crimson marganza frock which shimmered over its crimson taffeta petticoats. It was a dress that she herself had designed for a holiday party one year before. Her slippers were silver sandals and her hair was bound with a slim silver ribbon. She wished that she had the ruby which was in the pawnshop. Her father's check would help her redeem it the next time she went into the city.

Dinner was at 8. There would be 40 guests. About 10, the others would begin to come for the night's hilarities.

Count Phillippe, correctly dressed, was standing in the library, watching the lights of the trimmed trees play upon the snow. He looked tired. Suddenly Judy felt sorry for him.

"Do you know what I'd like to do?" he asked, his brilliant smile flashing. "Get a sleigh somewhere, and just you and I go for a ride up one hill and down another, and have an oyster stew at a village inn, and hear carols in a church."

"Oh, so would I!" Judy agreed. "But this party—it's in your honor. You mean, you don't like it?"

"I like it very much. But I'd like the other, too. I'm two people, Judy Rogers. The one you like, and the one Abbey likes."

"Which one do you like?"

"I can't make up my mind."

You can't make up your heart, either, Judy reflected. You know you are happier with Mrs. Bedford but Abbey has some kind of an appeal. You liked Marjorie, but that wouldn't work. She didn't have enough money. As for me —I can answer your questions and I don't love you, so I'm comfortable, like a hassock or a cushion.

The count asked a question so unexpectedly that Judy started. "What's the matter with Abbey? What do she and Ronald Birrell have up their respective sleeves?"

"Why, nothing that I know of. Where did you get such an idea?"

"They talk together a great deal, and when I come they stop. Don't pretend, Miss Rogers. You've noticed. Does she want to call off the wedding, do you suppose?" He smiled as though he was not afraid. "It would be rather awkward if she did so, you know. I could make other arrangements naturally...."

"You are mercenary, arn't you?" asked Judy.

Possibly. Isn't everyone?" He smiled again. "My title is an old, proud one. It will not be worn by an unappreciative countess. Mark that Miss Rogers."

It could all be so simple, Judy realized. Abbey could tell Count Phillippe that she preferred Ronald, and the count could withdraw. But it wouldn't be that way. There were too many dollars, too much prestige involved. Everything would be as gay as Coney Island at 9 o'clock on a summer night, and then, when the wedding was over, there would be such a tangle of threads they would have to be snapped to regain any semblance of order.

Why had Ronald been so interested in a society girl who had a living to make, though? Why had he said those lilting words that she couldn't forget? Why had he been so concerned the night the count had been threatened with death?

Judy straightened her shining red shoulders and went into the den. She did not know that it was occupied until Mr. Boland's voice spoke:

"Come in and share my fire, Miss Rogers. I wanted some quietness."

"You aresn't going to the dinner?"

He shook his head. Judy noticed how old and tired he looked. "I'm having a tray. I want to go over some reports."

"On Christmas Eve?"

"I think I can keep it better alone," he answered with a fleeting smile. "Christmas isn't much of an imitation of the day it used to be. I was just thinking that one year, before the mines began to yield, I gave Abbey a doll—a rag doll we got at a mining store, with beads for eyes. She slept with it until its skirts were mended past repair. This year she ordered a count."

Judy did not answer, and the man went on. He paused at last to say: "Is Abbey happy, Miss Rogers? What do you think of the count? Will he do?" Then, giving her no chance to make her noncommittal answers, he continued "I wish she had fallen in love with some decent young American like that Birrell. He's clean and fine, all the way through. The boy's honest and he's a comer. He'll be heard from. Lately, I've wondered..

Oh, so have I! Judy gave a silent answer. All day long and all night long. But I don't want it to be that way. I don't want to love anyone but, since I can't escape, please let me have him! Give Abbey her count! Buy her a duke or a prince! She doesn't care. She can't love, really love. ..Then Abbey's white, strained face came back. Maybe she could. Maybe she did. Perphaps money had spoiled her and it was not her fault. If so, Ronald could help her climb back to the simple plains where the winds blew cool and strong.

Into the den came Abbey herself. The man and the girl in red caught their breath in silent admiration. Her gold hair was molten under a band of crystallite stars. Her dress was a floating blue net, deep as the sea on its bluest day, and it was spangled with all of the Christmas stars in the sky. There was a mysterious sheen, sharp as early frost, across the blue silken net, and a veil was caught behind the bandeau in her hair, and fell to the floor where it made a shimmering train.

Behind her—behind her Ronald came....

For Saturday, October 22

THE ASTRAL influences for this day point to great progress and prosperity, with affairs moving under high pressure, stimulated by an expansive ambition to accomplish mighty and endurable objectives. And while all such are under fine stimuli, with much promise of achievement, there may be tenacious obstacles, disappointments and postponements to cope with. Some arduous effort may excite bitter opposition or hostility, which should be met with tact, diplomacy or strategy.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great opportunity, with promise of success and prosperity. However, their aggressive and bold efforts may provoke hostility, enmity and bitter opposition. These would be best manipulated by quiet methods, rather than open friction.

A child born on this day may be capable, versatile and have great energy and high ambitions. It may work under high pressure and meet much opposition and enmity. Its ultimate success depends on early training and direction.

PERPETUAL PAINTING JOB

DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG MAN whose thoughts are matrimonially inclined wants to know if the modern girl makes as good a wife as did the girl of the past. That is a question that is impossible to answer by either a flat yea or nay, because wives are purely a matter of individual taste, and the kind of a wife that is one man's meat is another man's poison. It isn't what a woman does or leaves undone that makes her a good wife. It is just giving satisfaction.

So whether the 1938 model girl makes a better wife than Grandma, or whether Grandma has little Miss Flibbertigibbet backed off the map as a wife depends entirely upon which way a man likes 'em and what he expects of 'em. If, for instance, a man wants a doormat wife that he can walk over, he had best pass up the modern girl. She would bite his heel if he attempted to trample on her. If he is marrying to get a good cook, she is also a poor risk. If he is looking for an incense burner, nothing doing. But if he wants a little playmate, or a press agent, or a competent business partner, or an interesting companion, she is all to the good. As for love and loyalty and the cardinal virtues, Granddaughter and Grandmother break about even.

The woman of the past had her points. None will deny that. She knew far more about getting her man and holding him that the modern girl does, but that may not have been so much because of her superior technique as because in her day a man had to get married in order to get a comfortable place in which to live and somebody to valet him, and because then divorce had not become a fashionable sport.

Anyway, the qualities for which Grandma has so long been celebrated and on which her reputation as a paragon wife rests would not make much of a hit with the modern young man. He doesn't want a wife who, like Charlotte, is perpetually cutting bread and butter, who smells of the nursery, who is too absorbed in watching the baby sleep to ever step out with him of an evening and who has no interest or conversation that does not center around her home.

Before, however, we accord Grandma the palm as being a better wife than Granddaughter, let us remember that it was a comparatively simple thing to be a good wife when all that a wife had to do was to feed her husband, darn his socks, keep the buttons on his shirts and keep up the census quota in order to come up to scratch. Nobody then had added to the domestic complications the theory that unless a wife kept young and beautiful and retained her boyish figure, could dance the rhumba, play a swell game of bridge and talk like a spell-binder that her husband was entitled to divorce her.

Of course, the modern girl has her drawbacks as a wife. For one thing, she is rarely domestic either by instinct or training. The man who marries her trusts far more than his heart to her keeping. He risks his digestion. Still, if his stomach holds out and the bicarbonate of soda lasts, the bride who started out by making biscuit that would have served for cannon balls learns how to turn out such bread as Mother never baked.

Another drawback to the modern girl as a wife is that sweet and blindly trusting disposition that Grandma had and that must have made things so slick for Grandpa. Granddaughter hasn't worked in an office and telephoned the boss' wife about customers from Oshkors suddenly blowing in, without getting wise to all of husband's tricks and manners. Hence it is practically impossible to put anything over on her, which undoubtedly is embarrassing at times.

And still another disadvantage that the modern girl has as a wife is that she demands a square deal. No double-crossing. No night clubs for Papa and walking the bady with the colic for Mamma. No slaving over the cookstove for a man who thinks that all that a wife is entitled to is her board and clothes, the backbone of the chicken and a hand-me-down from a basement bargain shop.

Grandma had to stand whatever treatment her husband accorded her because she had to eat and didn't know how to earn her bread and butter. But Granddaughter has a good trade and she can put on her hat and walk out whenever she doesn't like the way her husband treats her.

Undoubtedly the modern girl is no wife for the tyrant, the tight-wad or the egotist, but if a man wants a wife who will give him love, loyalty, companionship and be a good working partner, she takes the wedding cake.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf sat down on a flat rock in front of the anthill and watched the ants at work. They seemed to be in a dreadful hurry, all of them. Some were running into the ant-hill through a little opening one one side, carrying food and supplies for the ant inhabitants. A second stream of ants ran out of the ant-hill through the same opening. Most of the ants in the second stream had left their burdens of food and supplies inside the hill, and were hurrying off to find more.

However, a few of the ants came out of the hill, just as Knarf was watching, carrying large white packages. The packages seemed to be very delicate, for he noticed that they carried them very carefully. Knarf wondered what was in the packages. He stopped one of the ants and asked her. But she hurried right off without answering him. All the ants appeared to be too busy to answer him. At that moment he saw a daddy-long-legs sunning himself on top of a leaf a little ways off and he went up to him.

"Those aren't packages, son."

"Good - morning, Daddy-long-legs," he said to him.

"'Morning, son," said Daddy-long-legs. "Watching the ants, eh? Pretty busy folks, those ants."

"Yes," said Knarf. "I was just wondering what was in those white packages."

"H'mm....Those aren't packages, son. Those are eggs."

"But where are they taking them? Are they going to be put in another ant-hill?"

"No. They're just going to be set out in the sun to get a little warm. They won't hatch out if they aren't kept a little warm."

Daddy-long-legs was right, for at that moment Knarf saw the ants setting the eggs down in a sunny spot on the ground, not far from the ant-hill. Then they went off and left them there.

"Why don't they stay and watch them? Aren't they afraid someone will walk off with them?"

Daddy-long-legs chuckled. "Just let some other insect try to walk off with them! That insect wouldn't get very far with the eggs. But what are you doing in front of that ant-hill? You look as if you were expecting to go inside."

"That's right. I am expecting to go inside. I'm going to see the queen of the ants. One of the ants is talking to her about me now. I'm waiting for the ant to come out and take me in. Look! Here she comes for me now!"

Rosemary Rumary Is Friday Bride

A charming Autumn wedding took place in St. John's Church at 3.45 this afternoon (Friday), when Rosemary Rumary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Rumary of 352 Water street, became the bride of Earl J. Doughty, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Doughty of 150 Hart Avenue. Canon W. P. Robertson performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely gown of white taffeta. Rows of deep flounces piped with taffeta fashioned the bouffant skirt. The sleeves were short and puffed, and white gardenias trimmed the skirt and shirred bodice. A veil of embroidered net fell softly to the shoulders from a Juliet cap of shirred taffeta, she wore mittens of white net that reached to the elbow and were finished with pleated taffeta ruffles, and carried a graceful shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and ferns.

Miss Irene Rumary attended her sister, wearing a frock of pink net. Pleated ruffles trimmed the full, floor-length skirt and short, puffed sleeves, and she wore a wide sash of pink taffeta, pink net gloves with taffeta ruffles, and a coronet of tiny pink flowers on her hair. Her bouquet was of pink Carnations.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Everett Doughty.

A wedding dinner was givtn at The Elite for about twenty guests, and the bride's mother, wearing a gown of green crepe with matching hat, and corsage of red roses, received, assisted by the mother of the groom, wearing a navy ensemble with corsage of roses.

For travelling the bride chose a knitted suit of royal blue, a navy coat with galyak fur trimming, and navy accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Doughty will live in Peterborough on their return from a wedding trip.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Ships, ships, I will describe you
Amidst the main,
I will come and try you,
What you are protecting,
And projecting,
What's your end and aim.
One goes abroad for merchanidse and trading,
Another stays to keep his country from invading,
A third is coming home with rich and lading,
Hallo! my fancie, whither wilt thou go?"

—William Harvey.

Dear Friends:

When you travel on a large liner, you know that it is a world to itself, and the word of the captain is law. All that happens seems to be of more importance than it is on land.

Hospitals, and barracks, large institutions, all live in a little world of their own, governed by laws and ethics different from those outside of the walls of these places.

And, as in a ship, so in our lives. Some travel first-class with all the luxury that goes with it, with maids to wait on them and clean up after them, for money gives these things.

And some go second-class, with a little less because they pay less. Some go tourist, and the rest go steerage. Then we have the officers who man the ship, from the captain down to the stoker.

Our lives are like ships, or like a ship on which we travel through life. If we have the where-withal to go first-class, all well and good. But just as those occupying the choicest place on a ship still have a tendency to get as sick as a steerage passenger, so also do those in high places in life get just as sick with conditions in life.

They can be dealt with just as treacherously, can get let down just as badly, get just as fed up with the same old round, as the ones who tend a machine, or do scrubbing.

And all of us are like ships in that we all live in a little world of our own, and what happens to us either for good or ill, is the most important thing in the world.

Our head is the Captain, directing all the other organs what to do, so, if our head is not screwed on right, what trouble we get all the members of the body into.

If our head is wise, if we use the intelligence God gave us, we shall rule ourselves wisely, we shall have discipline so that the hands will not go against the feet, nor the eyes against the heart.

We shall steer our course by the compass of our divinity, and so avoid the shoals and rocks which would wreck us.

Yet how many have landed at the bottom of the sea of life because they would not obey their captain, or because the captain was lax and careless about the ship of his body.

And the main ship of life is composed of many things. Our way of travel may not be high, we may be a steward or a coal-heaver, yet if we do our part, one day we may travel in the best place.

Yet, high or low, we all have our problems, and travel as far and as fast as we like, we take them with us. Many a one has set out on a long journey hoping to leave a broken heart behind them, but they found to their sorrow that it was still with them.

And some we look at who seem to be travelling the luxurious way, have many of the sadnesses the poorest of us have. Queens can suffer the same torture as a charlady, for they are both sisters under the skin. ("The colonel's lady, and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin.")

As ships in ourselves, some go abroad, some stay home, some are coming home with riches or without, but each and everyone of us get tossed about on the sea of life, yet if our timbers are stout, our captain wise, our compass in good order, we shall reach harbor at last. Wishing you a safe voyage and hoping you will send me a letter from whatever port you may be in, I am still,

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Mrs. E. Wand Addresses Local Council

A delightfully vivid story describing the beauties and historical highlights of the cities of England which she visited during the summer, was told by Mrs. E. Wand, who was guest speaker at a meeting of the local Council of Women held Thursday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Wand spoke of the city of London, with its throngs and rush of people; of England's Peterborough, populated by 43,000 people, and of Grimsby-by-the-Sea, where beautifully-formed fruits and animals are used as decorations, and life-like peacocks have fan-shaped tails studded with colored lights that flicker on and off like the bulbs on Canadian Christmas trees. "Electricity," said Mrs. Wand, "is cheap in England, and fireplaces can be operated for four hours at the cost of a half-penny!" Mrs. Wand was introduced by Mrs. J. Cridland.

An instructive talk on fire prevention and a brief outline of what fire prevention education has done to make Peterborough homes safe from fire, was given by Chief Gimblett of the Fire Department.

Mrs. Cutmore, accompanied by Mrs. Searles, sang two lovely numbers.

Mrs. C. M. Scott, president, presided during the business meeting. A letter of greeting was read from Mrs. Maude Grey Miller, president of the Provincial Council of Women, Toronto, and a nomination of members for the Provincial Council was made. Mrs E. Wand was appointed as official delegate to the Provincial Council meeting to be held in Toronto on November 17 and 18.

It was decided to provide a wreath for the war memorial on Armistice Day, and an invitation from the Ladies of the Legion to attend their annual bazaar on November 3rd was read by the president.

Two interesting and instructive convener's reports were given by Mrs. C. S. Thompson, reporting on "Arts and Letters," and by Mrs. Simpson, reporting on the "Cinema."

Window Curtains Aid to Privacy

Window curtains are good for several reasons. They give a soft finish to the window, act as a filter to keep out dust, keep private those rooms which are overlooked, and are—most important—easily washed.

Dainty muslin curtains were a Regency fashion, but in 1938 you can have the screening curtains in a variety of materials. Among them fine ninon, which is more practical than it sounds, for it washes beautifully.

It is made in pale paste colors, and you can get it in plain or patterned to, in white or off-white.

Scottish Lass Booms Herring

LONDON, Oct. 21—(CP).—From Dundee Anne Jamieson has come to throw a life-line to the floundering herring fishery and teach Englishmen to eat fish over the counter.

Miss Jamieson hopes to launch a chain of "herring bars" across the country and to supplement them with a fleet of small trucks and box tricycles which will peddle the silvery fish in small towns within a radius of 20 miles of London.

First herring bar will be opened this month on Fleet street, probably with a beer license so that any thirst raised by the herring can be quenched quickly. If the Fleet street bar is a success others will be established in London and the larger provincial cities.

Miss Jamieson's effort, backed by opinion of nutritional authorities and national fitness officials, comes at a time when the herring fishery is in a depressed condition with an annual catch of less than half the amount of 1913.

A major cause of the trade's depression is seen in creation of totalitarian states with policies of industrial self-sufficiency. They once were good markets for exported British herring. Now they take little or none, catching their own. The British herring fleet in 1913 sent 1,470 steam drifters to sea, last year it sent 749. Miss Jamieson is trying to make the British eat the fish the foreigners used to eat and bring the catch back to something like its previous level.

IN MEMORIAM

FRICK—In loving memory of Adam H. Frick.
We journey the road alone, Dad,
Yet Mother and I seem to see
Your kindly face and loving smile
By our side as it used to be.

FLEETWOOD.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away October 21st, 1918.
The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

tion of your time to crusading for Christ.

"You are here in a representative capacity, and you carry the torch of new inspiration and enthusiasm back to the branch to which you belong when this convention is over.

Devote some of your time every day to the glorification of God. Live Christian lives and strive to brighten each day with worthwhile activities for God, the church and your neighbor. Archbishop Owen closed his address with a prayer that God's blessing would be on the work of the delegates during and after the convention.

Communion At St. John's.

At eight o'clock Archbishop Owen assisted by four attending clergymen administered Corporate Communion at St. John's church and later the attending delegates and clergy had breakfast in the Parish Hall. General sessions started in the Canadian Legion Hall at ten o'clock with Tim Regan as chairman acting in the absence of Miss Margaret McNichol, President of the Provincial Council, who will be here tonight.

Report from the President was read by Miss Kay Hinton of Toronto and Kenneth Gage of London seconded the adoption of the report which carried unanimously. Miss Evely nThompson of London, secretary for the past year, presented her report which also was adopted.

Both reports indicated the various organizations throughout the province had been particularly active during the 1937-8 year with several new departments started and showing a healthy growth.

The Financial statement compiled by James G. Flaherty was read by another member in his absence. Rev. Harry O'Neil, provincial chaplain, presented the report of the Devotional Development committee, and the annual report of the A.Y.P.A. monthly was read by James J. Worfolk and signed also by Bill Rich who was co-convenor. Florence Hutchinson of Peterborough, read a report on Sugg

GAUGE YOUR PARTNER

ON MANY A deal there is no such thing as an absolutely direct answer to the question of what is the correct or best bidding? The answer depends upon another question. What kind of partner did you have? It also involves the question of what conventions, artificial or otherwise, you were using.

	♠ Q 10 5 ♥ J 8 ♦ A 10 6 3 ♣ A K 9 7
♠ J 8 7 2 ♥ Q 5 2 ♦ 9 7 5 ♣ 10 6 3	N W E S	♠ 9 6 4 ♥ 10 7 6 4 3 ♦ Q 8 2 ♣ 8 2
	♠ A K 3 ♥ A K 9 ♦ K J 4 ♣ Q J 5 4

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

What may be a sound course of bidding opposite an astute partner can be very bad with an inexperienced player opposite you. It was sad to see what happened to this deal when a South player, trained to play with experts, failed to temper his actions when lined up with a relative newcomer to the game.

South responded to his partner's 1-Diamond with 2-No Trump, whereupon North, who had learned the right way to bid two-suiters, called 3-Clubs. Now South invited a slam with 4-No Trump, which never would have been passed by the partners to whom he was accustomed. This time he suffered the chagrin of hearing his mate pass, so lost a nice slam bonus.

Opposite such a partner, he would have done better by slamming into 6-No Trump as soon as he heard his partner's opening bid. There was hardly an earthly chance that this could not be made, if his partner had an opening bid. As the cards lay, seven would have been home if the diamond finesse was guessed correctly.

	♠ K Q J 4 ♥ A K Q 10 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 9 6 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

With the club K led against South's 3-Hearts, how should East proceed with the defense?

No Aid For Saskatchewan Farmer If He Raised Seed For 1939

SASKATOON, Oct. 21 (CP). — The Saskatchewan farmer who this year raised sufficient grain to provide for his 1939 seed and to keep himself and his family could expect absolutely no aid from the Government, Attorney-General T. C. Davies last night told delegates attending the annual convention of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

"We feel as a matter of fundamental policy, that the sooner our people in this province are self-sustaining and are able to take care of their own seed and feed requirements, the better for all concerned," he said.

Mr. Davies emphasized necessity of the province keeping its credit at the highest possible level and said the province must begin to look forward to the day when "all this debt legislation must be eliminated" and when reliance must again be placed upon the courts for enforcement of contracts and relief from obligation to fulfill them.

He referred to "growing tendencies" on the part of debtors to feel they should not be called upon to pay debts other than those recently incurred and said such tendencies inevitably result in absolute restriction of credit from outside sources.

"It is easy to decry this credit system, but we had better not destroy it until we have something on hand to take its place."

Apple Crop Tops 1937 Production

OTTAWA, Oct. 21—(CP). — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics today estimated Canada's 1938 apple crop at 5,175,000 barrels, a slight gain compared with the 1937 production of 5,149,100 barrels.

Estimates of other fruits with the 1937 figures in brackets: Pears 491,700 bushels (446,200); peaches 711,200 bushels (664,800); apricots 59,000 bushels (52,700); plums and prunes 205,500 bushels (198,400); cherries 187,700 bushels (153,000); strawberries 22,570,000 quarts (23,524,100); raspberries 9,484,600 quarts (8,600,000); grapes 31,004,000 pounds (54,384,000).

Canadian export shipments of apples in barrels, although slow in starting, have overtaken and now are considerably above shipments for the same period last year, the report said. Exports to Oct. 13 were 688,363 barrels against 544,066 barrels on Oct. 15, 1937.

12 P.C. More in Ontario.

TORONTO, Oct. 21 — (CP). — Ontario Department of Agriculture, in its October estimate of fruit production, to-day placed the province's 1938 apple crop at 831,560 barrels, a 12-per-cent increase over 1937. Eastern Ontario's crop was estimated at 342,160 barrels, up 40 per cent. but the Western Ontario estimate of 489,400 barrels was down 23 per cent.

Wife Turns On Hubby Who Shot Lover

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—(AP). — Forsaken by the pretty young wife whose lover he is charged with slaying, defended as a model husband by his mother-in-law, Rudolph Sikora awaited a call to testify in his own behalf today.

Murder trial spectators, most of them women, jammed the courtroom to overflow yesterday to glimpse the unusual drama of a mother supporting the marital conduct of her son-in-law and condemning the shortcomings of her daughter.

Edward Solomon, 35, the defendant's love rival, was shot to death on a street corner last August while on the way to an office where he and Margaret Sikora worked at adjoining desks.

Pale and dejected, the 31-year-old defendant sat almost motionless as the mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Boehme, tearfully told of her daughter's romance with the older and urbane Solomon.

He watched and listened intently while Margaret, nine years his junior, aided the State in its efforts to send him to the electric chair. Impassively and without reluctance she admitted her clandestine meetings with Solomon and her love for him.

She was the first woman in modern Illinois jurisprudence to testify against a husband charged with killing his rival. A wife's right to testify against her husband was established in 1937.

Mrs. Boehme testified in support of the defence contention that Mrs. Sikora's conduct drove her "perfect husband" into a state of emotional insanity which led to the slaying. Mrs. Boehme said Sikora came to her house the day before the shooting.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Appears In Court

Sally Rand, premiere fan and bubble dancer, surrendered to Los Angeles court after a bench warrant was issued for her arrest when she failed to appear for trial on assault and battery charges growing out of a row in a theatre. When photographers asked Sally to pose with a policewoman she stamped her foot and shouted "Nevah!" She is pictured here as she entered court.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight! (Advt.)

Bruce May Resign

OTTAWA, Oct. 21—(CP).—A report from Tokyo that Hon. Randolph Bruce, Canadian minister to Japan, will leave for Canada tomorrow revived reports here that he will resign shortly. It is stated that his coming to Canada now is due to illness in his family but it is not expected he will return to Japan.

Appointment of a successor will not be considered until Mr. Bruce has resigned. The former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia was appointed to the Tokyo Legation Sept. 1, 1936, when he was 73 years old.

Hankow's Fall At Hand Says Japs

Mass Bombing Hinted, Fall of Canton Eases Path to North

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22. — (AP). — Japanese commanders said to-day the fall of Hankow was imminent and said Chinese were in retreat at that war-time capital, goal of the Japanese invasion.

Mass bombing of the Hankow area to shatter the last Chinese resistance was foreshadowed in a memorandum delivered to envoys of foreign powers at Shanghai, warning foreign shipping to proceed up the Yangtse River at least 10 miles above Hankow by midnight to-night.

The memorandum, which also advised foreign shipping to avoid the Canton area in south China, explained that Chinese troops were retreating across the Yangtse at Hankow and said extensive bombing might be necessary.

Japanese forces stabbing at Hankow's outer defences were pushing nearer to the city every hour.

Fall of Canton — Japanese announced the city was occupied—was said to have given impetus to the central China drive against Hankow and the adjoining cities of Hanyang and Wuchang.

Chinese Moving Out

A wholesale Chinese withdrawal was said to be under way from both the Canton area in south China and the central China Hankow region. Chinese were streaming northwest from occupied Canton, with Japanese controlling the area completely both on the ground and in the skies.

In the Yangtse River valley, Chinese troops were reported in retreat from defence positions east of Hankow to the city's environs.

Japanese troops and river boats kept up their steady advance. A mid-afternoon communique announced that ground forces had occupied Ocheng, on the south bank of the Yangtse 35 miles east of Hankow, and were driving directly west against Wuchang.

Air, naval and ground forces gained new momentum in the invasion which has brought all of China's chief seaports, its major cities, and the rich north China area under nominal Japanese control.

Observers have predicted that Japanese, once the Hankow region was conquered, might rest on their gains, content to defend the occupied territory against possible guerrilla attacks.

HONG KONG, Oct. 22 (A.P.). — Japanese forces to-day spread through Kwangtung Province to clean up Chinese resistance and prepared for a northern drive from the conquered cit yof Canton.

Farmhand Gets 15 Years In Cobourg Case

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP). —Harold Oliver, 20-year-old farmhand from Hamilton Township, yesterday was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary on a charge of wounding Mrs. Edith Parker, farmwife, and to five years concurrent on a charge of setting fire to her home.

A charge of rape against Oliver was transferred to the next Assizes, the Crown intimating it would be withdrawn. Defence Counsel F. C. Richardson announced he would appeal the sentences.

Oliver was convicted Thursday of the assault charge, it originally having been one of attempted murder. He pleaded guilty to the fire-setting charge.

All three charges arose from an incident July 21, when Oliver is said to have entered the Parker home, attacked Mrs. Parker with an axe and then forced her 19-year-old daughter Josephine, into another room where she too was assaulted. Before he left the house he cut the telephone wires and left a burning cigarette on the couch.

U.F.C. Study State Of Their Own

Seen West's Only Hope Unless East Opens New Paths

SASKATOON, Oct. 22.—(CP). — Delegates to the annual convention of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, returned to their homes to-day after instructing the board of directors to study possibility "of setting up a western autonomous state within the British Empire, governed by a single western government, elected democratically by the people."

Secretary Frank Eliason explained the resolution intended study of the subject should include British Columbia, a valuable prairie outlet to the seaboard, along with Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta as a separate state within the Empire. The board will report its findings to the membership for consideration.

Col. William Van Allen of Shaunavon, who introduced the measure, and George R. Bickerton, section president who seconded it, said: "Unless some arrangement with Eastern Canada can be made whereby the economic set-up can be made more favorable to the western farmer, there appears to be no alternative than to try it alone."

Col. Van Allen said the question of secession was precipitated by recent statements in Eastern Canada opposing western demands for equitable treatment by the Dominion in the matter of tariffs, freight and interest rates and fiscal policies in general. The U.F.C., Saskatchewan section, clams 40,000 members.

Another resolution requested the Dominion government take steps to disallow the Quebec padlock law and curb "unconstitutional activities" within any organization.

Fine Being Sent To Windsor Strike

TORONTO, Oct. 22—(CP).—Premier Hepburn announce today following a conference with labor department officials that Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario labor department, would leave for Windsor at once to assist all parties in the strike of automobile workers at the Chrysler plant to reach an agreement.

The premier disclosed also that he proposed, after a settlement of existing difficulties, to call a conference of interested parties to devise machinery which would prevent continued strife in the automobile industry.

"I would strongly urge all parties employees and employers alike, to agree at once to negotiate the existing dispute so the men can be immediately restored to work and avoid further economic loss," the premier said.

Mr. Hepburn added he had been in touch with J. L. Cohen of Toronto, labor lawyer, who assured him of the full co-operation of the Windsor workers.

Slot Machines Operating In City With "Pay-offs" Being Made Players

SLOT MACHINES and pin ball games with a pay-off have made their appearance in Peterborough only a month and a half after they were officially banned all over the Dominion.

Although some owners claim they are operating machines "for fun only" and with no cash reward for winners, this city now has machines in operation that pay big rewards. From one downtown machine the other day a player took a jack-pot totalling $10.75, as a crowd of envious nickel-gamblers stood about. The proprietor opened a drawer in the machine with a key, paid off the lucky winner. Similar machines are operating in other parts of the city and while there is officially no pay-off, knowing investors get their money just the same.

Hint U.S. Stiffening Trade Bargain Result Of Munich Example

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(CP-Havas). —The impending congressional elections, the "revulsion" of the United States from European affairs since the Munich agreement, and the British tariff on motor cars all were seen by newspapers here today as factors delaying completion of the Anglo-American trade treaty.

The political correspondent of the Financial News (Independent) wrote:

"It was evident yesterday, both in quarters close to the government here and in reports received from Washington, that political factors were concerned, in addition to the economic questions implied by the demands for British tariff concessions.

"The near approach of the American congressional elections, which will take place Nov. 8, was believed to be exercising an important influence on the American attitude in the negotiations.

"It would be relatively easy on the other hand to link up the failure to negotiate an agreement with the revulsion from the European and especially the British connections which is thought to be discernable in American opinion since the Munich agreement."

The Labor View.

The city (financial) editor of the Daily Herald (Labor) wrote:

"It is essential that the public should realize who is responsible for holding up, and possibly endangering, the Anglo-American trade agreement.

"At present the British authorities are refusing to accept certain of the concessions regarded as necessary by the United States. The chief troubles are still motor cars and the dollar-pound exchange rate.

"Since the United States wants lower import duties than the present 33 1-3 per cent. o. motor cars and since the most favored clause forbids discrimination between Germany and the United States, the deadlock has naturally been difficult to avoid. For the British Government has assured our motor car manufacturers that there will be no reduction in present tariffs.

"Another cause of the hitch is the stiffening in President Roosevelt's attitude provoked by Prime Minister Chamberlain's Munich pact policy. Roosevelt and Cordell Hull (United States Secretary of State) had always regarded the proposed agreement as a contribution to the building of a democratic bloc of peace-loving nations—and, finding this idea rejected by the British Government in the Munich policy, they have concluded that a rather high price must be obtained for the trade agreement as a more or less purely commercial bargain."

Perfect Husband Acquitted In Slaying Rival

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP)—A jury of 11 husbands and a bachelor decided Rudolph Sikora, the "perfect husband," was justified in killing the man who stole his young wife's affections.

They acquitted the 31-year-old defendant last night after deliberating less than two hours.

Russell Hornburg, 35, jury foreman, apparently voiced the sentiments of his fellow jurors when he declared:

"We felt that he acted in a way that should protect the sanctity of the American home."

Edward Solomon, 35, the bachelor lover of Mrs. Margaret Sikora, was shot to death on a street corner last Aug 22.

"I feel swell," exclaimed Sikora.

In contrast his 22-year-old wife was calm. She had scored her husband's defence by taking the witness stand to vow allegiance to the memory of her dead lover.

"I expected that verdict," commented the pretty brunette.

Last Minute News Flashes

PRAGUE.—The General Staff reported to-day the killing of 12 Hungarian terrorists and one Czech gendarme during fighting near Berehovo in Southern Slovakia.

It declared Czechoslovakia troops captured a number of other alleged Hungarian terrorists, seized their arms and ammunition, and surrounded eight persons who made up the remainder of a band operating around Huhyadi, near Berehovo.

TOKYO.—Japan is ready to make a fair peace with China, a high Japanese official close to the Government told Havas to-day. No actual negotiations have been undertaken as yet, he said, but the capture of Canton and the expected early fall of Hankow may well be the prelude to a negotiated peace.

Czechs Skeptical Hungary Will Fight

UZHOROD, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 22.—(AP).—Hundreds of thousands of Czechoslovak troops were ready for action along the Hungarian border to-day, but the general feeling among them was that Hungary would not resort to military action to enforce her territorial demands.

One authoritative source estimated 750,000 Czechoslovak soldiers probably were concentrated along the frontier from Komarno deep into Ruthenia.

Dispatches from Balassa Gyarmat, on the Hungarian side of the border, said close to 500,000 Hungarian troops faced Czechoslovakia. In some sections, the reports said, officers had difficulties in restraining their men from crossing the line "to free Hungarian brothers and sisters from the Czech terror."

The city of Uzhorod, capital of Ruthenia, literally was filled with troops. All highways were crowded with vehicles taking soldiers to concentration centres.

Hundreds of Czechoslovak soldiers were encamped along the highway between the Hungarian frontier town of Satoraljaujhely and Uzhorod—so cleverly camouflaged they were visible only upon the closest inspection.

Pressure on Budapest

(Dispatches from Budapest said Germany and Italy were urging Hungary to accept Czechoslovakia's latest offer—an offer to cede more than half of the land demanded by Hungary—but the Foreign Office remained silent.)

In Prague, Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky was reported to have told the Soviet Minister, Sergei Alexandrovski, that Czechoslovakia was "no longer interested" in its alliance with Russia.

Czechoslovak sources, however, emphasized the fact that the alliance—a mutual assistance pact of which France was a signatory—had not been terminated.

The Foreign Minister's reported statement was regarded as further evidence of Czechoslovakia's swing toward Nazi Germany. It is known that Chancellor Hitler wants the Soviet alliance terminated.

German Leaders Propose Nation 3rd Partner In British-U.S. Trade Deal

Canadian Experts Doubt Any Ill-Effects Likely to Hit Her Berlin Or U.S. Plans if Anglo Pact Extended

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—(AP).—Authoritative Economic Ministry quarters proposed to-day that three unofficial economic experts, representing the United States, Great Britain and Germany, get together soon and try to devise a triangular agreement to supplant or supplement the proposed Anglo-American trade treaty.

Such unofficial experts, conferring with the approval of their Governments, would in the opinion of these quarters lose nothing if they failed, but had everything to gain for their respective countries and world trade if they succeeded.

One of their tasks, it was suggested, would be to restore confidence among business leaders of the three countries involved. Another would be to find ways for having Germany buy and supply those things which at present are a stumbling block to conclusion of the Anglo-American treaty.

According to this authority, the United Kingdom is unable fully to absorb raw materials from the United States because of its agreements with Canada. Germany could take these American raw materials, such as cotton, and pay for them with industrial goods deliverable in England.

He mentioned chemicals as one specific German product which Great Britain could readily absorb. Some types of machinery also were mentioned.

No Canadian Fears.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22 (C.P.).—Trade experts here are doubtful whether the Canada-Germany trade agreement or the proposed Canada-United States treaty would be affected if Germany became a third partner to the British-U.S. Treaty now being negotiated in Washington.

In Berlin, German economists indicated that Germany would favor such a trade alliance with Britain and the U.S.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has always welcomed any effort for freer trade, but before Government officials make any definite comment, details of any German trade proposal will have to be known.

The trade agreement and payments agreement between Canada and Germany was negotiated by Trade Minister Euler and signed on October 22, 1936. The agreement was to remain in force until November 14, 1937, or "thereafter until either of the two Governments shall have given two months' notice of termination." No notice of termination has been given and the treaty is still in force.

When it was signed, German authorities indicated it was considered a model trade treaty which the Reich would like to conclude with U.S. also.

The agreement provides for mutual most-favored nation treatment and also for bi-lateral exchange of goods in equal amounts, which has been the basis of Germany's foreign trade policy.

Tories Prepared For Reforms To Save System

VANCOUVER, Oct. 22.—(CP). — A breakfast address to young Conservatives to-day started the schedule of Hon. Dr. R. JJ. Manion, National Conservative leader, on the second day of his stay in Vancouver. To-night Dr. Manion will head east with speeches scheduled at Calgary, Moose Jaw, Brandon, Souris and Winnipeg.

The Conserative party was prepared to go ahead with the reforms needed to ensure the preservation of the British democratic political system and the capitalistic economic system of free enterprise, Dr. Manion told 1,800 persons at a party rally in the auditorium here last night.

Opportunity for youth and security for old age were the key reforms needed to make life more liveable for the great number of people. They were both attainable with an enlightened public opinion and the party was ready to do its part in creating that opinion and in pointing the way to action.

Relief Cash Better on Roads

The money spent on direct relief by Canada in the past few years might better have been spent on completion of the trans-Canada highway, he said. He endorsed the resolution of the National Conservative convention calling for completion of the coast-to-coast highway. It would promote tourist traffic and enable Canadians to know each other better.

Liberal rule federally and in the provinces had brought a surge of sectional antagonisms that rendered the break-up of Confederation more possible than ever, said Dr. Manion. The political leader to-day had "to think across all Canada" to do his duty in holding the nation together.

For the first time Great Britain in 1932 had granted Canada reciprocal tariff preferences. Preferences on fish, fruits, minerals and lumber meant that British Columbia profited more greatly than any other province.

If the trade agreement with the United States, now being negotiated, resulted in any subtraction of

In new hunting outfits and with new guns, the visitors went into the bush near here, ready for a day's pheasant hunting. But they weren't in there long before things started happening.

Uphill residents — they tell the story—heard yells and saw the two hunters dash out of the woods.

"Two bears in there," they gasped, and kept on running to their automobile.

Uphill people armed themselves and took up the trail of the "bears." They found two large porcupines.

Benes Tired and Sick Flies to England For Lengthy Rest

London, Oct. 22 (AP)

AIRLINE OFFICIALS said former President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia arrived at Croydon airport today after a flight from Prague. Dr. Benes, enroute to the United States where he will lecture at the University of Chicago, was accompanied by his wife and secretarial staff.

Sick and tired, he motored immediately to a country retreat where one of his intimates said he would rest for several months.

This statement was taken to mean the former president would not proceed to the United States, where he will lecture at the University of Chicago, until after Christmas at least.

Public Ownership For Munitions His Policy Says Mackenzie

OTTAWA, Oct. 22 (CP)—Defence Minister Mackenzie believes "in public ownership through and through" when it comes to munitions manufacture, and in letting contracts by tender whenever possible.

He made this declaration yesterday to the Royal Commission investigating the contract for 7,000 Bren machine guns awarded without tenders to the John Inglis Company of Toronto on a cost plus basis.

In this particular instance, the minister, said, there was no time to call for tenders and it was a matter of government policy, largely because of financial stringency, to enter upon the expenditures involved in making Canada self-sufficient in regard to munitions and arms.

Mr. Mackenzie was on the witness stand all day before Mr. Justice H. H. Davis of the Supreme Court of Canada, the commissioner examining the contract.

Under rapid-fire cross-examination of I. F. Hellmuth of Toronto, counsel for Maclean's magazine, the minister revealed that he met Major J. E. Hahn, president of the Inglis Company, some six months after the latter had opened negotiations with General L .R. LaFleche, deputy minister of defence, leading up to the Bren contract.

It was an article in Maclean's, written by Lt. Col. George Drew of Toronto, that prompted the investigation. Col. Drew criticized, among other things, the manner in which the government had facilitated Major Hahn's negotiations with the British war department, which gave him an order for 5,000 guns, and for failure to submit the order to public tenders.

Acted On Advice

Mr. Mackenzie, in his direct evidence taken by Hon. J. L. Ralston, commission counsel, said he had signed a letter in October, 1936, recommending Major Hahn to the authorities in England at the request

1,000 Birds, One Dog Shot, 3 Hunters Hit In Opener Of Pheasant Slaughter

(By The Canadian Press.)

Dawn today signalled another outburst of firing along Ontario's pheasant-hunting front as the nimrods scrambled in their last chance for a bag of the elusive birds. The two-day open season prevailing in 50 townships ends at dusk tonight.

First day casualties were conservatively estimated at 1,000 birds and three humans. None of the latter, however, were hurt seriously. H. O. White and Charles Kirk, officials of Westminster township near London, were pinged in the neck by pellets while Oliver Sturdee, 75-year-old farmer of the Aurora district, north of Toronto, was grazed by a bullet. In the same area a dairy truck was splattered by shot.

Biggest concentration of hunters occurred on Pelee Island, situated some 25 miles out in Lake Erie, south of Leamington and 45 miles from Windsor.

On this spot of land, the most southerly in Canada, the number of hunters is limited to 650, and the size of the bag to five birds.

Reeve Hubert Taylor said last night few of the gun-toters succeeded in bagging the limit.

"The hunters told me the birds were there all right, but they were too wise," remarked Taylor.

As many as 30 men were shooting at one time on a 10-acre farm in the St. Thomas area and aside from the toll among the feathered folk, one hunting dog "bit the dust."

On Amherst Island, off Kingston, 125 nimrods held forth. Dense undergrowth hampered the hunters. The birds were hard to "kick up" they said and it required a trained dog to flush them.

B. C. Saves Its Motorists Million and Half By Ordering 3-Cent Gasoline Cut

VICTORIA, Oct. 22 (CP)—The British Columbia government handed motorists an annual saving estimated between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 when it announced a three-cent reduction in the basic price of gasoline sold in the province.

The ruling, based on recommendations of Dr. W. A. Carrothers, former University of British Columbia economics professor and now one-man provincial fuel commission, becomes effective Oct. 26. It affects both standard and ethyl gasoline.

Oil companies temporarily reserved comment on the government's action, the first it has taken to implement findings of the Royal Commission it appointed a few years ago to probe petroleum and coal industries in British Columbia.

A bill to regulate the two industries by commission order, approved by order-in-council, was passed at the fall session of the legislature last year.

In some parts of the province the retail price reduction ordered yesterday amounted to six cents, but the Vancouver price basis for selling rates all over British Columbia, was dropped only three cents. Standard gasoline will sell hereafter Oct. 26 for 24 cents a gallon, and ethyl for 26.

Other provincial prices are based on the Vancouver price plus handling and other charges.
